About Zutoo Tablets

"I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost."

THE SERVICES AT ST. JOHN'S

Rev. J. Russell MacLean Will Preach To-Morrow

To-morrow morning a sermon on religious education will be preached at St. John's by Rev. J. Russell MacLean, M.A., of Toronto, in connection with the Observance of Childre's Day, which is general throughout the Anglican Church. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock a Children's service will be held.

At 7 p.m., the first of the two evangelistic services will be conducted by Mr. MacLean who has come particularly for this purpose, assisted by the rector. The singing of popular evangelistic hymns will be led by the organ and Mr. Gliddon's Conservatory orchestra. The service will be of an informal character and much interest has already been roused in regard to it. It has been arranged with the full approval of the Bishop of the Diocese as expressed in a letter read last Sunday. Mr. MacLean's general subject will be the "Obscuring of the Vision," leading on to the subject for next Sunday, "The Vision of the Saviour," to be dealt with by Rev. R. J. Moore, of Toronto.

Mr. MacLean is a Scotchman and Mr. Moore an Irishman and both are well equipped for their important work.

CAUSED TROUBLE AT THE SHELTER

Denham Jones' Case Again In Police Court

The young lad named Denham Jones, has been staying at the Children's Shelter since last Monday awaiting the result of medical examination as to his fitness for Orillia Asylum. Only one of the physician's reports has been received and until the other is in the hands of the authorities no action will be taken. The one report submitted pronounces the lad to be deficient enough to warrant his commitment to the asylum.

His mother was in court this morning and stated that her boy had complained of being whipped at the shelter. Superintendent Henry denied the accusation, but stated that the boy betrayed incorrigible tendencies and required continual watching lest he left the shelter, and that it had been necessary to check him.

He will, altogether likely, be sent to Orillia, when the report of the other examining physician is received. Until Monday he will remain in the shelter.

Is Being Constructed at the North Side

The C. P. R. is building a new platform at the rear of the station which will be twice as wide as the old one. For a long time the narrow platform has been the source of great inconvenience to cabmen, hotelmen, and expressmen, giving them a very limited space to move about. A cement sidewalk has been built at the eastern end of the new platform making a short cut from and to the station.

The Understudy of the Sun
McClary's Sunshine Furnace

WHEN Old Sol swings low and far away he appoints an understudy for the purpose of keeping Jack Frost where he belongs—Outside.

Years ago McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace, by reason of its marvelous heating capacity and the balmy June air it suffused the house with, was specially appointed Understudy to the Sun. That appointment has been confirmed year after year, and—your "Sunshine" Furnace—Jack Frost's Master awaits your orders for the coming winter.

Remember the past winter—the Frost King was very active — He battered us with a three months' siege of snow and ice — Almost conquered the thermometer by chasing the mercury out of sight. But he failed to penetrate thousands of homes, because the Understudy of the Sun — McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace —was on the job in the cellars of these homes.

It's easy to keep Jack Frost at a safe distance with the "Sunshine" Furnace. He may storm and rave outside, but there is no place for him within—because, the Understudy of the Sun has demonstrated its mastery in the home.

The average furnace is a glutton for coal—it literally burns up money. The "Sunshine" Furnace saves money—earns its cost in a very few years because it burns coal sparingly. Call on the McClary agent of your locality and ask him to prove that statement true. If he cannot convince you—show you that the "Sunshine" Furnace will cut your coal bills by a very pleasing margin we don't want your order. That's the fairest way we know of doing business—does it appeal to you?

There are a multitude of reasons why the "Sunshine" Furnace does save fuel—reduce coal bills—reasons that will be printed in the following advertisements. Here is one that should make you call on the McClary agent at once—the "Sunshine" Furnace has four radiating surfaces—surfaces that gather up the heat greedily and diffuse it liberally all over the house.

But—you just call on the McClary agent and ask to be shown. If you do not know him write us at our nearest address and we'll tell you.

You certainly owe it to yourself to find out why McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace is called the "Understudy of the Sun."

REV. MR. HILFORD WRITES FROM FAR OFF AFRICA

He Tells of a Trip to Visit Brother Missionary Sick With Black Water Fever.

The following letter received from Rev. Mr. Hilford will be interesting to the many friends of the missionary and his wife:

Farandugu, Sept 7, 1912.

Mrs. John Wilson,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Mrs. Wilson.—I should like to have written you sooner about some little trips that it has been necessary for me to make, but sickness has prevented. For the best part of two months I have been unable to do work of any kind or even to go over to the town on account of having developed anaemia. While I was confined to bed for only three weeks the rest of the time I could be on my feet, but very little I am much better now, and am gradually growing stronger. However, it may be some time before I can be very active again.

Some months after our arrival it became necessary for me to see one of the government officials at Kaballa. This is the only other town in Kuranko country where white men are situated, the government doctor and the District Commissioner, the representative of the government, having their headquarters there. The distance is about 14 miles and it was best that I should make the round trip of 28 miles in one day. To walk so far out here in one day over a rough path that leads through swamps and over many steep, rocky hills, is no little task, and as the last five miles had to be covered in the dark, I had a hard time of it. Sometimes I had to trace the path with my hands, for to lose the path at night in the African bush is a rather serious matter.

The next trip was an unexpected one. Mr. Roseberry [illegible] and I were just sitting down to our Sunday dinner when a native appeared at the door with a note from Mr. Taylor, an old classmate and a former Alliance missionary, with the news that he was down with Blackwater fever. This fever is about the most deadly of all those found in Africa, and very few recover. Mr Taylor is now located at Kerifa, some 60 miles east of here, and is alone; so hastily packing a few things for the trip and selecting a supply of foods that are suitable for a sick person we set out to his aid. Just eight months before this Mr. Roseberry had been alone with Mr. Muir when he died of this same fever, and as it was hardly right that he should perhaps go through the experience again it was decided that we both go. Grace had to be left alone on the station with the interpreter and the boys, but she insisted that I go. We left here about four and should have reached Dunkowale at ten, but owing to the darkness and the fact that my knee played out and I had to literally drag myself the last few miles we did not get in till nearly midnight. The next morning my knee was so bad that I could not walk at all. Fortunately the king owned a horse, so we borrowed this and pushed on. Horses out here are not like those at home and by night this one was so tired that we had to hire another from the king of this town before proceeding the next morning. We reached Mr. Taylor at noon on Tuesday and found him very ill indeed, but the crisis had passed and all that could be done was to see that he had proper care and suitable food.

The next afternoon I rode across the boder of the French Soudan. My heart was deeply stirred as I stood there and looked out over that vast extent of territory with its unnumbered millions of people who as yet are without a single Protestant missionary, although there are a few Catholics there. Darkness overtook me soon after I started back and I had rather an anxious time of it to say the least. At last all I could do was to hang onto the horse and let it pick its way. The following day I set out for home alone, Mr. Roseberry coming a few days later.

Mr. Taylor has recovered from that attack, but is still so weak that the doctor says that he ought to go home. On Saturday I reached home only to find that all there was left of our two goats was the skins and horns. Before we left they had taken sick from eating a vine that was used in roofing the house. About two months later one of the horses that I had used died, and we learned that I was held partly responsible. It was not just that I should have to help bear the loss, but as we were very anxious to keep on good terms with this king I was willing to help pay for it. First a claim of $60 was made but the paramount Chief cut this down to $30 and rather than have hard feelings over it I paid it, so it turned out to be a rather expensive trip for me, but I do not regret going. One needs to live in a heathen land in order to fully appreciate the value of Christian fellowship and help, especially in sickness.

We trust that we may have a continued interest in your prayers.

Sincerely yours,
M. HILFORD.

"EXCUSE ME"

Merry entertainment will be provided at the Grand next Thursday, Oct. 24, in Henry W. Savage's presentation of Rupert Hughes' clever and highly successful farce "Excuse Me," a play that spreads laughter all along a railroad from Chicago to Reno. Inasmuch as this stretch of railroad is two thousand miles, it follows that there is a long laughter in "Excuse Me." The laughter is as long as the play, which is two hours and three quarters, with no pauses even between the acts, for while the curtain is down the audience keeps on laughing at the delicious humor and wit, the amusing persons, the comic happenings and everything else that has been in the play up to that time. Laughter is literally crowded into every moment of "Excuse Me," and by attractive means too, for instead of being created by farfetched and impossible persons and events often the fabric of farce, this play relates a genuinely interesting narrative that, while comic, is wholly probable, and through the medium of droll persons, who are actual every-day types. In short "Excuse Me" is a real play brim full of comedy. It has lively action and modern romance in plenty. It is a decided novelty in so far as its entire action is represented on a railroad train. The farce relates the adventures of passengers on a trip from Chicago to Reno. Nine months at the Gaiety Theatre is the New York record of this play and proclaims its quality and popularity. Also it ran six months in Chicago and four months in Boston. It is a genuine Henry W. Savage Broadway success, with a Broadway cast and production. Those facts are convincing. Everybody in this city should see "Excuse Me" both for the sake of the unequalled enjoyment it affords and to encourage attractions of this calibre to come here. Pleasure and duty combine in the case of "Excuse Me."

MR. W. H. WALKEY PRESIDENT OF TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

Concluding Session Included a Talk on the Panama Canal by Mr. A. J. Grant.

Mr. W. H. Walkey, was appointed president of the Teachers' Association, when the report of the nominating committee was received and adopted at the closing session of the Association this morning. Mr. Walkey takes over the position succeeding Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, who has most capably held the office for the past year.

The other officers elected were:—Miss O'Connell, vice-president; Mr L. J. Pettit, secretary-treasurer; executive committee, Sister Patricia, Sister St. Paul, Mr. Malcolm Clarke, Miss McQuarrie, Miss Runnings and Mr J. F. Harvey.

Mr T. F. Matthews was re-appointed for one year to the Public Library Board.

Mr H. A. Yenney and Miss Elliott were appointed delegates to the Ontario Educational Association, next Easter.

THE PANAMA CANAL

The session this morning which was for the teachers of the city was decidedly interesting. It was featured by an instructive and entertaining description of the Panama Canal, given by Mr. A. J. Grant Superintending Engineer of the Trent Canal, outlining the early history of the route across the district, where the canal now passes and tracing its development down to the present time. By means of a map of the canal, Mr. Grant made the lecture very attractive. He dwelt particularly upon the enormous amount of work that was involved in the construction of the grand waterway which will be ready for traffic in the near future.

SUMMER SESSIONS

Mr. F. E. Kerr gave an interesting account of the summer sessions of Queen's University pointing out the advantages to be derived from attending them. Mr. H. A. Yenney dealt with the work of the Ontario Agricultural College, and the benefits to teachers, who embraced the opportunity of attending it in the summer months.

Miss L. Thomas and Mr. W. H. Walker, delegates to the O. E. A, last Easter, also spoke most entertainingly of their impressions.

ANOTHER ENJOYABLE PROGRAM WITH THE ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY

Another of the popular socials, under the auspices of St. George's Society, was held in the Sons of England Hall last night. A large number of Old Country people were present and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

On a call for hands from Chairman Walter Stocker, it was decided to hold another social on November 15. The following program was presented:

Selection by the Orchestra.
Song, "Songs of Araby—H. Lee.
Recitation, "Road to Heaven" —Mrs Clare.
Mouth Organ—R. Eagleton.
Song, "Sing Me to Sleep"—G. Harris.
Comic song—Mr. Reed.
Recitation, "Mrs. Caudle's Curtain speech. The Shirt Button"—Mrs. Clare.
Song, "Meet Me To-night in Dreamland"—G. Harris.
Mouth Organ—R. Eagleton.
Selection by the Orchestra.

Refreshments, supplied by Coleman Bros., were served.

A vote extending thanks to the different artists who helped to make the evening so enjoyable was proposed by Mr. Guy and seconded by Mr. John.

This very successful entertainment was closed by all standing and singing "God Save the King."

GETTING BETTER ACQUAINTED

Mr. man, you may yet be a stranger to us for the reason that we have not yet had time to get acquainted with you or you with us.

And it is pretty hard for to introduce each other through this medium, especialy so on account of you seeing so much advertising, some of which possibly has fooled you in the past, and you are a little scarry of it now; well we can't blame you for that, it was not your fault, and of course the honest advertiser must suffer as a consequence.

Now the only way for you to be sure of getting the full value for your money is to deal where every purchase you make is guaranteed to you; that is the way we do business.

Now did you see the way our Suits and Overcoats are made? and have you noticed the low prices we are asking for such high-grade quality and workmanship.

And you should also come in and see how they fit; yes they are made for standard figures and it will be no trouble to fit you.

But if you prefer to have a suit made to your measure, we can show you about 500 different samples of cloth and make it up in any style you wish. Our prices run from $12.00 up. Come in and see the New Fall Fashion Plates; we will be glad to meet you.

No Bogus Money

No complaints of bogus $5 bills being in circulation in Peterborough have been laid with Chief Thompson, as seems to be the case in nearby Canadian cities. The local police say they have not heard of any of the money being passed in this city.

THE STORY OF A LOCAL STORE

"I believe that when I make a sale, I must make a friend. And I believe that when I part with a man, I must do it in such a way that when he sees me again he will be glad, and so will I." There would not be so much for an Ad. Club to do in Peterborough were the "other fellows" to practice as religiously as you might preach this creed.

The question has been asked. "How can the Ad. Club be of any benefit to me?" The local merchant who raised the question kept an Ad. Club man waiting several minutes, while he made it his good pleasure to condescend to address his caller, and to discover whether or no he might be wishing something really important — perchance had come to place a real worth-while order.

INDIFFERENT STORE SERVICE.

The Ad. Club man had been in that same store two days previous to the one in question. There then seemed to be plenty of clerks about with nothing in particular to do, yet it was several minutes before one of them advanced to enquire of the service or merchandise that might be wanted. In the meantime another customer had been waited upon; a girl some 12 or 14 years of age. She received her change after making her purchase, and passed out of the store onto the street. In a moment she came back and addressed the clerk, proffering the information that he had given her a 20-cent piece. He made a rather cool exclamation, and most indifferently asked the girl to walk back to the office, and get the five cents coming to her!

Be sure the Ad. Club man was not impressed with the efficiency of service in that store. That clerk was a young fellow. Bright, he seemed to be. The goods or merchandise seemed to be allright. The service might have been the best. But the clerk evidently knew little of modern store service. He most certainly did not make a friend of that customer. He antagonized the Ad. Club man by his seeming attitude of indifference, yes in fact, almost insolence to that other customer.

Here then were two, almost of a kind, the clerk and his chief. They had a fine store too. Evidently they do a big business, one of the largest in their line in Peterborough. And yet that head of that concern, was in doubt as to any benefit, such an organization as the Peterborough Ad. Club, could be to him!

APPRECIATION OF AD. CLUB WORK.

The "live wire" business men in Peterborough have encouraged the Ad. Club movement. They see in the local Ad. Club an institution affording self development for each member connected with the Club. They realize that one man cannot meet with another in an organization of this kind, without getting a great and direct benefit if he so will. They see in the Ad. Club movement, a means fostering introspection, on their part, of their own business; seeing themselves as others see them, being filled with the fire of ambition to improve their businesses; and having discovered unto themselves greater possibilities for greater and better business for them in Peterborough.

Then too, these "live wire" business men in Peterborough, see an opportunity through the Peterborough Ad. Club of helping the other fellow. They realize that in order to make business better for themselves, they must make business better for the other fellow. One bee alone cannot make honey; neither can one business man alone make money! With bees there is a spirit of the hive, most necessary for their best welfare. They work best in the properly organized hive. So it is with men. They prosper best in the thriving successful community, where all are prospering, and where all live well and are successful.

MORE BUSINESS AT HOME.

These interested business men also see in the Peterborough Ad. Club, an organization through which they can work to retain in Peterborough much business that is at present going elsewhere. They realize that educational work of the right kind will cause our citizens to more and more buy at home, and in the long run, (often times immediately) get better value in Peterborough than is possible from the large city mail order houses.

These business men see too, large possibilities in the Peterborough Ad. Club of instilling in the minds of Peterborough citizens, a greater spirit of loyalty for Peterborough institutions, and deepening their interests in all pertaining to the welfare of our city.

The Peterborough Ad. Club is still quite young. It has had but a few months of activity; but already considerable has been accomplished. Those who have attended the Ad. Club dinners and heard the speakers, think and talk well of the benefit conferred upon them by the Peterborough Ad. Club.

LOCAL MEN WHO WILL SPEAK.

The Club activities for the coming winter season, which opened on Monday evening last, when Mr. McDiarmid, of Ryrie Bros., was here, while proving interesting and enjoyable to its members, bid fair to bring the Ad. Club members profit as well. For instance at the "round table" discussion to be at the next meeting, Tuesday evening, Oct. 29th, Mr. J. McNab, from Richard Hall & Son's, one of the best window trimmers in the city, will, in a 15-minute address, give of his knowledge of his art. Likewise Mr. J. McNichol, of Cressman's, will explain in a 15-minute talk "How he gets out Retail Advertising that Brings Results." He will deal with the matter of gathering his information, how he secures his leaders from day to day, at the hands of the various departments in his store; then combining his information, sending it out to the papers to bring in customers and make more business for the Cressman Co. "The principles underlying the composition of business letters," and the possibilities of enlarging one's business in Peterborough and reaching out and annexing great portions of the country by means of circular letters and follow up matter, will be handled in a 15-minute lecture by Mr. Edward Williams. Mr. Williams is the Circulation Manager of the Farm and Dairy, and has had many years of wide experience on leading publications both in Canada and the United States.

It would seem from this program that it must be a poor man indeed, and dull of intellect, who will not be interested and profit greatly from hearing these three talks and discussions that will follow, Tuesday night, October 29th, in the Bank of Montreal Chambers.

A WIDE FIELD FOR ACTIVITY.

—— The field of activity open to the Peterborough Ad. Club is an exceedingly broad one. All things relating to salesmanship and advertising are quite within its province. Then there is the large and probably most important field of civic publicity, at home and out of town as well, to which it can devote its time.

To all local business men the Ad. Club should prove most beneficial, since the only man who should not advertise, is the one who has nothing to offer in the way of service, or one who cannot make good. Advertising is simply telling who you are, where you are, and what you have to offer the world in the way of commodity or service. Therefore all efforts seeking to increase our efficiency in this art should be welcomed gladly, and encouraged in every way.

CONSPIRACY ALLEGED.

Magistrate McMicken May Have to Stand Trial.

Winnipeg, Oct. 19.—W. H. Trueman, counsel for the defeated candidate in the Macdonald bye-election, yesterday entered an application in the Court of Appeals to bring up Magistrate McMicken for trial for conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice. The case will be heard next Friday morning in the Court of Appeal before the full bench, six days' notice being required. Notice, together with several affidavits, was served on the magistrate at the provincial police court.

The case upon which the latest development is based is that of the two Conservative personators who were tried an hour before the time set and who were arrested in St. James on Saturday last. The case was scheduled to be tried on Wednesday at 11 o'clock, but when the two informants, Hugh McKenzie, a barrister, and R. H. McDonald, who is prominent in local political circles, appeared with their counsel to go on with the case they were informed by the Magistrate that the case was already completed and that the men had pleaded guilty and were fined.

The affidavits which have been presented in the case which it is now sought to have tried against the magistrate declare that the magistrate conducted the case secretly before the hour appointed, at which time witnesses had been subpoenaed to appear; that he stated that Arthur Sullivan, a barrister, appeared for the prosecution, a statement being produced by Mr. Sullivan saying that he appeared only for the defence, and that he only tried to get the accused off; that Magistrate McMicken passed an illegal sentence, the law calling for a sentence in jail, while he only imposed a fine; that he used the name of the Deity profanely during the proceedings when Mr. Trueman, the counsel for the prosecution, entered the protest, and that he spoke in most insulting terms to Mr. Trueman, who is a prominent member of the Manitoba Bar.

Dr. Nesbitt Leaves Hospital.

Toronto, Oct. 19.—Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, on bail, charged with fraud in connection with the Farmers' Bank, was able to leave the hospital, where he has been confined for two weeks. His friends say that he is still far from well.

The assizes for which Dr. Nesbitt's trial is listed opens on Nov. 11, but it is doubtful whether he will be well enough by that time to appear.

Was Nearly Poisoned.

Brockville, Oct. 19.—J. Mackenzie of Toronto, one of the C.N.R. contractors engaged near Forfar, had a narrow escape from poisoning while coming in on the B. W. & N. train on the way to Toronto. He had some tablets he was in the habit of taking and apparently a bichloride of mercury tablet, used in the camp for disinfecting purposes, got mixed up with the others. In mistake he swallowed this tablet, but immediately discovered his mistake, and as the train was nearing Athens promptly left it there and consulted a physician.

Some time after he was able to continue his journey, but feeling very shaky.

Fight to Bitter End.

Montreal, Oct. 19.—"Face to face with the enemy, we will go right to the bitter end," says an article in L'Action Sociale, the Quebec clerical organ, in discussing the bilingual situation in the Province of Ontario.

"English-Canadians," adds the paper, "who treat our Ontario brothers as agitators and rebels understand nothing of the nobility and justice of the French-Canadian cause in the sister province."

Miss Cameron Under Guard.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—U. S. District Attorne Wilkersen ordered Miss Cameron taken to the Federal Building last night, where she will be held under special guard until she appears before the federal grand jury next Monday.

A warrant obtained by her mother committing her to the detention hospital for examination as to her sanity will not be served.

Appointments Criticized.

Galt, Oct. 19.—Last night The Galt Reporter (Conservative) says: "We confess to a feeling of disappointment over the appointments made this week to the Senate. Western Ontario has again been overlooked. This part of the province was not fairly dealt with by the former administration; which reduced its representation in the Upper Chamber from ten to six. Regretfully we are compelled to acknowledge that the present Government is following a very bad example, and doing it in spite of the fact that the press of Ontario offered it a candidate of excellent parts in the person of Editor Dingman of Stratford, ex-mayor of that city.

"Sir John Carling's seat was given to Mr. Taylor of Gananoque a few months ago and now Senator Wilson's goes to Mr. Corby of Belleville. The roster to-day shows Eastern Ontario with an Upper House representation of fourteen members, and Western Ontario four. Such a division is not creditable to the Borden Government, which from now on should aim to restore the equilibrium that existed during the days of the Macdonald administration."

Trench Caved In; Man Dead.

Toronto, Oct. 19.—The collapse of a trench in which he was working at the new building of the Senecal Fire Extinguisher Co., 1,200 Dundas street, caused the death of Samuel Snape, a steamfitter, yesterday morning. The trench was about five feet deep and in the treacherous light sand which is so common in the western ward.

The cave-in took place silently and none of the workmen noticed the accident. About half an hour after Snape was missed and it was noticed that the walls of the trench had collapsed. His body was quickly recovered, and Dr. Matheson of Dundas street summoned, but life was extinct.

STRANGE STORY FROM FRASERVILLE

Husband and Wife Not on the Best of Terms

A strange story reached the city from the vicinity of Fraserville this week, concerning a prominent farmer and his wife who are alleged to be on bad terms with one another. The elderly couple reside in the same house, but that is practically the only association they have. The wife stated that she lives in one room, and her husband in another; that they sleep in separate rooms and have as little companionship as possible. The woman's mind which may be weakened from the constant agitation in which she dwells has reduced her to a condition sometimes bordering on hysteria. She alleges that her husband has grown cold and careless of her and that other women have usurped his affections. She stated that she believes he places some sort of mixture in her room after she has retired which stupifies her and while she is in that condition he invites another woman into the house.

The circumstances, if they are correct, are certainly peculiar, and demanding of investigation.

Helpful Suggestions.

When your eyes are tired close them for five minutes. If they smart and burn bathe them in lukewarm water. A teaspoonful of witch hazel in the water will aid them in a few moments.

When your ear aches get a little absorbent cotton, dip in Jamaica ginger and pack tight in your ear. You will be surprised how soon the ache will leave you.

Cabbage contains a great deal of sulphur and for this reason frequently causes flatulence. Cauliflower, which is of the same family, is more easily digested.

Child Killed by Motor Car.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Oct. 19.—Struck by an automobile driven by Edward Hahn, a clerk in a city department, Harold, five-year-old son of Wm. Holder, 717 Division avenue, was almost instantly killed last night.

The little victim was wrestling with a playfellow in Main street, just around the corner from his home, and was unable to get away from the onrushing machine. The other child escaped unharmed.

Cause of Eczema Explained

After years of debate, medical authorities are now agreed that eczema and other skin diseases are not seated in the blood, but are caused by myriads of microscopic animals gnawing the flesh just below the epidermis. The patient is perfectly healthy, it is only the skin that is diseased.

Hence, scientists are now agreed that you must cure the skin through the skin. The medicine must be in liquid form in order to penetrate properly. And we can say with confidence that we have the true remedy for Eczema in our store—the D. D. D. Prescription.

The instant you wash with this soothing liquid you will find the itch relieved. We positively assure you of this. Will you try a bottle on our recommendation? Besides the regular dollar bottle, we can now offer you, through an arrangement with the D. D. D. Laboratories, a special large trial bottle at only 25c. We are not sure how long this offer will be open, but it is open to-day, and by taking it up you can get instant relief from that awful itch and an early cure

An Employer's Liability Policy

MIGHT SAVE YOU HEAVY DAMAGES

While an accident may be due to an employee's own carelessness, still there's no certainty that the employer will not have to pay heavy damages. New legislation too is steadily increasing the responsibility of the employer. But an Employer's Liability Policy in the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would protect you against financial loss through injuries to an employee while on duty. The General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would deal justly with your employee too. It is noted for fairness and broadmindedness. It is one of the oldest and strongest Insurance Companies in the world. Do not delay to write for further particulars.

Injuries in the industrial world are frequent. In the building, metal and woodworking trades alone there were 294 people killed and 1,421 injured in Canada during 1910 and 1911. Our business is to relieve the employer of all financial responsibility resulting from accident.

GUARD BABY FROM COLDS

The mother can guard her little ones from colds during the damp cold fall days by the use of Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets act as a gentle laxative, keeping the bowels working freely and the stomach sweet—that is the secret of preventing colds. The Tablets will not only prevent or banish colds, but will cure constipation, indigestion, expel worms and make teething easy. They are sold under the guarantee of a government analyst to contain no harmful drugs and may safely be given to the newborn babe. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

THE SAVIOR'S TEACHINGS BROOKLYN TABERNACLE INTERNATIONAL BIBLE STUDIES

TO THE JEW FIRST.

—October 20.—Mark 7:24-30; Matt. 8:5-13.—

"Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out."—John 6:37.

GENERAL CONFUSION is prevalent amongst God's people respecting the relationship between the Gospel of Christ and the Jewish nation and between the Jewish nation and all other nations. The Bible tells that until the coming of Christ—yea, until three and a half years after Jesus died, arose, and ascended, the Divine dealings were confined to the Hebrew race—to Abraham and his natural posterity.

The whole world is involved in the penalty that came upon Father Adam because of his disobedience — under Divine sentence as unworthy of everlasting life or relationship with God. The Jews were no better than the remainder of the race, so far as the Scriptures tell, but God, having from the first determined to provide a Redeemer for mankind, through whose Kingdom all the world should ultimately be blessed and have the privilege of return to Divine favor, made a selection of Abraham's posterity, because Abraham was a noble character whose faith and obedience to God were thus rewarded. It was not, therefore, anything of which the Jews might boast that their nation and not another nation came into relationship with God through the Law Covenant. It was of Divine grace.

Cornelius, a reverential Gentile.

As soon as the limit of time expired God manifested His favor toward the Gentiles by sending the Gospel to Cornelius, a reverential, holy and generous Gentile. Since then God's favors are as open to the Gentile as to the Jew — "the middle wall of partition" has been "broken down." Gentiles and Jews are now received on the same terms—faith in Jesus and consecration to walk in His steps.

It is from this standpoint that we should read the Apostle's statement that the Gospel of Christ "is preached to every creature under heaven." He did not mean nor would it have been true that the Gospel had been claimed to all. What the Apostle meant is that the Gospel is now unrestricted, free to be preached to every creature under heaven, no matter what his nationality—it is no longer confined to Jews as at first. Now, whoever has "an ear to hear, let him hear" the good Message of the Kingdom.

The narrative of to-day's study fully confirms what we have said, that at the time of our Lord's ministry, and for three and a half years after His death, all God's favors still belonged to the Jews only. The Syro-Phenician woman of our study was a Greek—not a Jewess. Her daughter was possessed of an evil spirit. She heard that Jesus was near the border of Judea, and she sought Him out, imploring that He would cast out the demon.

But Jesus said to the woman, "Let the children first be filled, for it is not proper to take the children's bread and cast it to dogs." She understood the force of this statement. The Jews claimed to be God's people, and the Gentiles were styled "Gentile dogs," because they had never been in covenant-relationship with God. Yet the poor woman's faith in Jesus and her earnest desire for the relief of her daughter moved her to press her case and she answered, "Yes, Lord, but the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs." Jesus replied, "For this saying go thy way; the devil is gone out of thy daughter."

To-day the Israel of God, to whom belong all the blessings and promises and favor, are the Spiritual Israelites. These, through full consecration to the Lord, and the imputation of the merit of Jesus' sacrifice, begotten of the Holy Spirit, are embryo sons of God, inheritors of the divine nature and Kingdom.

Palestine was subject to the Roman Empire, and little garrisons of Roman soldiers were stationed here and there, usually under a Centurion. One of these knew of Jesus' mighty works, and when his faithful servant fell sick he went to Jesus asking for healing. This was another Gentile dog desiring a crumb from the children's table.

The Centurions' faith, our Lord declared, was superior to anything that He had found amongst the Israelites, God's favored people. He got his request.

"I say to one go, and he goeth."

Jesus took the occasion to say that the Israelites, who were counting so much on their relationship to God as the children of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, would find themselves greatly mistaken. Being the children of Abraham did indeed mean that they would have special privileges, but these they were enjoying and not appreciating.

God took out of their nation the "Israelites indeed"; meantime the rest were blinded, and for the past eighteen centuries He has been completing the Elect Kingdom Church, out of all nations, peoples, kindreds and tongues. But He is selecting none except such as have the faith and obedience of Abraham and the spirit of His Son Jesus—none but the holy, the loyal, the true. These will be associated in the Kingdom, while the natural Israelites, over-confident, let the privilege go by.

'Dost thou hear the bugle calling—
Calling thee to take the field?
'Tis a battle all are waging,
Thou must fight or thou must yield.
'Tis the battle of the ages—
No man may the gage refuse;
Fight on one side or the other—
No man can decline to choose.
If from off the field thou fliest,
Even then thou art a foe;

THE FOE OF EFFICIENCY.

Any officer holding a command which carries with it any measure of responsibility for the defence of the Empire must recognize, as I do, the value of temperance in promoting fighting efficiency. In the Navy there are three qualities upon which efficiency mainly depends. They are discipline, straight shooting and endurance, and temperance unquestionably tends greatly to the promotion of these qualities. In regard to discipline, one has only to look at the punishment returns to realize how many of the disciplinary offences are due at the outset to intemperance. As for endurance, medical research has amply proved the fact that temperance is a great asset in improving the physical qualities, and, therefore, the endurance of the human race. But of our own personal experience we know that we do not drink alcohol just before a football match or a boat race. If we do we shall fail, and the same is true of any other pursuit involving endurance. As regards straight shooting, which is so largely a question of eye, it is everyone's experience that abstinence is necessary for the highest efficiency. If I am going to a rifle meeting in the afternoon, I don't drink a whiskey and soda at lunch. If I did I know I should have no chance of making a "possible." What applies to a rifle applies equally to a heavy gun, and all admirals recognize this by taking care that the fleet is called away from a harbor on urgent business at least twenty-four hours before battle practice or a gun-layer's test is commenced.

THE GROG CURVE

Most captains also, if their ships are to fire at these practices in the afternoon, continued Admiral Jellicoe, hold over the grog issue until the evening. In this connection I should like to refer to the experience of Capt. Ogilvy, who, I regret to say died some eighteen months ago. He is the officer who did such good service with naval guns at the relief of Ladysmith, and he had very great experience in training officers and men in shooting. Commencing under Sir Percy Scott, in the Terrible, he later commanded the Grafton, a gunnery school tender, and then the Revenge, the instructional battle practice ship, and died when in command of the Natal, which ship he placed at the top of the fleet in gun-layers' test. He went carefully into statistics, and found that the shooting efficiency of men was 30 per cent. better before than after the grog issue. He put his figures in the form of a curve, and it behoves an admiral when chasing an enemy's fleet and manoeuvring for position to consider the grog curve as well as the position of the sun and the direction of the wind. These facts will show, I think, that naval officers are trully alive to the advantage of temperance in promoting fighting efficiency—Sir J. R. Jellicoe, Commander in Chief of the British Atlantic Fleet.

Which Costs most?

THE cheap inferior range—expensive in coal and repairs, and often a poor baker OR—

The range which costs more to buy, but saves money by reducing the coal bill and costing next to nothing for upkeep?

To the far-seeing housewife there is only one answer.

Look in on a neighbor who has a PEERLESS. Ask her how much coal she uses? What it costs her for repairs? How it does her cooking and baking? Then figure out for yourself just where your own range stands?

The PEERLESS is a well-designed, strongly constructed range. Figure its cost over a couple of years, and it is by far the cheapest range you can buy.

RETURNS $1.00 FOR BORROWED LATERN

That this is not so bad a world as some people would have us believe, is evidenced by a communication, which a local citizen received this morning, by mail.

He is not aware of the name of the conscience-stricken individual, neither can he bring to mind the incident of "some years ago."

The communication, which is typewritten is as follows—

August 26, 1912.

Dear Sir—Please accept this dollar in payment of a lantern borrowed some years ago and never returned. It has been in my mind a lot lately and I feel as if I should make it good. I have been brought to see things in a different light and I am anxious to make restitution. I can't restore the lantern as it has been broken and hope this will pay for another.

One who is trying by the Grace of God to serve Him.

The beauties of the face are lost if the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are thing and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorizer, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal-boxes on receipt of price, fifty cents. B. V. ENTERTAINED AT ST. PAULS' CHURCH

Students From Normal School and Business College Welcomed

The Young People's Guild of St. Paul's Church held a reception last night in honor of the Normal students and some from the Peterborough Business College. Rev. Robert Pogue, acting as chairman, in a few words on behalf of the Guild, welcomed the visitors. An excellent program was rendered, the following taking part:—Misses Logan, Allan, Davidson and Stark, and Messrs. Logan and Brown.

Following this came a singing contest which is something comparatively strange to Peterborough people. It is more of a game than a contest and if ever tried again is sure to prove as popular as it did last night. Mr. Allan, who acted as judge, remarked on the fact that St. Paul's church should be proud of the fine singers.

Refreshments were also served.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—As Mr. Burnhamn has been successful in having a number of new letter boxes installed (which were sadly needed in some districts) and has had the old ones repainted, it might not be amiss to call his attention to another little matter in connection therewith. The piece of glass covering the card giving the hours of "clearing," is in many boxes broken or cracked. The cards themselves are dirty and the names written or printed thereon faded and undecipherable in the majority of instances. Another matter, are the letter boxes always emptied at the times specified? They may be lately, but I know from personal experience that in days gone by mail has not been collected from certain boxes some nights. Two collections a day (if done systematically and daily) will be better than three haphazard. Another question: Are the boxes emptied on Sundays?

SYSTEM.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I have read Mr. D. O'Connell's pretty reference to toleration and fair play, and harmony, with much amusement. In Orange Toronto the Paulist fathers have time and again conducted missions to non-Catholics, and who ever thought of molesting them. But what happened in Quebec, where the Baptist missionaries were stoned and the Salvation Army out of business with bricks and sticks? We don't want any guff, Mr. O'Connell. Tackle the question fairly.

Yours, etc.,
COMMON SENSE.

WEYBURN

The Biggest Little City in Saskatchewan

'Tis only too true that rich, fertile lands and great railroad systems make great cities. It is likewise true that Weyburn is entirely surrounded by, and is commercially supreme in that very rich and remarkably fertile territory comprising some five million acres. It is likewise true that each of the three great railroad corporations has selected Weyburn as a divisional centre—that Weyburn will, within two years from now, be one of the principal centres on the shortest line connecting the Atlantic and Pacific ports—that Weyburn will, by the end of this year, or early during 1913, have two international roads, transporting human freight from the United States to the great last West, a feature of which no other centre, with the exception of Winnipeg, can boast. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has stated that Weyburn will be one of the most important points on its Western system—and with such promised activity it is logical to state that Weyburn real estate offers investors an opportunity for large profits enjoyed by but few other cities in the land of opportunities.

NEW DAM FOR C.G.E. POWER HOUSE MAY BE NECESSARY

For some time there has been a large leakage of water at the dam at Nassau, and a diver is at present engaged in an inspection.

The trouble is a rather serious item to the Canadian General Electric company's power house at this point and it may be that the investigation and inspection now being made will be such as to warrant the construction of a new dam.

Surveying operations are now going on in connection with the possibility of a new dam being constructed. The present one is of timber but concrete would be used for the new dam.

MODEL CITY LAUNCHED BY BOYS OF THE Y.M.C.A.

The nominations Friday night for Mayor and Aldermen of the "Model City," in connection with the Boy's Department resulted as follows:

For Mayor—Claire Arnott, and Wm Carruthers.

For Aldermen—Melville Sugee, Kensee, Kenneth Brown, Douglas Macdonald, Fred Soward, Max Patterson, Lloyd Williamson, Alex. Pidgeon, George Green, Percy Gray, Keir Sturgeon, Fred McNeely, Howard Hall, Edgar Smith, Gordon Lamb, Cecil Brown and Kyle Harstone.

Before the nominations were received, Mr. G. N. Gordon gave a very helpful address on Citizenship and also explained the method of city government. He said that every boy must listen to and obey his conscience in order to become a good citizen and, that honesty should always be the watchword of every citizen. A boy should be honest both to himself and to others. He should strive to become the best man in his profession, but he should also be willing to give up his time and of his best efforts for the welfare of his fellowmen.

The fact that between sixty and seventy boys present shows that they are greatly interested in the work of the "Y" in general and that of the "Model City" in particular. The elections will take place next Friday night.

MAGISTRATE SENTENCES LAWYERS IN ELECTION CASES

Mix-Up Occurs In Winnipeg Provincial Police Court When Liberal Counsel Are Charged With Assault and Attempting to Steal a Court Document — Magistrate Endeavors to Clear the Court—Was Defied.

Winnipeg, Oct. 21.—Provincial Police Magistrate McMicken Saturday sentenced two Winnipeg lawyers, to ten days in jail on the charge of assault and attempting to steal a court document, but later released them on their own recognizances and bound them over to appear next Friday morning. This was the outcome of a general mix-up in which the magistrate, the two lawyers and the police were engaged.

The trouble started over the J. J. Sullivan case in connection with the Macdonald bye-election. Mr. Trueman rose to address the court, and, after securing possession of the information paper, said he wished to make a copy of it. The magistrate then called on the provincial police to arrest the two lawyers and handed out the above sentence.

Not the least exciting incident of the session came when the magistrate attempted to clear the room. He approached Mr. Hugh Mackenzie, the lawyer who is a leading figure in the proceedings against McMicken himself in connection with the trial of confessed Conservative personators on election day. After several times ordering Mackenzie from the room, Mackenzie standing his grounds, as he had just been asked by Mr. Trueman to act for him in the matter of his arrest, the magistrate is said by Mr. Mackenzie to have grasped a chair and lifting it in the air said: "You get out of here; if you don't I will hit you on the head with this chair. There was a rush of constables and the magistrate was hauled away into his private office.

No disposition was made of the Sullivan case, and Mr. Sullivan is still without the formal certificate of discharge, which his counsel demanded. As it now is, no one knows how the case stands. The magistrate point blank refused to make any official notice on his books of the withdrawal of the case. Mr. Sullivan, who left again for his Saskatchewan home on Saturday night, intimated that he proposes to go on with the case until he gets his formal discharge. The case against Captain W. B. Sifton of Minitonas, arrested at St. Laurent, is in the same condition, and Captain Sifton also intends pressing for a formal disposition and discharge.

GOVERNOR WILSON WAS INTERRUPTED

Miss Maud Malone Tries to Break up Democratic Meeting.

New York, Oct. 21.—Miss Maud Malone, a suffragette, tried to break up the speech of Governor Wilson Saturday night, and after a scene of confusion, in which the Democratic candidate tried to pacify an angry crowd, the police interfered and arrested her on a charge of disturbing the peace.

The governor was talking about monopoly when Miss Malone, who has been conspicuous in interrupting an address by Governor Johnson of California here recently, rose from the balcony and shouted: "How about woman suffrage, Governor Wilson? Man has a monopoly of suffrage."

Cries of "Put her out, put her out," and an uproar of protest against the interruption came from the crowd.

"Do not be rude to the lady," urged the governor, and the crowd became quiet, while the governor added: "Woman suffrage, medam, is not a question that is dealt with by the national Government at all; I am only here as a representative of the national party."

Boy Hit by Car.

Toronto, Oct. 21.—George Brown, 13 years old, living with his parents at 182 Dufferin street, was knocked down by a street car on Gerrard street about 1.30 on Saturday afternoon.

He was carried by two men into the drug store at the corner of Gerrard street and Broadview avenue and later on removed to the General Hospital, where it was found he was suffering from a broken arm and several cuts and bruises.

Hunting Trip Costs Boy His Arm.

Welland, Oct. 21.—Clarence Winterton, aged 13, son of Joseph Winterton, Montrose, while out shooting Friday, accidentally discharged his rifle, lacerating his left arm so it had to be amputated. It is expected he will live

LUMBER MILL AT LINDSAY BURNED

Serious Loss to Town—Damage About $10,000.

Lindsay, Oct. 21.—A disastrous fire broke out in the Baker Lumber Co.'s mill here at 11 o'clock Saturday night, and in half an hour the old mill was burned to the ground. Two weeks ago the mill closed down after a very busy season, 60 or more hands being laid off, and thereafter the building was empty, so that the origin of the fire remains a mystery. The loss is $10,000.

The mill is a serious loss to the company and to the town. It was insured for about $9,000.

Duke's Tour Ends.

Winnipeg, Oct. 21.—The vice-regal party passed through here yesterday, the train making but a brief stop and left at 5.30 p.m. for Toronto, where to-night the duke will address the Canadian Club, giving his impressions of his western tour, which covered practically every important point between Port Arthur and Prince Rupert, and took just short of two months.

THE WHOLE FORCE QUITS

Lethbridge Men do not Like Constable's Big Promotion.

Lethbridge, Oct. 21.—The police force of this city has resigned on the eve of congress week. The members of the force protested against the appointment of Constable Skelton of Toronto as inspector in preference to a local man, and threatened resignation unless the appointment was rescinded.

The mayor refused to accept the resignations, declaring the council would not be dictated to. There are a number of mounted police on hand, three new constables have already been sworn in; and it is understood eight men of the Calgary force will be loaned temporarily.

It is not more than three weeks ago that ex-Inspector Davis of Toronto accepted the position as chief of police of Lethbridge. Shortly after he recommended to the authorities there that a first-class constable from Toronto be appointed as inspector, Mr. Davis, it is declared, knew Constable Skelton to be an A1 man with five or six years' experience. The council consulted the new chief, with the result that Skelton got the job.

Many of the other men on the force had their eyes on the vacancy, and did not like it when another Toronto man was appointed over their heads. Hence the strike.

Skelton is to leave Toronto for Lethbridge to-day to take up his new duties.

HALF A MILLION MEN ARE GATHERING AT ADRINANOPLE

Ancient Capital of Northern Turkey Will be the Theatre of War for Some Time to Come, But Censorship is so Strict That Little Will be Known of Operations.

London, Oct. 21—Half a million men or more armed with the most modern implements of war are gathering round Adrianople, the old capital of Northern Turkey, for what military men anticipate will be a long enduring and hard fought siege.

The Bulgarian army, estimated to number 200,000 men, reinforced by 50,000 Servians as soon as war was declared, began to fight its way in three columns through the mountain passes, which divide the Balkan states from the territory of the Ottoman empire. They succeeded in driving back the Turkish outposts, including that at Mustapha Pasha, where it was thought the Turks might make a stand.

As Mustapha Pasha is only 170 miles from the fortress of Adrianople a long time cannot elapse before the main armies come into touch.

The Turks already have 200,000 men in position and thousands more are arriving daily at the front, so that while their adversaries for the moment have some advantage in numbers the two forces when they meet will probably be nearly equal.

The Turks are apparently preparing for a great battle, and are satisfied now to withdraw their troops from the frontier posts as their opponents advance.

The drama on which the curtain is rising is practically cut off from the view of the rest of the world, as the chiefs of staffs of the various armies have imposed a most strict censorship.

No serious fighting has yet been reported from the seat of war. The Montenegrins have captured Plava and Gusinje, and the Greeks have occupied Elassona; but these are regarded as minor affairs in which no real resistance was offered.

On the Servian and Bulgarian frontiers the situation is little changed. An unconfirmed report says that the Bulgarians have captured Kirk-Killisseh, but, like many similar reports, this is probably untrue.

From both Constantinople and Sofia are issued constant denials of successes claimed by the respective opponents. For instance, an official statement comes from Sofia declaring that all the reported Turkish invasions of Bulgarian territory are pure inventions, while, on the previous day the Turkish Government took occasion to deny the capture of a large number of Turkish troops by the Montenegrins at Tushi.

This campaign of misrepresentation has become so serious that the authorities at Sofia have issued a decree threatening summary punishment by martial law to those who circulate such inventions.

The Servian advance in the direction of Uskup encounters little resistance. It is reported that the Servian headquarters are being slowly transferred from Nish to Vranya. In this district heavy rains are impeding the operations.

Large numbers of war correspondents and many military-attaches are starting for the front to-day. They will work under the greatest difficulties owing to the severe restrictions imposed.

According to a Belgrade despatch the Bulgarian Government declines to permit military attaches to join the general staff.

Porte Admits Fall of Tushi.

Constantinople, Oct. 21.—The War Office denies the Montenegrin reports of the capture of six Turkish battalions and a large quantity of munitions at Tushi. It admits, however, that Tushi has fallen.

Up to the present there are been no serious fighting on the Bulgarian frontier. Everywhere the Turkish forces are showing alertness and determination not to be caught napping.

Greek Warships off Espirus.

Constantinople, Oct. [illegible].—It is reported from Janina that six Greek warships and three transports have appeared off the coast of Espirus. Their apparent object is the landing of troops.

DYNAMITE IN MAILS

McManigal Sent Fuse by Post to to Akron, Ohio.

Indianapolis, Oct. 21.—The delivery through the mail of a package which the Government charges contained fuse used to blow up a building at Akron, Ohio, on July 4, 1910, was described by R. C. Floyd, postmaster at Cleveland, Ohio, on the witness stand in the "dynamite conspiracy" trial on Saturday. He testified from records that the package sent by Ortie E. McManigal, Chicago, was received by special delivery at the home of Peter J. Smith, an ironworkers' union official in Cleveland.

According to the Government Herbert S. Hockin and McManigal had taken to Cleveland, from Rochester, Pa., on a passenger train, a quantity of nitro-glycerine, to carry out orders from J. J. McNamara, that "there must be a Fourth of July celebration at Akron." McManigal in his confession said he had been selected to do the work, but that Smith and George ("Nipper") Anderson, also a defendant, protested, saying they had promised the fee of $200 for doing it to someone else. It was discovered, said McManigal's confession, which is embodied as part of the prosecution's charges, that only McManigal knew how to use nitro-glycerine, so it was determined to use dynamite, but that there being no fuse, McManigal was sent to Chicago to forward fuse from his home.

BOYS ARE ARRESTED

Mitchell, Oct. 21.—Two German boys, aged 14 and 15 respectively, were arrested at Monkton Saturday on a charge of stealing a horse from a hotel shed at Berlin. They took the horse on Thursday and started west. Arriving at Monkton they put the horse in a hotel shed and took another one. The boys started off, but they had not gone far before they fell asleep and the horse went home. The owner and the neighbors took the boys in charge, and phoned Constable Capp, who went out and brought them to town, where the owner of the horse from Waterloo and Chief O'Neil from Berlin were waiting at Mitchell.

The lads were taken to Berlin, where they will be tried. They had driven the horse about 120 miles, having been around Stratford and St. Mary's.

Big Hotel for Regina.

Regina, Sask., Oct. 21.—Following the failure of certain citizens to get an injunction against the City Council restraining them from releasing the site of Wascana Park to the Grand Trunk Pacific for ninety-nine years for a hotel, the council Friday night gave a third reading to the bylaw leasing the property. It is expected an early start will be made on an excavation for an hotel to cost one million dollars.

MR. BORDEN REMAINS SILENT

He is Saying Nothing About the Monk Resignation.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—Henri Bourassa arrived in the capital yesterday morning and yesterday afternoon held a lengthy conference with Hon. F. D. Monk. It is assumed that this was relative to Mr. Monk's attitude on the Government's naval proposals.

In the meantime Premier Borden seems to be adhering most closely to the good old constitutional practice of saying nothing until he has something of a definite nature to say, and nobody outside of the Cabinet knows just what the next few days will bring forth. The nearest approach to the true situation seems to be that if Mr. Monk has resigned, during the course of the next few days his successor will be named immediately, and no shuffle of any kind will take place.

Hon. Bruno Nantel who, it is said, is yet undecided as to just what attitude he will take, left Saturday for his home at St. Jerome to attend the marriage of his daughter.

The sea of politics since the upheaval of Thursday last is running as calmly as the waters of the Rideau Canal. The atmosphere is thick, however, with every conceivable kind of rumor, which if they add nothing to the sum of knowledge, of the actual facts of the situation, certainly testify to the great interest which is being attached to the resignation of the Minister of Public Works.

The very latest story, which, of course, lacks confirmation, is that when Mr. Monk steps out from the Cabinet, there will follow a shuffle, in which Hon. L. P. Pelletier will go to the Department of Marine and Fisheries, while Hon. J. D. Hazen will be sent to administer public works, and L. T. Marechal, K.C., of Montreal, to succeed Mr. Pelletier.

COL. ROOSEVELT OUT OF HOSPITAL; GOES TO NEW YORK

Special To The Review.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 21—Col. Roosevelt was taken [illegible] to his train at 7.15 this morning and the train with his party, pulled out for New York a few minutes after eight o'clock. A bulletin handed out just previous to ex-President's departure, stated his general condition good. The location of the bullet is very sensitive to pressure.

Seized 6,000 Yards of Nets.

Belleville, Oct. 21.—The Provincial Government patrol steamer Navarch has arrived here with about 6,000 yards of net seized in the Bay of Quinte between Point Ann and the Shannonville River. A motor boat found concealed in a rush bed was also confiscated. The department is determined to clean the Bay of Quinte of nets which are illegally used.

Merger Is Completed.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 21.—James Manchester, president of the Bank of New Brunswick, said yesterday that the directors of that bank and the Bank of Nova Scotia had agreed upon terms in the proposed merger and a statement would be mailed to the shareholders as soon as it can be printed. He said the shareholders of the Bank of New Brunswick would receive share for share, and a bonus of $10 a share. He said he believed the agreement is in the best interests of the shareholders of both banks.

BATTALION DESERTS

Mexican Regulars Throw in Fortunes With Diaz.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Oct. 21.—The soldiers of the twenty-first battalion garrisoning at Fort Uluca, located on an island in the local harbor, have revolted and joined the revolutionary forces of Felix Diaz.

The gunboat Bravo and Morelos opened fire on the refugees, killing several and wounding others. The soldiers of the Fort Uluca garrison remained inert, refusing to return the fire of their comrades. The situation at the island is especially serious as Fort Uluca is also used as a penitentiary.

The British, French, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese consuls, realizing the gravity of the situation, have urgently cabled their respective Governments to send protecting gunboats. After a conference with the federal commanders outside the city, Generals Beltran and Valdez, during which the extreme peril of the situation to foreigners in Vera Cruz was discussed, the consuls returned to the city. Gen. Valdez informed the consuls that he would notify them to-day whether conditions warranted a hasty departure of all foreigners from Vera Cruz to insure their safety.

The U. S. cruiser Des Moines steamed into port during Saturday night. An officer from the warship visited Gen. Felix Diaz yesterday morning and arranged an interview on behalf of Capt. Hughes. Gen. Diaz then visited the Des Moines, where the American captain and the leader of the new revolt had a long conference, the nature of which has not been divulged.

While the Diaz revolutionists hold the city, and the federals have taken up positions on the outskirts, there has been no coming together of the two opposing forces as yet. The feeling of anxiety among the foreign residents has been considerably relieved by the arrival of the Dest Moines, and it is considered probable that a battle, if it is fought, will take place beyond the city limits.

STUDENTS BESIEGE THEATRE

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 21.—Many persons were injured last night in a riot caused by an attempt of University of Illinois students to force their way into the opera house, where a vaudeville show was in progress.

Celebrating the football victory over Indiana, nearly 1,000 students laid siege to the theatre. They were repulsed by stage hands and policemen armed with revolvear and clubs.

Edgar Dillavou, a high school student, was knocked unconscious. A chorus girl was sturck on the head with a brick hurled through a dressing-room window. The other chorus girls fainted on the stage and were carried off. The audience thought it part of the show and did not become greatly excited. Peter Andrews, a stage hand, suffered a blow on the head from a stone that came through a window.

There were many students slightly injured, but their friends quickly removed them.

Cornwall Man Drowned.

Cornwall, Oct. 21.—As the result of the disastrous storm on Lake Ontario which caused two coal barges belonging to the Ogdensburg Coal Co. to sink, Stephen Leboeuf, formerly of Cornwall, was among those who lost their lives.

Mr. Leboeuf, who was a baker, left his home here eight years ago for Fulton, N.Y. He was on his way to Cornwall to see his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Leboeuf, when the barges broke loose from the tug Proctor in a severe gale, and both went to bottom of the lake.

Leboeuf leaves besides his parents, a wife and nine children, also three sisters.

C.N.R. Shops at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—It is stated in railway circles here that the C.N.R. has finally decided to establish its main car shops at Rideau Junction, a suburb of Ottawa, where the company a few months ago purchased several hundred acres of land.

It has been known that Sir William Mackenzie favored Toronto, but it is stated that the engineering department of the company, which all along had held the view that the strategic point of the system was Ottawa, succeeded last week in satisfying the directors of the reasonableness of that opinion, and it was decided definitely that arrangements would be made forthwith to that end.

The Montenegrin army opened the war against Turkey by attacking a strong Turkish position opposite Podgoritza, the headquarters of the Montenegrin army. Prince Peter, the young son of King Nicholas, fired the first shot.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT JUDGED WELL ENOUGH TO TRAVEL

To Fight White Slavers.

Brantford, Oct. 21.—The report of the social reform committee of the Baptist Church of Ontario and Quebec, was the principal feature of the Saturday session of the convention. Progress was noted and it is likely that an appointment of an official with Dominion-wide duties will be made to fight the white slave traffic. The proposal was favored by several delegates who took part in the discussion.

The convention concludes to-morrow.

LIEUT. BECKER TO TESTIFY

The Accused Police Officer Will Tell His Own Story.

New York, Oct. 21.—Witnesses in the trial of Police Lieut. Becker testified yesterday to two points which the defence considered vital to its case. These were:

First, that the raid on Herman Rosenthal's gambling house on April 17 was made after evidence against it had been obtained by the police. The state charges that the raid was a "fake" one.

Second, that "Bald Jack" Rose and "Bridgie" Weboer, two of the self-confessed accomplices to Rosenthal's murder, who have turned state's evidence, threatened to kill Rosenthal weeks before he was murdered.

Another witness, Louis Plitt, brother of Becker's so-called press agent, swore that Rose had gone down on his knees in the Tombs and said: "On the grave and on the memory of my dead mother, I say that Becker had nothing to do with this affair."

Police Lieut. Becker will take the witness stand in his own defence in his trial on the charge of instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, according to John F. McIntryre, his chief counsel. He stated last night that he had yielded to his client's desire in the matter, and that Becker's story would be heard within the next two or three days.

IS TURKEY GETTING INTO MORE TROUBLE ?

Special to the Review.

Sofia, Oct. 21—The light of Varna lighthouse has been extinguished, because of the proximity of the Turkish fleet. It is declared that the Turkish bombardment of Varna is a violation of the International law, and the Hague Convention, as the Black Sea is neutral water. The Bulgarian Government expects the powers to intervene, declaring the Black Sea neutral. An unconfirmed report is that the Turks have evacuated the outer lines and fortifications around Adrianopole.

G.T.R. TO BUY NEW LINE ?

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The Chicago Tribune yesterday published a story to the effect that active negotiations are under way by the G.T.R. for the purchase of a controlling interest in the Chicago Great Western Railway. The story says:

"Active negotiations are under way for the acquisition of the Chicago Great Western Railroad by the G.T.R. system.

"Local officials and directors decline to say how far negotiations have gone, or whether the big Canadian company intends to absorb or gain control of the stock of the middle west system. Official announcement is expected from New York."

House Opens Nov. 21.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—A special edition of The Canadian Gazette will be issued to-day, announcing the date for the opening of Parliament, for Nov. 21. The official announcement is no surprise, as it was practically assured several days ago that Nov. 21 would be the date.

After a Long Debate His Doctors Agree to Let Him Leave Chicago For Home—His Wound Has Bled and He is Suffering From Nervous Exhaustion—Wants to Make One More Speech Before Election.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The advisability of permitting Col. Roosevelt to depart to-day for Oyster Bay was debated at length yesterday, and not until after his physicians had held a consultation last night did they decide definitely that he might do so. He left for New York at 8.08 a.m. Col. Roosevelt's condition was described as normal throughout yesterday. It was learned that his wound had bled considerably and that he was suffering from nervous exhaustion.

The ex-President's physicians insisted that both of these developments were to be expected, and there was in them no cause for alarm. The bleeding, it was explained by Dr. Alexander Lambert, necessarily accompanied the discharge of serum which is part of the healing process.

"I wish you would emphasize the fact," said Dr. Lambert, "that Col. Roosevelt is getting on well, but that any patient who has been in bed as long as he, will suffer from some degree of nervousness. If Col. Roosevelt is kept perfectly quiet, it will be safe for him to take the trip."

"There is no cause for serious misgivings," said Dr. A. D. Bevan, "if Col. Roosevelt is kept quiet."

Dr. Murphy and Dr. Terrell gave the same opinion.

In spite of the assurances of the physicians, it was apparent that some concern was felt as to the effect upon Col. Roosevelt of a day and night on the train. Mrs. Roosevelt accepted the judgment of Dr. J. B. Murphy and his associates, although for a time after her husband's setback last night, she was doubtful whether it would be safe to attempt the journey so soon. She said yesterday afternoon, however, that if final arrangements for the trip had been made, she would not insist on a change of plans.

Once back at home there will be little relaxation in the strict regime of the physicians for a week or ten days. Col. Roosevelt believed, however, that he will be able to speak in Madison Square Garden, New York, on Oct. 30. He hopes to make one speech to summarise all of his reasons for seeking support for the Progressive party, and has begun to plan an address which he can deliver in twenty minutes.

"But I am going to the meeting anyway," he said, "even if I can speak only three words."

SIMPSON RENNIE HAS PASSED AWAY

Had Been Lecturing at Farmer's Institutes for Thirty Years

Special To The Review.

Toronto, Oct. 21—Simpson Rennie, one of the best known and most successful farmers in Ontario, and known throughout the Province as a lecturer in Farmers' Institutes, in which capacity he has been engaged for the past thirty years, died this morning at his residence on Ontario street, in his seventy-second year. He was once offered the position of Superintendent of the farm at the O. A. C. at Guelph, but declined, preferring to continue with his own farm and devote his spare time to lecturing at institute meetings. Death was due to sciatica rheumatism contracted through getting caught in the rain while on a lecturing trip. He won a gold medal for the best kept farm in Ontario in 1888 and three years previous won a similar trophy for the best kept farm in the district.

Demented Laborer Insults Kaiser.

Berlin, Oct. 21.—While the Emperor was attending the dedication of St. Michael's Church yesterday, says a Hamburg despatch to The Tageblatt, a laborer, apparently demented, pressed through the crowd and addressed insulting words to him. The man was placed under arrest and was taken to a hospital for examination.

"PILLS LIKE A FYLE"

So Harsh and Drastic are Many Pills as to Seriously Injure Health.

In a letter written from his home in Valencia. Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.

"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were like lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend, he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exert on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill so mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the afting."

For bowel disorders, sick headache, constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse a substitute. Sold in 25c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Are Mild--Never Gripe

THE NAVAL BUSINESS

Mr. Borden has not been at all hesitant in trying to keep the support of the French wing of the party in the naval business. That is both good politics and statesmanship. Canada does not want racial or sectional animosity stirred up. It is all very well for Ontario supporters of the government to say that the French element cannot be considered, that the British section of Canada must have its way. But if the true interests of Canada are to be considered there must be due regard paid to the feelings and sentiments of Quebec. The break between the Borden government and Mr. Monk does not mean that there necessarily must be antagonism between the Ontario and the French supporters of the Government. Mr. Monk in the campaign waged war on the Laurier policy of a Canadian navy, manned by Canadians and under the control of the Canadian parliament except in time of war. He claimed that before there was any participation by Canada in naval affairs, there should be a referendum, or a plebiscite of Canadian sentiment. The same attitude applied to Mr. Borden's policy of a large contribution to the imperial fleet. Mr. Borden, holding that there is an emergency, is determined to go ahead with a contribution, leaving the formulation of a permanent naval policy until later. That is the eminently sensible and business-like course, but in view of his declarations on the Laurier policy Mr. Monk cannot with a fine sense of propriety and honor continue in a cabinet which proposes to give assent to Mr. Borden's proposal. Therefore he will withdraw, but will give the government independent support from his seat in the House of Commons. It remains to be seen how many of his French Canadian adherents he can carry with him. The Government is in no danger, because on a division on an emergency contribution, it would probably have the support of most of the Liberals. It is hardly likely that in view of the generally recognised emergency, the Liberals would actually go on record as opposing any direct aid by Canada. The Borden Government is standing true to the imperial sentiment of Canada, and as long as it adheres to that course it will have the support of Canadians generally, with few exceptions.

A Justification here.

The Edmonton Capital, a Liberal newspaper, is hand in glove with the free trade section of the Liberal party. It accuses the Liberal newspapers in the East with having been mealy-mouthed upon the question of free trade, as it applied to manufactures in the last campaign. It says that the Liberals would not have fared any worse and perhaps they would have laid the foundation of future success if the Eastern Liberals had spread the doctrine of a genuine free trade, instead of advocating free trade in natural products only. The Capital says—

"Leading Eastern newspapers of the Liberal faith really begged rather than fought the issue, reversing the whole propaganda of free trade by attempting to prove that reciprocity would not detrimentally affect the parasitical industries.

Had the Eastern Liberals stepped out boldly and declared that the reciprocity agreement was not to be considered by any means the ultimate to which the Liberal party was prepared to go, but that it was merely the first instalment, following which the British preference would be increased until the tariff against Great Britain was completely abolished and that there would be a general reduction all along the line until the last of the parasitical industries had been finally eliminated and Canada's industrialism set firmly upon the footing of absolute free trade, there is no doubt that the Liberals could not have fared worse and they would at least have laid the foundations for future success by spreading fearlessly the doctrine of a genuine free trade."

There is something in this for the Examiner to consider. During the last campaign Mr. Stratton was very careful to go around among the workingmen of Peterborough giving assurances that manufactures were untouched by the reciprocity proposal. The Examiner vociferously shouted day after day that the workingmen of Peterborough were not to be injured or any change made that would give promise of injuring them. The wiping out of the duties upon natural products was, on the contrary, to benefit them by lowering the cost of living, while, of course, enabling the farmers to get higher prices. But the workingmen of Peterborough thought that free trade in natural products came too close to free trade in manufactures for comfort. They gave a majority of over 400 against Mr. Stratton, largely in that belief. That they were correct in their suspicion that more was intended by a section of the Liberals than mere free trade in farm stuff is shown by the quotation from the Edmonton paper. Other Western Liberal publications work along the same lines. They are actively trying to get the Liberal party lined up for straight free trade which would mean the ruin of most of the industries of Peterborough and other manufacturing cities as well. That the Ontario Liberals were honest in their conviction that Ontario industrialism would not be hurt, there is some cause to believe, but we submit that the evidence of their miscalculation is too plain, the handwriting on the wall too easily read. If there was reciprocity in natural products, how long would it take the Western wing of Liberalism which is gaining the ascendancy in the party councils, to force on a proposal for the wiping out, or the material reduction of the protective tariff that gives the working man his bread and butter. In the statement of the Edmonton paper and in the many corroborative indications from other sources, there is complete justification for the Conservative contention that reciprocity would be only a short cut to an agitation for the wiping out of protection on manufactures, and the direct injury of the workers. These things cannot be disguised from the man of sense, gloss over the facts as party organs like the Examiner will.

ROWELL AND THE BAR

In the East Middlesex bye-election the Conservative candidate is Geo W. Neely. The Independent candidate approved by the Liberals of the riding is William Sutherland. Mr Sutherland is a Conservative, the brother of the former member for the riding, but has a personal grievance because he was dismissed from the job as tax collector for London township. But Mr. Sutherland is not a temperance man, nor personally a supporter of the Rowell "Abolish the Bar" policy. When the Temperance Association of the riding was considering putting up a candidate to support the temperance cause, Mr. Sutherland promptly became quite alarmed over the prospect, and after consulting Mr. Rowell, announced his support of the abolish-the-bar policy, receiving Mr Rowell's endorsation. The Temperance Association very justly considered itself much aggrieved, and at a meeting refused to fall in line and support the Opposition candidate. The temperance true-blues considered such a death-bed repentance as Mr Sutherland announced was purely a matter of political expediency and in no wise represented any true adherence to the temperance cause.

There is a similarly difficult situation for the Rowell policy in the North Waterloo bye-election. Here the Liberals have not been able to get a candidate at all. The majority of the residents of the riding are of extraction, and certainly out of sympathy with any out and out policy for abolishing the bar. At the recent Liberal convention, seven names were proposed, but all of the seven tentative nominees declined to be the goat. Here again the Rowell program has entirely failed to make itself felt as a real political force. It is certainly to be acknowledged that so far, the Liberal program has made very little headway in Ontario. Ontario is still overwhelmingly satisfied with the Whitney administration and Mr. Rowell will have a hard time in making any impression on its majority, even on such ethical appeals as the moral betterment of the people. The issues in the two bye-elections are quite plain, and in neither is there any sign of success for the Rowell propaganda.

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

Adventure

A Romance of The South Seas

BY JACK LONDON

Copyright, 1910, by Street & Smith
Copyright, 1911, by the Macmillan Company

Keeping now to the shelter of the trees, he went forward another quarter of a mile. If Tudor had advanced with equal speed they should have come together at that point, and Sheldon concluded that the other was circling. The difficulty was to locate him. The rows of trees, running at right angles, enabled him to see along only one narrow avenue at a time. His enemy might be coming along the next avenue or the next to right or left. He might be a hundred feet away or half a mile. Sheldon plodded on and decided that the old stereotyped duel was far simpler and easier than this protracted hide and seek affair. He, too, tried circling, in the hope of cutting the other's circle; but, without catching a glimpse of him, he finally emerged upon a fresh clearing where the young trees, waist high, afforded little shelter and less hiding. Just as he emerged, stepping out a pace, a rifle cracked to his right, and, though he did not hear the bullet in passing, the thud of it came to his ears when it struck a palm trunk farther on.

He sprang back into the protection of the larger trees. Twice he had exposed himself and been fired at, while he had failed to catch a single glimpse of his antagonist. A slow anger began to burn in him. It was deucedly unpleasant, he decided, this being peppered at, and, nonsensical as it really was, it was none the less deadly serious. There was no avoiding the issue, no firing in the air and getting over with it, as in the old fashioned duel. This mutual man hunt must keep up until one got the other. And if one neglected a chance to get the other that increased the other's chance to get him. There could be no false sentiment about it. Tudor had been a cunning devil when he proposed this sort of duel, Sheldon concluded, as he began to work along cautiously in the direction of the last shot.

When he arrived at the spot Tudor was gone, and only his footprints remained, pointing out the course he had taken into the depths of the plantation. Once, ten minutes later, he caught a glimpse of Tudor, a hundred yards away, crossing the same avenue as himself, but going in the opposite direction. His rifle half leaped to his shoulder, but the [illegible] gone. More in whim than in hope of result, grinning to himself as he did so, Sheldon raised his automatic pistol and in two seconds sent eight shots scattering through the trees in the direction in which Tudor had disappeared. Wishing he had a shotgun, Sheldon dropped to the ground behind a tree, slipped a fresh clip up the hollow butt of the pistol, threw a cartridge into the chamber, shoved the safety catch into place and reloaded the empty clip.

It was but a short time after that that Tudor tried the same trick on him, the bullets pattering about him like spiteful rain, thudding into the palm trunks or glancing off in whining ricochets. The last bullet of all, making a double ricochet from two different trees and losing most of its momentum, struck Sheldon a sharp blow on the forehead and dropped at his feet. He was partly stunned for the moment, but on investigation found no greater harm than a nasty lump that soon rose to the size of a pigeon's egg.

Tiring of the endless circling, Sheldon tried once more to advance directly on his foe, but the latter was too crafty, taking advantage of his boldness to fire a couple of shots at him and slipping away on some changed and continually changing course. For an hour they dodged and turned and twisted back and forth and around and hunted each other among the orderly palms. They caught fleeting glimpses of each other and chanced flying shots which were without result. On a grassy shelter behind a tree Sheldon came upon where Tudor had rested and smoked a cigarette. The pressed grass showed where he had sat. At one side lay the cigarette stump and the charred match which had lighted it. In front lay a scattering of bright metallic fragments. Sheldon recognized their significance. Tudor was notching his steel jacketed bullets or cutting them blunt, so that they would spread on striking—in short, he was making them into the vicious dumdum prohibited in modern warfare. Sheldon knew now what would happen to him if a bullet struck his body. It would leave a tiny hole where it entered, but the hole where it emerged would be the size of a saucer.

He decided to give up the pursuit and lay down in the grass, protected right and left by the row of palms, with, on either hand, the long avenue extending. This he could watch. Tudor would have to come to him or else there would be no termination of the affair. He wiped the sweat from his [illegible] his neck to keep off the stinging gnats that lurked in the grass. Never had he felt so great a disgust for the thing called "adventure." Joan had been bad enough with her Baden-Powell and long barreled Colt's, but here was this newcomer, also looking for adventure and finding it in no other way than by lugging a peace loving planter into an absurd and preposterous bushwhacking duel. If ever adventure was well damned it was by Sheldon, sweating in the windless grass and fighting gnats, the while he kept close watch up and down the avenue.

Then Tudor came. Sheldon happened to be looking in his direction at the moment he came into view, peering quickly up and down the avenue before he stepped into the open. Midway he stopped, as if debating what course to pursue. He made a splendid mark, facing his concealed enemy at 200 yards distance. Sheldon aimed at the center of his chest, then deliberately shifted the aim to his right shoulder, and, with the thought, "That will put him out of business," pulled the trigger. The bullet, driving with momentum sufficient to perforate a man's body a mile distant, struck Tudor with such force as to pivot him, whirling him half around by the shock of its impact and knocking him down.

"Hope I haven't killed the beggar," Sheldon muttered aloud, springing to his feet and running forward.

A hundred feet away all anxiety on that score was relieved by Tudor, who made shift with his left hand and from his automatic pistol hurled a rain of bullets all around Sheldon. The latter dodged behind a palm trunk, counting the shots, and when the eighth had been fired he rushed in on the wounded man. He kicked the pistol out of the other's hand and then sat down on him in order to keep him down.

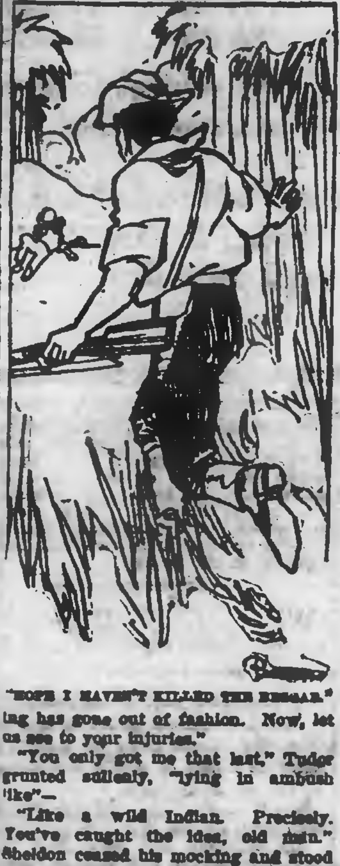
"Be quiet," he said. "I've got you, so there's no use struggling."

Tudor still attempted to struggle and to throw him off.

"Keep quiet, I tell you," Sheldon commanded. "I'm satisfied with the outcome, and you've got to be. So you might as well give in and call this affair closed."

Tudor reluctantly relaxed.

"Rather funny, isn't it, these modern duels?" Sheldon grinned down at him as he removed his weight. "Not a bit dignified. If you'd struggled a moment longer I'd have rubbed your face in the earth. I've a good mind to do it anyway, just to teach you that duel-



"HOPE I HAVEN'T KILLED THE BEGGAR."

ing has gone out of fashion. Now, let us see to your injuries."

"You only got me that last," Tudor grunted sullenly, "lying in ambush like"—

"Like a wild Indian. Precisely. You've caught the idea, old man." Sheldon ceased his mocking and stood up. "You lie there quietly until I send back some of the boys to carry you in. You're not seriously hurt, and it's lucky for you I didn't follow your example. If you had been struck with one of your own bullets a carriage and pair would have been none too large to drive through the hole it would have made. As it is you're drilled clean—a nice little perforation. All you need is antiseptic washing and dressing and you'll be around in a month. Now, take it easy, and I'll send a stretcher for you."

Smart Calling Costume.

Now that the early fall days are here one is obliged to take up certain social duties, and among them is the afternoon call of a more or less formal nature.

For this visit one wears a costume just a trifle more elaborate than the ordinary trotting suit. The illustration shows a delightful confection of the tailored type suitable for afternoon calling.

TAILORED GOWN OF BROWN SERGE.

The suit is of dark brown serge, and, by the way, brown is to be one of the leading colors this fall, with trimmings of black braid and buttons.

The brown felt hat is trimmed with brown and white feathers and a velvet bow.

One of the girls at an examination in grammar school, when asked why the noun "bachelor" was singular, blushingly answered, "Because it is very singular they don't get married."

She went up to the head of the class.

Why Don't They Learn?

The trouble with the women who want to behave like men is that they have not learned to behave like gentlemen.

The Week End Desk Case.

Dear week end girl, don't rely upon your busy hostess for writing materials. There may not be even a desk in your bedroom, and some other guest may be writing in the library at the very moment when you wish to send out a note. So be sure to pack into your suit case one of the conveniences of flexible leather of book shape which has several pages of blotting paper and compartments for stationery as well as for a bottle of ink so firmly encased that there is no danger to the wardrobe belongings with which it may be packed. The cases come in black or colored morocco, in pigskin and in sealskin.

BISHOP APOSTLES A COSTLY MISTAKE

Pope Now Sees Error---Directing Faith Back to Apostles.

All Followers of Christ Repudiating Apostolic Succession Now Have Proper Basis for Harmony and Union Through Untrammeled Bible Study.

PASTOR RUSSELL

St. Louis, Oct. 20.—We report one of Pastor Russell's discourses here today from the text, "Have not I chosen you Twelve?" (John 6:70.) The Pastor declared that shortly after the Apostles had fallen asleep in death Satan got great power in the Church, using two instrumentalities to introduce false doctrines.

(1) By the Second Century the ministers of the Church began to be recognized as separate from the congregations, and instead of being elected as their servants, they established themselves as a clerical class and began to lord it over the household of faith, themselves appointing the ministers over the congregations, instead of their being chosen by election, as in the days of the Apostles.

(2) At the same time the chief ones of the clergy, having the title of bishops, were claimed to be the successors of the Apostles, with the same right to teach and to be considered infallible messengers of Christ. The doctrine of Apostolic Succession was formulated. They pointed out that when Judas lost his place amongst The Twelve, the eleven met and chose one to fill his place.

The speaker called attention to the fact that the eleven Apostles in electing Matthias to their number in the place of Judas, did it without Divine authority and sanction. The one they chose the Lord ignored, and we hear nothing further of him. In His own due time the Lord brought forward the one He purposed should take the place of Judas—St. Paul.

Jesus assured these Twelve that they would "sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel," in the "Times of Restitution" and "Regeneration." (Matt. 19:28; Acts 3:19-21.) Those Twelve were again pictured symbolically in Revelation as the crown of twelve stars, on the head of the symbolical Woman, who represented the Church of Christ. Again The Twelve are pictured in the symbolic New Jerusalem, which portrays the Church beyond the veil in Heavenly glory, as twelve foundation stones, with their names written therein.—Rev. 21:14.

False or Pseudo-Apostles.

Of these Twelve alone Jesus said, "Whatsoever things ye bind in earth shall be bound in Heaven and whatsoever things ye shall declare loosed," or non-essential on earth shall be declared "loosed in Heaven"—so carefully would the great Head supervise the words of those, who as His specially appointed and chosen ones, were His mouthpieces to the Church.

With St. Paul we can then agree that no additional instruction would be necessary beyond what God thus gave us. The Apostle Paul said, "The word of God is sufficient, that the man of God may be thoroughly furnished." (II. Tim. 3:16-17.) Consequently, whatever visions and revelations of pseudo-apostles, or whatever decrees of pseudo-apostles, may come to us, they are to be considered as merely human—not inspired—that our faith may not rest in the teachings of men, but in the Word of God.—I. Cor. 2:5.

The Emperor Constantine, a convert to Christianity, noted that the teachings of the various bishops were quite contradictory. Although not baptized he recognized that if these teachers were Divinely guided their testimony would be harmonious. He thought to institute a comparison of their teachings with the Bible and to prove them right or wrong by its testimony.

Constantine, in A. D. 325, convened the Council of Nice—called an "Apostolic Council," because the bishops were thought to be living apostles. Although Emperor Constantine proffered transportation free, only about one-third of the bishops attended—385. The imperial order was that the Apostles must decide what must be believed and taught.

For days, weeks and months disputes prevailed; and finally the Emperor gave the decision respecting the wording of the Creed. And that Nicene Creed was promulgated as the Christian Faith; and the edict went forth that all who would not accept it should be banished. Thus uniformity of faith was effected by a worldly prince, who probably never saw, nor once referred to the Divine Word, the Bible.

For twelve centuries after this, Apostolic Succession continued operating through "Apostolic Councils" and creeds. Is it any wonder that in all those fifteen centuries the Truth itself was buried under a mass of superstition, error, false doctrine?

Bible the Torch of Progress.

For four centuries the Bible has been coming back to the people. Proportionately liberty has been enlightening the world. Ignorance, superstition and persecution have been yielding to nobility and justice. We all praise God that we live in a day when it is no longer considered God-like, Christlike, to persecute others!

But, alas! for the past fifty years the influence of the Bible is on the wane! Infidelity, styled Higher Criticism, is rapidly undermining all faith in the Bible.

Take Every Precaution

Eyestrain sometimes comes on so gradually that the individual does not realize his trouble until it has reached a serious stage.

In fact there are many effects of eyestrain that only a physician would trace to their true source.

The man who does a great deal of work with his eyes, should be on the watch for the first indications of strain, and do everything possible to prevent it from occurring.

Sometimes the eyes are in such on irritable condition that the wearing of the ordinary "flat" lenses produces great discomfort. Light is reflected from the rear surfaces of the lenses and the eyes are wearied by unconsciously trying to focus on these reflections.

Then when looking to either side the edges of such lenses annoy the eyes

These irritations are avoided when you wear Toric Lenses. You are not taking every possible precaution against eyestrain if you do not get a pair of Torics.

MR. JAS. SKINNER WAS POPULAR IN OWEN SOUND

New C.P.R. Official is Enthusiastic Curler and Bowler

The Owen Sound Times says—

"After being C. P. R. uptown agent for thirteen years here, Mr. James Skinner left this morning for Peterborough, where he assumes the position of agent, marking a distinct promotion. Intimation of the transfer came came to Mr. Skinner on Tuesday morning, and he at once made arrangements to take his new position.

Entering the employ of the C. P. R. as operator years ago, Mr. Skinner was first stationed at Woodstock, and later was relieving agent and then Chief clerk at Peterborough. After being there for four years, Mr. Skinner received his promotion to the Owen Sound office, where his intimate nowledge with railroad work, his unflagging courtesy, application to detail, speedily established him in an enviable position in the esteem of the town's business element, and in fact with all who had dealings, with the company through the genial uptown agent. The removal to Peterborough comes as a merited and substantial promotion. It may be said here that Mr. Skinner on several occasions refused to consider removal to other centres, any of which would have been more important than Owen Sound. Particularly is this so in the case of the Windsor agency offered him some time ago. At his new post Mr. Skinner will have nothing to do with the express distribution as has been the case here. All his work will be confined to general agency and telegraphic business. During his many years as an Owen Sounder, Mr. Skinner has made host of friends. An enthusiastic curler, bowler, and ardent lacrosse fan he has been actively associated with clean sports since he came here. His removal will be a distinct loss to the Alexandra Lacrosse Club with which he has held executive positions for several years. It is his intention to return to Owen Sound next week for a few days. Mrs. Skinner and Mr. Fraser Skinner will remain in Owen Sound for some time.

OUTWARD LAMP OF NO GOOD WITHOUT INWARD OIL

Says Rev. J. Russell MacLean in Special Sermon to St. John's Congregation

A most favorable start was made in the course of the special services at St. John's church, so widely advertised, last night. The church was filled to it's utmost capacity with an evidently interested congregation who took a hearty part in the service.

At the opening of the service Canon Davidson remarked that Evening prayer having been said with its offering of praise to the most High, there was an opportunity to direct the whole power of the extra service to the increase of life and warmth among the worshippers.

The service was of a simple and unconventional character, quite different to the ordinary Church of England service with which, however, it was linked with the Apostles creed, a lesson, a well known Psalm and certain prayers.

This was taken by the rector, who then handed it over to the Missioner, Rev. J. Russel MacLean, Toronto, who directed the subsequent proceedings.

Touching and popular hymns were skillfully woven with his address and were taken up with enthusiasm. The singing was led by the adult portion of St. John's choir, assisted by almost the entire Conservatory Orchestra, both string, brass and drum, under the leadership of Mr. Gliddon, the singing being under the general superintendence of Mr. Devey.

PARABLE OF THE VIRGINS.

Mr. MacLean's general subject was "The Obscuring of the Vision" and he took as his background the story of the wise and foolish virgins. He pointed out that the latter were not open sinners but mistaken Christians who used outward ordinances in a mechanical and unmeaning fashion. Outward lamps were no good without the inward oil, which typified the grace of God and spiritual reality. The preacher gave numbers of instances of men who by sordid and materialistic views of life had missed life's chief happiness.

THEY MISS THE VISION.

Mere money grabbers, materialists and pessimists, who kept looking down at the mud missed the glorious vision above them, which could be seen by the trained eye of those whose desires were set on what was lofty and beautiful.

Sin and wickedness, while clothed with a glaring attractiveness made men incapable of seeing the vision of God and the beauty of God's kind of life.

SECRET SIN.

Secret sins, the preacher said, were responsible for much misery and dullness among respectable people and he closed with an appeal to put such things away and get life's highest opportunities and prizes.

"It seemed to bring one near Heaven," said afterwards, one of the visitors present, an evidence of one of the effects of the whole service.

The work of ushering and hospitality was well performed by a large body of selected men, under the direction of Mr. W. E. Conway. After the service a number of these and other workers assembled at the rectory and discussed their work and made plans for the carrying out of next Sunday's service in a still more effective fashion. The service will be under the direction of Rev. R. J. Moore, rector of St. George's church, Toronto, and one of the leading Church of England clergy.

THE DRINK TRAFFIC IN THE LIGHT OF SCIENCE

Increased Knowledge Brings Increased Responsibility—Temperance Meeting in the Red Mill

At the temperance meeting in the Red Mill yesterday afternoon the Rev. [illegible] Pogue took for the starting point of his address the words of Paul: "The times of this ignorance God winked at, but now He commandeth all men everywhere to repent." He pointed out that increased light brought increased responsibility. We have a new light on the nature properties and effects of strong drink. Years ago it was believed if taken in moderation, it was wholesome and nourishing. These were the times of ignorance. Science has now demonstrated that it has no food value that its use, even in small doses injures the nervous system and is hurtful to health. An eminent professor addressing a graduating class of young medical students said to them: "If there were offered to me the gratification of any wish the first and foremost would be the destruction of the process by which alcohol is made." Then years ago the vast extent of the evils which flowed from the use of intoxicating liquors was not discovered, as it has been in recent times. We now know that among its direct results are the greater part of the pauperism of the country fully nine-tenths the crimes that are committed the early cutting off of hundreds of precious lives yearly. We know that It is the father of nearly all curses, that it is a murderer, a thief, a ravisher a stealer of men's brains a caterer for the gallows that it is steeped in the tears of widows, mothers, orphans; that it defies God, defaces His handiwork, and is the enemy of the progress of the race and the coming of the kingdom of God. All this we now know with our increased light. In view of this what should we do with the traffic? Regulate it? As well talk of regulating a plague. There is only one thing that ought to be done, and that is destroy it. If a plague should infeat our land and rob us of $1 500,000 000 a year and destroy 200 000 lives, what would we do with it? No stone would be left unturned to fight and destroy it. That plague is the liquor traffic. It brings nothing but crime and misery. Its hands are red with the blood of the slain. There is only one stand for a Christian man to take in relation to it, and that is to fight it to the death.

MR. ERNEST THORNTON MISSING SINCE FRIDAY

It is feared That He Has Been Overtaken by Accident or is lost in the Woods in the Vicinity of Kethecum Lake—Searching Party Left Here This Morning

Fears for the safety of Mr. Ernest Thornton, accountant in the Sun Life Assurance, are being generally expressed to-day, as it is believed that the young man has met with an accident in the country around Ketchecum Lake sixteen miles north of Buckhorn. Mr. Thornton left one week ago to-day for a two weeks hunting trip at Ketchecum, to stay at the farm of Mr. Westlake in that vicinity. On Friday he left the farm and penetrated the woods which are very dense in that section. He had his rifle with him, but as far as ascertained he was not carrying a compass.

He did not return to the farm Friday night.

PARENTS NOTIFIED.

Yesterday morning a telephone message was received by his parents on Sherbrooke street containing the alarming news that friends had been unable to ascertain his whereabouts. Searchers scoured the woods in tye neighborhood and one report says that communication was established with him by means of rifle shots. He was not found, however, and grave doubts as to his safety were freely entertained. Members of the Ketchecum Lake Hunt Club, including Mayor Bradburn and E. A. Peck, M.P.P. returning to Peterborough Saturday night heard the news that he was missing, but considered that nothing serious need be feared. It rained very heavily all Friday night and the woods were anything but inviting as a place to have been lost.

It is said that Mr. Thornton was not a very rugged youth and that unless he met with an accident of some nature he might have been overcome by the exposure to the elements.

SEARCH PARTY LEAVE.

His parents have gone to Ketchecum to assist in the search, and a party of three, consisting of Mr. D. H. Moore George Elliott and Alex. Weddel left to-day by auto for the scene to pursue the search for the missing young man.

The country around Ketchecum is very wild and rough. The only hope for anyone lost there without a compass would be the sun, which could be used as a guide.

Up to a late hour to-day no further report had been received.

POPULAR FREIGHT CONDUCTOR MET DEATH IN COLLISION

Shortly after three o'clock Saturday morning, a rear-end collision between two freight trains on the C. P. R. just west of Sharbot Lake resulted in the death of William Green, conductor, and the narrow escape of the other members of the crews on both trains.

A west-bound train, of which Green was in charge stalled on a heavy grade just west of the lake and the following train, which left the Lake ten minutes later, overtook her, and smashed into the van of the stalled train. The van was badly smashed, and was strewn about the track but the heavy engine was not injured to any extent.

Green, who was in the van when the pitch-in occurred, was found beneath a pile of debris, his body being badly crushed and mangled. He was dead when taken from the wreck. He was a popular employe and had been in the service of the company all his life. His remains were removed to his late home at Havelock, where the deceased leaves a widow and family.

Several years ago he lost one of his hands in a wreck.

WHO WILL BE RESPONSIBLE FOR DEFEAT OF LOCAL OPTION IN PETERBOROUGH

Will it be the Men Who Made it One of Three—Or the Men Who Made it One of Two—As the Former What Chance Has it?

"The organized liquor traffic in Ontario is the real issue in the bye-election in East Middlesex. Ordinary parties interested are involved only to a minor degree. Both canidates, Mr. Neely and Mr. Sutherland, are of Conservative upbringing and have been affiliated with the Conservative party. Mr. Neely stands for the Whitney policy first and last, and stands for the continuance and defence of the bar-room. Mr. Sutherland has accepted so much of the Rowell policy as commits him to the total closing of the bar-room and the abolition of the liquor traffic in clubs. As between the two men their neighbors and acquaintances in East Middlesex can choose. As between the two policies, these two candidates represent the people of the whole Province are free to judge.

"From the public point of view the [illegible] between two men. The choice is between two principles, two policies, two ideals of social life in Canada. The elector who marks his ballot for Mr. Neely writes himself down as an advocate and defender of the bar-room, and shares responsibility for whatever of poverty, disease and vice the bar-room produces. The man who votes for Mr. Sutherland takes his place on the side of social reform and lends his help to wiping out the evils of intemperance and to destroying the economic burden and moral stigma of the liquor traffic.

"The electors of East Middlesex cannot dodge the issue so sharply drawn. There it faces them. To evade it is to betray a public trust. To vote for the bar-room may delay it, but cannot defeat the progress of social reform, but it will involve those who so vote in the condemnation of the evils their vote helps to perpetuate. To vote for the abolition of the bar-room will by so much bring nearer the utter destruction of this nation's prime enemy and will to that degree clear the electors of East Middlesex from a share in the curse of the liquor traffic. The choice is plain. It cannot be obscured. It cannot be put by."—(The Globe.)

The following extract from the leading editorial in the Toronto Globe of Monday, Oct. 21st, shows the condition to which the temperance question has been reduced by reason of the squabble for new policies. It will be noticed that the Globe says: "Mr. Neely stands for the Whitney policy first and last, and stands for the continuance and defence of the open bar-room." This is not true. Mr. Whitney's policy is the alliance of [illegible] local option. His policy combines two things, the ordinary every day license policy and local option both of which he enforces where they are in force. On the other hand Mr. Rowell says not one word of local option. He ignores local option altogether. He says that his policy is the closing of the bar-room and the abolition of the liquor traffic in Clubs. There can be no question that Mr. Rowell has dealt the temperance question as represented by local option a fatal blow. The Globe itself says: "From the public point of view the choice is not as between two things. The choice is between two principles, two policies, two ideals of social life in Canada." The Globe therefore commits itself for the sake of obtaining votes to a policy whose ideal of social life in Canada is the sale of liquor anywhere and everywhere except in bars or Clubs. This compromise will no doubt draw many staunch Liberals away from local option. It cannot be expected that Conservatives will allow themselves to be jockeyed by such transparent humbug. The only course that is left for the temperance people is to bring out an independent man independent of both parties and in favour of local option at the next election. The public will then have a fair chance to say what it wants and no doubt will be prepared to abide by the result. It has taken a long time to discover some way of beating out both the temperance people and the license system, but Mr. Rowell has found it—Joy be with him! He has unearthed a scheme that will send the social life of which the Globe speaks back twenty-five years. These people who are forcing local option again in the lime-light in the midst of this confusion are well aware that if it is defeated it is defeated for all time. Have they the right, even if their intention is right, to run the risk of sacrificing the only measure that the temperance people have for carrying out their wishes? Postpone it. Leave it till its new enemy is driven from the field. That will be the thought of every wise man.

Local Collegiates and Bankers Came Together Again

The T. C. S. rugby team which was to play the local P. C. I., at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon, failed to get up to Peterborough, so, of course, no game was played. The Collegiate had donned the uniform and waited for some time before they received the news. Not to be deprived of a game they called out the Bankers who defeated them by the score of 29—1.

It is likely that the P.C.I.'s will journey to Lindsay next Saturday and play the Lindsay Collegiate.

THREE BROTHERS BEFORE THE CADI

Each Was Asked For Usual Contribution of $2

Young Jones Will be Sent to Orillia Institution

Three brothers furnished a bunch of excitement and a little exercise for the police about eight o'clock Saturday evening on Simcoe street. The trio were lined up before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning, and while they took the situation good-humoredly they presented a most amusing appearance. Grizzled beards and tangled black hair totally unacquainted with the comb and brush were the outstanding features of two of the men. The charge against two of them was of being drunk and disorderly in a public place and against the third one of being disorderly only. Each paid $2 fines quite cheerfully out of quite substantial wads.

"These men were in charge of a horse and were unable to handle it properly," said Chief Thompson.

Detective Newhall arrested two of the men and in the scuffle had the buttons torn off his coat and his watch-chain broken.

"If I was as drunk as you make out I'm glad you looked after me, Chief" said one of the men as he parted with his fine.

GOES TO ORILLIA.

The reports of the physicians who examined Denham Jones were considered sufficient to warrant Magistrate Dumble filling out the papers necessary to send him to the Orillia asylum. Until the officer arrives for him from Orillia, Denham will again be placed in the Children's Shelter. In sending the boy to Orillia the Magistrate stated to his father that there he would be well cared for and if it was possible to teach gim anything it would certainly be done.

BACK TO THE CASTLE.

SERVICES IN CITY CHURCHES

Large congregations heard Rev. Mr. Mayers senior deputation secretary of the Dr. Barnardo Homes, when he preached in St. Paul's church yesterday morning and at George-st. church in the evening.

Following the evening church service a meeting was held at the Grand Opera House, when ex-Mayor Morrow acted as chairman. Rev Mr. Mayers went to Lakefield to-day.

Rev. Mr. Wight, of Stirling, took the services at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church yesterday, the pastor preaching at the anniversary services at Rev. Mr. Wight's church.

In the absence of Rev. J. R. Webb, who is attending the convention at Brantford, Mr. A. A. Hainsworth, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. occupied the pulpit. Mr. J. J. Thompson took the morning service at Park street, and Mr. Nash was heard at Gilmour Memorial.

The Sunday School scholars of All Saints attend the evening service in a body when the rector took for his subject, the parable of the loaves and fishes.

Rev. Mr. Johnston, of the General Board of Missions, occupied the pulpit at St. James' Church, morning and evening. The pastor, Rev. J. N. Clarry was at Bethel.

The second anniversary of All Saints Church will be observed next Sunday when Professor Cotton, of Wycliffe College, will be the special preacher.

Mr. Malcolm Clarke, principal of the King Edward School, addressed the Brotherhood of Knox Church.

Yesterday in St. John's church was observed as Children's Day. A special service for children was held in the church in the afternoon and a special sermon by the Rev. J. Russell MacLean on "Religious Education" in the morning service marked the event. In the evening Canon Davidson, when giving notice of the Opera House meeting, spoke commending on the work of the late Dr. Barnardo and his successors.

Ostrich Farming.

One of the most important branches of South African farming is the production of ostrich feathers. Indeed, an ostrich farm is one of the best of investments, provided, of course, that the investor has a sound knowledge of the business. There are many methods of farming ostriches, says The Field, but that adopted in the eastern province of Cape Colony is the most interesting and profitable. The birds themselves vary very much in price, a wild bird, with poor feathers, being practically unsaleable at $5, whilst as much as $5,000 has been paid for a cock-bird of a good strain and producing exceptionally fine feathers. This latter sum is most probably paid for the advertisement that the ownership of such a bird affords, and it is quite possible to get a first-class pair of birds for anything between $500 and $1,250.

As the ostrich has such a voracious appetite—a pair of birds requiring as much as fifty acres of veldt—it is usual nowadays to grow lucerne for fodder where possible. This greatly lessens the amount of land required for an ostrich farm, for it is estimated that one acre of lucerne, especially if the birds are not actually kept on it, will support at least three birds the whole year round. Therefore, if a man had 350 acres of ground under lucerne, he should be able to keep 1,000 ostriches, and derive an income varying from $25,000 to $150,0000 per annum from them.

CONSCIENCE MONEY.

"When Remorse Naws Agin I Will Send Some More."

What an uneasy possession a conscience may be was proved the other day when a Hackney (Eng.) greengrocer received the following letter:

"Dear Sir,—Some years ago, when I was a small boy, in a moment of abstraction I annexed one of your oranges without troubling you to receive payment for it. Sir, that orange has sat undigested on my conscience ever since. It has even given me nightmare. Thus I come to you, like a penitent thief, begging you to accept the enclosed postal order for 2s. 6d. If your conscience in turn disturbs you at the amount, you can ease it by giving away the balance in fruit to other boys who look on your oranges when they are yellow, but are too honest to steal one as I did."

Equally troublesome was the conscience of the thief who relieved a well-known sporting baronet of a five-pound note a short time ago, and from whom the baronet received the following amusing letter a few weeks later:

"Dear Sir,—I stole your money. Remorse naws my conshene, and I send you a sovereign. When remorse naws agin I will send you some more. —Tip O'Rary."

About the same time a sum of 2s. in stamps reached the Board of Guardians of Ringwood, in Hampshire, accompanied by this anonymous letter:

"I oe the Gargands for what i had sometime back, about 2 bob, plesze give these stamps to them.—X.Y.Z."

Not long ago the exchequer of the London, Brighton and South Coast Railway was enriched by a windfall of £1,200 sent through his solicitor by an anonymous man. In the same year the Treasury received a mysterious parcel, which was found to contain a square piece of wood, pierced with a number of round holes. In each of these recesses, carefully wrapped in paper, were several sovereigns, amounting in all to £100. And on another occasion a tin box sent anonymously to the Treasury revealed, when opened, 300 sovereigns, neatly packed in layers, with a note signed "XXX," intimating that the contents represented conscience-money, and asking that receipt should be ackniwledged.

It is, in fact, to the Treasury that the richest crop of penitential money falls, ranging in amount from £1,000—the largest sum ever received—to 9d. in stamps, thus acknowledged in The Times: "Conscience-Money. — The Chancellor of the Exchequer acknowledges the receipt of 9d. 'undue overtime pay' from a 'Civil Servant.'"

Railway companies, although less fortunate than His Majesty's Government, occasionally receive goodly sums by way of a tardy tribute to honesty. Thus one company received, in consecutive weeks, as regularly as clockwork, a £100 note, accompanied by a 10s. postal order, for the expense of acknowledging the receipt. An anonymous letter which accompanied the first remittance explained that it was the writer's intention to restore £500, of which he had wrongfully defrauded the company, and which his conscience could not allow him to keep any longer.

WEARING LIZARDS.

Tiny Reptiles Are Popular Adornments in London Now.

According to the London Daily Mirror, the fashion, introduced some time ago, of using live lizards as women's adornments is growing rapidly in favor, and bids fair soon to become the "rage." Many English women now pay afternoon calls caressing wriggling green lizards, which have little gold or silver collars around their scaly necks. So popular has the reptile become that it threatens to depose the fluffy beauties of the Pomeranian and Pekinese world from their posts of honor.

A lizard has many qualifications as a pet. It can cling around and decorate its owner's neck; get itself tucked up under the collar of a coat; struggle under fluffy wraps and feather boas; be used as a li[illegible]nd elegant bracelet; carried with dignity in the hand, and shoved away in a bag should it happen to be temporarily in the way. And it has a further advantage—not that it is material—of being cheap; 60 cents will buy one, and eight meal worms a day—they cost 12 cents per [illegible] will satisfy its normal appetite.

"Scores of well-known ladies keep lizards as pets," says J. W. Seal recently. Mr Seal is an authority on the subject. He has a shop where he has sold hundreds of lizards to well-known persons. The fashion started last April. A lady artist had four blue Persian cats, but she wanted to add to the color scheme, and so she bought a few bright grass-green Dalmatian lizards, and now the blue cats and green lizards frisk about together on the floor of the lady's studio. Her friends were delighted with the idea, and the craze for lizards has become so popular that during the last two months I have sold hundreds.

"Dangerous? Not a bit. We tame them before selling them. We handle them over water—if they fall they don't hurt themselves—until they get accustomed to us and stop biting, and afterwards they never give any trouble.

"There are various kinds of lizards—the wall, green horned, Gallott's, great spotted eye lizard and the Dalmatian are the best. They are about twelve to eighteen inches long, and ladies carry them about while walking or motoring. As a rule a pet lizard has a tiny gold or silver collar around its neck, and attached to it is a chain, so there is no chance of the pet getting lost while out with its mistress.

"Lizards are no trouble to keep. You put them in a glass case when they are not being fondled, and all they require is a glass of water and a few meal worms. These worms—they are about an inch long—come from Germany, and from eight to ten form a complete meal. They like just a pinch of lettuce, but worms are their favorite dish. They need to be fed only once a day—in the evening.

"One of my customers has named her lizard Fritz. 'Fritz!' she calls, and the lizard goes to her and actually holds up its head to be fed.

"It's the same in my shop. All the lizards know when it is feeding time, and when I approach them with the worms they put up their heads and open their mouths. They won't touch dead worms.

"Properly cared for, a lizard will live for many years."

Insured Against Elopement.

They will take any risk at Lloyd's. It should be understood that this great corporation has nothing to do with it, but that the brokers issue the policies as individuals. Here are a few specimens of risks actually insured:

The uncle of a rich English heiress took out a policy for ten thousand guineas against her eloping with a certain man before a specified date. He paid a thousand guineas premium and the girl did not elope, so the broker was in a thousand guineas.

A young man sued by a girl for damages for breach of promise to marry paid eight hundred guineas for a policy covering any amount of money the jury might award to the plaintiff. It gave her seven hundred pounds, so the broker made more than a hundred pounds profit.

A tablegram [illegible] of a ship owner [illegible] that one of his steamers was on the rocks in a dangerous place. The owner took out a policy for £5,500, to be paid to him if the ship was lost. He paid for this a premium of £5,000. The ship was saved, so he lost the money.

John Homenuk, a Pole, died at Sudbury Hospital from injuries received in a collision at Pogma, on the C.P.R., sixty miles west of Sudbury, when a work train crashed into some flat cars.

Two ex-convicts, John Bergen and H. Blanchard, were sentenced to five years in Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate Brodie at Sudbury for highway robbery. They had only been out of prison a week.

An Employer's Liability Policy

MIGHT SAVE YOU HEAVY DAMAGES

While an accident may be due to an employee's own carelessness, still there's no certainty that the employer will not have to pay heavy damages. New legislation too is steadily increasing the responsibility of the employer. But an Employer's Liability Policy in the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would protect you against financial loss through injuries to an employee while on duty. The General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would deal justly with your employee too. It is noted for fairness and broadmindedness. It is one of the oldest and strongest Insurance Companies in the world. Do not delay to write for further particulars.

Injuries in the industrial world are frequent. In the building, metal and woodworking trades alone there were 294 people killed and 1,421 injured in Canada during 1910 and 1911. Our business is to relieve the employer of all financial responsibility resulting from accident.

WEDDING BELLS

GREEN—HUGHES.

Lindsay, Oct. 21.—The Cambridge street Methodist Church, Lindsay, was the scene of a charming and interesting wedding Saturday afternoon, October 19th, at two o'clock, when Roby Mary Caroline, daughter of Colonel, the Hon. and Mrs. Sam Hughes, was married to Mr. Byron Malcolm Green, of the Bank of Montreal, New York. The interesting ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. S. J. Shorey, pastor of the church in the presence of a couple of hundred invited guests. The entire affair was carried out on an elaborate scale and many of the foremost parliamentarians of the Dominion were in attendance. Throughout the entire ceremony, Mr. Cecil Carl Forsyth, organist and choirmaster of the church presided at the organ, playing numerous wedding airs, while previous to the ceremony, Mr. J. MacCormac Clarke, of Ottawa, sang Gaudier's "Song of Praise." The auditorium of the church was a picture with its pretty decorations of palms and white chrysanthemums with the numerous touches of white satin ribbon. The altar, before which the ceremony took place, was literally banked with palms and ferns. Precisely on time the bridal party entered the church, the organist playing the bridal march from Lohengrin. The charming young bride was escorted by her father, Colonel, the Hon. Sam Hughes Minister of Militia and Defence. She wore a magnificent Parisian gown of white satin draped with otherdress of ninon, heavily embroidered with pearls and crystals with cascades of exquisite shadow lace, caught with sprays of orange blossoms, and carrying a magnificent empire shower of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Aileen Hughes, sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor. She was wearing a peach-colored satin gown with flounces of white chantilly lace, and a large black hat with yellow roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Laura Hughes and Miss Mabel Sootheran, both wearing peach-colored satin with rich tunics of cream crepe de chine finished with flounces of black chantilly lace. They looked charming in large black hats with black and yellow plumes and carried yellow roses. During the signing of the register Mrs. Bertram R. McLean, of Lindsay, sang, "Because." The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful diamond and sapphire ring, and to the maids pearl and saphire brooches; to the ushers gold cuff links. The groom was assisted throughout by Mr. Boyd N. Sylvester, of New York, while the ushers were Mr. C. Ross Cameron, Mr Fred Holmes Hopkins, B.A., and Mr J. M. MacKinnon. Col. and Mrs. Hughes had an elaborate reception afterwards at their palatial residence, corner of Lindsay and Glenelg streets. Mrs. Hughes receiving in a beautiful gown of white satin with overdress of black chantilly lace with touches of yellow and rhinestone buckles, and wore a black hat with bird of paradise. She carried a large shower of yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. Smith, mother of the groom wore black satin with touches of pink and carried Killarney roses. The bride's going away gown was a French suit of sapphire velvet. She wore a very becoming black hat with large black osprey and ermine fureys. In the evening Colonel and Mrs. Hughes gave an enjoyable dance.

The gifts were exceedingly numerous and costly, including many from the nobility and prominent officials of England, as well as from prominent Canadians. A diamond pendant from Lord and Lady Brooks, of England; a gold watch bracelet, from Lord Dundonald, of England; a Turkish silver coffee boiler from three sergeants, Nos. 100, 101 and 111, "Civ" London, England, who served at South Africa. Among the prominent outside guests present were Capt. Armand Lavergne, Colonel and Mrs. Lyons Biggar, Colonel MacDonald, and others, of Ottawa; Sir William and Lady Mackenzie, Dr. and Mrs. Wallace Scott, Dr. James L. and Mrs. Hughes, Captain and Mrs. Porter Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Ross Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Taylor Winnipeg, and others. The happy couple left in the Minister's private car "Roleen" on their honeymoon trip.

DAVIDSON—McCRIMMON

St. Thomas Times—A pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. McCrimmon, Wellington street, at eleven o'clock Saturday morning, when their daughter Isabell, was united in marriage to Mr. Dickson Davidson, son of William Davidson of Peterborough, Ontario. The Rev. N. H. McGillivray officiated and Mr. Galloway played the wedding march.

The bride wore a blue tailored suit and black velvet hat, and carried a corsage bouquet of orchids and lily of the valley and was attended by Miss Clara Ellison, who wore a cream broadcloth gown and black picture hat and carried sunset roses. Don. McCrimmon was groomsman.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Davdison, Miss Davidson, Mrs. Walsh and the Misses Dickson, all of Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. Davidson left for the East and on their return will reside in Peterborough.

REV. T. J. MANSELL, OF CHARLOTTE STREET, GIVES HIS OPINIONS

During the course of a somewhat patriotic sermon last Sunday morning, Rev. T. J. Mansell, pastor of Charlotte street Methodist church referred to the naval support, which some of the British colonies extend to the Mother Country. It appears that some of the congregation must have objected to certain contentions of the pastor, or disliked the idea of the pastor introducing questions closely allied to the political side of Canada's life.

Yesterday morning he stated that remarks had reached him indirectly about these objections. His reply was that he preferred his congregation to come directly to him, with their remarks and explain wherein he had trespassed the rights of the pulpit. He did not anticipate that everything he said would please people. He also declared that he had not cast a vote in politics one way or the other. He firmly believed that Canada, however, should build ships for the British Empire.

Rev. Mr. Mansell also favored the total abolition of the bar.

PETITION ON POWER TO THE CITY COUNCIL

Is Signed by Manufacturers and Power Users of City.

The following letter and petition has been sent to the Mayor and Aldermen of the City Council, and will come up at this evening's meeting.—

Peterborough, Oct. 21, 1912.

To His Worship the Mayor and the City Council of Peterborough.

Gentlemen—Herewith I beg to enclose you a petition from almost all the manufacturers of Peterborough, who are deeply interested in the power situation. They are greatly interested in having power supplied at the cheapest possible cost and above all to know what that cost is going to be before any change takes place. These manufacturers pay from $100.00 to $7000.00 per annum for power, and their contention is not unreasonable that it be definitely known what their power is going to cost before any contract is entered into with anybody.

You will be good enough to note that all that the petitioners are asking for is that no contract be entered into without it being definitely made known exactly what their power is going to cost them.

Yours truly,

"G. W. HATTON."

To His Worship the Mayor and the City Council of Peterborough.

Sirs — We, the undersigned manufacturers and power users of this city respectfully represent to you as follows—

1. That inasmuch as we use and pay for electric power we submit that before any change takes place in existing conditions, we in common with the ratepayers of Peterborough should know definitely and precisely what our electric power in future is going to cost us.

2. That we should be placed in a position to know that the very cheapest power that is obtainable for our purposes is being obtained.

3. That the only way whereby you may know that you are furnishing us with the cheapest electric power obtainable, is by inviting competitive prices from the Seymour Power Company, the Hydro Electric Power Commission and from any other source that it is possible to obtain cheap power.

4. That the quantity of electric power that is to be supplied should be amply sufficient, not only for all the present requirements of electric power users and for mercantile and domestic lighting purposes, but that the source of an ample supply of electric power for future industries should be definitely and distinctly made known and agreed to by those who are to supply it.

5. That in view of the fact that the Canadian General Electric and the Quaker Oats Companies having their own power and in the matter of control and price have a decided advantage, other manufacturers who have to purchase power should be placed in a position to get it at the lowest cost no matter where or how it is procured.

Wherefore we respectfully urge upon you the importance of inviting the Seymour Power Company to furnish you with the best prices at which they will be prepared to sell electric power not only for present existing purposes but for future purposes as well, and that the Hydro Electric Power Commission should also be invited to make a tender to sell electric power on exactly the same terms and conditions that the Seymour Power Company are asked to do so.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir—The situation in Peterborough is the same as that in East Middlesex, Ont. The temperance people refuse to endorse either party candidate or either leader's policy, and so local option is to be crushed between two. This is a mistake and will be bad for the people all round. There is no use making a fool of a cause even if you don't want to endorse it.

REV. JOHN FEE RETURNS FROM WESTERN TRIP

Rev. John E. Fee, pastor of Bethany Tabernacle, returned on Saturday night from a six weeks' stay in Western Canada about four weeks of his visit being spent in Newdale, Manitoba. When seen to-day, he expressed himself as greatly pleased with his visit and with what he had seen of the prairie towns and cities. He spoke great praise for the cities of Edmonton, Calgary and Saskatoon, the three leading cities of the West. Asked about existing conditions he stated that Saskatoon is paying particular attention to building permanent roads, sidewalks, and constructing sewers and to erecting substantial business places and residences. He considered Saskatoon to be a much more compact and well laid out city than either Calgary and Edmonton although not so large.

In the city of Calgary Rev. Mr. Fee was able to speak to a congregation of Chinese in their native tongue. He also preached in Rivers. He visited Yorkton, a growing little town of several thousand, in Saskatchewan. During his four weeks in Newdale, he occupied the pulpit for his brother, Rev. S. McL. Fee, pastor of the Presbyterian church, while the latter was in Peterborough.

The weather in the West has been almost identical with atmospheric conditions in the East. There has been a wonderfully good harvest and the farmers are busily engaged with their threshing.

Rev. Mr. Fee, as might be expected met dozens of Peterborough people while on his trip.

He took the services at the Tabernacle yesterday.

The Disciples of Christ convention at Louisville, Ky., decided to meet next year in Toronto.

THE DE LAVAL CONCERN IN ITS HOME

The following letter which has been received by Mr. J. I. Allen, Superintendent of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, is of interest as it indicates what a valuable industry the De Laval factory will be to the city of Peterborough.

A handsome picture of the De Laval Separator Company of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., is on exhibition in Richard Hall & Son's store window.

The letter is as follows:

Ploughkeepsie, N.Y., Oct. 17th

Mr. J. I. Allen, 435 George St.,
Peterborough, Canada,

Dear Sir,—Referring to your letter of Oct. 14th, regarding the possibilities of the De Laval plant, which you say have decided to locate in Peterborough, would say that I certainly think that this would be a great proposition for your town, for it certainly has been for this city.

I understand that they are employing here now about 600 men and their buildings cover somewhere between six and ten acres, but I have no means of knowing what is the capitalization of the company. We have about thirty moulders and core makers employed on their work, and of course, a number of labor men who are employed on other work at the same time, but we only make a portion of their castings, in fact, do not think we make more than half. Only certain parts which are very exacting we are able to hold as some of the cheaper parts can be made elsewhere.

You ask what is our total production for the year, and while we would be glad to give you this information, we are not sure whether they would be pleased to have it known as to the amount of their production. Some firms of this nature would object most strenuously to have such information given out but we do not hesitate to say it is a growing concern and would be a great boost to your town.

I presume, of course, that this Canadian Company is entirely independent of the company here, although probably financed by the same capital.

Sincerely yours.
(Signed) O. I. NORRIS, V.P.

THE NEW CHURCH FOR CHARLOTTE ST. METHODISTS

Arrangements for the erection of a new Charlotte street Methodist church have been slightly altered. It has been decided to cancel all previous subscriptions and submit to the congregation at an early date plans for a new church to be erected on the site chosen on the [illegible] Co. property. With this site is a gift of $10,000 from Hon. Senator Cox. If the congregation find that they can go ahead with the church without financially crippling other givings to the church the construction of the new edifice will be proceeded with.

COMMITTEE TO WAIT ON THE CITY COUNCIL

To Ask that the Petition for Local Option Vote be not Demanded

A citizens committee will ask the City Council at the meeting to-night for its approval of the vote on local option being taken, without the petition as was necessary at the time of the first campaign and vote.

It is felt that in view of the large vote, three years ago, the Council should not demand the petition.

Citizens who are interested are asked to be present.

BULGARIANS QUIT WORK AND LEFT FOR THE WAR

Mr William Shepherdson, foreman of the lifting gang on the Canadian Northern Railway, now stationed at Bowmanville, spent Sunday with his family at 153 Hart Avenue. Mr. Shepherdson was at one time section foreman on the C. P. R. at this district, and is well known in local railway circles. He says that he had about sixty Bulgarians, working under him who have been leaving in relays to fight for their country until now they are all gone. This has temporarily stopped proceedings as it is very difficult to get labor.

Mr. Shepherdson also states that the C. P. R. are rushing their new line through with great rapidity, and parallel to the C. N. R. for some distance in places.

D. H. Coates was elected president of the Brant County Teachers' Association.

BULGARIAN ARMY PREPARES TO BESIEGE ADRIANOPLE

Governor of Threatened Turkish City Issues a Warning to the Residents and Recommends Those Able to Leave to Do So—Turks Are Luring Them On, According to One View of the Situation.

Constantinople, Oct. 22.—It was admitted here last night that Bulgarians are established about [illegible] miles from Adrianople and that a big battle is imminent. The governor of Adrianople has issued a proclamation warning the residents to husband their food owing to the possibility of an investment of the town. He recommends those able to leave to do so.

It is [illegible] that an important concentration of the Bulgarian forces has taken place at Koestendil, in the southeast of Bulgaria, the objective of which is doubtless the Struma Valley, which is the easiest road to the heart of Macedonia.

The Turkish Government to-day will issue a proclamation to the people of the European provinces in the shape of a reply to King Ferdinand's manifesto, enjoining the Moslems to good behavior and assuring the Christians that they have nothing to fear provided they remain loyal.

It is asserted that in the fighting around Elassona the Greeks lost 1,500 killed.

Wily Turks Luring Them On.

London, Oct. 22.—The war news is still the story of comparatively uninteresting small engagements involved in manoeuvring for position while the Turkish and Balkan forces are assembling and preparing for big events.

When the allied states declared war it may be assumed that Turkey had by no means concentrated her troops. Moreover, Turkey was still hoping to detach Greece from the confederation. Her failure to do this undoubtedly necessitated some change in the strategic plans and she still needed time to transport her troops to the required positions, hence the falling back of the small Turkish garrisons from numerous frontier posts is of no great significance. The Servian army is steadily advancing and now has its headquarters at [illegible] for the movement against Uskub. The Greeks have captured Disiti[illegible], from which position the Turks retired to the town of Servia, where a big battle is expected shortly.

According to a Constantinople report an important battle is imminent at Adrianople. Meanwhile the rival fleets are both active, the Greeks blockading the Island of Lemnos and the Turks bombarding Kavarna and Varna. The report of the sinking of a Bulgarian torpedo boat is discredited at Constantinople, where it is stated that the Turkish warships in the Black Sea fired at torpedo boats, but the latter took refuge in port, the warships not venturing to follow for fear of mines.

The Greek consul at [illegible], acting under instructions from his Government, is laying claim to all the Greek tonnage entering that port. Every vessel so commandeered becomes the property of the Greek Government, and the captain, an officer of the Greek navy. Ship owners have requested the British Foreign Office to protest against this procedure.

Turks Bombard Villages.

Sofia, Oct. 22.—After the bombardment of Kavarna one of the Turkish warships left in the direction of Baltchik. Four others cruised along the coast between Kavarna and Kalikoia bombarding the villages.

According to advices received late last evening Turkish warships also bombarded the barracks and monastery of Euxinograd, near Varna, which port they bombarded several days ago.

The Turks attempted a landing, but the two boats launched encountered a heavy fire from the Bulgarian soldiers and returned to the ships.

The Bulgarian Government has entered a protest against the bombardment of Kavarna as a violation of the principles of international law laid down by The Hague conference. The town is a trading port only and is not defended. No warning was given of the attack.

TURKS IN A PANIC

Special To The Review.

Athens, Oct. 22 — The Turkish army is fleeing in panic from Dhisikata, on its way to the Turkish town of Servis in the north, according to a semi official statement issued here to-day. The Turks are reported to have left behind millions of cartridges and to have dropped on retreat much of their clothing and most of their engineering implements.

ROBERT BARR IS NO MORE

Canadian Novelist Succumbed to Heart Failure

Special To The Review.

London, Oct. 22.—Robert Barr, the well-known Canadian novelist and editor of the Idler, died during the night of heart failure, at his residence Woldingham, Surrey, England. He was born in Scotland, but came to Canada with his parents when five years old, and settled at Wallacetown, Elgin County, where he received his early education.

ROOSEVELT OFF FOR OYSTER BAY

Special To The Review.

New York, Oct. 22—Col. Roosevelt and party arrived on the Pennsylvania Railway this morning, shortly after eight o'clock. He was resting quietly. The Colonel was up and fully dressed when the train pulled in and the car was quietly switched and sent on to Oyster Bay. The physicians handed out the statement that the Colonel stood the journey well.

ARTHUR A. ELLIS ON TRIAL; WILL PLEAD SELF-DEFENCE

Counsel Robinette, Appearing For Minden Man Indicates That Evidence Will Be Brought to Bear on the Case to Show That the Victim of the Shooting Had Threatened Ellis and Endangered His Life.

Lindsay, Oct. 22.—Inspector John Miller of the provincial police, and Edith Porter, natural child of the deceased wife of Arthur A. Ellis, accused of the murder of Lew Porter near the village of Minden in the night of April 25 last, will be the chief witnesses in the Ellis trial, which opens at the court house here to-day.

T. C. Robinette, K.C., of Toronto, counsel for the defence, expects these two to corroborate Ellis' story of self-defence by showing that Porter had threatened his life on the very night of the shooting and had threatened to burn his barns a year before. Mr. Robinette said yesterday that he was making every effort to have a subpoena served upon the inspector calling on him to attend at the trial and to produce a letter written by the girl to Ellis a year ago, in which she warned him that Porter had threatened to burn his buildings the first chance he got and also told of hearing him admit other outrages which he said he had already committed.

Mr. Robinette expects to prove by this girl that on the very night of the murder she heard Porter say, as he took his gun to leave his father's house, that he would stop Ellis talking to her if he had to shoot him, and that he expected to get him that night, as it was the third night he had been looking for him, and he would "have luck" that night.

This conversation is alleged to have taken place between Porter and his mother at his father's house just before he went upon his trip to visit his traps, from which he never returnew. The mother gave him his gun, but tried hard to persuade him not to go out that night.

A true bill was returned by the grand jury yesterday afternoon, putting Ellis upon his trial after they had spent three hours in hearing the evidence of Inspector Reburn of the provincial police and Constable Welch of Minden, the first law officers to hear Ellis' confession; Charles Wood, a farmer, who heard shots on the night of the murder; Wesley Hounsel, to whom Ellis told of the shooting on the night he killed Porter, but who kept his confidence, and Mrs. Ann Jane Tripp.

The crown have altogether twenty-two witnesses of whom the principal ones are those above named.

The defence will rely upon the prisoner's own story, in which he declares that he shot Porter in self-defence after Porter had fired twice upon him, and upon the evidence of the girl and Inspector Miller for corroboration of Ellis' story to show that there was grounds for his fear of Porter.

Ellis was arraigned after the grand jury had found the true bill against him. He pleaded not guilty in a firm voice, although his hands worked nervously. He was taken back to the little jail, which stands next the court house, where he had been closeted with Mr. Robinette, his counsel, for two hours during the afternoon.

The fathers of both the accused and of the dead man were in the court room during the sitting, as were a number of witnesses and spectators from the desolate "country in back," where the shooting was done.

Should Operate Cars.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—Controller Foster moved in the City Council yesterday that a memorial be presented to the Ontario Government, requesting that it consider legislation enabling the Government to build, equip, maintain and operate Hydro-electric railways between all localities in the province where that source of power exists and is under contemplation, and to provide for extensions which would be necessary from time to time. Also to consider the advisability of withholding the granting of charters to companies to establish and operate suburban lines until the matter has been fully discussed by the Government. The Board of Control will deal with the matter.

MAJOR STEPHENS HAS RESIGNED

Montreal, Oct. 22.—It was learned yesterday on positive authority that Major G. W. Stephens, chairman of the harbor commissioners, has tendered his resignation to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Hon. J. D. Hazen.

Interviewed, Major Stephens refused to make any statement whatever. "I have nothing to say for publication," he said.

The announcement of Major Stephens' resignation from the Montreal Harbor Board comes as a surprise to all who are interested in the Port of Montreal.

Should the resignation which Major Stephens is understood to have made be accepted, it is probable that it will take effect at practically the same time as those of Messrs. O. C. Ballantyne and L. E. Geoffrion.

RESIGNATION IS ACCEPTED

No Hint as to the Successor of Hon. F. D. Monk

Special To The Review.

Ottawa, Oct. 22— The resignation of Hon. F. D. Monk was formally accepted by the Governor General this morning. Hon. George H. Perley is acting as Administrator of the Department and no hint is yet given out as to a successor.

Killed Her Husband.

Sherbrooke, Que., Oct. 22—Word has been received here that Thomas Nadeau was shot and killed by his wife at Laconia, N.H. The parties were well-known in Sherbrooke, having lived here until a short time ago. They worried over money affairs, and the wife fired a revolver twice, the second shot taking effect. The wife made no attempt to escape, and stated that she did not regret her action. They have nine children, several of whom work here.

NO GRIT CANDIDATE APPEARS IN EITHER OF BYE-ELECTIONS

Berlin, Ont., Oct. 22.—Yesterday was nomination day in North Waterloo to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Lackner. There were four nominations, viz., Allan Huber, Independent; Charles H. Mills, Conservatives; James T. Uttley, suffrage reform; Matthew Wayman, Socialist. Huber is out as a supporter of Allan Studholme. Mills declares himself to be a Whitney Tory. Wayman represents the Socialist democratic party, and Uttley is the suffrage reform candidate.

Uttley's main plank is a larger franchise for manhood suffrage voters. He contends that the act should be so amended as to do away with the registration, leaving it to the assessors to put on the names from year to year. The collection of the poll tax would be the same as usual, and the young men of cities, towns and villages would be permitted to vote at municipal elections for municipal officers.

Two In Middlesex.

London, Ont., Oct. 22.—Returning Officer Rose of East Middlesex had two nominations before him at two o'clock.

The name of George W. Neely of Dorchester was presented by William Boler and Andrew McRae, and that of William Sutherland by John H. Elliott and James K. Little, well-known Liberals.

Hon. W. J. Hanna had been announced to address the meeting, but did not care to do so unless Mr. Rowell spoke. As a result only the candidates were heard from.

Premier To Go on Stump.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—Sir James Whitney and Hon. W. J. Hanna will go on the stump in support of George W. Neely, the Conservative candidate, for East Middlesex. The Premier and Mr. Hanna will speak to a mass meeting in Thorndale on Thursday night. The election takes place next Monday. Whether they will attend more than one meeting is indefinite.

N. W. Rowell, K.C., leader of the Opposition, will also campaign in East Middlesex, and will hold his first meeting in Ilderton to-night. On account of the friction between the Liberals and the temperance reformers over the selection of the Liberal candidate, Mr. Sutherland, the campaign will be a particularly warm one. Mr. Rowell, of course, will fight in support of his "abolish the bar" policy. Whether or not Sir James Whitney will reply to some of the remarks of the leader of the Opposition on his attitude toward temperance reform is uncertain.

BACK FROM THE GOLDEN WEST

THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT
Governor General of Canada

Their Royal Highness, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and the Princess Patricia of Connaught, accompanied by Miss Pelly and Miss Adam, the two ladies-in-waiting, Col H. C. Lowther, Major Rivers-Bulkeley, Major Worthington, Capt Buller A.D.C., and Capt. Long, A.D.C., passed through Peterborough yesterday afternoon at five o'clock, the special train making a short stop at the C. P. R. station.

The Duke stood on the rear platform of his private car, "York," with the Duchess, and answered the respectful salutes of a few citizens who were at the station, with a smile and a bow.

The vice-regal party has concluded a tour of the western cities. On their arrival in Ottawa the Mayor and Council and citizens of the capital welcomed the Governor General back to Ottawa. The Boy Scouts turned out as a royal escort.

Palma Trophy Date Unsuitable.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—The Dominion of Canada Rifle Association will probably protest to the United States National Rifle Association against the date set by the latter for next year's Palma trophy shoot, Sept. 2. The D.R.A. meet takes place in the last week of August each year. As the Canadian team is selected at the D.R.A., Sept. 2 is an impossible date if Canada is to be represented.

DEFENCE IS CONCLUDED

Lieutenant Becker Was Not Called to Give Evidence

Special To The Review.

New York, Oct. 22.—The Becker defence rested its case at noon today without calling Becker to the stand.

New York, Oct. 22.—What Sam Schepps told his friends in Hot Springs, Ark., about the murder of Herman Rosenthal was read into the record yesterday at the trial of Police Lieut. Charles Becker, who is charged with instigating the crime.

"I don't want you fellows to think we killed a man who was of any account," Schepps told Postmaster Johnson of Hot Springs, according to Mr. Johnson's testimony before the commission sent to Hot Springs to examine him and other persons. "That fellow Rosenthal is a dirty cur. He should have been killed. I don't want you fellows to think of me as a common murderer."

Mr. Johnson's testimony was read by John W. Hart, Becker's lawyer, with intent to support the contention that Schepps was one of four men who desired Rosenthal's death on his own account and conspired to kill him.

Thirteen witnesses, few of whom remained more than a few minutes on the stand, testified yesterday and brought the case swiftly towards its close. Indications at adjournment last night were that the defence would rest to-day without placing Becker on the stand, notwithstanding previous announcement by the accused policeman's lawyer that it had been decided to have him testify.

John F. McIntyre, Becker's chief counsel, said last night that he wanted, as witnesses, the four gunmen charged with shooting Rosenthal to death, but that the gunmen's counsel refused to allow them to testify. Mr. McIntyre said he had been disappointed also in procuring the testimony of Wm. Shapiro, the driver of the murder car.

Among yesterday's witnesses were five policemen, three of whom testified that the raid on Rosenthal's gambling house by Becker's strong arm squad last April, was not a "fake" raid as the state charges, but was made two days after they had produced evidence of gambling on the premises.

Two inmates of the Tombs prison, awaiting trial on charges of murder, were brought across the "Bridge of Sighs" to deny the testimony of J. D. Hallen, the convict who said he heard Becker tell Policeman White that the public would soon pay Becker a pension for killing "that — crook Rosenthal." Several character witnesses also took the stand.

Canadians Liberated by Taft.

Washington, Oct. 22.—As a reward for furnishing information to the Government regarding the smuggling of Chinese into the United States, President Taft yesterday commuted to expire at once the fourteen months' sentences of Loins Stoneburg and A. A. Ouelette, Canadians, convicted at Chicago, Dec. 23, 1911, of smuggling Chinese laborers.

THE DUKE GIVES IMPRESSIONS OF HIS CANADIAN TOUR

He Says There Are No More Loyal People In the Empire Than the Canadians and In His Travels He Heard No Hint of a Desire For Separation—People Are First and Politics Should Be Subservient.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—It was a two-fold message that his royal highness left with the members of the Canadian Club in the course of his brief and inspiring address yesterday afternoon. He urged Canadians who would loyally do their part toward achieving the greatest destiny for their country to emphasize the importance of education in developing the young citizenhood of the morrow, and to treat their political views as subservient to the advancement of their country and the prosperity of its people.

His royal highness was given an enthusiastic welcome. Referring to the long tour of the west which he has just completed, and which embraced the traveling of over 10,000 miles and the devotion of three months of time to the trip, his royal highness stated it had been full of deep interest to him. "I believe I have been able to gain some insight into many of the great questions affecting the Canadian people," he observed amid applause. He returned with the conviction that "there was no more loyal body of people in the British Empire than the Canadian people.

"Canada is a democratic country," he continued, "and she is none the worse for that. And I rejoice that while she is a democratic country she is none the less attached to the old traditions of the country from which so many of her people came." He had felt, as he traveled the vast distances of her territory and witnessed the development of her lands and the growth of her towns, that no adequate recognition could ever be meted out to the men who had been the means of inaugurating this wonderful development, the pathfinders of the great new west.

"One thing that struck me specially," added his royal highness, "is the importance of the education of the young. It is in the proper and sympathetic education of the young of the Dominion that the future of Canada lies." In the west he was inspired to find the great interest everywhere taken in educational work. The finest buildings were the school buildings, and the largest expenditures of money were for educational enterprises. This was as it should be, and he would urge in the strongest manner possible that this spirit be characteristic of the whole Canadian people.

"Another thing that struck me forcibly," proceeded the distinguished visitor, "is the strong and virile national sentiment which exists. So great is the interest of the people in the country generally that they are ready to make their political views subservient to the advancement of the country. Politics is a necessity in our system of government—a right necessity— but there are moments when politics must be made subservient to the good of the country and the prosperity of the people."

He had been told that in the west he might find a feeling among some in favor of separation. "I rejoice to say I did not find it in a single instance," he declared, amid applause. "From one end of Canada to the other, through the Maritime Provinces, the central portions and the west there breathes the same strong ideal of Canadian individuality; a Canadian people under the flag of Empire."

Many prominent persons were present, including Lord Milner and Sir Thomas Lipton.

BECKER CASE RE-OPENED

Judge Would Not Allow the Defence to Conclude

Waits for Roosevelt.

Princeton, N.J., Oct. 22.—Upon the news to-day of the effect on Col. Roosevelt of his trip from Chicago will depend largely Governor Woodrow Wilson's plans for the rest of the campaign. The Democratic nominee said last night that his speaking plans for the present were "up in the air." For Oct. 31 a big meeting is being planned at Madison Square Garden, New York, but the nominee said that he could not say yet whether he would attend. He will, however, on Nov. 2, review the parade in New York of college men supporting him.

The governor said his present intention was to do no more speaking until Col. Roosevelt recovered.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT

For most of the season thus far wheat prices have ruled higher at Winnipeg and other Western Canadian points than in Minneapolis and other corresponding United States markets. Not only this! English market letters indicate that for the next twelve months Winnipeg hard wheat prices will be as high as or higher than Minneapolis quotations. This is because the Western States have that grade of grain for export to Liverpool, there to compete with the shipments from our own Northwest. The Calgary Herald believes that our own markets will continue to rule higher than those south of the line. There is every prospect that with increased attention to scientific agriculture the wheat output of the Republic will continue to expand for years, and if so the case for reciprocity as a boon to the Canadian farmer disappears entirely.

The Herald calls attention to another unanswerable argument against reciprocity already noted in these columns. "Hard spring wheat, grown in the States abutting on our prairie country, came on the market a month before our Western farmers were ready to make delivery of new wheat. As the Canadian market had no old wheat suitable for flour milling, a heavy demand awaited the new wheat at our mills. If the duty had been off, as it would have been under reciprocity, there would have been a rush of the surplus new wheat of the northwestern States to the empty mills on the Canadian side of the border. Thus the home market would have been taken possession of by United States hard wheat before Canada's hard wheat was ready for cutting. Then our Western farmers would have had to look elsewhere for buyers. Thanks to the Canadian duty on wheat, Western farmers have not been deprived of their home markets, and Canadian flour manufacturers have to look for their raw material mainly to Canadian sources."

There is no getting around the fact. Even despite the duty Eastern Canadian mills bought a considerable quantity of early American wheat and oats before the Canadian grain was cut, threshed and ready for market. Had the reciprocity agreement been in force this season the Canadian agriculturist would have been robbed of a much greater proportion of his own profitable home market. A while ago Opposition journals argued that as soon as grain began to move in considerable volume, Winnipeg prices would fall below the Minneapolis quotations. This prediction has been falsified. The market reports have shown cash wheat ruling higher on our own chief Western market than across the border. As the Moose Jaw News puts it: "Wheat is pouring into Winnipeg in record-breaking volume, and still prices are quite as good, and, indeed, are a shade better, than in Minneapolis."

In the same paper we read: "The American farmer has full advantage of this so-called 'larger market,' and yet he receives to-day less for his grain than does his Canadian neighbor. The real 'larger market' is to be found in Liverpool, which, in reality, sets the grain prices for the world." In that dominant world market the Unionist party of Great Britain proposes to give us a tariff preference on our wheat and other farm products. The ratification of reciprocity would have rendered it impossible for the Canadian agriculturist to secure such an advantage over the American farmer, who is his chief competitor, both on this continent and in Europe. —Toronto News.

DEFECTIVE CHILDREN

Toronto, Hamilton and other of the larger cities are having special school classes formed for the backward children in the schools. In Toronto 21 classes of this nature are being established, but there is no regular provision for special technical training for the feeble-minded children.

Controller McCarthy, of Toronto, is calling a meeting of representatives of various Ontario municipalities to discuss the question of a training school for feeble-minded school children. If the meeting is held, Peterborough ought to be represented, since there may be cases in the local schools that ought to get the special treatment such an institute would afford. The establishment of a central training school is really the duty of the Ontario Department of Education, or of the Provincial Secretary's Department, which has under its care the Orillia idiot asylum, the industrial schools, the reformatories, and like institutions for the care of the defective young. If such a school were maintained by the province, and the municipalities from which the feeble-minded children hailed, charged with their keep, or a proper proportion of their keep, the public schools would be well rid of youngsters who are only a drag on the progress of the brighter pupils. It is not this phase of the matter which ought to get the attention, however, as that of the public duty to give special training and care to the unfortunates inherently inefficient, or incompetent. Some of them could never be trained into intelligence or usefulness, but if there are any on the borderland, who might be helped to some usefulness, there certainly ought to be the way ready. Medical inspection in the schools is of recent date, but it is bound to do a great deal to better the physical health of the coming generations.

THE NAVAL DILEMMA

When Premier Borden presents to parliament his proposal for an emergency contribution on the British navy, there will be a long discussion. Mr. Monk, who is resigning because he cannot support such a contribution without a previous referendum to the people, will be under the duty of explaining his position, and putting himself clear before the country. In view of his well known position on the matter Mr. Monk will probably be forced to introduce a resolution declaring against the emergency contribution. There will be a division in the House upon it, and then we will find out where the Liberals stand. These reflections are caused by the intimation in the Toronto Star, that the Liberals do not intend to offer opposition to the emergency contribution proposals. The intimation is very interesting as indicating that Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself, the much lauded past master of political strategy, will be put in a very nice hole. If he supports the emergency contribution, what of his Quebec friends and supporters? If he does not, how can his British supporters undertake to follow him in a refusal? We have no idea as to how the business will turn out, but evidently, the Liberals are going to have an interesting time trying to get around the question. It would be extremely regrettable if the naval question should develop racial antagonism. No one in Canada wants that, but British Canada will insist upon Canada helping the Mother and by more than a "tin pot" navy scheme. The French ought to see the good sense and patriotism in this. There is no doubt whatever that if the naval business had been presented to them properly in the first place, there would have been little heard of the cry "A bas la marine." Premier Borden has the support of practically the whole of Canada, perhaps outside of a section of Quebec, in his proposals for assisting the Motherland; and in his declaration that he would be the last to stir up racial prejudice in Canada. Sir Wilfrid Laurier certainly was steering carefully with knowledge of this. Parliament will meet on November 21, a month from now, but the first session will be comparatively short, the real business coming on after the Christmas recess. The resignation of Mr. Monk will give the first sitting, in which the naval business is discussed, somewaht of a piquant flavor, but the other two Ministers, Hon. Mr. Nantel and Hon. L. P. Pelletier, are sitting tight, and very little movement may be expected. The Pall Mall Gazette is quite right in saying that the proposal having caused so little commotion, Premier Borden has evidently succeeded in carrying most of Canada with him.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 21.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ended Oct. 19 were 2300 cattle, 2900 sheep and lambs, 2300 hogs and 725 calves. The supply on the market for sale this morning amounted to 1700 cattle, 1700 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 500 calves.

Altho the supply of cattle was somewhat larger than a week ago, there was no important change in the condition of the market, owing to the fact that the quality of the stock was better and the percentage of common and inferior smaller. The gathering of buyers was large, but owing to the milder weather the trade was not as active as it should have been, as buyers generally only bought sufficient cattle to fill actual wants. A few small lots of choice picked steers sold as high as $6.50, but the bulk of the trading in this class was done at $6 to $6.25, and full carloads changed hands at $5.75 to $6.15 per 100 pounds. Some small lots of choice cows and heifers sold at $5.75 to $6, and a few bulls at $4.50 per 100 pounds.

The tone of the market for lambs was stronger, and prices showed an advance of 25c per 100 pounds since this day week, on account of the continued good demand from packers and butchers for supplies and an active trade was done, with sales of Ontario stock at $6 to $6.25, and Quebec at $5.75 per 100 pounds. There was no change in the market for sheep, but prices were firm at $3.75 to $4 for ewes per 100 pounds.

The demand for calves was good, and sales of milk-fed stock were made at 6c to 7c per pound. Hogs were stronger, and prices 25c to 35c per 100 pounds higher than a week ago, owing to the upward tendency of values in the west and the smaller supplies coming forward. The demand was good. Selected sold as high as $9.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6 to $6.50; do., medium, $4.25 to $4.75; do., common, $3.50 to $4; canners, $2.50 to $3; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5 to $5.25; do., bulls, $3 to $4; milkers, choice, each, $80 to $90; do., common and medium, each, $60 to $70; springers, $55 to $65.

Sheep, ewes, $3.75 to $4; bucks and culls, $3.25 to $3.50. Lambs, $5.75 to $6.25.

Hogs, f.o.b., $9.

Calves, $3 to $10.

Hogs—Receipts, 23,000; market weak, 10c lower; light, $8.25 to $9; mixed, $8.40 to $9.10; heavy, $8.35 to $9.10; rough, $8.45 to $8.60; pigs, $4.75 to $7.60; bulk of sales, $8.30 to $9.

Sheep—Receipts, 52,000; market steady; native, $3.60 to $4.90; western, $3.85 to $4.70; yearlings, $4.75 to $5.90; lambs, native, $5.25 to $7.40; western, $5.50 to $7.40.

An Enthusiastic Yachtsman.

The Marquis of Ormonde is always to the fore at Cowes, and since the day when he succeeded the late King Edward as Commodore of the Royal Yacht Squadron some time before his Majesty's death, he has been a great power in yachting circles. Lord Ormonde is a practical sailor, and has "passed" for the skipper's certificate of the Board of Trade. He is a personal friend of the Kaiser, and is generally to be found at Kiel when yachting contests are taking place.

Lord Ormonde spent ten years in the First Life Guards. By his marriage with Lady Elizabeth Grosvenor, a daughter of the present Duke of Westminster's grandfather, he became united to one of the most powerful families in the country. He owns over 20,000 acres in Ireland, and spends most of his time on the paternal estates. Kilkenny Castle is a historic pile which recalls the feudal days. On many occasions it has been a storm centre, and subjected to attack.

Few families have passed through such vicissitudes as the Butlers. They stood by the Stuarts and were compelled to fly to the Continent when the royal house was deposed. But matters eventually straightened themselves out, and the present Marquis of Ormonde is enabled to live in placid ease.

CHAPTER XXIII.
CAPITULATION.

When Sheldon emerged from among the trees he found Joan waiting at the compound gate, and he could not fail to see that she was visibly gladdened at the sight of him.

"I can't tell you how glad I am to see you," was her greeting. "What's become of Tudor? That last flutter of the automatic wasn't nice to listen to. Was it you or Tudor?"

"So you know all about it," he answered coolly. "Well, it was Tudor, but he was doing it left handed. He's down with a hole in his shoulder." He looked at her keenly. "Disappointing, isn't it?" he drawled.

"How do you mean?"

"Why, that I didn't kill him."

"But I didn't want him killed just because he kissed me," she cried.

"Oh, he did kiss you," Sheldon retorted in evident surprise. "I thought you said he hurt your arm."

"One could call it a kiss, though it was only on the end of the nose." She laughed at the recollection. "But I paid him back for that myself. I boxed his face for him. And he did hurt my arm. It's black and blue. Look at it."

She pulled up the loose sleeve of her blouse, and he saw the bruised imprints of two fingers.

Just then a gang of blacks came out from among the trees, carrying the wounded man on a rough stretcher.

"Romantic, isn't it?" Sheldon sneered, following Joan's startled gaze. "And now I'll have to play surgeon and doctor him up. Funny, this twentieth century dueling. First you drill a hole in a man, and next you set about plugging the hole up."

They had stepped aside to let the stretcher pass, and Tudor, who had heard the remark, lifted himself up on the elbow of his sound arm and said with a defiant grin:

"If you'd got one of mine you'd have had to plug with a dinner plate."

"Oh, you wretch!" Joan cried. "You've been cutting your bullets."

"It was according to agreement," Tudor answered. "Everything went. We could have used dynamite if we wanted to."

"He's right," Sheldon assured her as they swung in behind. "Any weapon was permissible. I lay in the grass where he couldn't see me and bushwhacked him in truly noble fashion. That's what comes of having women on the plantation. And now it's antiseptics and drainage tubes, I suppose. It's a nasty mess, and I'll have to read up on it before I tackle the job."

"I don't see that it's my fault," she began. "I couldn't help it because he kissed me. I never dreamed he would attempt it."

"We didn't fight for that reason. But there isn't time to explain. If you'll get dressings and bandages ready I'll look up gunshot wounds and see what's to be done."

"Is he bleeding seriously?" she asked.

"No; the bullet seems to have missed the important arteries. But that would have been a pickle."

"Then there's no need to bother about reading up," Joan said. "And I'm just dying to hear what it was all about. The Apostle is lying becalmed inside the point, and her boats are out towing. She'll be at anchor in five minutes, and Dr. Welshmere is sure to be on board. So all we've got to do is to make Tudor comfortable. We'd better put him in your room under the mosquito netting and send a boat off to tell Dr. Welshmere to bring his instruments."

An hour afterward Dr. Welshmere left the patient comfortable and attended to and went down to the beach to go on board, promising to come back to dinner. Joan and Sheldon, standing on the veranda, watched him depart.

"I'll never have it in for the missionaries again since seeing them here in the Solomons," she said, seating herself in a steamer chair.

She looked at Sheldon and began to laugh.

"That's right," he said. "It's the way I feel, playing the fool and trying to murder a guest."

"But you haven't told me what it was all about."

"You," he answered shortly.

"Me? But you just said it wasn't."

"Oh, it wasn't the kiss." He walked over to the railing and leaned against it, facing her. "But it was about you all the same, and I may as well tell you. You remember, I warned you long ago what would happen when you wanted to become a partner in Berande. Well, all the beach is gossiping about it, and Tudor persisted in repeating the gossip to me. So you see it won't do for you to stay on here under present conditions. It would be better if you went away."

"But I don't want to go away," she objected with rueful countenance.

"A chaperon then"—

"No, nor a chaperon."

"But you surely don't expect me to go around shooting every slanderer in the Solomons that opens his mouth?" he demanded gloomily.

"No, nor that either," she answered with quick impulsiveness. "I'll tell you what we'll do. We'll get married and put a stop to it all—there!"

He looked at her in amazement and would have believed that she was making fun of him had it not been for the warm blood that suddenly suffused her cheeks.

"Do you mean that?" he asked unsteadily. "Why?"

"To put a stop to all the nasty gossip of the beach. That's a pretty good reason, isn't it?"

"No; it is worse than no reason at all. I don't care to marry you as a matter of expediency"—

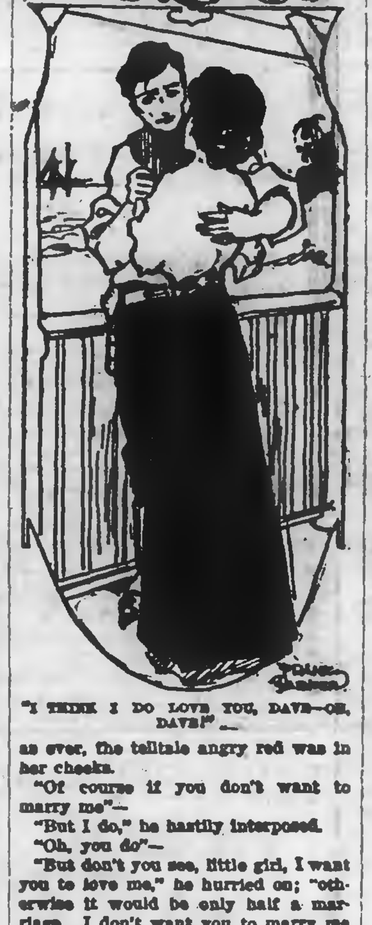
"You are the most ridiculous creature!" she broke in with a flash of her old time anger. "You talk love and marriage to me very much against my wish, and go mooning around over the plantation week after week because you can't have me, and look at me when you think I'm not noticing and when all the time I'm wondering when you had your last square meal because of the hungry look in your eyes, and make eyes at my revolver belt hanging on a nail, and fight duels about me, and all the rest—and—and now, when I say I'll marry you, you do yourself the honor of refusing me."

"You can't make me any more ridiculous than I feel," he answered, rubbing the lump on his forehead reflectively. "And if this is the accepted romantic program—a duel over a girl and the girl rushing into the arms of the winner—why, I shall not make a bigger ass of myself by going in for it."

"I thought you'd jump at it," she confessed, with a naivete he could not but question, for he thought he saw a roguish gleam in her eyes.

"My conception of love must differ from yours, then," he said. "I should want a woman to marry me for love of me and not out of romantic admiration because I was lucky enough to drill a hole in a man's shoulder with smokeless powder. I tell you I am disgusted with this adventure tomfoolery and rot. I don't like it. Tudor is a sample of the adventure kind—picking a quarrel with me and behaving like a monkey, insisting on fighting with me—'to the death,' he said. It was like a penny dreadful."

She was biting her lip, and, though her eyes were cool and level looking



"I THINK I DO LOVE YOU, DAVE—OH, DAVE!"

as ever, the telltale angry red was in her cheeks.

"Of course if you don't want to marry me"—

"But I do," he hastily interposed.

"Oh, you do"—

"But don't you see, little girl, I want you to love me," he hurried on; "otherwise it would be only half a marriage. I don't want you to marry me simply because by so doing a stop is put to the beach gossip, nor do I want you to marry me out of some foolish romantic notion. I shouldn't want you—that way."

SHOE TRUST CASE OVER.

Board Decides That Machinery Co. Is an Illegal Combine.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—That the United Shoe Machinery Co. is a combination in restraint of trade is the decision arrived at by the board apponted to deal with the first case of the kind brought under the Combines Act.

The matter has been under consideration for a long time, the preliminary stages being delayed by the company challenging the jurisdiction of the board.

Action was taken under the provisions of the act when Hon. Mackenzie King was Minister of Labor, and the enquiry has been steadily pressed since Hon. T. W. Crothers assumed charge of the Department. The decision that the company constitutes a combine within the meaning of the act was made by a number of Quebec shoe manufacturers, who complained that the company, which holds the patents on modern shoe machinery, had created an unlawful combination by refusing to sell the machinery, its policy being to lease it.

Mr. White, the representative of the United Machinery Co., has declined to sign the report of Judge Laurendeau and Mr. Walsh, being dissatisfied with the conclusions arrived at. Although the details of the report have not been received, the natural assumption is that the finding is against the company.

If that is the case, the company patents may be cancelled throughout Canada, and unless the company, which has its headquarters at Boston, restrains its operations in Canada in ten days, it is subject to a fine of $1,000 a day and to indictment.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

SANOL IS SAFE AND SURE

Points for Mothers

For Overanxious Mothers.

If overanxious young mothers only knew what to do first in the case of fevers and colds which attack their babies many and many a doctor's bill would be saved. With the high cost of living now confronting us, that is an item to be considered.

Children have fever very easily; consequently it has not as much significance as it has in the adult. But, nevertheless, even a slight fever caused by eating too much cake at supper must be watched or it may develop into a serious illness.

With the first signs of fever, the flushed cheeks, glittering eyes and hot, dry skin, it is usually safe to give a cathartic; then stop any solid food and give an alcohol friction bath in the following manner: Remove all clothing and wrap a clean dry sheet or lightweight blanket around the child.

Expose one small portion of the body at a time, beginning with the chest, and apply equal parts of alcohol and water with the hand or a piece of absorbent cotton. Rub the dampened skin briskly, but gently, with the hand until it is entirely dry. Do not dry with a towel. Moisten the skin again and rub dry the second time, and in this manner go over the whole body. Allow plenty of time for the skin to dry in the rubbing. This reduces the fever by the cooling effect of the rapid evaporation, and the friction brings the blood to the surface in health giving circulation.

Allow the child to drink plenty of water unless there is excessive vomiting. Cold water helps to reduce the fever and carry off the poisonous products within the body.

If the fever has not been controlled within twelve hours and the mother does not know what causes it, so that she may not cure it entirely, she should not take the responsibility of treating the child herself, but should send for the doctor, so he may have a chance to prevent serious trouble.

Fever always appears with a cold. The best way to treat colds is to prevent them. To do this the child must have fresh air every hour of the day in all seasons. Avoid exposure, direct drafts and wet feet.

Let it wear warm, sensible clothing, and give a cold sponge bath every day. Give only nourishing food, plenty of sleep and routine exercise.

Suggestions For a Child's Room.

There are many suggestions which are helpful in making the child's room the healthful, cheerful, aesthetic domain it should be. Above all things, it should be simply furnished and the color pleasing and restful. A splendid idea was carried out successfully in a child's room. At one end of this room a platform raised one step above the level of the floor and extending about six feet from the wall was thickly padded with a material that toned in with the wall covering. This padding also extended up on the wall for about four feet, thus protecting the child from all bumps and falls. Here he played all day, beyond the reach of drafts and out of harm's way, says Harden Thompson.

A few small rugs in front of the bed and chiffonier which covered the solid carpet were of the old fashioned kind woven from rags, soft in color and having fanciful figures, animals and quaint old houses woven into the border.

A charming screen, covered with the child's best loved prints, stood in one corner, behind which were placed those toys which were not in use or those which had done duty during the day.

The furniture, very simple in design, was enameled in white or gray paint, which can easily be renewed, and the curtains clung softly to the windows, reaching only to the sash, and were so arranged that they could be removed easily and washed often.

Pedagogically, it is better to have some few, good permanent pictures on the walls (a good head of George Washington, a beautiful Madonna, depicting the ideal mother love, and good reproductions of some of the masters) and others that can be replaced as the child's tastes change and as his interests deepen than to place permanent dadoes of Mother Goose pictures or unreal animals, poorly drawn, which he must look at day after day, whether he grows tired of them or not.

After all, the child's room is his kingdom. Here he works and plays, and he should find freedom and happiness, and, if the feeling of charm and peace prevails, then unconsciously he receives his first premonition of beauty of form and color and proportion.

Plea For the Children.

The indigestion of one's children is continually the concern of mothers. The best qualities of food and sterilized milk may form the diet, and yet there is trouble. Only too often the difficulty lies not with the diet, but with bad mental conditions, physical fatigue or chills. Mothers should never reprimand the children about table manners while at the table, but give instructions at some other time and let the children practice at each meal. While it is not good to pamper young tastes, nevertheless indigestion will result when a poor, unhappy child is commanded to swallow what it does not want.

Chinaman Is Arrested.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—Hum Quon, the most prominent Chinese merchant in Ottawa, and two years ago elected to represent the men of his race in Canada in the Chinese Imperial Assembly, was arrested here yesterday on a warrant from Montreal charging him with "forgery, uttering and conspiracy" in connection with the Montreal "tong" war.

He is alleged to have prepared and "planted" the "death contract" found by the Montreal police last week, so as to put suspicion for murder on the Chinese Freemasons.

Take Every Precaution

Eyestrain sometimes comes on so gradually that the individual does not realize his trouble until it has reached a serious stage.

In fact there are many effects of eyestrain that only a physician would trace to their true source.

The man who does a great deal of work with his eyes, should be on the watch for the first indications of strain, and do everything possible to prevent it from occurring.

Sometimes the eyes are in such an irritable condition that the wearing of the ordinary "flat" lenses produces great discomfort. Light is reflected from the rear surfaces of the lenses and the eyes are wearied by unconsciously trying to focus on these reflections.

Then when looking to either side the edges of such lenses annoy the eyes.

These irritations are avoided when you wear Toric Lenses. You are not taking every possible precaution against eyestrain if you do not get a pair of Torics.

All lenses ground on the premises

City Council Decides in Favor of Citizens Committee

VOTE WAS 6 TO 4

Mr. D. O'Connell Reviewed the Legislation Governing the Local Option Vote

The foregoing tells the story of the outcome of last night's Council meeting and indicates the attitude of the City Council on the proposition to submit a local option by-law to the ratepayers, without a petition.

PLENTY OF INTEREST

When the City Council proceedings commenced the council chamber was filled to capacity and all the aldermen were in their places. The appeal for a big turnout of citizens to support an application from the Temperance party to the Council for a by-law to be submitted at the municipal elections in favor of local option received a most liberal response. A goodly sprinkling of ladies were in the assemblage. It was moved by Ald. Morgan and Buller that the deputation be heard.

LOCAL OPTION IN FAVOR

Mr. H. B. Cowan, editor of Farm and Dairy, stated that the deputation desired to secure the consent of the Council to submit a by-law to the people without requiring them to go to the trouble of getting up a petition. He referred to the evident strong feeling that had existed in favor of local option as revealed by the way the vote went at the time of the last local option campaign. He felt that a large number of the ratepayers who had opposed it that time were ready to vote in favor of it this time. Mr. Cowan's remarks were warmly endorsed by the gathering.

COULD EASILY OBTAIN THE PETITION.

Mr. Harry Stabler also spoke, prefacing his remarks by a eulogy of the City Council for their excellent efforts in inducing the De Laval Company to come to the city. He hoped the ratepayers would turn out well on October 30th.

Referring to local option, he stated that he felt that not a councilman present thought for a moment that they could not get up a strong petition in favor of local option.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE CASE.

Mr Daniel O'Connell, representing the interests of the Anti-local option party, gave an eloquent and able address embodying the reasons why he considered the request of the deputation should not be granted.

"It is not a question as to whether you gentlemen of the Council shall say whether you will have local option" he commenced, "but it is to be decided whether you have power under the legislation to grant the request which is presented to you to-night."

Continuing, Mr O'Connell gave an exposition of his interpretation of the said legislation governing the submission of the by-law. He contended that it was the duty of the Council to decide and satisfy themselves that there was a wholesome desire on the part of the majority of the ratepayers to have the local option campaign inaugurated. The Council were not there to deal with one side of any question, but all parties must be considered. How could a correct understanding be reached by them unless a properly signed petition was presented? It made no difference what the individual members of the Council thought.

Regarding the liquor business in Peterborough, Mr. O'Connell stated that it was a legitimate business as far as the law was concerned and was properly sanctioned. The men engaged in it are ratepayers and have their money invested in the city, some of them nearly every dollar they possess. If their business is taken away from them they will have their only means of livelihood swept away.

"Is it fair or just to these men or fair in any sense for an application to be presented here, asking for the sanction of your Council in submitting a by-law without presenting with it a document certifying to the feeling of the people.

LOCAL OPTION AND THE INDUSTRIAL LIFE

Referring to the remark of Mr. Stabler, about bringing an industry to Peterborough, the speaker thought there was the possibility that local option might prove detrimental to the bringing of other industries; inasmuch as working men who find enjoyment in a glass after working hours, at an hotel, just as their wealthier brothers find pleasure in getting theirs in an elaborate club might be thereby deprived of it.

"If you pass local option here, you will also limit the already limited hotel accommodation and that possibility will seriously impair the industrial life of Peterborough.

Mr. O'Connell in conclusion again vigorously urged the Council to insist upon the presentation of a petition signed by 25 p.c. of the ratepayers.

NOT A MATTER OF SPECIAL FAVOR.

H. B. Cowan replying to Mr. O'Connell stated that the temperance deputation were not asking for special favors. Regarding the financially invested interests spoken of the deputation were thinking of the children of the city, and by no means wished to harm the financial interests of the hotel proprietors.

Mr Cowan repudiated the suggestion of Mr. O'Connell's, that local option might prove detrimental to new industries, by stating that some railroad companies discharge employees who are seen in hotels, or found tampering with liquor.

Ald. Johnston was the first man in the Council to "set the ball rolling" by siding with the deputation and supporting their requests. He found a sturdy backer in Alderman Morgan.

In seconding Ald. Morgan's resolution Ald. Anderson claimed full rights, under the Council legislation to comply with the application.

The resolution was then put to vote with the result as indicated in the commencement.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE NEW INDUSTRY IN PETERBORO

There has been general commendation of the City Council for securing the establishment in Peterborough of the Canadian plant of the De Laval Dairy Supply Company. We have been asking for and looking for new industries, and it is very satisfactory to have such a well-known and stable concern as this choose this city for its manufacturing and business headquarters. The people would have been pleased, and would still be pleased, to secure one or more small factories, especially in a line that had prospects for future growth but here is a concern that has a large established business that has ample capital to push its business and that will begin in a fairly large way. The building which it will erect at once is a large one, 112 feet by 400 feet. This is longer than from Brock street to Hunter street, and wider than from George street to Chambers street.

The expense to the city in securing the industry is reasonable. If its location here did not result in the erection of further tax paying property the cost would only be about 16 cents on each $1,000 of assessment. But the employes of the company will require houses to live in. As has been pointed out, if the company employs one hundred men—and if half of this number become householders in houses of an average of assessment of $1,500 each, the return in taxes from these new houses will be more than the whole cost to the city of securing the industry. The factory will be assessed for local improvement and school rates, and these will amount to more than the taxes at present received from the land used for this site.

It will be seen that the cost to the city treasury will really be small or nothing, and there will be all the incidental advantages of increased employment and increased business in the city. The banker the merchant and all the other business men will do more business and require more employes to enable them to do it which will mean further increased population and more taxpayers.

The line of manufacture the company is engaged in is one for which there is a steady demand and a demand that will increase. They have laid their plans to add to their facilities so as to increase their output, and instead of there being one hundred employes there will doubtless before long be many more than that number.

Property owners should not neglect to support the by-law on the 30th. It is well to feel pleased with the success of the Council, but it is necessary that the by-law should be carried, and, especially in view of the strict requirements of the law, all qualified ratepayers should not fail to cast their ballots for it.

PRICES OF POWER TO BE ASKED FOR

A largely signed petition from business men and manufacturers was presented to the City Council last night requesting that prices be received for supplying power from the Seymour Power Company in competition with quotations of the Hydro Electric.

The petition was received and will in all probability come up for discussion to-night, when representatives of the Seymour Power Company will be in consultation with the City Council in accordance with the invitation extended to them by the latter.

Ald Buller spoke in favor of the petition although quite confident that [illegible] prove to be the most satisfactory to all.

CEREAL COMPANY GETS THE LAND FROM THE CITY

Last night, Mr O'Connell was again heard by the Council in reference to the conveyance of a piece of land to the Peterborough Cereal Company. Since the last meeting, the C. P. R. Company have agreed to compensate the company for the land which they will require to divert Simcoe street south. A by-law thereby authorizing the conveyance of the said land passed its several readings.

TAG DAY

All persons interested are cordially invited to attend.

THE FIGHT FOR LOCAL OPTION

Another big local option campaign will be fought out at the time of the next ~~Municipal El~~ections in January, 1913. Voting is likely to take place in over 70 municipalities, comprising one city 16 towns, 20 villages and 34 townships.

For the most part, the contests are in Western Ontario, Huron leading with nine contests. Among the larger places to vote are Peterborough, Lindsay, Carleton Place, Clinton, Oshawa, Pembroke, Petrolea and Sarnia.

Most of these places have voted before, but in a considerable number the question is now before the electors for the first time. The striking feature of the fight, is the fewness of repeal contests. Last year of 178 places where repeal contests were possible, voting only took place in 19 and in none of these the attempt to repeal was successful.

This year there are 240 possible repeal contests, but it is not likely that in 10 per cent. of these, will the issue be brought before the electors. Repeal contests, however, will be brought on in a number of places. Among these being the towns of Galt, Orangeville and Strathroy.

The contest will likely be a hot one, and profiting by experience gained in former contests, the forces on either side will be better organized [illegible]

License reduction campaigns will also be fought out in Windsor and some other places.

From the Dominion Alliance office of Toronto, the following list of places has been handed out, where contests are definitely in progress. This list may be supplimented, as municipalities have up to November 1st to present petitions:

CANADIAN CLUB MEETING ON THURSDAY NIGHT

Attention is again called to the first meeting of the Canadian Club for the season, to be held on Thursday evening, the 24th inst., at 6.30 o'clock at the Y.M.C.A., when Mr. E. F. B. Johnston K.C., of Toronto will deliver an address on "Ontario."

A strong effort is being made to double the membership in the Club this season. Any British subject of good character is eligible for membership. The fee is $1.00 for the season with 50 cents additional for each dinner and address attended. A number of speakers of national reputation have signified their willingness to address the club, and dates for future meetings are now being arranged.

Intending members are asked to secure their tickets promptly so that the committee can have some idea of the necessary preparations to make.

It is the intention to call all meetings possible at 6.30 p.m., provided the speakers can reach the city on the afternoon trains. It is thought that this hour will prove more timely for dinner and also permit of other engagements being filled by the members, later in the evening after the address, if they so desire.

It is likewise true that Weyburn is entirely surrounded by, and is commercially supreme in that very rich and remarkably fertile territory comprising some five million acres. It is likewise true that each of the three great railroad corporations has selected Weyburn as a divisional centre—that Weyburn will, within two years from now, be one of the principal centres on the shortest line connecting the Atlantic and Pacific ports—that Weyburn will, by the end of this year, or early during 1913, have two international roads, transporting human freight from the United States to the great last West, a [illegible] of which no other centre, with the exception of Winnipeg, can boast. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has stated that Weyburn will be one of the most important points on its Western system—and with such promised activity it is logical to state that Weyburn real estate offers investors an opportunity for large profits enjoyed by but few other cities in the land of opportunities.

BODY OF ERNEST THORNTON FOUND IN WOODS ONLY SHORT DISTANCE FROM THE ROAD

The body of Ernest Thornton was found at three o'clock yesterday afternoon lying flat upon the back and with every indication that the unfortunate youth had become hopelessly lost and after wandering around in a small circle had dropped down and passed away from sheer exhaustion.

A young man named Ernest Windover was the first to come upon the sad discovery. The spot where the young man was found was three miles this side of Westlake's farm, about one hundred yards from the old Government Road and three hundred yards from the new Government high-way. Had the young man continued his way for one hundred yards further he would have come out on the road and been safe. He was lying within fifteen or sixteen feet of a lumber trail, and was not very far distant from the place where he had first struck off into the woods. All told he was just about three full days and three nights wandering around before death occurred.

REVOLVER WAS EMPTY.

He was wearing a white sweater and dark trousers and when found he was wearing no cap. His shot gun had also been dropped as it was not with him, and his revolver was found beside him with the five cartridges discharged. One gun cartridge was found in a pocket. No compass was found in his possession. It was evident that he had sank down from pure exhaustion and in such a state the exposure had proven to severe for a constitution that was not by any means rugged. That he had strove to satiate the pangs of hunger was indicated by dried stains on the corners of his mouth as if he gnawed pieces of grass and roots. The contention that searchers had been in communication with him at one time was borne out by the five empty shells the discharging of which in quick succession had been heard by the searching party. It is also thought that one of the scouring party passed within a few yards of the place at one time without discovering the presence of the lost youth.

MANY SEARCHERS.

Everybody in the neighborhood eagerly assisted in the search while a party from the local Sun Life office consisting of D. H. Moore, Alex. Weddell and George Elliott, went out to the scene by auto yesterday afternoon. They reached there just after the body was discovered.

The parents of the young man and his brother, Charles, went up to Westlake's on Sunday night and anxiously assisted in the search. Mrs. Thornton, his mother, was brought to Peterborough last night in the auto with the party from Mr. Hill's office. She is almost prostrated with grief.

Comstock's ambulance met the body at Buckhorn and reached Peterborough about 5.30 this morning.

PROMISING YOUNG MAN.

In the death of Mr. Thornton, the city loses one of its most estimable and industrious young men. He has been for the past six years a highly respected and a most valued member of the Sun Life Insurance staff, in the capacity of cashier.

He was an active member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church and was always engaged in the work of the Sunday School.

He was also a joint auditor of the books of the various societies connected with St. Andrew's church, and was in every sense a most worthy young man.

Surviving him besides his parents are two sisters, Mrs. Henry, of Peterborough, and Ada, nurse-in-training at Galt Hospital, and one brother, Charles, at home.

The funeral will proceed to Omemee Cemetery on Thursday morning at ten o'clock, Rev. James Rollins officiating.

SURPRISE FOR MR. T. H. ADAMS

Mr. T. H. Adams was pleasantly apprised to the warm regard in which he is held by his former employes, by being presented last week, with a serviceable walrus travelling bag, and a prayer and hymn book. Mr. Adams greatly appreciates the gifts and he feels that they will always remind him of the pleasant feelings which existed between his staff and himself.

Perkins Gives Lie to Senators.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Emphatic denials that a huge fund has been underwritten to finance the Roosevelt pre-convention campaign, or that any money had been contributed to the funds by the International Harvester Co. or the U. S. Steel Corporation, were entered yesterday by George W. Perkins, on the stand before the Senate campaign contributions committee.

The testimony of Mr. Perkins bristled with such remarks as "Unmitigated lies," "Absolutely false," "Totally unfair," and "Mere hot air." He denounced the charges made by Senator Penrose and by Charles D. Hilles, Republican national chairman, demanding that Senator Penrose be made to prove his assertion that $3,000,000 was underwritten for the Roosevelt campaign or "like a gentleman take it back," and declaring that Mr Hilles should prove his charge "or be dismissed from office."

HER FATHER'S TYPIST.

King George Dictates Private Correspondence to His Daughter.

Princess Mary, who is at present paying a visit with the Queen to the Dowager Grand Duchess of Mechlenburg-Strelitz, at Neu Strelitz, a pretty old-fashioned little town, some sixty miles from Berlin, is having her first taste of Continental life—part of the necessary arduous preparation for a throne.

For all the young members of the British Royal Family the upbringing is at all times of the most exacting character, but as the only daughter of the King, particular care has been taken that Princess Mary should be quipped as befits an English princess.

Queen Mary, knowing the responsibilities of queenship, is aware that the education of her daughter, who will probably one day fill a European throne, is too vital for any mistakes to be made, and in consequence Princess Mary's career has been mapped out with painstaking care.

Princess Mary began her schooling at the age of four together with her brothers in the royal schoolroom. This continued up till three years ago, when the question was discussed whether Princess Mary should go to boarding-school; but it was finally decided that it would be best for her to continue her studies at home under special tutors.

Like her brothers she has been brought up from infancy to speak French and German, and, in addition she has a very good knowledge of Latin, Greek and Italian. It would scarcely be imagined, however, that typewriting would enter into a royal curriculum. As a matter of fact, Princess Mary has had lessons on a machine, and is now an expert typist. This last little item of education was an idea of her own. She was very anxious to assist the Queen in attending to the huge batches of correspondence which reach the royal residences each day, and it is now said that not only the Queen, but King George also, dictates private letters for his daughter to type.

As everyone knows, Queen Mary is a great lover of home life, and in pursuance of this fondness has brought her daughter up to a practical knowledge of all domestic affairs, which are necessary for the proper personal control of a household. The young princess has been taught needlework, and is quite proficient in the art of cooking.

In addition, Princess Mary is a very fair all-round sportswoman, and, although angling is one of her favorite outdoor pastimes, she also follows the hounds and can handle a gun.

In short, although her royal highness is necessarily restricted in her actions, she is always very happy, and well fitted for the great part she is destined to play in years to come.

WORN GOLD COINS.

Lots of Them Circulate That Are Not Worth Their Face Value.

There are probably millions of dollars in gold coin circulating in the United States which are not worth their face value. This fact has been called to the attention of Lee McClung, treasurer of the United States, but the government has no desire or intention to recall the money in order that only gold of standard value may be in circulation. Should this gold be presented to the treasury or subtreasuries its owners would be the losers because of the wear caused by abrasion in circulation.

While the government does not require that gold coins shall be of standard weight to be redeemed at their face value, it has established what is known as a "limit of tolerance," which permits a loss in weight of one-half of 1 per cent. Below that limit the treasury makes a reduction at the rate of 4 cents per grain.

Lightweight gold, it is said, exists principally on the Pacific coast, where the greater bulk of the metal is in circulation. The financial interests of the west, the treasury has been advised, know two kinds of gold—treasury gold and bank gold. The former is full weight, while the latter is below the "limit of tolerance." The worn gold never reaches the treasury or the subtreasuries. According to reports here, it is passed from bank to bank and individual to individual, like a plugged coin, and in that way maintains its parity of value.—New York Post.

Denmark's Kings.

It is almost exactly four centuries since Denmark was ruled by a sovereign who did not bear the name of either Christian or Frederick. Since the accession in 1513 of Christian II., the "Nero of the North," who caused all the Swedish nobility to be massacred, with the results that Sweden separated from Denmark and that he was dethroned for his tyranny, dying in a dungeon a quarter of a century later, this alternation of names has obtained without exception, and Frederick VIII. is now succeeded by Christian X., while the little crown prince will carry on the tradition.

The Moving Roadway.

The New York public service commission has authorized the construction of a moving sidewalk subway in Thirty-fourth street from Third avenue to Ninth avenue, a distance of about a mile. The expectation is that the work can be completed in about twenty months. The plans contemplate three platforms, the first moving slowly, the second at double and the third at treble speed. A sidewalk such as this was first exhibited and operated at the World's fair in Chicago in 1893.

To Investigate Drowning.

Galt, Oct. 22.—After consultation with the crown attorney, Dr. Radford, coroner, decided to hold an inquest on the body of Peter, three-year-old son of Wm. T. Burrows, drowned in an old cistern on the premises of Wm. Barnes Sunday. Investigation shows the cistern is 14 feet deep, with [illegible] feet of stagnant water, the only covering being a piece of tin and two rotten boards. In the same yard is a well, 60 feet deep, with a decayed cover. The coroner believes an inquest will have the effect of removing these and similar death traps said to exist elsewhere throughout the town.

DECREASE IN LABOR DESPUTES

Some Interesting Facts From the Department of Labor

An improvement is shown in labor conditions in regard to disturbances through industrial disputes during September. The Department of Labor records the fact that there were 21 as compared with the previous month though an increase is still maintained over the corresponding month of last year. Ten disputes in all commenced during September the most important of which were those of coal miners on Vancouver Island and carpenters at Moosejaw. The former involved a cessation of work on the part of about 3 000 miners employed in the Cumberland and Ladysmith coal mines and was not terminated at the end of September. That of carpenters at Moosejaw affected 450 workers but was not of long duration. About 5 000 employes were thrown out of work by disputes in existence during September.

PRICES STILL GOING DOWNWARD

The Department of Labor's index number of Wholesale Prices continued to decline during September standing at 132.5 as compared with 133.4 in August and 128 in September of last year. These numbers show a comparison of prices prevailing at the present time with the average prices during the ten years 1890-1899 some 255 articles being considered in the estimate. The downward movement during September was due chiefly to declines in the price of fresh vegetables especially potatoes; while there were slight increases in several commodities notably dairy products, fish, iron boots and shoes anthracite coal and miscellaneous building materials. In regard to retail prices the chief feature of the month was a rise in price of anthracite coal in many cities of Eastern Canada.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS

According to the record of industrial accidents maintained by the Department of of Labor, that for the month of September shows there to have been 89 workmen killed and 419 injured a total of 508. Compared with the record for August, this is an incrase of one fatal and 114 non fatal. The trades and industries in which the greatest number of accidents occurred were: Steam Railway Service, in which there were 28 fatal and 123 non-fatal; metal trades with 3 killed and 72 injured; mining with 10 killed and 42 injured; and the building trades with 10 killed and 33 injured.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY NOTES

Old 60 pound rails are being removed at present by the Grand Trunk Railway from its line between Orillia and Midland and 9[illegible] pound rails have already been laid in their place from the former point to Waubaushene. It is intended also to lay these heavier rails between Orillia and Midland.

The old belt line around Toronto from the Don River, Davenport, which has been grass grown for 12 years and more, is to be renewed and put into full operation by the Grand Trunk Railway so as to stimulate factory development on the outskirts of the Queen City. Work has been started on the section between the Don and Yonge street where the right of way is swarming with activity.

Work is being started by the Grand Trunk on the practical reconstruction of its bridge over the Grand River at Brantford at a cost of about $40,000. A new span of 76 feet 6 inches will be added to the western end of the present structure while the eastern end will be lengthened by 15 feet. The western abutment will be converted into a river pier by being encased in two and a half feet of concrete. The work will probably occupy the entire winter but an effort will be made to complete it before the river breaks up in the Spring. This improvement, together with the raising of the dyke at West Brantford and the construction of a concrete abutment by the Township Council on the river road should greatly lessen the risk of floods after the Spring breaks up.

The latest member of the British nobility to acquire large land holdings in western Canada, according to a London despatch is Lord Joicy, a millionaire and the owner of many collieries who has purchased 24,800 acres of farm land near Fort George B.C., on the Grand Trunk Pacific, for which he paid nearly $450,000. It is reported that he intends to embark upon a colonization scheme; sending people from his English estates to settle in British Columbia. It is also understood that he intends to make a tour through Canada in the near future when he will visit Fort George to inspect his property. Lord Joicy is a self-made man. He began life on the Newcastle wharf side as an office boy, but had accumulated a fortune before reaching the age of 30. He took over the management of the Lambton coal mines in Durham from Lord Durham and made another huge fortune out of the result of the transaction. He [illegible] the owner of several fine estates in Northumberland and is noted for many charitable acts.

Kuntz's ORIGINAL LAGER

It's More Refreshing

"Did you ever notice how much more refreshing Kuntz's Original Lager is than ordinary lagers?" remarked a man to a friend, as they were enjoying a bottle the other day. "Yes," replied his friend, who, by the way, was a physician, "and the reason is because Kuntz's Original Lager is brewed from naturally pure spring water, instead of ordinary or city waters which require to be artificially or chemically purified."

Let your next bottle be Kuntz's Original Lager. See how much more enjoyable and refreshing is this famous spring-water lager. 66

An Athletic Girl

And What She Achieved

By HELEN JENNINGS

Johnny Perkins and I were born in adjacent houses, only Johnny was born a year before me. Johnny had no boys to play with, and there were no girls living near me. The consequence was that we began to play together as soon as we were old enough to be playmates and kept it up till we were past ten years old. Johnny's mother was content to have him in my company. She said that when he played with boys they abused him, tore his clothes, robbed him of his playthings—in short, treated him with all uncharitableness. They induced him to climb trees, get into the mud and say bad words. I, being a girl, and rather a delicately organized girl at that, didn't tyrannize over him or otherwise injure him. I certainly didn't induce him to climb trees.

When Johnny was eleven years old his father got rich, and the family went to live in a big house, and I didn't see anything of him after that until he was twenty years old.

Meanwhile I had been growing more and more delicate, and the doctor, when I was sixteen, recommended little or no school and athletics. The consequence of this was that I grew robust and from a "little angel," as I was called, had become a sportswoman. I played tennis, golf and other out of door games and had become quite a horsewoman. Johnny, on the contrary, had been going downhill in this respect, just as I had been going uphill. When his father made money and Johnny was taken away from me his mother hired a nurse for him. It seemed the only way for her to keep him from tearing and soiling the beautiful clothes he was obliged to wear. His nurse watched him like a cat. If he got into a swing she would order him out. If he rolled in the grass she would pick him up, set him on his feet and ask him what he meant by getting the green on his white knickerbockers. The result of all this was that when Johnny reached the age of twenty he didn't know how to swim, he couldn't pull an oar, he had never ridden on a sled or glided on a pair of skates.

I overheard a lady who had known him since he was a baby say to my mother: "Johnny played too much with your daughter, Kate, when he was a little fellow, and when he was parted from her he fell into the hands of a nurse. That's what's the matter with Johnny, poor boy; he couldn't help it. He's been educated so and will remain so."

I had been very fond of my little playmate, and now that I had been changed from a fragile girl to a sportswoman I felt awfully sorry for the boy. Johnny had been handicapped. What I didn't like especially was the influence I had had on him in the beginning. I blamed myself for his condition, for, I argued, if he hadn't played with me when he was a little chap his mother couldn't afterward have tied him down to a nurse.

When I was nineteen I went to visit at the Perkinses. When I saw Johnny I wanted to cry. A more helpless man I never saw. He had never mingled with any except swells, and none but the most effeminate swells would have him around. I couldn't believe that he was the dear, honest, sympathetic, self sacrificing boy I had been so fond of and had remembered as my dear little playmate.

"Well," I said to myself, "I'll get some of that out of him if I have to kill him."

I had been invited to spend a week at the Perkins country home, and I determined to make the most of that week. Pocketing my repugnance to Johnny's effeminacy, I ran up to him with outstretched hands, taking both his in mine, and said:

"Oh, John; I'm jolly glad to see you again, old fellow. I've been eager for it ever since I received your mother's invitation. We'll have a hot time while I'm here. We'll just make things hum."

He looked at me in a half frightened way and said he was "vewy much pleased to meet me again." He "remembewed our childhood days vewy well." He seemed to be a bit taken back by my exuberance and especially my slang, which, by the bye, I adopted for the occasion.

"Have we time for a ride before dinner?" I asked. "We can talk over old times together in a canter."

"Oh, yes. I'll tell James to bring round the auto, or would you pwefer to go in the box wagon? James usually dwives me in the wagon."

"Neither. I'll go on horseback."

"Horseback! I don't know how to wide a horse."

"You'll have to learn if you ride with me. Come; order a horse for yourself and one for me."

A pained expression passed over his face. From force of habit he looked at his mother, who said that John had not learned to ride. She had intended to have him take riding lessons, but had never been in a position to do so. I must excuse him.

"I'll be his riding master," I said. "Come, Johnny; let's have a canter."

I had purposely brought matters to a crisis. If John was a natural milksop he would obey his mother, who attempted to command him by a frown. If he was a man he would stand by me, whether he knew how to ride or not. There was a brief struggle within him, and I won. He went out to the stable to select the horses and give his instructions. I ran upstairs, donned my riding clothes, and when I came down John appeared in an immaculate riding suit—he had never worn it before—and, going out to the porte-cochere, we mounted and rode away.

John had provided himself with a horse that could not be driven out of a walk, and even then the poor fellow had a hard time to keep his balance. But I had made a beginning and made up my mind that before I had got through with him he should be jumping logs and ditches. I was tempted to prick the animal he rode with a pin and get my pupil dumped on the turf, but I didn't wish to try too much at once, so I refrained. I gave him a short lesson of an hour, then permitted him to return to the house, take a bath and put on his evening clothes before dinner. He was quite exhausted, but seemed to be very proud of having ridden a horse.

It required only this much to convince me that John was a man, like other men. He had been deprived of the elements of development. How can a plant thrive without sunlight? My old playmate had grown to manhood in obedience to a natural law. He was like a boy who had been taught to swim by reading swimming instructions from a book. In other words, he had not learned at all.

The next morning I came down to breakfast in a tennis suit, John in immaculate morning costume.

"Go straight upstairs," I said to him, "and come back in your shirt and trousers. Do you suppose you're going to entertain me sitting on the piazza? Not on your life! You'll play tennis."

He gave a sickly smile, marched upstairs, came back in sporting costume, and after breakfast we went out to the court. He played the game, though he had begun too late to make much of a hand at it. When we had played one set he was tired, but I kept him at it till an hour before luncheon, and he went in to the tub reeking with perspiration.

At the end of the week a great change had come over John. He had got some of the "soft" out of him and had entered upon a new career. I had been a link for him between his mother and freedom. Before the week expired he had declared his independence and developed a natural taste for athletic sports. He was like a plant brought from a cellar and placed in the shower and sunshine of an April day. He wouldn't hear of my leaving. I must stay on indefinitely, as long as I would.

His mother needed some one to take him from her influence as much as he. She had followed a habit and was not sorry when she saw that I was trying to undo what she had done, for there is no mother who does not wish to see her son manly, even though she be the cause of his effeminacy.

I remained at the Perkinses for a month and even then found it hard to get away. I had nearly killed Johnny, but he said "he liked it." His mother didn't approve of that part of it and asked me if a taste for athletics necessarily involved breaking persons' necks. I replied that an occasional neck was necessarily broken in athletics, as well as in other less strenuous pursuits.

A year passed, during which I was constantly spending short or long terms at the Perkinses. Athletics were to Johnny like a new toy to a child. In the winter he learned to skate and in the summer to swim. He was greatly handicapped on account of learning those accomplishments late in life and had he not had a strong natural taste for them would not have learned them at all. As it was, he became fairly proficient in them.

I was repaid for all my trouble—if it can be called such—by John himself. Among other sports, I was fond of canoeing. It seems to me the most dangerous of all outdoor sports, even for those who can swim—that is, if they go too far from land. One day Johnny and I were paddling in a canoe on a bay of the Atlantic ocean. We ventured too far out and were caught in a squall. We saw it coming and death in it. In John the nature of a strong man triumphed over the disadvantages he had so long endured. He became the anchor, I the clinger. He ordered me to lie down in the bottom of the boat in order to preserve its equilibrium, while he crouched as low as possible and still worked a paddle. Watching the wind coming over the water, he kept the canoe in a position to be struck on the stern instead of on the side.

We plunged on the crests of the waves for awhile, but no strength or skill could keep us straight before them. The canoe turned, and the next wave that struck us keeled it over. Both swam for the boat, which floated bottom up, and caught it.

There is a good deal in this story about what I did for John and very little about what John did for me, and yet what he did for me, though concentrated within half an hour, was worth many times my efforts in his behalf.

The wind howled; the rain poured down on and about us, obscuring the land. The waves dashed themselves against us as if determined to drive us from our frail support. And during this time John was holding me in my perilous position, both of us clinging to the canoe. Then when it was all over and boats came to our assistance they took me aboard unconscious.

I had saved John from a life of effeminacy, and he had saved me from death. I found him as necessary to me as I had been to him, and we have never parted.

Generous.

A farmer of Elgin County, Ont., died recently at over ninety years of age.

His will, which was made many years ago and before the death of his wife, provided that if he predeceased her she was to be given an annual income of $500. In case she married again the amount was to be increased to $1,000, as it cost more for two to live than one.

A Big Contract.

Mr. Gordon Selfridge, the London departmental store proprietor, tells the story of a lady who seemed to want a lot for her money. She rushed excitedly into the ironmongery department, "Give me a mouse-trap!" she exclaimed. "Quickly, please, because I want to catch a train!"

Rub Well With Zam-Buk

For bad colds on the chest, rub the chest and between the shoulders well with Zam-Buk at night.

If your suffer from catarrh or cold in the head, just insert a little Zam-Buk at the base of the nostril, and as the balm becomes warm inhale the healing essences which vaporize.

Mrs. N. S. Babcock, of Matawachan, Ont., says: "For a long time I had a very disagreeable sore on the inside of the nostrils, which gave me great pain and caused much annoyance. I feared it would turn to cancer, and all I tried proved unavailing. I was ordered to try Zam-Buk, and I am glad to say that the sore that had defied all other remedies was overcome by one box of Zam-Buk and is now quite healed.

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bites, ulcers, eczema, blood-poison piles, cuts, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores, 50c. box or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Try Zam-Buk Soap. 25c. tablet!

Motor Cyclist's Narrow Escape.

Galt, Oct. 22.—Charles Fairbanks and a girl friend were motor cycling in Jackson Park, when the machine got beyond control and plunged ahead towards a gravel pit 20 feet deep. The riders hastily jumped and only just in time before the machine and chair shot into the pit.

The machine is a wreck and the girl suffered severe nervous shock.

ONE DUKE'S TROUBLES

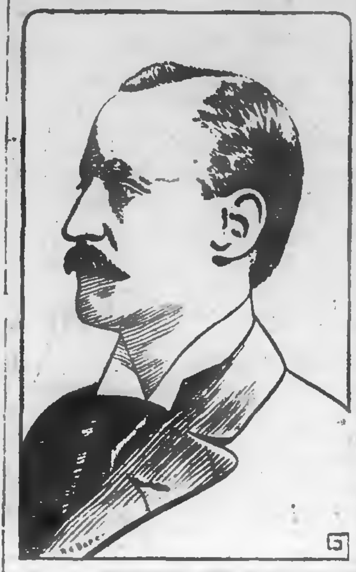
MARLBOROUGH AND WIFE ARE STEADILY DRIFTING APART.

Affairs of One of Britain's Richest Peers Are a Matter of Common Discussion Across the Water, and It Is Said That Reconciliation Is Far-off—His Grace May Plunge Into Politics.

The Duke of Marlborough's active participation in the political game lately is the precursor, say the prophets, of a growing absorption in public affairs.

Meanwhile, the duke and his wife have been drifting further and further apart. Instead of the reconciliation which friends, as well as lawyers, were endeavoring to bring about at the time of King George's coronation, there is now a feeling in English society circles that the breach is to be a lasting one.

Hitherto the duke has had access to the children, under conditions, but as they grow older they appear to care less for his society. There is no suggestion that the Duchess of Marlborough has any intention of breaking through or evading the terms of the agreement, but the duke feels some irritation that the children should prefer to see their mother than to visit him.



DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH.

On the other hand, it is known that the duchess was opposed to the holding of a huge Conservative feast at Blenheim at a moment when there was much very serious privation in dockland owing to the recent strike. Although she does not now visit or use the historic mansion in any way, as some of her money was sunk in maintaining it she would like still to have a voice as to the uses to which the place is put.

Parliament to Open Nov. 21.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—The announcement in a special issue of The Canada Gazette yesterday that the Dominion Parliament will be opened on Nov. 21 was merely of interest as an official pronouncement, since the date was partially assured several days ago.

Parliament will this year meet four days later than last year, and later than even before for an autumn session.

Tied Garter Around Shattered Arm.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 22.—Fourteen-year-old Joseph Winterton, Chippewa, is lying at the General Hospital in a serious condition as the result of his rifle exploding when hunting near his home. After his left arm was shot away, the boy attempted to stop the flow of blood by tying his garter around the stump.

HAPPY THOUGHT

Why Bread is Better Baked in Some Ranges Than in Others

It is all a matter of the way the heat gets into the oven.

Some stoves have ovens that heat easily and quickly and remain very hot.

Others have ovens that require a wasteful amount of fire in the fire-box before baking heat is reached.

These are the two extremes. For some things each type has advantages. But for all your requirements neither is really satisfactory.

"Happy Thought" Ranges give you the heat in the oven that exactly corresponds with the fire in the firebox.

So a little fire means a light heat and a big fire means a perfect hot-blast in the oven.

In baking bread, this feature enables you to secure the benefit of every ounce of heat—to make every lump of coal pay for itself—to continue the heat steadily for as long as you wish in order to have the bread baked uniformly all the way through.

More than a Quarter Million Canadian women use the "Happy Thought" every day.

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

MR. H. CLARKE IN BUSINESS AGAIN

Takes Over Premises and Stock of Mr. E. Wasson

The jewelery business formerly carried on by Mr. Ernie Wasson has changed hands, the new proprietor being Mr. Harry Clarke, who has twelve years of thorough experience to back up his enterprise. He is therefore perfectly qualified to make the venture a success from the outset. He is a son of F. A. Clarke, who recently disposed of his jewelery business to Mr. W. B. Warne, and he requires no introduction in Peterborough, having always been prominently identified with various activities, particularly baseball and other sports.

Mr. Clarke has taken over all the stock of the former proprietor but will in addition increase the latter greatly and equip the store in the most modern style. He assumed possession of the lease of the store and the stock on October 21st. The store will be closed all this week and will be thrown open for business on Saturday, Oct. 26th.

CLOSING DATES OF THE LIFT LOCKS

The Peterborough Lift Lock will be closed to navigation on November 6th, the same date as it closed last year. The Kirkfield Lift Lock will close to-morrow, Oct. 23rd, which is eight days later than the closing last year.

"Bunty," in "Bunty Pulls the Strings," which comes to The Grand next Saturday, Oct. 26, matinee and evening. Same cast and production as seen here last season.

"BUNTY PULLS THE STRINGS" COMING

It is impossible not to like Graham Moffat's beautiful play, "Bunty Pulls the Strings," which made so excellent an impression here last season, and which comes again to the Grand on Saturday next, Oct. 26. Certainly nobody wants to dislike it, but one cannot but ask himself wherein is the charm that makes this unartificial play so attractive. In what does it consist? No matter how often the sophisticated theatregoer tries to get away from the inevitable answer, back it comes to the one simple word explaining it all—nature. Really and truly nature. The characters [illegible] play." they do not "act."—they are. Sentiments as old as time may be uttered by them but the attention, the interest never flags from the rising of the curtain to the fall thereof. It is as much a gift, as great as boasted "histrionic power" to be able to create such interest for the commonplace. But there they are. Is it "commonplace" to be "real" and just like other folks, with honest, loving, sweet-tempered hearts?

NORDICA

Mme Nordica has come and gone but the memory of that beautiful voice will long remain with the audience of the Grand Opera House last night.

The visit of the popular prima-donna was an opportunity for the citizens of Peterboro, and in accepting the same, they enjoyed a program such as is given in the larger cities, and has won the approval of the most critical audiences.

Mme. Nordica won her audience completely, the moment she appeared before their gaze, with her charming smile and contributed her first number. She sang in English French and German. In her interpretation by foreign languages, her wonderful expression conveyed the meaning of her song, and the great diva was called upon for encores time and again.

Rummel, the noted violinist, who assisted Mme. Nordica, displayed a wonderful ability. Into the music he would impart a feeling of sadness and pathos or when happy, dance music was played one could imagine the stage filled with joyous dancers.

The accompaniments on the piano by Romayne Simmons and Mable Krog-Frummel were beautifully executed.

The piano on which the artists were accompanied was a fine Mason & Rische, for which the Peterborough Music Co., are the local agents.

TAKING HOLD OF THE REINS

Yesterday noon, Mr. J. Skinner came in and took hold of matters at the C. P. R. city office, coming from Owen Sound where he has been in charge for the last fourteen years. He will be a worthy successor to Mr. McIlroy, and the C. P. R. interests are thus in good hands.

Mrs. Skinner and family will join Mr. Skinner as soon as arrangements can be made to that effect.

ANOTHER RECORD AT HAMILTON

Department Store Inserts 56 Column ad

Advertising managers throughout Canada were somewhat surprised about a year ago, when it was announced that a United States merchandising concern had made a contract with the Hamilton Daily Herald calling for the issuing of $50,000 worth of space in that journal within three years, for its Hamilton store—Thos. C. Watkins' Right House.

On Saturday the same concern made another Canadian record by inserting a 56-column (seven pages of eight full columns) advertisement in the Herald and Spectator of Hamilton. Identically the same matter appeared in each paper, although one paper claims to cover "almost the entire city and district," and alleges to have 50 per cent. more circulation than its competitor."

A copy of this record ad. will be on exhibition at the next meeting of the Peterborough Ad. Club.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Recently credit has been given Mr. Burnham, M.P., for having been instrumental in having more letter boxes placed on the streets. I say all hail, "honor to whom honor is due." Paul. I would like to ask who has the placing of these mail boxes and why are they placed in bunches, while some districts have none? An inquiring mind is apt to ask are they there for ornament, for the convenience of the collector, or for the accommodation of the public? You can stand on the corner of Simcoe and Aylmer streets, and within one block each way is a letter box; an ordinary baseball player could throw a ball to any one of the four boxes. Then you cross Hunter and Aylmer, and there is not another box till you reach McDonnel street. You then take Brock and Murray streets, running parallel across the city, and you walk from the river to Park, and you will find one box at Donegal street. Why is this whole district of eight blocks without a box? Under the old government we used to receive our mail on Brock and Aylmer streets from 7.30 to 8.30 a.m., and from 1 to 2 p.m. Now we cannot get it until after 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. This morning it was just 9.30 when the mail reached the corner of Brock and Aylmer streets, a nice time to get mail within three minutes' walk of the post office. There must be something wrong with the regulator, who ever it may be, therefore, time for improvement.

Sincerely with thanks,
OBSERVER.

AUTO MISHAP AT SPRINGVILLE

Trip of Local Party Was Not a Big Success

A local motor car enthusiast took a party to Cobourg the latter part of last week. The going part of the journey was alright, but the return not so successful. One accident at Cobourg was overcome, but on arrival at Springville an axle broke, and the autoists were afforded the privilege of viewing the agricultural sights of that locality. The tourists arrived in Peterborough after some delay but the machine still slumbers at Springville.

CENSOR PERMITS NOTHING TO GET AWAY FROM ADRIANOPLE

Only Rumors Are Coming From the Front — Constantinople Despatch Says There Is a Battle In Progress All Along the Lines of Contending Forces — Sofia Papers Report a Sanguinary Clash.

London, Oct. 23.—An almost impenetrable veil conceals the most interesting operations of the war—those in the vicinity of Adrianople. No official account of any kind bearing on these operations has yet been issued. The Sofia newspapers report heavy fighting around Adrianople and Kirk-Kilisseh to the east and three forts in the vicinity of Adrianople captured. According to one rumor 2,000 Bulgarians were killed and 4,000 wounded in a desperate engagement outside of Kirk-Kilisseh.

It is quite clear, however, that all reports of the fall of Kirk-Kilisseh and the cutting off of communications with Constantinople are quite unfounded. Fighting of a more or less serious character continues at all points along the extensive frontiers, and an important battle is impending in the Kumanova district between the Servians and Zekki Pasha, who, according to a Constantinople report, is probably exaggerated, has 100,000 men and strong artillery.

A Constantinople despatch sent about midnight, gives a report that the battle had begun practically all along the line from Adrianople to Kirk-Kilisseh, the Turkish troops advancing and the Bulgarians falling back with heavy losses.

The Montenegrins apparently are making slow progress in the direction of Scutari. Podgoritza despatches say that the bombardment of Tarabosch continues, but although the fort has been greatly damaged, there is no sign of yielding.

In naval matters the honors so far are with the Greeks, who have captured Lemnos, thus securing a base from which they can attack the Turkish squadron should it ever emerge from the Dardanelles. Seemingly, however, the Turks are not disposed to leave the Black Sea and risk an encounter with the Greek fleet.

Bulgarians Beaten Back.

Constantinople, Oct. 23.—According to official information orders were given to eastern army, concentrated at Kirk-Kilisseh, yesterday morning to advance east to the village of Tundja. The troops encountered the enemy in force and heavy fighting ensued. The Bulgarians finally gave way before the impetuosity of the Turkish assault. The Bulgarian loss was heavy.

A second Turkish column came into contact with the Bulgarians west of Kalimandja and were equally successful. The fight continued until nightfall and the Turkish advance was irresistible.

London, Oct. 24.—All the divisions of the oMntenegrin army concentrated south of Scutari are taking part in the attack on Tarabosch. A terrific bombardment, says a Podgoritsa despatch to The Express, has occurred and the greatest battle yet fought between the Turks and Montenegrins is now in progress.

OPENS CAMPAIGN.

N. W. Rowell Addresses a Meeting at Ilderton.

Ilderton, Oct. 23.—Mr. N. W. Rowell, Liberal leader in the Legislature, threw down the gauntlet in the fight to abolish the bar in the Province of Ontario at the opening meeting of the East Middlesex campaign at Ilderton last night. No matter what other issues were involved between the political parties in the province, he declared temperance reform, as proposed, was the foremost plank in the Liberal platform.

Although a steady shower of rain made traveling through the country a discomfort, the meeting was well attended and thoroughly representative.

That the temperance issue is of more than local interest, and whatever the verdict in East Middlesex may be will be pressed all over the province, Mr. Rowell made clear in his opening remarks.

"I covet for East Middlesex," he said, with warmth, "that she should on this issue give the Province of Antario a lead. I covet for you the honor, I covet for you the proud distinction of leading this province in this great campaign of wiping out the bar. You can by your vote on Monday next help on this campaign, I believe by your vote and by your influence in this campaign you can expedite the wiping out of the bar in this province, you can give encouragement to the forces that are fighting for the abolition of the bar.

"But no matter what you do it will not stop the progress of the fight, for the moral sense and judgment of Ontario is against the open bar, and the open bar is going to go, no matter what East Middlesex says Monday next. While you can encourage, nothing that you do will alter one iota our policy in dealing with this great issue."

Mr. Rowell arrived at Ilderton from London about 7 o'clock, and was met by Mr. R. W. Jackson, Reeve of London Township; Mr. Baty and other members of the local organization.

Mr. Rowell's reception was cordial. He immediately launched into a discussion of the temperance question. Admitting the strong temperance sentiment that prevailed in the constituency, Mr. Rowell said that as the policy of the Government was now against the abolition of the bar, all interested in temperance reform, both Liberals and Conservatives alike, should join in the work that was being carried on.

BECKER TRIAL NEARING END

His Fate May be Decided Before Thursday Night

New York, N.Y., Oct. 23— John F. McIntyre, for the Becker defense, announced when court opened this morning that he would probably speak for four hours this morning. MYSTERY SURROUNDS DEATH OF YOUNG WOODSTOCK WOMAN

Was Found Dead in Bed at Lakeside on Monday.

Woodstock, Oct. 23.—A vial containing strychnine lying beside the lifeless body of a girl named McKissick, who was found dead in bed at Lakeside Monday, points to a mysterious case of suicide, and Coroner McKay of this city is investigating.

The victim was a Scotch girl and had been working around St. Mary's and Lakeside for about five months. About a week ago she went to visit a sister in Hamilton and, upon her return, complained of severe pains in the stomach.

A doctor was called and to him the girl told a curious story. She said that while away she had visited Toronto and had met another Scotch girl. While in the vicinity of the Union Station they were accosted by a woman dressed in black and heavily veiled, who offered to show them the city. The stranger called a taxi and the girls were driven to a certain unknown house, where there were several other girls. They were shown a room where they were told they could wash, and while they were so engaged the door was locked from the outside.

Believing that they had been taken to a house of ill-repute, the girls escaped by a window, and the McKissick girl returned to Lakeside.

The girl also told the doctor that she had been eating canned fish and the physician, believing that ptomaine poisoning was the cause of her illness, treated her for that illness. The discovery of the strychnine after death did away with the poisoning theory, however. The body of the girl when examined after death, gave rise to the belief that in Toronto a criminal operation was performed upon her.

Crown Attorney Ball of Woodstock has been notified and he has ordered an investigation.

FEDERALS ADVANCE

Madero's Forces Are Marching Towards Vera Cruz.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Oct. 23.—Federal forces began their march on Vera Cruz at noon yesterday. The rebels, under General Felix Diaz, who occupy the city, calmly awaited their approach.

Gen. Beltrain, commander of the federals, had previously informed the City Council that the battle was about to begin. He declined to allow more time for the removal of non-combatants to the neutral zone.

The boats in the harbor have aboard more than 5,000 foreign refugees and 10,000 Mexicans. The U. S. cruiser Des Moines is lying about 500 yards from the American consulate. The space between is neutral and many of the refugee craft have taken up positions there.

Only 32 Americans remain within the town. The foreign consuls have gone aboard the boats. The American consul, Wm. W. Canada, has assumed the leadership of the situation. Rain threatens to drench the refugees and fighters.

Within an hour or two the federals were only seven miles from the city. Gen. Diaz said that the artillery on the heights in the outskirts will fire on the loyal troops. Only if his outposts are driven back will he fight in the city.

CONFESSION NOT ALLOWED

As Evidence in the Trial of "Heck" Ellis.

Special To The Review.

Lindsay Oct. 23.—Judge Clute refused to admit as evidence in the trial of Arthur Ellis for murder of Lew Porter this morning the confession alleged to have been made by Ellis to Inspector Reburn previous to his arrest. The autopsy on Porter's body disclosed three bullet wounds though the prisoner can recollect firing only twice.

Lindsay Oct. 24.—The Crown concluded its case against Ellis before noon and the defence immediately put the prisoner on the stand. Ellis gave a detailed account of the shooting and was cross-examined by Mr. Meredith. Inspector Miller was also on the stand and Edith Porter was re'examined before the court took recess.

Troops Hold Race Track.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Two companies of the Indiana State Militia shortly after noon yesterday took charge of the Mineral Springs race track and prevented any of the races on the card from being run.

When the horses were brought out for the first race Capt. Kimball, of the South Bend Company, ordered his men to fix bayonets, and the horses with their jockeys were driven back into the stables.

The citizen soldiers had been ordered out by Governor Marshall, with instructions to close the track. The soldiers pitched their tents within the enclosure. They kept everyone from entering, and those who were within the enclosure they held.

HON. ADAM BECK ADVOCATES HYDRO FOR BRANTFORD

Minister and Several Colleagues Address Meeting of Ratepayers in Support of Proposed Bylaw—Hon. Mr. Beck Looks Forward to the Day When Municipal Radials Will Be a Part of the Scheme.

Brantford, Oct. 23.—"No man can be otherwise than unfair who says that Hydro-electric has not been a success," declared Hon. Adam Back here last night before a crowded house of ratepayers. The "Minister of Power," along with ex-Mayor Geary, Toronto; Gordon Wilson, M.P., Dundas, and Philip Pocock, London, invaded the storm centre of Hydro and anti-Hydro discussion in this city, which will vote on Friday on a bylaw to instal Government power at a cost of $115,000.

Keen opposition has been developed to the bylaw, the Western Counties Electric Co. having offered the city arbitration with A. K. Bunnell and F. W. Frank, two civic officials, as chief arbitrators as to rates, guaranteeing ten per cent. less than Hydro on the findings of the arbitration. The company professes also to be willing to bear all costs of the arbitration, the civic officials in question to name a third arbitrator.

Mayor Hartman presided at the meeting, and the addresses were followed closely. Opposition speakers were not invited to last night's meeting.

Gordon Wilson, M.P., quoted figures to show that Hydro-electric was cheaper to the householder, as did Chairman Pocock of London, where better lighting at lower rates had resulted.

Hon. Mr. Beck declared that his mission to Brantford was non-political. Replying to the criticism of Mr. Lloyd Harris, that the commission was not providing a sinking fund, Mr. Beck declared that it would have been unfair to burden the system at the start with sinking fund charges, and that it had been decided to leave the chance for all municipalities to come into the power union by 1914.

Mr. Beck stated that the earnings of the commission at present would provide for 2 1-2 per cent. yearly being applied to sinking fund.

The Minister of Power further declared that it was not a question of price per kilowatt, but of principle and policy [illegible] and [illegible] the saving of the Niagara heritage for the people of the province. As a private citizen he foresaw the time when the municipalities would own their own transmission line right of way and operate thereon a system of radial roads. He urged Brantford to carry the bylaw on Friday, as it would mean a central power station between Brantford and Paris, resulting in a wide agricultural section securing big advantages from the use of cheap power.

LAURIER AT SOREL.

He Enters Constituency In Behalf of Liberal Candidate.

Sorel, Que., Oct. 23.—Before an audience of over 7,000 people, gathered from Sorel and all parts of Richelieu County, and with a large contingent of some thousands brought in by excursions from Montreal, Three Rivers, Nicolet, Iberville, Berthier and St. Hyacinthe, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and a goodly number of his chief Liberal helpers yesterday made appeals for the election of A. P. J. Cardin, Liberal candidate in Richelieu County, against E. A. D. Morgan.

He and all the other speakers made constant references to the reported intention of Hon Mr. Monk to resign on the navy question, Sir Wilfrid speaking of it as "the beginning of the end." He said that Mr. Monk would have deserved sympathy and respect if he had been resigning to save his honor after having made conditions to Mr. Borden before accepting the portfolio he now holds. Otherwise, he thought that Mr. Monk showed considerable naivete and guilelessness if he accepted the portfolio without seeing the inevitable outcome.

Appeals were also made to the electors for the election of Mr. Cardin on the ground that Sir Rodolphe Forget had visited Sorel on the previous evening, that that mysterious sack had been on view at Conservative headquarters on the same evening and that, therefore, the independent electors of Richelieu County should vote for the Liberal candidate as an answer to the smirch thereby cast upon their reputations.

The train from Montreal bringing in Sir Wilfrid Laurier and about 100 others was met at the station by the mayor, and Sir Wilfrid was escorted to an improvised platform in the park, from which he delivered his address.

The speakers were liberally applauded and the afternoon passed off without incident.

Winnipeg, Oct. 23.—That two weeks will see the wind-up of threshing is the opinion of M. A. Matheson of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., provided that the weather is seasonable. Enquiry at the offices of the milling company, whose organization covers practically all the western Canadian wheat belt, summed up would show that 75 per cent. of the threshing is now completed, that the yield of wheat, according to threshing returns, is exceeding eighteen bushels to the acre, both in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, and that not more than 30 per cent. of the crop is yet marketed.

ETHEL PORTER SAYS SHE DID NOT WARN ELLIS

Girl Who Was Said to Have Written a Letter to Ellis Telling Him to Look Out for Lew Porter, Now Denies the Authorship of the Note—Porter Shot From Behind, Declares the Crown.

Lindsay, Oct. 23.—With the jury put to bed in the courthouse, the trial of Arthur A., better known in his home district as "Eck," Ellis rested until this morning. The plea of self-defence set up by counsel for Ellis received some stunning blows at the hands of Ethel Porter, niece of the dead man, to whom the defence was looking for strong corroboration at the close of the hearing, but T. C. Robinette, K.C., who is conducting the defence, was still confident that he would be able to establish the girl's authorship of the letter which, Ellis declared, he found on his path a year ago, and which he says the girl, though she first denied, subsequently admitted having written.

Inspector Miller of the provincial police, to whom the letter is said to have been sent, arrived in the city last night, but firmly refused to discuss the letter or his connection with the case in any way.

At the hearing yesterday afternoon, Mr. Robinette secured from the girl a transcription in her own hand of most of the letter, and if Inspector Miller has the copy of the letter it is likely that the two will be compared.

A strong feature of the prosecution was outlined by F. Meredith, K.C., crown prosecutor, in opening the case to the jury, when he declared that the crown would show that the wound in Porter's elbow, which is the one said to have been caused by the first shot fired when his back was turned to his slayer. And still another strong point was scored when Constable Welch, in recounting Ellis' confession to him, said that Ellis had told him that he fired the last shot at Porter, the one which struck him in the abdomen, as Porter was blindly staggering and falling forward. In outlining his case, Mr. Meredith declared that he would show that Ellis stepped into ambush as he saw Porter returning, past him after he, Porter, had already fired once upon him, Ellis, and that, after Porter had passed, Ellis called to him, causing the second and fatal encounter.

Edith Porter, to whom the defence had looked for confirmation of Ellis' story of self-defence, told Mr. Meredith that Porter had come to his father's house. On Thursday night, the night of the shooting, Porter went out, saying he was going to get a trap. He took his father's rifle and two cartridges, and left.

To Robinette, she said he did not have his own rifle with him when he came to the house.

"Did Porter ever object to Mr. Ellis speaking to you?" asked Mr. Robinette.

"No, sir."

"Did he tell you not to speak to Mr. Ellis?"

"No, sir."

"Did he threaten to shoot Ellis if he spoke to you?"

"No, sir."

"You can write, can't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Please write these words." Here Mr. Robinette had the girl write the words of the note which the defence says was left by the girl a year ago on the path at Ellis' farm.

The judge interrupted to ask why this statement was being written by the girl. Mr. Robinette explained that he hoped later to establish her authorship of the letter, but allowed her to stop writing and went on with his cross-examination of her.

"Did you call him Eck?" he asked.

"I called him that when my mother was around," replied the girl.

"Do you remember Inspector Miller coming to see you?"

"Yes, sir."

"He showed you a letter, and it was in your handwriting?"

"It was not in my handwriting," replied the girl in a firm voice.

"You met him on the way to church one day, and at first denied, but later admitted writing the letter. Is that not true?"

"No, sir."

CZAREWITCH IN DANGER

Court Physician is Called to Attend the Crown Prince

Special To The Review.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 23. — Strict silence is preserved in regard to the nature of the accident to the Crown Prince. Greatest anxiety is felt about his condition both by the Imperial Court and the general public. The Court physician, Dr. Rauchfuss, has been sent to attend the child and special religious services with prayers for his recovery are being held.

A morning bulletin says the little Crown Prince passed the best night since his illness began.

The Russian Crown Prince, the Grand Duke Alexis, is lying ill at the Imperial hunting lodge of Spala, in Russian Poland, as the result of an accident on October 15th. He then sustained an injury to the left side of the groin which caused no anxiety until Sunday evening, when his temperature rose to 103.6.

The young Prince is only eight years old.

Ike Pilsin is authority for the statement that if the fellows who bragged that their words were as good as their bonds paid him what they owed he'd be able to keep his word oftener.

New York, Oct. 23.—Ten minutes after drinking a solution of oxalic acid, given to her in error for a dose of epsom salts, Mrs. Abram H. As a consequence of the tragic mistake Miss Florence Harris, the nurse who administerd the poison, has become insane. It is feared she will never regain her reason.

GIRL ATTACKED BY A TRAMP

Hamilton, Oct. 23.—Miss Fanny Hartley, daughter of Angus Hartley, a farmer on the Caledonia road, was attacked by a drink-crazed tramp on Monday afternoon at her home. Several similar cases are said to have occurred in that vicinity within the past few weeks.

Miss Hartley, aged 16, was alone, when she heard a knock at the kitchen door. The tramp asked her for some food, and she proceeded to make some sandwiches when she was seized from behind and thrown to the floor. She struggled, and her screams frightened him, as he allowed her to go. She rushed out and began calling for help.

The tramp chased her up the road and told her that if she did not keep quiet he would shoot her. He then ran down a cross road, and fired a couple of revolver shots in the air.

Board Recommends That Company be Given Six Months to Dissolve.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—The detailed reports respecting the investigation of the United Shoe Machinery combine were made public yesterday. The majority report, submitted by Judge Laurendeau and J. C. Walsh, finds that, as the company will not allow its machines to be used by any manufacturer who employs a shoe machine made by another firm, competition is practically impossible. The report recommends, however, that the concern be given six months, in place of the statutory ten days, to dissolve.

In his minority report, W. J. White, K.C., reviews the Combines Act in its application to the case, and states that the company's leases were declared legal by the Privy Council. The same system might have been adopted by any other manufacturer of shoe machinery. However, these others preferred to sell their machines, and there is evidence that in doing so no adequate guarantee was offered to the purchaser that necessary parts for repairs could be promptly obtained or that a proper repair service could be furnished.

"Under these conditions," says Mr. White, "the United Shoe Machinery Co. has secured the business, and, to my mind, there is not sufficient evidence that the tieing clauses unduly restrict competition."

CENSOR PERMITS NOTHING TO GET AWAY FROM ADRIANOPLE

Only Rumors Are Coming From the Front — Constantinople Despatch Says There Is a Battle In Progress All Along the Line of Contending Forces — Sofia Papers Report a Sanguinary Clash.

London, Oct. 23.—An almost impenetrable veil conceals the most interesting operations of the war [illegible] in the vicinity of Adrianople. No official account of any kind bearing on these operations has yet been issued. The Sofia newspapers report heavy fighting around Adrianople and Kirk-Kilisseh to the east and three forts in the vicinity of Adrianople captured. According to one rumor 2,000 Bulgarians were killed and 4,000 wounded in a desperate engagement outside of Kirk-Kilisseh.

It is quite clear, however, that all reports of the fall of Kirk-Kilisseh and the cutting off of communications with Constantinople are quite unfounded. Fighting of a more or less serious character continues at all points along the extensive frontiers, and an important battle is impending in the Kumanova district between the Servians and Zekki Pasha, who, according to a Constantinople report, is probably exaggerated, has 100,000 men and strong artillery.

A Constantinople despatch sent about midnight, gives a report that the battle had begun practically all along the line from Adrianople to Kirk-Kilisseh, the Turkish troops advancing and the Bulgarians falling back with heavy losses.

The Montenegrins apparently are making slow progress in the direction of Scutari. Podgoritza despatches say that the bombardment of Tarabosch continues, but although the fort has been greatly damaged, there is no sign of yielding.

In naval matters the honors so far are with the Greeks, who have captured Lemnos, thus securing a base from which they can attack the Turkish squadron should it ever emerge from the Dardanelles. Seemingly, however, the Turks are not disposed to leave the Black Sea and risk an encounter with the Greek fleet.

OPENS CAMPAIGN.

N. W. Rowell Addresses a Meeting at Ilderton.

Ilderton, Oct. 23.—Mr. N. W. No matter what other issues were involved between the political parties in the province, he declared temperance reform, as proposed, was the foremost plank in the Liberal platform.

Mr. Rowell arrived at Ilderton from London about 7 o'clock, and was met by Mr. R. W. Jackson, Reeve of London Township; Mr. Baty and other members of the local organization.

Mr. Rowell's reception was cordial. He immediately launched into a discussion of the temperance question. Admitting the strong temperance sentiment that prevailed in the constituency, Mr. Rowell said that as the policy of the Government was now against the abolition of the bar, all interested in temperance reform, both Liberals and Conservatives alike, should join in the work that was being carried on.

Montreal,, Oct. 23.—Major Geo. W. Stephens, chairman of the Montreal Harbor Board, in a letter he has sent to Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, announcing his resignation from the board, absolutely denies that there were political reasons at the back of the step he and his confreres have taken.

He says that the good work the board has done has been accomplished by a harmonious working together of its members, and can only be continued by the appointment of an entirely new board. Major Stephens thanks Mr. Hazen for his courtesy, and promises to always lend his assistance in connection with harbor problems.

HAWKESBURY IS IN IT TOO

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—The Hawkesbury Separate school supporters are instructing their children to walk out when the English-speaking inspectors appear.

One feature of the case there is that a large proportion of the teachers would have to be dismissed because they cannot teach in English and other higher-salaried teachers would have to be engaged.

U. S. Transport Missing.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 23.—Fears are felt in the Navy Department for the transport Prairie, which, with 750 marines and the U. S. commission aboard, was last heard from Oct. 2 off the coast of Santo Domingo, whither it had been ordered to investigate the uprising there and to interfere if American or foreign interests were endangered.

FEDERALS ADVANCE

Madero's Forces Are Marching Towards Vera Cruz.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Oct. 23.—Federal forces began their march on Vera Cruz at noon yesterday. The rebels, under General Felix Diaz, who occupy the city, calmly awaited their approach.

Gen. Beltrain, commander of the federals, had previously informed the City Council that the battle was about to begin. He declined to allow more time for the removal of non-combatants to the neutral zone.

The boats in the harbor have aboard more than 5,000 foreign refugees and 10,000 Mexicans. The U. S. cruiser Des Moines is lying about 500 yards from the American consulate. The space between is neutral and many of the refugee craft have taken up positions there.

Only 32 Americans remain within the town. The foreign consuls have gone aboard the boats. The American consul, Wm. W. Canada, has assumed the leadership of the situation. Rain threatens to drench the refugees and fighters.

Within an hour or two the federals were only seven miles from the city. Gen. Diaz said that the artillery on the heights in the outskirts will fire on the loyal troops. Only if his outposts are driven back will he fight in the city.

CONFESSION NOT ALLOWED

As Evidence in the Trial of "Heck" Ellis.

Special To The Review.

Lindsay Oct. 23.—Judge Clute refused to admit as evidence in the trial of Arthur Ellis for murder of Lew Porter this morning the confession alleged to have been made by Ellis to Inspector Reburn previous to his arrest. The autopsy on Porter's body disclosed three bullet wounds though the prisoner can recollect firing only twice.

Lindsay Oct. 23.—The Crown concluded its case against Ellis before noon and the defence immediately put the prisoner on the stand. Ellis gave a detailed account of the shooting and was cross-examined by Mr. Meredith. Inspector Miller was also on the stand and Edith Porter was re'examined before the court took recess.

Troops Hold Race Track.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Two companies of the Indiana State Militia shortly after noon yesterday took charge of the Mineral Springs race track and prevented any of the races on the card from being run.

When the horses were brought out for the first race Capt. Kimball, of the South Bend Company, ordered his men to fix bayonets, and the horses with their jockeys were driven back into the stables.

The citizen soldiers had been ordered out by Governor Marshall, with instructions to close the track. The soldiers pitched their tents within the enclosure. They kept everyone from entering, and those who were within the enclosure they held.

HON. ADAM BECK ADVOCATES HYDRO FOR BRANTFORD

LAURIER AT SOREL.

He Enters Constituency In Behalf of Liberal Candidate.

Sorel, Que., Oct. 23.—Before an audience of over 7,000 people, gathered from Sorel and all parts of Richelieu County, and with a large contingent of some thousands brought in by excursions from Montreal, Three Rivers, Nicolet, Iberville, Berthier and St. Hyacinthe, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and a goodly number of his chief Liberal helpers yesterday made appeals for the election of A. P. J. Cardin, Liberal candidate in Richelieu County, against E. A. D. Morgan.

He and all the other speakers made constant references to the reported intention of Hon Mr. Monk to resign on the navy question, Sir Wilfrid speaking of it as "the beginning of the end." He said that Mr. Monk would have deserved sympathy and respect if he had been resigning to save his honor after having made conditions to Mr. Borden before accepting the portfolio he now holds. Otherwise, he thought that Mr. Monk showed considerable naivete and guilelessness if he accepted the portfolio without seeing the inevitable outcome.

Appeals were also made to the electors for the election of Mr. Cardin on the ground that Sir Rodolphe Forget had visited Sorel on the previous evening, that that mysterious sack had been on view at Conservative headquarters on the same evening and that, therefore, the independent electors of Richelieu County should vote for the Liberal candidate as an answer to the smirch thereby cast upon their reputations.

The train from Montreal bringing in Sir Wilfrid Laurier and about 100 others was met at the station by the mayor, and Sir Wilfrid was escorted to an improvised platform in the park, from which he delivered his address.

The speakers were liberally applauded and the afternoon passed off without incident.

WILL BE OVER IN TWO WEEKS

Winnipeg, Oct. 23.—That two weeks will see the wind-up of threshing is the opinion of M. A. Matheson of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., provided that the weather is seasonable. Enquiry at the offices of the milling company, whose organization covers practically all the western Canadian wheat belt, summed up would show that 75 per cent. of the threshing is now completed, that the yield of wheat, according to threshing returns, is exceeding eighteen bushels to the acre, both in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, and that not more than 30 per cent. of the crop is yet marketed.

Minister and Several Colleagues Address Meeting of Ratepayers in Support of Proposed Bylaw—Hon. Mr. Beck Looks Forward to the Day When Municipal Radials Will Be a Part of the Scheme.

Brantford, Oct. 23.—"No man can be otherwise than unfair who says that Hydro-electric has not been a success," declared Hon. Adam Back here last night before a crowded house of ratepayers. The "Minister of Power," along with ex-Mayor Geary, Toronto; Gordon Wilson, M.P., Dundas, and Philip Pocock, London, invaded the storm centre of Hydro and anti-Hydro discussion in this city, which will vote on Friday on a bylaw to instal Government power at a cost of $115,000.

Keen opposition has been developed to the bylaw, the Western Counties Electric Co. having offered the city arbitration with A. K. Bunnell and F. W. Frank, two civic officials, as chief arbitrators as to rates, guaranteeing ten per cent. less than Hydro on the findings of the arbitration. The company professes also to be willing to bear all costs of the arbitration, the civic officials in question to name a third arbitrator.

Mayor Hartman presided at the meeting, and the addresses were followed closely. Opposition speakers were not invited to last night's meeting.

Gordon Wilson, M.P., quoted figures to show that Hydro-electric was cheaper to the householder, as did Chairman Pocock of London, where better lighting at lower rates had resulted.

Hon. Mr. Beck declared that his mission to Brantford was non-political. Replying to the criticism of Mr. Lloyd Harris, that the commission was not providing a sinking fund, Mr. Beck declared that it would have been unfair to burden the system at the start with sinking fund charges, and that it had been decided to leave the chance for all municipalities to come into the power union by 1914.

Mr. Beck stated that the earnings of the commission at present would provide for 2 1-2 per cent. yearly being applied to sinking fund.

The Minister of Power further declared that it was not a question of price per kilowatt, but of principle and policy, electricity for all, rich and poor, and the saving of the Niagara heritage for the people of the province. As a private citizen he foresaw the time when the municipalities would own their own transmission line right of way and operate thereon a system of radial roads. He urged Brantford to carry the bylaw on Friday, as it would mean a central power station between Brantford and Paris, resulting in a wide agricultural section securing big advantages from the use of cheap power.

Getting Anonymous Letters.

Winnipeg, Oct. 23.—Numerous anonymous letters to Premier Roblin and to Magistrate McMicken, who committed the men charged with violating the election in Macdonald, attest the bitterness of the political situation in Manitoba.

Both these gentlemen are receiving numerous letters, some from as far east as Toronto and as far west as Vancouver, referring to them as a czar, tyrant, and rascals.

ETHEL PORTER SAYS SHE DID NOT WARN ELLIS

Girl Who Was Said to Have Written a Letter to Ellis Telling Him to Look Out for Lew Porter, Now Denies the Authorship of the Note—Porter Shot From Behind, Declares the Crown.

Lindsay, Oct. 23.—With the jury put to bed in the courthouse, the trial of Arthur A., better known in his home district as "Eck," Ellis rested until this morning. The plea of self-defence set up by counsel for Ellis received some stunning blows at the hands of Ethel Porter, niece of the dead man, to whom the defence was looking for strong corroboration at the close of the hearing, but T. C. Robinette, K.C., who is conducting the defence, was still confident that he would be able to establish the girl's authorship of the letter which, Ellis declared, he found on his path a year ago, and which he says the girl, though she first denied, subsequently admitted having written.

Inspector Miller of the provincial police, to whom the letter is said to have been sent, arrived in the city last night, but firmly refused to discuss the letter or his connection with the case in any way.

At the hearing yesterday afternoon, Mr. Robinette secured from the girl a transcription in her own hand of most of the letter, and if Inspector Miller has the copy of the letter it is likely that the two will be compared.

A strong feature of the prosecution was outlined by F. Meredith, K.C., crown prosecutor, in opening the case to the jury, when he declared that the crown would show that the wound in Porter's elbow, which is the one said to have been caused by the first shot fired when his back was turned to his slayer. And still another strong point was scored when Constable Welch, in recounting Ellis' confession to him, said that Ellis had told him that he fired the last shot at Porter, the one which struck him in the abdomen, as Porter was blindly staggering and falling forward. In outlining his case, Mr. Meredith declared that he would show that Ellis stepped into ambush as he saw Porter returning, past him after he, Porter, had already fired once upon him, Ellis, and that, after Porter had passed, Ellis called to him, causing the second and fatal encounter.

Edith Porter, to whom the defence had looked for confirmation of Ellis' story of self-defence, told Mr. Meredith that Porter had come to his father's house. On Thursday night, the night of the shooting, Porter went out, saying he was going to get a trap. He took his father's rifle and two cartridges, and left.

To Robinette, she said he did not have his own rifle with him when he came to the house.

"Did Porter ever object to Mr. Ellis speaking to you?" asked Mr. Robinette.

"No, sir."

"Did he tell you not to speak to Mr. Ellis?"

"No, sir."

"Did he threaten to shoot Ellis if he spoke to you?"

"No, sir."

"You can write, can't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Please write these words." Here Mr. Robinette had the girl write the words of the note which the defence says was left by the girl a year ago on the path at Ellis' farm.

The judge interrupted to ask why this statement was being written by the girl. Mr. Robinette explained that he hoped later to establish her authorship of the letter, but allowed her to stop writing and went on with his cross-examination of her.

"Did you call him Eck?" he asked.

"I called him that when my mother was around," replied the girl.

"Do you remember Inspector Miller coming to see you?"

"Yes, sir."

"He showed you a letter, and it was in your handwriting?"

"It was not in my handwriting," replied the girl in a firm voice.

"You met him on the way to church one day, and at first denied, but later admitted writing the letter. Is that not true?"

"No, sir."

CZAREWITCH IN DANGER

Court Physician is Called to Attend the Crown Prince

Special To The Review.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 23. — Strict silence is preserved in regard to the nature of the accident to the Crown Prince. Greatest anxiety is felt about his condition both by the Imperial Court and the general public. The Court physician, Dr. Rauchfuss, has been sent to attend the child and special religious services with prayers for his recovery are being held.

A morning bulletin says the little Crown Prince passed the best night since his illness began.

The Russian Crown Prince, the Grand Duke Alexis, is lying ill at the Imperial hunting lodge of Spala, in Russian Poland, as the result of an accident on October 15th. He then sustained an injury to the left side of the groin which caused no anxiety until Sunday evening, when his temperature rose to 103.6.

The young Prince is only eight years old.

Ike Pilsin is authority for the statement that if the fellows who bragged that their words were as good as their bonds paid him what they owed he'd be able to keep his word oftener.

GIRL ATTACKED BY A TRAMP

Hamilton, Oct. 23.—Miss Fanny Hartley, daughter of Angus Hartley, a farmer on the Caledonia road, was attacked by a drink-crazed tramp on Monday afternoon at her home. Several similar cases are said to have occurred in that vicinity within the past few weeks.

Miss Hartley, aged 16, was alone, when she heard a knock at the kitchen door. The tramp asked her for some food, and she proceeded to make some sandwiches when she was seized from behind and thrown to the floor. She struggled, and her screams frightened him, as he allowed her to go. She rushed out and began calling for help.

The tramp chased her up the road and told her that if she did not keep quiet he would shoot her. He then ran down a cross road, and fired a couple of revolver shots in the air.

Board Recommends That Company be Given Six Months to Dissolve.

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—The detailed reports respecting the investigation of the United Shoe Machinery combine were made public yesterday. The majority report, submitted by Judge Laurendeau and J. C. Walsh, finds that, as the company will not allow its machines to be [illegible] manufacturer who employs a shoe machine made by another firm, competition is practically impossible. The report recommends, however, that the concern be given six months, in place of the statutory ten days, to dissolve.

In his minority report, W. J. White, K.C., reviews the Combines Act in its application to the case, and states that the company's leases were declared legal by the Privy Council. The same system might have been adopted by another manufacturer of shoe machinery. However, these others preferred to sell their machines, and there is evidence that in doing so no adequate guarantee was offered to the purchaser that necessary parts for repairs could be promptly obtained or that a proper repair service could be furnished.

"Under these conditions," says Mr. White, "the United Shoe Machinery Co. has secured the business, and, to my mind, there is not sufficient evidence that the tieing clauses unduly restrict competition."

LIVER LAZINESS

Those Who Lack Energy and are Unsuccessful Should Read This Closely.

"I am only thirty years old, yet for almost two years I have felt more like seventy-five. I have found it difficult to sleep at night and in the morning feel so depressed and heavy that effort was difficult. My hands were always clammy and perspiration on slight effort would break out all over me. It was not unnatural that I should begin to brood over the chance that I should soon be unfit to do my work, and this dread made my sleepless nights perfect misery. After repeated trials of medicine and mixtures Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave me the first gleam of hope. From the very first I could see they were different in action from other pills. They didn't gripe and acted as naturally as if nature and not the pills were cleansing my clogged up system. My spirits rose, I felt much better, the sluggish action of the system gave way to normal activity. Dizziness and headaches ceased, appetite, good color, and ambition to work returned and have remained. I am like a new man and I thank Dr. Hamilton's Pills for it all."

This was the experience of J. E. Parkhurst, a well-known grocery dealer in Jefferson. Follow his advice, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills for your stomach, kidneys, and liver, and you'll enjoy long life and robust good health. THE SEYMOUR CO. OFFERS

Our news columns give a very full report of the conference held last night between representatives of the Seymour Power Co., and City Aldermen. In fact the whole council participated.

Roughly speaking the company will submit definite offers at prices for sale of the power and light lines of the present Light and Power Co., with the provision that such lines, if taken over by the city, will be paralleled by new distribution lines of the company. An offer to sell, in bulk all the lines and franchises of the present holders, the railway and gas properties and to supply current for light and power purposes in perpetuity, on a basis to be arranged.

An offer to join with the municipality in the service on a definite basis, and to share with the municipality, the profits, (over the fixed and running charges) half-and-half. This last offer would mean private operation and public sharing.

Aside from the position taken by the city, that it can expropriate the plant and lines, there is the value to be considered. The Company claim that they are worth $150,000, but the city does not consider such valuation as tenable, and an arbitration would decide the point.

On the face, and pending careful analysis some of these propositions look favorable. When submitted, and afterwards gone over by the Hydro, to verify (which condition was stipulated by the city), we shall be in a position to contrast such with the known results to be given by lining up with the Hydro-Electric.

These offers will be made definite in a week or ten days.

BLOCKING ROAD BUILDING

It is intimated that the Liberal Senators will persist in their opposition to the Tariff Commission and the Highways Bills this session, if the measures are not deleted to their sanitorial satisfaction. That any change will be made is not likely, but the measures will be promptly introduced and sent to their fate.

The Laurier game of having the Liberal majority in the Senate obstruct whatever legislation might give the Borden Government credit with the country, or redeem the pre-election pledges of its members, is not a new one. The British House of Lords tried the same thing on Lloyd George's budget. The fight was fought out with great bitterness, because the House of Commons, the elected representatives of the people, held it to be absolutely imperative that all financial bills should be considered by the lower house alone. In Canada the Senate consists of Government appointees, their terms being for life. If a Liberal majority in the Senate can be used to destroy the work of the House of Commons, representing the will of the people, it must be put in its proper place. There is a distinction between deliberate obstruction and the considering of measures in a critical sense. The Highways Bill is one that meets with favor in every province in Canada. The Liberal newspapers are howling for good roads, roads that can be constructed only by Government money, and yet the Laurier Senators persist in obstructing good roads measures, because the Borden Government is trying to give the people what they want. Their excuse is that the government proposes to do some direct spending of road money itself, instead of turning the money over to the provincial governments. What sort of a fine business would it be for the Dominion to hand over a hundred or two hundred thousand dollars to the Scott gang in Saskatchewan, to be spent by them in buying up support for the local government, after the fashion pursued in the administration of the local road appropriation. The use made of the Saskatchewan funds for roads in the last election was notorious. That would not do. There are inter-provincial highways, and many large road schemes to be considered, but while Ontario would be delighted to get the money, Laurier and his Senate appointees block the way.

A CATTLE COMMISSION

Hon Robert Rogers is going to appoint a commission to investigate the causes of the decline of the cattle industry in the west. There is surely a need for such a commission as this, as the prairie, which used to produce so much beef for export, is now barely providing enough for the population at its very doors. One of the chief reasons, of course is the encroaching of the grain farms upon the old ranching areas. The homestead regulations permit the pre-emption of the ranching areas, and thus the grazing lands are becoming yearly very much limited, and owners do not care to take the risk of breeding cattle to run at large.

The remedy would seem to be in the reservation of certain large areas of Dominion lands as grazing grounds for cattle. How these could be handled is a matter of detail. Probably their lease to certain ranchers might be arranged on a basis that would not give a government monopoly of land to a few individuals. The receipts of cattle at Winnipeg are dwindling so steadily that it is most necessary for some special attempt to be made to put the industry on a better basis. It would be a shame if the 300,000,000 acres of good land on the prairie were not to produce enough beef to feed the home population, and keep up a large export trade.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is to be regretted that the attendance at the Nordica concert was so slim that the local impressarios to whom those who heard the great artist were indebted, suffered financial loss. The loss may be charged to lack of knowledge of local conditions however, in fixing the sale of prices at $2.50 down, the same as charged in the big Canadian cities. While this city is certainly musically inclined the number of persons who are willing to pay metropolitan prices even for metropolitan attractions, is limited. Most citizens who are satisfied to give up $1 for an evening's entertainment, are not willing to join the "rush seat" throng.

A good deal of local interest has been taken along the front in the appointment of a senator to one of the vacancies, and also in the filling of the position of County Judge in place of Judge Benson, of whom it is said that retirement is in view. In regard to the matters the Cobourg World says—"There was no rejoicing among East Durham Liberals and in the Guide office, Port Hope, when the announcement was made that Harry Corby, of Belleville, and George Gordon of Sturgeon Falls has been called to the Senate. It was a matter of keen disappointment for their political energy had been centered in an effort to secure the appointment of Col. Ward, who represented the riding for a number of years as a Conservative. Apparently the gallant colonel had not the support of the Tory organ and party in his effort to secure the position, being very ably looked after by the Liberal organ, the Guide.

But Col. Ward's Liberal friends are consoling themselves in the fact that he may— and there is a very slim chance—be appointed to the position of County Judge, as there is a well founded rumor that Judge Benson, the present senior County Judge, will shortly retire. But we have no doubt the successor of the much respected senior County Judge will not be Col. Ward or any other lawyer in these United Counties. There is no precedent for such action and the people would be likely to express themselves in no uncertain terms if such an appointment were made. Another local paper refers as ollows— "It is rumored upon the treets that Lt.-Col. H. A. Ward, Port Hope, is really aspiring for a ounty Judgeship and this in the United Counties. This is quite a urprise, as we have yet to learn of a vacancy, and even were there one it is certainly unusual for a man to be appointed to such a position in his home county. Our Judges, as a rule are well chosen and their sphere of duty is not usually in the local ty where they have practised their profession.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Oct. 22.—There was an improved demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, and, as cables were firmer at an advance of 1½d to 3d, sales of a few loads were made. The demand for new crop oats for future shipment was good, and bids were 3d higher. The local market for coarse grains was quiet, with No. 2 Canadian western offering for last half October and first half November shipment from Fort William at 44½c c.i.f. A fairly good trade continues to be done in flour for local account, but the export trade is quiet. Demand for bran and shorts good. Butter is firm and fairly active. Some contracts of New Zealand butter have been made for January-February shipment at 30½c, delivered here. A steadier feeling has developed in cheese, with more business doing over the cable, and the demand for colored goods on spot is good, which are scarce. Eggs fairly active and stronger.

Sand Steamer Wrecked.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 22.—A wheelman lost his life and ten other members of the crew of the sand steamer Pine Lake narrowly escaped death yesterday when their vessel went to the bottom in less than a minute after a collision with the steamer Fleetwood off Peiche Island, in the Detroit River. The man who lost his life was Aleck Kalvey, whose home was near London, Ont. It is thought he was trapped in the wreckage of the pilot house.

Capt. J. H. Ferguson, seeing that a collision was unavoidable, cried to his men to jump. The crew, however, with the exception of Kalvey, remained on top of the cabin, which did not sink below the water for several minutes. The captain jumped into the river, and was rescued half an hour later. He said that the collision was the result of "crossed signals."

The Last of Berlin's "Cabbies."

Berlin police authorities have issued an edict banishing horse drawn cabs from the streets of the city. The vehicles in question, says the Autocar, are so utterly obsolete as to be unworthy of such an up to date place as Berlin. To each of the sixty licensed drivers affected by the new regulation $150 is to be paid by way of compensation, while applications from any of them for permission to drive motor vehicles are to be favorably considered. The edict goes into force on April 1 next.

Save Systematically

Haphazard, occasional saving seldom accomplishes much. It's the steady, persistent, regular depositing of so many dollars a week, or month, or season, in the Union Bank of Canada, which makes one financially independent. The money accumulates all the more rapidly, too, because of the Interest which is added every six months.

Adventure

A Romance of The South Seas

BY

JACK LONDON

Copyright, 1910, by Street & Smith
Copyright, 1911, by the Macmillan Company

"Oh, in that case," she said, with assumed deliberateness, and he could have sworn to the roguish gleam—"in that case, since you are willing to consider my offer, let me make a few remarks. In the first place you need not sneer at adventure when you are living it yourself, and you were certainly living it when I found you first, down with fever on a lonely plantation with a couple of hundred wild cannibals thirsting for your life. Then I came along"—

"And, what with your arriving in a gale," he broke in, "fresh from the wreck of your schooner, landing on the beach in a whaleboat full of picturesque Tahitian sailors and marching into the bungalow with a Baden-Powell on your head, sea boots on your feet and a whacking big Colt's dangling on your hip—why, I am only too ready to admit that you were the quintessence of adventure."

"Very good," she cried exultantly. "It's mere simple arithmetic—the adding of your adventure and my adventure together. So that's settled, and you needn't jeer at adventure any more. Next I don't think there was anything romantic in Tudor's attempting to kiss me nor anything like adventure in this absurd duel. But I do think now that it was romantic for you to fall in love with me. And finally, and it is adding romance to romance, I think—I think I do love you, Dave—oh, Dave!"

The last was a sighing dove cry as he caught her up in his arms and pressed her to him.

"But I don't love you because you played the fool today," she whispered on his shoulder. "White men shouldn't go around killing each other."

"Then why do you love me?" he questioned, enthralled after the manner of all lovers in the everlasting query that forever has remained unanswered.

"I don't know—just because I do, I guess. And that's all the satisfaction you gave me when we had that man talk. But I have been loving you for weeks—during all the time you have been so deliciously and unobtrusively jealous of Tudor."

"Yes, yes, go on," he urged breathlessly when she paused.

"I wondered when you'd break out, and because you didn't I loved you all the more. You were like dad and Von. You could hold yourself in check. You didn't make a fool of yourself."

"Not until today," he suggested.

"Yes, and I loved you for that too. It was about time. I began to think you were never going to bring up the subject again. And now that I have offered myself you haven't even accepted."

With both hands on her shoulders he held her at arm's length from him and looked long into her eyes, no longer cool, but seemingly pervaded with a golden flush. The lids drooped and yet bravely did not droop as she returned his gaze. Then he fondly and solemnly drew her to him.

"And how about that hearth and saddle of your own?" he asked a moment later.

"I well nigh won to them. The grass house is my hearth and the Martha my saddle, and—and look at all the trees I've planted, to say nothing of the sweet corn. And it's all your fault anyway. I might never have loved you if you hadn't put the idea into my head."

"There's the Noogassia coming in around the point with her boats out," Sheldon remarked irrelevantly. "And the commissioner is on board. He's going down to San Cristobal to investigate that missionary killing. We're in luck, I must say."

"I don't see where the luck comes in," she said dolefully. "We ought to have this evening all to ourselves just to talk things over. I've a thousand questions to ask you."

"And it wouldn't have been a man talk either," she added.

"But my plan is better than that." He debated with himself a moment. "You see, the commissioner is the one official in the islands who can give us a license. And—there's the luck of it—Dr. Welshmere is here to perform the ceremony. We'll get married this evening."

Joan recoiled from him in panic, tearing herself from his arms and going backward several steps. He could see that she was really frightened.

"I—I thought"— she stammered.

Then slowly the change came over her, and the blood flooded into her face in the same amazing blush he had seen once before that day. Her cool, level looking eyes were no longer level looking nor cool, but warmly drooping and just unable to meet his, as she came toward him and nestled in the circle of his arms, saying softly, almost in a whisper:

"I am ready, Dave."

GROWING DIAMONDS.

This Process Is Scientific, but Not Alarmingly Satisfactory.

Dr. W. von Bolton has been trying to grow diamonds. At a recent congress of the German Bunsen society he described the decomposition of illuminating gas under the action of sodium amalgam, which precipitated the carbon in the form of black coal and, it seemed, of diamonds, but these were in too small quantity to permit of analysis. Dr. von Bolton determined to obtain a greater quantity by making diamonds grow on some other substance.

The Scientific American says he placed fifty grams of 14 per cent sodium amalgam in a long testing tube and coated the upper layer with a diluted water glass solution, over which he spread amorphous diamond powder. The tube was kept at a temperature of 100 degrees centigrade in a water bath, after which a slow current of moistened illuminating gas was introduced. The amalgam was allowed to give off its mercury vapor for one month, when very little black carbon had been separated, but on the layer covered with diamond powder many particles of high brilliancy were found.

The contents of the tube were boiled in a platinum crucible with a mixture of fluoric and sulphuric acids. The microscope revealed that the amorphous powder had been converted into brilliant crystals, true diamonds, still too small, however, to allow of analysis.

Banana Flour.

Banana flour specially prepared as a tonic food is making its appearance in Paris. Within a recent period this fruit was but little used in France, and even now its consumption is limited. However, measures are being taken to increase the importation, and it is said that seventy vessels were recently fitted up for bringing the fruit to Europe. Banana flour has a much more extended use in England than on the continent, but efforts are now made to introduce it in France owing to its great nutritious value.

Landowners of London.

The county council has completed an accurate survey of the whole area of London and finds that the actual number of landowners in London is just under 35,000. The survey further shows that the largest landowners in London are not private individuals, but great public corporations—namely, the crown, the ecclesiastical commissioners, the London county council and the city corporation.—London Spectator.

Travels of a Life Preserver.

A life preserver which had drifted 12,000 miles from the coast of Japan to Scotland has been received at San Francisco by Captain Robert Dollar. It floated from the Stanley Dollar, which went aground in Yokohama harbor in September, 1905. It is believed to have drifted through the Northwest passage, the first authentic record of such an occurrence, and was picked up near the Shetland islands last September.

Unable to Eat Old Motors.

The motorcar is making itself felt in a new way in Paris. There are a great many horse meat butchers in France, and they are finding that they cannot find sufficient old horses to supply their customers. They have decided to appeal to the government to facilitate the importation of horses from abroad. —Chicago Tribune.

The McKay block in Truro, N.B., was destroyed by fire, loss $40,000.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

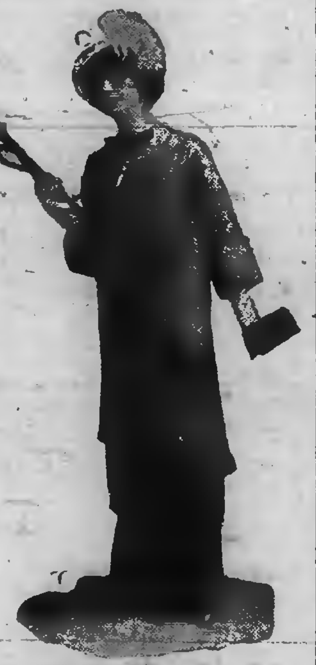
SMART TOPCOATS.

Three-quarter Lengths Are the Fall Fancy.



NEW MODEL IN COVERT CLOTH.

This fall the three-quarter topcoat is the smartest of the season. To be sure, it does not cover the gown as do the longer models, but it is smart; consequently the last word has been said.

The coat illustrated is carried out in this modish length and developed in a tan covert cloth. The gown over which it is worn is of brown messaline ornamented with embroidered medallions in oriental colorings. A plaited drapery is particularly fetching. The hat is a coque garnished affair of white felt faced with brown velvet.

Cameos For Outdoor Wear.

A novelty of this season is the revival of cameo jewelry, which has come to light for wear with outdoor frocks and is fast ousting the now hopelessly old fashioned enameled jewelry, which was done to death by an overplus of popularity.

The favorite form in which the cameo now makes its appearance is framed by a light, fragile design of small diamonds set in filigree fashion in so delicate a setting that they appear to have no support.

Indeed, the whole idea of setting of small stones today is to place them so that there is nothing to interfere with their brilliancy and beauty.

In this form cameos are now worn as pendants and brooches, or mounted on a black velvet ribbon they take the place of the one time popular old paste buckle or plaque, the only other really smart form in which plaques for mounting on velvet neckbands are seen this season being large, flat, heavily fringed diamond tassels of great length, which are set high under the chin, the graduated diamond fringe falling two or three inches.

Your Autumn Hat.

No matter how hard the milliners try to evade the magpie effect it looms up as dainty and attractive as ever at the beginning of each season. The model in the cut is but another instance of this revival. The shape is a modified continental with its upturned brim faced with black braid. The crown is of white satin. A narrow quill of black and white feathers gives a dashing air to the creation.

Fall Collars and Hats.

The new Medici collars, distinguished by extended ruff effects in the back, are gaining wider representation and will no doubt be welcomed [illegible], says the Dry Goods Economist. The Medicis have the advantage of being more generally becoming than many of the Robespierre styles. The general effect is softer and more youthful, while the extended ruff in the back affords a delightful finish. Fine fancy nets and batistes in combination with shadow laces and hand embroidery are favored in the development of some of the most striking novelties. Great individuality is given to this style by the cut of the jabot or vest effect with which it is finished.

A WONDERFUL INDIAN BOY.

James Thorpe, One of the Heroes of the Olympic Games.

I want to tell you a few intimate facts about James Thorpe, the twenty-five-year-old Indian boy who, at the conclusion of the recent Olympic games, was presented to King Gustav of Sweden and heard that monarch say, "You, sir, are the most wonderful athlete in the world." It was no idle or merely polite compliment, but a plain statement of fact, and every one of us sons of Uncle Sam should rejoice that the honor has fallen to a real, dyed in the wool native—an American redskin!

Four years ago, when Thorpe entered Carlisle, he was just an unknown Indian. He had never competed in athletic track sports, though he had played a little football and baseball. He did excel as a hunter and was known among the "home folks" as an excellent shot. Long trips on the trail and weeks of camping out and roughing it added speed and endurance to his natural wonderful physical make-up. Today he is the winner of both the pentathlon and the decathlon, recognized for over 2,000 years as the most important events in the Olympic list.

As an all round athlete he is supreme, his record eclipsing even the great performances of the wonderful Martin Sheridan. Thorpe is a Sac and Fox Indian, was born in Oklahoma, and it was from Sprague, in that state, that he entered Carlisle. He stands over six feet in height, weighs about 178 pounds stripped and is "hard as nails." At Carlisle he soon distinguished himself by his athletic prowess, but on the football field was looked upon as a marvel. Coach Warner says he is the best halfback he has ever seen, and the whole football world knows of his wonderful ability to kick goals. He is the captain of this year's eleven. Thorpe is also a crackerjack player at hockey, tennis, lacrosse, handball and basketball and on the baseball field can not only cover most any position, but has pitched well enough to have received offers from the major leagues.—Ed A. Goewey in Leslie's.

Australian English.

"There are many English dialects," said a visiting Australian, "and some of them are so peculiar that the man who knows only the real English or the Canadian form finds it difficult of comprehension. But as a rule the vocabulary is identical, it matters not whether the speaker be an Irishman, Scotchman or Canadian. But in Australia we are evolving an English of our own, and Professor Morris has published a dictionary of the language." While the words may have been slang at first, they have been adopted after years of use, and so The Sydney Bulletin has offered a prize for the best poem written in Australian English, the condition being that it should not be understood by others than Australians.

Take Every Precaution

Eyestrain sometimes comes on so gradually that the individual does not realise his trouble until it has reached a serious stage.

In fact there are many effects of eyestrain that only a physician would trace to their true source.

The man who does a great deal of work with his eyes, should be on the watch for the first indications of strain, and do everything possible to prevent it from occurring

Sometimes the eyes are in such an irritable condition that the wearing of the ordinary "flat" lenses produces great discomfort. Light is reflected from the rear surfaces of the lenses and the eyes are wearied by unconciously trying to focus on these reflections.

Then when looking to either side the edges of such lenses annoy the eyes

These irritations are avoided when you wear Toric Lenses. You are not taking every possible precaution against eyestrain if you do not get a pair of Torics.

All lenses ground on the premises

FOUR PROPOSITIONS ARE OUTLINED BY THE SEYMOUR COMPANY'S REPRESENTATIVES

Ald. Johnston Fears That Council is Drifting Away From Hydro Electric But Ald. Morgan Says "We've Got to be Convinced" "We Can Weight Both Propositions" Remarks Ald. Buller.

As a result of the meeting last night, between officers and legal advisors of the Seymour Power Company and the City Council, the Council has four offers to consider

These offers were given in outline last night by two of the Company's solicitors, but will be put in concrete form and submitted to the Council for a meeting next Tuesday night.

The outstanding offer of the company, is that the consolidated interests of the company, viz, the Peterboro Light and Power Company, the Peterborough Radial Railway, the Otonabee Power Company and the Gas Plant, be operated at fixed rates, the same to be agreed upon by the ctiy and the company with the city represented on the Board of Control, and to share in the profits and to have the right to purchase the complete system at the end of ten years, or successive periods of ten years.

Another proposition is for the the company to sell their Peterborough Light and Power plant without the Council taking, as is their privilege, expropriation proceedings.

The company too, will take into consideration the disposal of the Peterboro Light and Power plant to the city, and not be a competitive force with other power against the city.

Another offer is that the city purchase the interests of the company in Peterborough, and the company supply power for the operation of same.

The deputation from the Power Company, consisted of the President, Mr. J. G. G. Kerry, Mr. A. B. Colville, of Campbellford and Mr. Straugton Johnston of Toronto, solicitors of the company, Mr. A. A. Mulholland, Mr. R. R. Hall and Mr. W. H. Munro.

As an introduction, Mr. Johnston reviewed the operations of the company in Peterborough, and their relations to Peterborough by franchise and agreement. Their interests were the Peterborough Light and Power Company, the Otonabee Power Company, the Peterborough Radial Railway and the Gas Plant.

"You have the right to expropriate the Peterborough Light & Power Company," said Mr. Johnston We got our medicine and we're ready to take it, but whether you take the plant or part of it, we have by our 30 year agreement, the right to use your streets for distribution purposes.

Mr. Johnston pointed out that should the city take expropriation proceedings, the company would take steps to erect a new distribution system.

Then too, the question of damages was to be considered besides the purchase price of $58,000 for the plant. The company could not consider the price of $58,000 at all. The plant [illegible] $150,000. With the city gaining the plant by expropriation, the company would enter competition. "Does a fight do any of us any good," asked Mr. Johnston. "Sometimes" added a voice.

Proceeding, Mr. Johnston said the company would consolidate all the interests in Peterborough, have a fair scale of rates, give the city representation on the Board of Control, and agree to the adjustment of rates, by any reasonable Board. The profits would be divided between the city and the company, and the city could purchase this combination of utilities at the end of ten years or succeeding periods of ten years.

In the meantime all the financing would fall on the company.

"Are you prepared to fix a price for which you are willing to sell out that part which we have the right to expropriate?" asked His Worship of Mr Johnston.

"Yes providing you are willing to give reasonable terms as to the time it shall become effective," replied Mr. Johnston.

Ald Gordon asked if the company would be willing to submit their rates to the Hydro-Electric Commission, to which Mr. Johnston replied that the company would submit a proposal, and the Council could do what they wished, but the company did not feel they had been treated fairly by Mr. Beck.

Ald Gordon contended that as the city had been dealing with Mr Beck it was only fair that he should be consulted.

Mr Johnston—We are ready to reduce our proposition to concrete form and submit it. The proposition is yours to do what you like with.

Mr. Colville explained that with the joint operation of the utilities, a sinking fund could be established by which the city in time to come could purchase the whole syste.. This was a popular scheme in the States, with the view to municipal ownership. The city shared in the profits and did not need capital.

Mr Johnston added that if the proposition went through, the company would give the city the right to buy out all the interests at the end of say ten years, and exclude the company forever.

The Otonabee Power Company came into the discussion, but the Mayor remarked that the privilege was given the company to sell to the city, but they sold to the Seymour Company. That franchise expired in 1914 and said the Mayor, "we don't need to worry about the Otonabee Power Company and the shareholders.

The statement of His Worship was an answer to the letter which recently appeared in the press of the city

Mr Colville introduced the Peterborough Radial Railway question of extensions with the statement that the company had not felt certain that capital was safe in the venture owing to the possibility of expropriation proceedings. However, with the city and the company interested in the consolidation of interests the company would view very feasibly the extension of the railway to Chemong, or perhaps Lakefield or wherever the traffic warranted the same.

"Are we not getting away from the subject—the Hydro-Electric"—asked Ald. Johnston, after the deputation had departed. The members of the Council did not think so Ald. Buller held that it was not a question of wavering. The Council could take the two propositions and weigh them.

"Is the Council going to lay aside the Hydro proposition?" asked Ald. Johnston.

'No not at all," answered the Mayor.

"WE'LL HAVE TO BE CONVINCED FIRST," remarked Ald. Morgan.

"BUNTY PULLS THE STRINGS" COMING

Peterborough is to have one more performance of "Bunty Pulls the Strings," the beautiful idyl of Scotch village life and has practically the same excellent company of Scotch players who won their way into the hearts of everybody on their first local visit last season. In "Bunty Pulls the Strings" the illusion given by the bonnie players is a complete, believable, human and natural impersonation heightened and colored by expert and practical skill with historic resource and in the arts of the theatre. The whole effect is of a very acute and artistic feeling of naturalness, [illegible] individual impersonation with the unity of the whole performance. There is not one discordant note. The seat sale opens to-morrow (Thursday) morning.

"A GIRL OF THE UNDERWORLD"

"A Girl of the Underworld," a comedy drama in four acts will play at the Grand Opera House, Thanksgiving Day, Monday, Oct. 28th, matinee and night. There is a touch of nature throughout the four acts of this beautiful play that is wonderfully realistic in every detail. It is a lesson, it is a sermon, it is a teaching. Every man, woman, girl and boy should see and hear it: It is not a religious sermon, but a strong deed that works itself out to goodness. Nixon Greely Smith, one of the greatest writers of the present age says this topic should be floated from house to house and that is what "The Girl of the Underworld" confesses in an entertaining way. You will laugh, then wonder at your surprises. "A Girl of the Underworld" is as true to life as nature. If you have seen "The Old Homestead" and liked it, then you will doubly like this beautifully artistic play, "A Girl of the Underworld."

GERALDINE O'BRIEN IN "EXCUSE ME"

In "Excuse Me," the rapidly moving farce which Henry W. Savage will offer at the Grand to-morrow (Thursday) evening, there are all the suggestions of the rapid motion of a fast speeding train. Mr. Savage is sending the farce success here directly from the Gaiety Theatre in New York, where it ran a season, and from the Studebaker Theatre, Chicago, where it ran three months. The company will be a remarkable one, including Willis [illegible] Sweatman, Geraldine O'Brien and many others. Charles Darnton in the New York Evening World, referred to the play as "A whole carload of fun." The action all takes place in Pullman cars on an Overland Limited train.

MR. LANGLEY IS TENNIS CHAMPION

The final game in the City Tennis Tournament, singles, was played Monday afternoon between G. R. Langley and Fred Cressman and resulted in a win for Langley by the score of 4-6, 6-2, 6-2. Owing to the unprecedented wet weather of the past summer the interest taken in the tournament has not been keen, and resulted in there being a large number of defaults. Mr. Langley, however, deserves credit for having won all his games by the only sure route, by playing them on the courts to a finish. The Association committee regret having found it necessary to default so many of the entrants but otherwise the tournament could never have been brought to a conclusion. As it was each entrant was given every opportunity of playhis game had he so desired, as the pairing of each round has invariably been posted in the local papers. To win the laurel crown the victor had to overcome such experts at the game as the following, the scores being given in such match: First round—W. H. Collier, 6-1, 6-2; 2nd round—W. Stratton, 6-1, 6-4; 3rd round—W. Pratt, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2; 4th round—S. L. M. Henderson, 6-3, 6-4; semi-final, H. Cluxton, 6-0, 6-4; final, F. Cressman, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

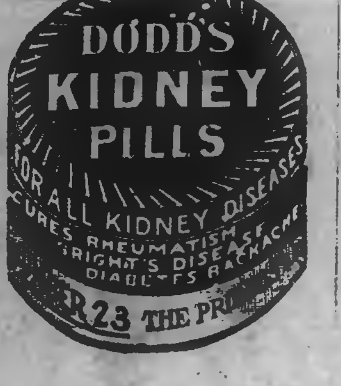
In the Employed Boys' Basketball League, Gray's team defeated Feinbergs' 6—4, and Florence defeated Montgomery's outfit 2—1. Referee, Loomis.

In the Intermediate class league Bruce Hamilton's team outplayed Darling's aggregation and won by a score of 15 to 6. Referee, E. Hanwell.

The games scheduled for this afternoon in the Junior Boys' League will be Green and Thompson, and Eagle and Gumpricht.

The Senior Class Basketball League will open to-night when E. Hanwell's team will clash with W. Flowers' aggregation at 9.15. The teams are very evenly matched in this league and some good games should result.

A Cuffe has entered the junior road race for Thanksgiving Day.



BASEBALL AS A BUSINESS.

It Is Said to Be a Richer Mine Than the Stock Exchange.

The people of the United States spend approximately $15,000,000 a year to see baseball games. The total number of persons registered at all professional ball games during a season reaches 50,000,000.

So rapid has been the growth of baseball enthusiasm that—so we are told by Edward Mott Woolley—owners of baseball teams predict the time when the aggregate of baseball patronage, including major and minor leagues, will be 300,000,000. They believe baseball to be still in its infancy, and on this prophecy they are staking their cash in monster stadiums of iron and stone and laying out business plans to take care of their profits that they count up in the millions.

As a business investment we are assured baseball has United States steel and all the stocks quoted on the Stock Exchange "beaten to a frazzle." Baseball magnates, Mr. Woolley goes on to explain in McClure's, pay salaries of $10,000, $12,000, $15,000, even $18,000, to their managers and players. One baseball magnate paid no less than $22,000 bonus for the right to employ a single player.

Millionaires like Charles P. Taft, brother of the president, invest in base ball franchises as they do in railroads and industrials. Mr. Taft, backed by his wife's fortune, is the Morgan of American baseball, his investments reaching into the millions. Baseball, we are told, is a business, a wonder business.—Current Literature.

The Barber—One of our customers had his rheumatism cured by mud baths.

The Customer—No good to me. I've stood as a candidate in two elections, and my rheumatism is as bad as ever!—London Opinion.

Hard Work.

"Wealth has its penalties," said the ready made philosopher.

"Yes," replied Cumrox. "I'd rather be back at the dear old factory than learning to pronounce the names of the old masters in my picture gallery."—Washington Star.

The Result.

"It is queer how successful Jack Jaggs is in borrowing money. But, then, everybody likes him because he has such a breezy way with him."

"I suppose that is why he is able to raise the wind."—Exchange.

Good Suggestion.

Scalp Massage.

A thorough course of massage to the scalp will do much toward improving the hair. The finger tips may be dipped into sweet almond oil or a stimulating lotion before massaging. Combing and brushing the hair are other points.

Master of Draghounds.

Mr. A. W. Perkin, who is known in Middlesex as the "Squire of Greenford," has just retired after being Master of the Greenford Draghounds for a quarter of a century. Drag hunting, as described by Mr. Perkin, is a fascinating sport, and it is surprising that it does not become more popular.

"I formed the Greenford Draghunt in 1885, and it was limited to twenty five members, most of whom were Middlesex farmers. We used to meet weekly, and hunted through the Harrow, Hendon, Beaconsfield, and Slough districts. In addition to this we held once a year a Point-to-Point meeting at my place at Greenford Green.

"We don't hunt animals, but a man [illegible] on his horse. We give him a fair start, and then chase him for all we are worth. If we are successful in hunting him down we give the hounds some horseflesh to tear to pieces. The sport is a magnificent one, and in many ways better than foxhunting because there is no possibility of not having any thing to hunt.

Police Strike Over.

Lethbridge, Oct. 22.—The Lethbridge police force are in good working shape again. Several of the strikers have reconsidered their position and are back on duty to-day. Reinforcements arrived from Calgary yesterday afternoon. Sergts. Brown and Geoghegan have been discharged.

A PROPOSAL.

To the Summer Girl, Who Sets One's Heart Awhirl.

[From an admirer who isn't too exacting.]

Summer girl, oh, summer girl, you have set my heart awhirl! With your lips so cherry red you've completely turned my head. To your alabaster brow I make everlasting vow, and the gold glint of your hair is my joy and my despair.

Summer girl, oh, summer girl, you are fit for belted earl! (If the earl I chance to see you can bet he'll belted be!) You are fit to grace a throne, for Love's empire's all your own, and no monarch would disdain such a queen to share his reign.

Summer girl, oh, summer girl, you oyster you're the pearl! Who can dance like unto thee? Every step is poetry. When you laugh or when you sing 'tis like angels murmuring. When the gardens you pass by, roses weep in jealousy.

Summer girl, oh, summer girl, who'd not love thee is a churl! Who'd deride thee is a crab, with a spirit drear and drab. Who, indeed, could criticise one possessed of azure eyes like to those twin orbs of thine, with their depths so crystalline?

Summer girl, oh, summer girl, at thy feet my all I hurl! I care not how many swains lie imprisoned in your chains, let me have for my small part just one-twentieth of your heart. Let me be your fiance every other Saturday.—Judge.

The Gentler Sex.

Senator Luke Lea, who recently saved his wife's life by surrendering himself to the formidable operation for transfusion of blood, was congratulated in Washington about his marital devotion.

"Yes," he said, "we still marry in the old fashioned way down in Tennessee. The mariage de convenance hasn't reached us yet. We're not at all, we Tennesseeans, like the Gobsa Goldes.

"Gobsa Golde, at the age of fifty-four years, married a beautiful chorus girl of seventeen. That was ten years ago, and the other day a caller said to Mrs. Golde, 'I really believe you're fonder of your husband now than you were when you first married him.'

"'Why, of course I am,' Mrs. Gobsa Golde replied. 'My husband is richer now than he was then.'"—Kansas City Star.

Militant Tactics.

"But what shall we do if the police interfere with us?" asked the novice.

"Police!" sneered the suffragette leader. "If the police dare to disturb you knock their helmets off, pull their hair, claw their faces, scream and howl at them. They won't hurt you."

"But suppose some ugly drunken men should try to tear our clothes, throw missiles at us and threaten us with bodily harm?"

"Oh, in that case you'll call on the police to show themselves gentlemen and protect you."—Buffalo Express.

For One Thing.

"It is said that Indians never laugh. Is that true?"

"I believe so."

"What is the explanation—or is there any?"

"Well, for one thing, their women never come out in the latest styles from Paris."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Motives Obscured.

"If we women had the vote matters would be simplified."

"I don't know," replied Miss Cayenne. "They might be more complex. When a man sent us candy and flowers we wouldn't know whether he was leading up to a proposal or merely electioneering."—Washington Star.

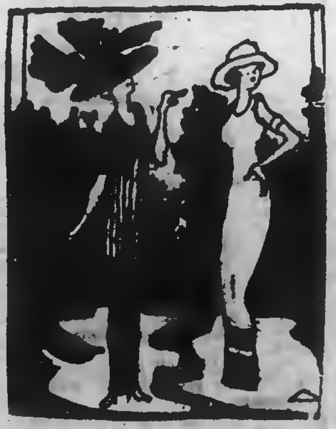
The Friend of the People.

Mr. Pompus (to butler)—I'm expecting a deputation at 12 o'clock to ask me to stand for the borough!

Butler—Yes, sir.

Mr. Pompus—Perhaps it would be as well to remove all the best umbrellas from the hat stand!—London Opinion

Good Counsel.



"I'm going to bleach my hair."
"Keep it dark!"—Satire.

Deftly Done.

"Have you ever seen yourself a case where the less could contain the greater?"

"Certainly. I've seen my wife, who is a large woman, go with ease through my smallest pocket."—Exchange.

Friendly Questions.

"They turned the X ray on my brain at the hospital, but found nothing."

"What did they expect?"—Baltimore American.

The Simple Life.

Patience—And do they live simply?

Patrice—Oh, yes; they simply live, that's all.—Yonkers Statesman.

A SOCIETY WANDER SONG.

This quiet life is beastly dull.
  I'm getting quite blase from it.
I wish I were a blooming gull;
  I'd quickly fly away from it.
For in my heart there is a flame—
  A longing rawther hot, you know—
To plunge into this wander game
  And—all that bally rot, you know.

I'm greatly bored with clubs and such.
  I'm sick of smart society.
I'm yearning pretty blawsted much
  For change and for variety.
I feel a throbbing in my veins
  That makes me wish to trot, you know
Across the hills, across the plains
  And—all that bally rot, you know.

To be a gypsy would, I'm sure,
  Affect me rawther piquantly,
Although I understand they're poor
  And wash themselves infrequently.
Or I could sail the open sea—
  It's really done a lot, you know—
Where I could be alive and free
  And—all that bally rot, you know.

Ah, yes, the fever's in my blood!
  The lust to leave is stirring me,
But beastly heat or cold or mud
  Or wind keeps on deterring me.
The weather will not let me start.
  It chains me to the spot, you know.
But, ah, the dream that's in my heart
  And—all that bally rot, you know!
—Life.

Beaten a Mile.

Vicar—The most wonderful organ I ever saw was the property of a private gentleman. It had nearly a hundred stops.

Sexton—Um! The most remarkable organ I ever heard is my old woman's tongue. It ain't got no stops at all.—Tatler.

The Mathematician.

"Say, that fellow out there at the high desk has a regular mathematical face. Your head bookkeeper, I guess?"

"Not exactly. Just one of the clerks I think he's the one that figures out the batting percentages for the rest of the office."—St. Louis Republic.

NEWS FROM OMEMEE

Special Correspondence

Omemee, Oct. 21.—Mr. J. A. Wylie, of Toronto, is holidaying with his Omemee friends.

On Tuesday of last week there was laid to rest in Emily Cemetery the remains of the late Theodore McQuade, son of Mr. George McQuade. The deceased was in his 26th year and was a young man of good qualities and gave much promise of useful citizenship, but in his health and strength he was called away. The sudden death of this young man has greatly saddened the hearts of the people of the village and the community to whom he was well and favorably known. To the bereaved ones the warmest sympathy is extended by all.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church will hold an entertainment and serve refreshments on Wednesday evening of this week.

The new armory is being erected with all possible dispatch. It is situated on the street leading from King street to the Public and High School and will be a modern construction.

Mr. Stewart Chambers, who was not very well the last of the week, was able to resume his duties Monday morning.

Mr. Jack Murray came up from Peterborough for over Sunday with his parents.

Rev. P. B. Thornton, of Colborne, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. F. B. Sandy. His numerous friends are pleased to learn that his condition is improved. A term of absolute rest is essential for his complete restoration.

Owing to the absence of Rev. D. H. Currie from town on Sunday, the evening service in the Presbyterian church was taken by an out of town clergyman.

Mr. R. A. Barron has returned to Bracebridge.

The Boys' Guild of the Presbyterian church was re-organized and held its first meeting on Friday evening.

Mrs. John Weir is convalescing satisfactorily and was able to go out for a drive a few days ago.

The late Wm. McCaffrey, who with his wife, two children and his mother, were drowned in Pigeon River on a fishing expedition, left an estate valued at $14,000. It will be divided equally among his father, two brothers and seven sisters.

Mr. Henry Laidley's new residence on George street, north, is nearing completion.

The continued scarcity of coal is causing some uneasiness and no little anxiety as the cold weather approaches. Our local dealers have been able to secure only a small fraction of their orders, some of which were booked as early as last May.

Mrs. W. Langton and Miss Isabel Handley, of Mount Pleasant, called on Omemee friends the first of the week.

Next Sunday the Presbyterians will hold their anniversary services. A fowl supper and an interesting lecture by Dr. Nugent will be the bill of good things for the evening of the following day, Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. Eli Dancey is in Lindsay this week as a juryman.

Citizens went up to Lindsay on Thursday evening to the play "Bunty Pulls the Strings." They spoke in high terms of it.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McLean, of Mount Pleasant, autoed out on Sunday to call on his brother of Omemee.

Mr. Havelock Fee, of Lindsay, was home for over the week end.

Men Over 45 Not Wanted By Corporations

Man With Good Head of Hair Has Best Chance in Life

Men Over 45 Need Not Apply

There's the sign that's getting to be a common thing in Canada.

Corporations are retiring men at 50. They are not hiring anyone over 40.

A baldheaded man often looks 20 years older than he is.

A man with gray hair always does.

It is important nowadays that a man look as young as he is; it is vastly important that a man having a family dependent upon him should take care of his hair.

If you have dandruff, get rid of it by killing the germs.

If your hair is falling out, stop it.

If your hair is fading, don't waste any time.

There is one sure remedy that will correct these misfortunes and aid you to remain young.

PARISIAN SAGE, the grand and efficient hair restorer, is guaranteed to permanently remove dandruff in two weeks, or your money back.

PARISIAN SAGE stops falling hair—it prevents the hair from fading. It is not a dye.

It is the best beautifier for ladies' hair as it makes harsh, lusterless fair fluffy, soft and beautiful and is not sticky or greasy.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I have been noticing several letters in the press lately with reference to the Workingman's Co-operative stores.

I understand that a large number of men gathered together last Saturday for the purpose of starting such a store in Peterborough, for, as they say, to keep down the high cost of living. Their reason is a good one, but first of all, have they considered carefully whether this can be done?

I believe that it is their intention first to operate a grocery store, so I will start with that first.

If the principals or organizers would first make careful inquiries as to the prices that goods can be bought and the prices to be retailed, and the workingman informed of the facts there would be no fear of such a store starting of that nature in Peterborough. I will therefore state a few facts to show that it would be impossible to sell goods at less than is being charged now. Take for instance, Comfort Soap, wholesale price in case lots of 100 bars, $4.25. To this add the freight and cartage. Then it is being sold at 6 bars for 25c, which is a loss of 10c. per case not considering the loss of wrapping paper, cord, help, and delivering.

Take Kellog's Corn Flakes, cost 95 cents a dozen, or 8 cents a package. These are selling in the city for three packages for 25 cents, and I could go on and cite nearly everything handled in the grocery line. Sugar is another thing. It is handled on a low margin of 6 per cent, and nearly everything sold in a grocery store at 10 cents costs the retail merchant 95 cents a dozen. With these figures any workingman should be able to see that it would be impossible to lower the cost of things even by having stores of their own.

There is another bad feature of the Co-operative store, which no doubt has been entirely overlooked and that is the fact that it is impossible to get a charter in Canada, and as a consequence they can get no credit from any wholesale house.

A great many of these Co-operative stores started business throughout Canada, and in most cases have proved a failure, and the workingmen who put their money into them lost it all.

This fact has been demonstrated only about two weeks ago when another large Co-operative store in North Bay was wound up, having been a complete failure.

It would be wise for the workingman of Peterborough to closely inquire into these facts before putting his hard earned cash into it, for this is one way that may raise the cost of living instead of lowering it.

Yours,

A ONE-TIME GROCER

KILLING LITERATURE

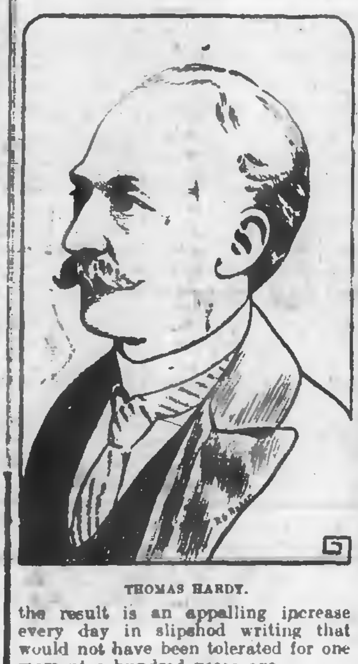
SLIPSHOD WRITERS ARE A MENACE, SAYS THOMAS HARDY.

Dean of English Authors Says Hurried Descriptive Reporting In the Newspapers Is Slowly Killing the Taste for Real Literature—Every Incentive to Good Writing Is of Immense Value to the Race.

Thomas Hardy, England's foremost living novelist, recently expressed himself on the subject of literature.

"An appreciation of what is real literature and efforts to keep real literature alive have become imperative if the taste for it is not to be entirely lost," he says, "and, with the loss of that taste, its longer life in the English language.

"While millions have lately been learning to read, few of them have been learning to discriminate, and the result is an appalling increase every day in slipshod writing that would not have been tolerated for one moment a hundred years ago.



THOMAS HARDY.

"I don't like to say so, but I fear that the vast increase of hurried descriptive reporting in the newspapers is largely responsible for this.

"Every kind of reward, prize or grant, therefore, which urges omnivorous readers and incipient writers toward appreciating the splendors of English undefiled and the desire of producing such for themselves is of immense value."

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost is the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are thing and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes on receipt of price, fifty cents. B. V. The Monopolistic Risdon Family.

One of the prettiest midsummer customs in England is observed at the delightful Devon village of Holsworthy. By the will of a former vicar the sum of £2 10s. is provided annually, which the churchwardens must "openly give to the young single woman resident in the parish who is generally esteemed by the young men as the most handsome and most noted for her quietness and attendance at church." The prize, which is publicly presented in the church porch, has been won during recent successive years by four good looking and good living young damsels who belong to a family named Risdon.—London Chronicle.

Hon. F. D. Monk will go to Atlantic City for a three weeks holiday.

Keir Hardie's Wit.

Keir Hardie, the Scotch Labor leader who sits for a Welsh seat in the British Parliament, has been visiting Canada recently. When he was interviewed he was responsible for the following epigrammatic sentences:

"I had one business deal with Andrew Carnegie. We haven't spoken since, but I still think him a very good business man."

"Cleanliness is not much of a recommendation to the poor. The cleanest places they know of are the workhouse and the hospital."

"The most useless thing on this earth is a man who has to worry over keeping his job."

"There are three sizes of clothing made in England—boys', grown men's, and mill workers', who have no chance to grow."

"The only way to get real enjoyment out of life is to lead it for other people's sakes."

"A good part of the society game seems to be giving a dinner you can't afford in return for one you didn't want."

"People here talk of the 'quick legislation' in England. It took us twenty-six years to get the eight-hour labor bill for coal miners passed into law."

"The bicycle has done more to reform the Scotch pit-boy than all the churches put together."

An Employer's Liability Policy

MIGHT SAVE YOU HEAVY DAMAGES

While an accident may be due to an employee's own carelessness, still there's no certainty that the employer will not have to pay heavy damages. New legislation too is steadily increasing the responsibility of the employer. But an Employer's Liability Policy in the General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would protect you against financial loss through injuries to an employee while on duty. The General Accident Assurance Company of Canada would deal justly with your employee too. It is noted for fairness and broadmindedness. It is one of the oldest and strongest Insurance Companies in the world. Do not delay to write for further particulars.

Injuries in the industrial world are frequent. In the building, metal and woodworking trades alone there were 294 people killed and 1,421 injured in Canada during 1910 and 1911. Our business is to relieve the employer of all financial responsibility resulting from accident.

AN IMAGINARY FIRE IN SCHOOLS OF THE CITY

Pupils Respond in Quich Time and Without Confusion When Alarm Sounds

Fire Chief Howard made his annual tour of inspection of all the city schools yesterday afternoon. The Chief was accompanied by His Worship Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Alderman G. A. Gillespie, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and Alderman G. N. Gordon.

NO CONFUSION

The party arrived first at the Central school about 1.40 p.m. The Chief sounded the fire alarm in the hallway of the school and the children were marched out in very orderly manner, without the slightest trace of confusion. All the classes consisting of 350 scholars were marched out into the playgrounds in 67 seconds. This is considered a remarkably good showing in school fire drill and demonstrates the wisdom of this practice, which by the way, is conducted regularly and irregularly throughout the year by the teachers and principals in all the schools of the city.

BETTER TIME THIS YEAR

This annual trip in 1911 was made on December 12th and the time made at the Central school was 64 seconds, which is 7 seconds better this year than a year ago, with thirty more scholars in attendance. Fire Drill in a public school is a very interesting and amusing sight to see. The teachers and scholars enter into the practice with considerable enthusiasm. His Worship the Mayor and the Aldermen, were deeply interested and expressed themselves as being highly delighted with the showing and complimented the teachers and scholars upon their efficiency.

The party then proceeded to the East Ward school, thence to the West Ward school, to Queen Alexandra school and so on, finishing up about 3.45 o'clock in the afternoon at St. Peter's school. It will be observed by the time given below that several of the schools made a better showing this year than they did last year—

	Time 1911	Time 1912
Central School
1911—320 scholars	64
1912—350 scholars		57
West Ward School
1911—178 scholars	47
1912—180 scholars		35

1912—325 scholars		42
East Ward School
1911—200 scholars	40
1912—200 scholars		37
South Ward School
1911—450 scholars	50
1912—440 scholars		46
King Edward School
1911—420 scholars	40
1912—400 scholars		43

1911—250 scholars	42
1912—255 scholars		37
St. Mary's School
1911—220 scholars	58
1912—225 scholars		53
St. Peter's School
1911—280 scholars	64
1912—285 scholars		70

IT WAS A SURPRISE

For the benefit of parents who have children attending the city schools, we would mention the fact that the principals and teachers of the different schools take a great deal of pains in the instruction of fire drill. None of the teachers and scholars knew that they were to be called out yesterday for this purpose, the arrangement for the visiting of the schools only being made a few minutes prior to starting. The Fire Chief also conducts the fire drill at odd times during the year. Should anything go wrong with the furnace and heating systems of any of the schools and the building become filled with smoke or a real fire occur, it is important that the schools should be cleared without the slightest danger of panic.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor of The Review.—

Sir,—The crowd in the Opera House on Sunday night, after church services, gives evidence that much interest has been stirred up by the entertainments given by Rev. Mr. Mayers and his ten trained boys.

The silver toned bells pleased many, and the variety of the instruments, admirably accompanied by the piano, made beautiful music, but we think that the boys themselves were the chief interest, and are glad that such disciplined and taught young emigrants should come to settle and spend their lives in Canada. We wish them well.

WEDDING BELLS

MANN — SIMMONS

An exceptionally pretty house wedding took place last evening when Miss Mary Simmons, the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen W. Simmons, and Dr. John Burritt Mann, were married at the home of the bride's parents, 183 Roberts Avenue. The ceremony occurred at eight o'clock and was performed by the Rev. W. Ewart Mounteney, pastor of the Morsemere Baptist church.

Miss Christenah Simmons, the bride's younger sister, was her maid-of-honor and only attendant. Lieutenant Allan Mann of the Prince of Wales Dragoons of Canada was his brother's best man. There were no ushers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father with whom she entered the drawing room, where the marriage was celebrated. Her gown was of cream satin charmeuse trimmed with cream duchess lace. She wore a long tulle veil and carried white roses. Miss Christenah Simmons wore a blue charmeuse gown.

Immediately following the ceremony an informal reception was held. A collation was served. The house was very attractively decorated. The aunt of the bride, Mrs. Folwell, of Port Washington, L. I., played the wedding marches and music.

Some of the guests present were Father Gilbert Simmons, an uncle of the bride, Dr. and Mrs. Sidney A. Beckwith, the bride's sister, Prof. John Simmons, a brother of the bride, and Mrs. John Simmons, Professor and Mrs. Bull and family, Mrs. Halpin, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Love, Miss Love, Miss Trube, Miss Piser and Miss Andrew.

Dr. Mann is a resident of Peterborough, Ont., Canada, and after a short honeymoon, he and his bride will make their home there. Mrs. Mann is a graduate of Teachers' college, Columbia University. A number of her classmates attended her wedding. Her engagement to Dr. Mann was announced last season. Some very delightful entertainments have been given for Dr. and Mrs. Mann. Among them was a large reception given Tuesday evening by Dr. and Mrs. Beckwith.—Yonkers N.Y., Daily News.

Mrs. Elijah Windover, the mother of the young man who discovered the body of Ernest Thornton, on Monday afternoon, was in the city today.

Mrs. Windover says it was her son Deyncourt, who found the body, and not Ernest, as first reported. Deyncourt, when he arrived home from camp and learned that Ernest Thornton was missing, left his home on Monday morning and came across the body in the afternoon.

Mrs. Windover remarked that there were many wolves in the woods and that six sheep belonging to Mr. Windover had been killed by these animals.

DECISIVE BATTLE BEING FOUGHT BY BULGARIANS AND TURKS

No Trustworthy Indications as to the Ultimate Result.

Servians Defeated by Turks Who Are Following up Victory.

Special To The Review.

London, Oct. 24— What may prove one of the decisive battles of the world is undoubtedly being fought between the Bulgarians and Turks around Adrianople, but news regarding it, is of the scantiest, The Times military expert says—Official bulletins from each side are not definite and give no trustworthy indications as to the ultimate result.

Early successes of the Bulgarians as the attacking side, were to be expected.

A report from Constantinople this morning, says the Servian army, operating near Kumanova, which is on the road to Uskup, has been completely defeated by the Turkish troops. The Servians, believed to have been comprised of four strong divisions, suffered enormous loss and are now being energetically pursued by the Turks.

BULGARIAN VICTORY.

Sofia, Oct. 24.—After three days' strenuous fighting, the Bulgarian army has captured Kirk Kilisseh. This is the universe road to Adrianople.

Athens, Oct. 24.—(1.45 a.m.)—The Greeks have occupied the town of Servia, and have also captured the bridge over the River Aliakmon (Indje Karasa), thereby cutting off the retreat of the Turks. The Government has despatched telegrams congratulating the commander and troops.

Victories at Heavy Cost.

London, Oct. 24.—The news from the seat of war last night tells of the continued successes of the allies. The Servians have captured Novipazar, and are the virtual masters of Kumanova. The victories, however, have been purchased at heavy sacrifices.

The situation in Thrace is becoming clearer. A great battle is being fought over a wide semi-circular front before Adrianople, upon which town the Bulgarians are gradually closing in. On the east they have occupied Vasilika and Tirnovo, and are continuing their advance southward.

On the west the Bulgarians, according to official Sofia accounts, have reached the Arda River, close to Adrianople, which is being vigorously bombarded. Already the two outer forts have fallen. Some positions to the north of Adrianople are also said to have been taken after fighting of the severest character.

Of the army in the centre operating in the direction of Kirk-Kilisseh there was no news yesterday, and evidently that fortress is still holding out.

It is significant that last night's Constantinople despatches, which say that a decisive result is expected today, have a less confident tone than previous despatches from that capital, while they admit a heavy struggle, in which both sides are showing the utmost bravery.

Information concerning the Montenegrin progress is meagre, but the Turkish authorities claim that Scutari has been reinforced and is safe.

A Saloniki despatch asserts that the Malisorri tribesmen are offended because the Montenegrin commanders are proclaiming the sovereignty of King Nicholas in the captured Albanian towns. They demand that King Nicholas give a guarantee that he evacuate Albanian territory and secure autonomy for Albania. So far they have received no satisfactory reply, and it is reported that they are refusing to fight further for the Montenegrins, whose absence has been thereby checked.

The next news of the Greek campaign should be an important battle around the town of Servia, to which place the Turks have retreated from Elassona, and have been reinforced from the north.

About 1,000 Bulgarian prisoners of war have arrived in Constantinople, according to a special despatch from the Turkish capital.

Greek Boy Seeks Revenge.

London, Ont., Oct. 24.—Determined to have revenge for the killing by the Turks of his mother, three little brothers, and two sisters, Alexis Vegos, aged 17, a young Greek, who recently came here from Toronto, where he was employed in a restaurant, has left for the front.

He recently received a letter from his father, asking him to come back and fight with him. The two Vegos only escaped death by the merest chance, being absent in the hills hunting when a party of marauding Turks burned their home and killed all they found there.

Took Cyanide by Mistake.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Oct. 24.—Bradley Marblex, 17 years old, employed in Peter Croy's drug store, was found dead in the photographic dark room of the store yesterday afternoon. It is believed he took cyanide by mistake, as that poison was found in the dead youth's stomach.

JOHN SCHRANK

The above is a good likeness of John Schrank, who shot Colonel Roosevelt in Milwaukee. The would-be assassin has pleaded guilty and his trial will be held some time between November 11th and 15th.

MURDER CASE HINGES ON SCHEPPS RELATION TO BECKER

Judge Has Doubts as to Whether Schepps Was an Accomplice.

Special To The Review.

New York, October 24.—Judge Goff finished charging the jury in the Becker trial at 1.55 o'clock, and said the case hinged on whether Sam Schepps was an accomplice. He had doubts on the question himself, and refused to influence the jury. He said Rose, Vallon and Webber were accomplices, and Becker couldn't be convicted on the first degree of murder on their evidence, even though it showed Becker instigated the murder.

New York, Oct. 24.—"Do not confuse graft, bribery, and extortion with murder," said Mr. McIntyre, concluding his address to the jury on behalf of Lieut. Becker. "Becker is on trial for murder, and murder alone. In the name of justice and God, I ask you to say that Charles Becker is not guilty of murder in the first degree."

Mr. McIntyre sat down at 2 o'clock, breathless and perspiring, with his collar wilted and his coat awry. He had been speaking for four hours. A moment later the court took a recess until 3 o'clock, the time set for the summing up of the prosecution.

Asistant District Attorney Moss began summing up for the state. "It is of no particular consequence which one of these six men indicted with Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, fired the shot that killed him," Mr. Moss began. "They are all equally guilty. Villification on the part of the defence proceeds from weakness, the weakness of the defence, in an effort to divert attention from the real criminal. Not only by innuendo, but by direct accusation has the district attorney of this county been accused by the defence of misconduct."

Mr. Moss charged Becker's counsel with having misquoted the testimony of Jack Rose and with failure to include Rose's statement that Becker told him [illegible] dered, dynamit[illegible]

Volcanic Eruption Checked Survey.

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—The members of the Dominion Government survey parties engaged all summer between the Porcupine River and the Arctic Ocean have all returned. It was stated that the work of determining the international boundary line was delayed for several weeks by volcanic dust from Mount Katmai.

The eruption was also responsible for a five weeks' delay of survey operations engaged at Glacier Bay.

Arrested for Borrowing Auto.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 24.—Because he took a brand new automobile, presented to Bert Cole by The Niagara Falls Journal in a subscription contest, on a trip to Buffalo without permission Tuesday, Albert Rand, New York, appeared before Magistrate Fraser yesterday charged with stealing the car.

He was remanded for a week. Rand claims to be employed by Jay Gould.

TURKEY CALLS EVERY MAN

Rural Conscripts are Marched to the Front

Special To The Review.

London, Oct. 24—The Daily Mail's Constantinople correspondent says Turkey is putting every available man in the field. Now, the rural conscripts from Asia Minor, staring wild eyed at the sights of the city have been successively paraded in the cities and marched off to the front. Despatches from a Servian source report the capture of part of Kumanova and contradict Turkish reports of a decisive defeat to the Servian army at that place. Montenegro losses, according to the Servian reports, are being greatly exaggerated in the Turkish stories.

BAY OPEN FOR EIGHT MONTHS

Lepas, Man., Oct. 24.—At a complimentary banquet tendered Judge Senkler, stipendiary magistrate for the Northwest Territories, on the occasion of his departure for Vancouver, J. R. Gordon, assistant chief engineer of the Hudson Bay Railway, made the statement that so far as ice is concerned, there would be no trouble operating a grain route via Port Nelson. The Ministerial party found no ice in the Hudson Straits, nor on the coasts of Labrador.

G. Halcrow, a retired factor of the Hudson Bay Co., and a resident for forty years in the district, ridiculed the statement made by eastern papers that navigation by the Hudson Bay route would be impossible for the greater part of the year. From personal observation he believes that navigation can be kept open eight months in the year.

TORONTO POLICE ROUGHLY HANDLE PARADING STUDENTS

Two Hundred 'Varsity Men Are Disorderly After an Initiation and Clash With the Police Reserves—Batons Are Used Too Freely and Many Heads Are Bandaged—One Student Is Locked Up In Station.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—When 200 students from the Toronto University set out late last night to make things lively a fight with the police resulted. Before the Varsity boys had been dispersed, many innocent spectators were struck with batons, revolvers were drawn, one student was arrested, and several constables displayed cuts and bruises.

It was the initiation night in "arts" for the students. After treating the freshmen to a ducking, a covering of flour, etc., the sophomores invited them to parade.

There was no trouble until the students struck Yonge street. Here they turned their attention to the street car service. Trolley poles were pulled off; signs carried away, fenders loosened and pandemonium reigned for a few minutes.

Nearly all of the passengers vacated their seats, willing to forfeit the ride rather than take chances on being hurt. The students then proceeded down Yonge to Richmond street. As they passed along car poles were pulled off the wires. While this was going on a call had been sent in for the police reserves.

At the corner of Richmond and Yonge streets a trolley pole was pulled off. The motorman promptly dropped the fender. But at this point the reserves arrived. They came from all directions, the largest number from Agnes street station.

The police did not spare their batons in the least. In fact they struck at anything, everything and anybody that came within their reach. One or two of the younger constables lost their heads, apparently being intent only on connecting with something. That something in many cases proved to be the person of some passerby who was not looking for trouble.

Colin C. Grant, a sophomore, was attempting to maintain a little order in the student body. Constable Dan Robinson rushed in and put him out of commission with a rap on the head. Colin went down. Robinson stood over him and swung his baton on a few more students.

The aim of a few other constables seemed to be to knock somebody out. A score of the city's night prowlers took a hand. They hurled stones at the police, striking constables in many instances.

The officers became more vicious, and as usual the innocent ones suffered for the trouble caused by those on the outside of the mob.

Taking Grant with them, the police marched along to Agnes street. Here the students closed in. One constable suddenly appeared with a revolver in each hand. Leveling these at the crowd before him he cried: "I'll shoot! I'll shoot!"

Those in the front could not get back, as they were being shoved by the curious people at the rear. The police charged and some more were injured.

Finally Grant was locked up at No. 2. The students declare that the officer in charge made fun at their offers of bail, although he previously said it could be fixed at $100.

HON. MR. NANTEL DENIES STORY

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—Hon. A. B. Nantel, Minister of Inland Revenue, who returned to Ottawa yesterday afternoon from St. Jerome, gives an unqualified denial to the story sent out from Montreal Tuesday night to the effect that Jean Prevost had threatened to take the stump against him in his own constituency unless he resigned his portfolio on the naval question.

"I have not been asked to resign," said Mr. Nantel, "and I have no intention of doing so."

MISS EVANS RE-ARRESTED

Dublin, Oct. 24—Miss Gladys Evans, the militant suffragette, has been re-arrested for failing to report herself to the police as required by the license on which she was recently released from jail. She was remanded for a week, bail being refused.

Miss Evans was sentenced on August 7 to a term of five years' imprisonment on the charge of setting fire to the Theatre Royal here the day before Premier Asquith was to speak on home rule. She was one of the "hunger strikers," and on October 3 was released on the advice of physicians owing to the grave condition of her health. She was ordered, however, to report periodically to the authorities during the remainder of the term.

Dropped Dead at Ninety-One.

St. Catharines, Oct. 24.—While placing a screen in a window Mrs. W. Pay, the oldest United Empire Loyalist descendant in the Niagara district dropped dead, aged 91. The farm in Grantham, where she was born, is now covered by Lake Ontario.

DR. JOHN CLIFFORD

London, Oct. 24—The Daily News states that Dr Clifford, minister of the Baptist church and author, will direct an agitation on the educational question of England, and will lead a passive resistance campaign next year.

ROWELL ASKS SOME QUESTIONS

Lambeth, Ont., Oct. 24.—Mr. N. W. Rowell raised the provincial issue in the East Middlesex campaign at Lambeth last night when he challenged Sir James Whitney, who speaks at Thorndale on Thursday night, to answer the following questions:

1. Why did the Government withdraw from the control of the Legislature the expenditure of $5,000,000 borrowed for the development of Northern Ontario, contrary to the long-established and the fundamental constitutional principle under our British system of Government, that the representatives of the people should retain control of public expenditures by voting each year the annual supplies?

2. Can he give us any precedent for such unconstitutional action in the legislation of the Government of Great Britain since 1688, in the legislation of the Dominion of Canada or of the Province of Ontario, except the partial precedents of the Sandfield-Macdonald Government, when it placed at the disposal of the executive $1,500,000 to aid the building of railways? It is worthy of note that on this issue the Sandfield-Macdonald Government was subsequently defeated.

3. Why did he deny the members of the House the right to interrogate the Ministry on matters of vital public interest, contrary to the long-established and well-set precedents in Great Britain and Canada, and contrary to his own previous practice while Leader of the Opposition?

4. Why did he refuse to give to the House an explanation of his own conduct as Prime Minister in a matter involving a large expenditure of public money, and directly affecting the conduct of elections in the province, namely, whether he sent a telegram to Elk Lake on the 9th of December last, two days before the election, assuring that the Elk Lake branch of the Timiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway would be constructed, a telegram requested and designed to carry the election in the interests of the Government candidate?

GUILTY OF MURDER; SENTENCED TO HANG

After Deliberating For Three Hours the Jury at Lindsay Convicts Arthur A. Ellis and Execution is Set For Jan. 7 Next.

Lindsay, Oct. 24.—Following quickly upon a verdict of guilty, delivered by the jury here last night, Arthur A. Ellis stood up to receive the sentence of death at the hands of Mr. Justice Clute, who decreed that he shall die in the jail yard here on Jan. 7 next.

The jury left the court-room at 4.30 p.m. Ellis had sat calmly through his trial and listened stolidly through the address of counsel, while Mr. Robinette ably pleaded his cause, and through the stinging denunciation of Crown Prosecutor Meredith and while Mr. Justice Clute coldly and dispassionately rehearsed the damning facts against him. As the jury filed from the court room, Ellis was asked what verdict he expected. "I don't know," he replied. "May be manslaughter. It won't be worse than that," he declared hopefully. Three hours later that jury returned and in answer to the question from the clerk if they had agreed upon their verdict and what that verdict was, the foreman in a low, unsteady voice replied, "Guilty."

"Guilty, guilty," repeated the clerk, in a still more shaken voice, for the verdict came as a surprise, almost a shock, to the crowds who had waited patiently through an adjournment of over an hour, taken at 7.10 o'clock, to hear the words, but few of them had expected anything more than a verdict of manslaughter.

As the foreman's words were repeated by the clerk someone dropped an umbrella, and the spell of silence which hung in the crowded court was broken. There were a few smothered explamations from the watchers and up in the gallery women sobbed.

"Arthur Ellis, have you anything to say why the sentence of the court should not be passed upon you?" asked the judge. The prisoner, who had risen to his feet at the word of the judge, leaned forward across the bar of the dock with his hand to his ear, "I don't understand—I didn't hear," he said, with a puzzled look upon his face, which had gone deadly pale at the words of the juryman. The judge repeated his question and the prisoner shook his head. "No, no, nothing," he said in a steady voice as he stood erect, as if to receive a blow.

The judge began the terrible words of the death sentence. "Arthur Ellis, you will be taken hence to the place from whence you came, there to be kept until Jan. 7 next, when you will be hanged by the neck until you are dead."

That was all. The prisoner sat down with his staring eyes upon the judge, who had just decreed his death. He did not stir. Again a woman sobbed in the gallery and then there was a craning of necks as the prisoner was led across the court-room to the door leading to the jail, where for months he had lived confidently awaiting the outcome of his trial and where last night he sat under the death watch.

The verdict was a shock to many in the town, and was subject matter of awed comment at street corners and in hotel lobbies. The general expectatian as gleaned from these conversations and those who awaited the verdict at the court house had been strongly for a disagreement or a verdict of manslaughter.

At the close of the judge's charge and when the jury had left the room Mr. Robinette rose and asked for a reserved case upon the admissibility of certain evidence. Judge Clute said that he would reserve his ruling in this matter until after a verdict had been returned. At that time Mr. Robinette had returned to Toronto and will renew his motion at Toronto.

TRUSTEES VOTE TO SEPARATE

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—There is dissension in the Ottawa Separate School board over the new regulations of the Provincial Department of Education with regard to the English-French schools. By a vote of seven to one, the English section of the board last night decided to break away from the French section, which is opposing the regulations. There are nine French and nine English trustees, and when the matter comes before the board for final decision to-night, a lively time is promised.

The resolution adopted is: "We, the English trustees in committee assembled, being of the opinion that the regulations regarding the English-French schools have no reference to English schools, hereby place ourselves on record as being opposed to the English section of the Separate School board taking any part at the present time in the opposition being evinced by the French section to the said regulations."

TWO PERISH IN STORM?

Toronto, Oct. 24.—Two men have perished in a gasoline launch, it is feared, in the recent rough weather on Lake Ontario.

On Oct. 7, Ellswood Leeman, an engineer, and Charles Ross, a moving-picture machine operator, both of Smith's Falls, Ont., started off from there in a gasoline launch called the Gosoon. They had on board a camping outfit and a dog.

The last heard of them was at Trenton, on Oct. 14, over a week ago, and although every port has been telegraphed on the shores of the lake, no tidings of the couple or their boat can be gained. It is now feared that the boat has gone down with the two men. The launch is 33 feet 6 inches long and is white striped. A watch is being kept over the shores of Ontario.

Leeman is short and dark and stands 5 feet 4 inches. Ross is fair and stands 5 feet 10 inches high. The Toronto Harbor Board has been notified.

For Minister of Mines.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 24.—British Columbia is making a strong bid for the Ministry of Mines, if that portfolio is created by the Federal Government. Hon. H. F. Green, member for Vancouver, is receiving strong support.

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—Hon. Clifford Sifton, who has been confined to his rooms at the Chateau Laurier, is much improved. His physicians state that he is now out of danger and will be able to leave his bed shortly.

TO ASK FOR NEW TRIAL

St. Kitt's Orangemen Rally to Help of Rev. G. M. Atlas.

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 24.—As the result of the address here Tuesday night, the Orangemen of the city will petition both Mr. Lancaster, M.P., and Dr. Jessop, M.P.P., to use their efforts to obtain a new trial for Rev. George M. Atlas.

Mr. Atlas said he was not out after money; all he wanted was a new trial so that his good name may be vindicated. He wished this for the sake of the five little children, and for the sake of his dead wife, whom the persecution of the authorities had murdered. He had been offered a handsome salary to go back to the East and buy rugs, which he might have accepted if it was money he wanted, but he preferred to remain here and carry on the fight for vindication.

"I have found out that it does not pay to tell the truth," exclaimed Mr. Atlas dramatically. "John the Baptist tried it and he lost his head. I tried it, and I lost my good name, my money, and my wife."

He charged the Protestants of Canada with cowardice in not rallying to his support when he essayed to defend the Protestant faith against the attacks of Father Minehan. He was afraid it was a case of "My pocketbook first and my God when I get time," with the Britisher of to-day.

VEILED WOMAN BLAMED FOR THEFT

Woodstock, Oct. 24.—The inquest on the death of Agnes McKissick, who died at Lakeside Monday under circumstances pointing to suicide will be continued next Tuesday. The girl had been to Hamilton last Friday to visit her cousin, Mrs. Orr, and went to Toronto on Saturday. Some jewelry she wore to Toronto disappeared and the girl claimed a mysterious veiled woman who took her to a house of ill-repute got it. She feared that her cousin, Mrs. Orr, was dead when she arrived at Hamilton, Miss McKissick said, and that was the reason she went on to Toronto.

The vial with strychnine in it bore a label of a drug store in St. Mary's.

London Without Gasoline.

London, Ont., Oct. 24.—London was practically "gasolineless" last night and patrons of the opera had to either walk or once again accept the hospitality of the street cars. One garage yesterday morning said it had about seven gallons of the fluid on hand, but inquiry at the others elicited the information that their taxies and automobiles would be stalled until a supply reached the city. A shortage of cars and failure on the part of one or two of the oil companies to send in early orders are blamed for the famine.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell Hurt.

Toronto, Oct. 24—Sir Mackenzie Bowell fell on the stairs at the Albany Club Tuesday night. His nose and chest were bruised, but the hale ex-Premier was not seriously injured, although he tumbled down twelve steps. He will return home to Belleville shortly. He is 89 years of age.

Czarevitch Is Improving.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 24.—The Crown Prince passed a quiet and painless day. The evening temperature was 101.3, pulse 132.

"Fruit-a-tives Cured Him"

CHESTERVILLE, ONT., Jan. 25th 1911

"For over twenty years, I have been troubled with Kidney Disease, and the doctors told me they could do me no good, and that I would be a sufferer for the rest of my life.

I doctored with different medical men and tried many advertised remedies, but none of them suited my case.

Nearly a year ago, I tried "Fruit-a-tives". I have been using this fruit medicine nearly all the time since, and am glad to say that I am cured.

I give "Fruit-a-tives" the credit of doing what the doctors said was impossible.

I am now seventy-six years old, and in first class health"

GEO. W. BARKLEY.

In all the world, there is no other remedy that has cured so many cases of so-called "incurable" kidney disease, as "Fruit-a-tives".

This famous fruit medicine acts directly on the kidneys—healing and strengthening them—and ridding the system of the waste matter that poisons the blood.

The Daily Review.

THURSDAY, OCT. 24, 1912.

MR. ROWELL'S FALL

In the North Waterloo campaign there are four candidates in the running. They are, Ald. Mills, Conservative; Allen Huber, Independent; Matthew Wayman, Socialist, and James Uttley, Suffrage Reform. But where, oh where, has my little dog gone? Where, oh where—in other words—is the Liberal candidate? In the words of Aunt Susan, "There ain't goin to be no candidate."

It is stated that Mr. Rowell wanted a candidate put into the field to support his "Abolish the Bar" policy, and was prepared to stump the riding to give support. But there wasn't any Liberal to be had who wanted to be the Rowell sacrifice, so the race degenerates into a sure thing. Mr. Rowell seems to have fallen into hard places and an unpleasant lot. He is beginning to find that there are many good Liberals who do not believe that to wipe out the bar, and leave the liquor store would effect any real reform. That is not prohibition. In fact, while Mr. Rowell himself, may be sincere in his temperance professions, he has not got the united support of even the much bedraggled Liberal party in Ontario behind him. He has not gained any accession of strength from the Conservatives, for the latter recognise that in his proposal to abolish treating, Sir James Whitney is striking at the chief root of the evil and also is proceeding about as fast as temperance sentiment in Ontario will allow for. There is certainly no use in trying to abolish the bar before the people are willing to stand behind the policy. If Mr. Rowell does succeed in educating the people to this point, Sir James Whitney, ever responsive, ever heedful of public sentiment, will promptly proceed to put it in force. Sir James is a bluff old codger, but when it comes to taking decisive action, and carrying out what he thinks is right, he is worth a dozen Rowells.

SHORT SPEECHES

It is a real pleasure to be able to agree with the Toronto Star. That bright journal is very ably edited, but being a strong follower of the Laurier ideas it says much and probably thinks more, that we do not care to approve. On the navy question, for instance, it is in full hue and cry on the trail of the Borden governments emergency contribution, even though when the time comes to vote on the matter in the House, most of the Liberals will probably be compelled to vote with the government. But when the Star says that public speeches, in Parliament and out, are too long, it ought to get the support of every newspaperman in the country. The Star says:

In the Australian Parliament a recent rule limits any speech to ninety-five minutes on a vote of censure or in an address in reply debate, in a second reading debate to sixty-five minutes, and in committee to half an hour. In committee a member may speak twice. It is said that the Ministry finds the new rules rather more irksome than do the members of the Opposition. But something had to be done. As in the Canadian Parliament, long-speaking had become a vice at Melbourne. Matters came to a head when in one debate seven speakers held the floor for nearly twenty-three hours or more than three hours each.

In contrast to this may be quoted the time occupied by seven speakers in the British House of Commons on the second reading of the Home Rule bill, as follows:

	Minutes.
Mr. Balfour	66
Sir Edward Grey	59
Mr. Mackinder	25
Lord C. Beresford	46
Mr. Swift McNeill	21
Sir John Lonsdale	39
Mr. (Monro Ferguson)	15

It is to be feared that in the Canadian Parliament only about two speakers could deliver themselves in the four hours and a half covered by these seven speakers in the British House. But did these seven speakers leave anything unsaid that needed saying from their point of view or in the interest of their cause?

What subject can a man not deal with pertinently in half an hour of public speaking?

Mr. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier are not addicted to long speeches. Both are supported in the House by men who, when they get the chance, square away to talk by the hour.

Some arrangement should be possible whereby, without depriving a private member of the right to say what he thinks, he should be restrained from reciting at tedious length everything that everybody thinks.

QUEBEC EDUCATION

Quebec education.

The Montreal Witness is to be congratulated on its long battle in the cause of free schools and compulsory education in Quebec. The results are beginning to show, though admittedly the educational problem in Quebec is the hardest nut the people of the province will have to crack for the next half century. The clerical newspapers of Quebec La Croix, the Verite, continue to urge the doctrine that free schools and compulsory education are anti-catholic principles, and that consequently Godfrey Langlois, editor of Le Pays, and others, who preach these recognised essentials of a democratic society, are inspired by 'Masonic' or other deadly influences. The activity of these organs seems to indicate that the cause of compulsory education and free schools is at last making rapid headway in the province. The intellectual backwardness of Quebec is being realised more and more by the thinking people, and there is an instinctive appreciation of the fact that some large principle of public action must be adopted if a forward movement is to be made in earnest.

As an argument that compulsory education and free schooling ought not to be considered against the principles of the Roman Catholic church, the Witness quotes Senator Dandurand, who says— "That the Belgium Government, which is in the hands of Catholics, and supported by all the Catholic clergy, does not hesitate to proclaim in its bill, free primary education and the obligation of the parents to give that instruction to their children.' The Senator adds, 'I have said that the policy of the Belgian Government contains the principle of free schools and compulsory education. It rallied, at the elections of June last, all the Catholic forces. The adoption of this policy was imposed upon the ministerial majority by the fact that each year was showing an increased proportion of conscripts unable to read or write.' Last year according to Senator Dandurand there were 120 illiterates in every thousand of the Belgian conscripts whilst in the neighboring countries where compulsory education is in force, there were only from one to forty per thousand. In Germany the proportion is less than one. To be exact, the latest figures show that only the six-tenths of one person in every thousand is illiterate. The quality of the education given in Germany is remarkable. We have seen a letter from a German settler just two years in this country, whose language, grammar and spelling are as good English as the best of us can speak or write. Who in Canada gets schooling like that?

THE BLONDE ESKIMOS

Dr. Villjalmar Stefansson, the explorer who discovered a tribe of white people on Victoria Island, two thousand miles east of the Mackenzie river mouth, has arrived in New York with confirmation of the story of his journey. A boatload of anthropological curiosities is on the way to substantiate his claims. It seems a pity that the explorer did not bring half a dozen of the tribe, to show the scientists that his discoveries are actually true. The impression left by Dr. Cook is not effaced in a moment. In speaking of the Blonde Eskimos, Dr. Stefansson says that they are not at all related with the ordinary Eskimo, with his Mongolian face, and beady black eyes and swarthy skin. These people have blue and brown eyes, fair skins, and red or brown beards.

It seems undoubted that they are descended from the Icelandic Norsemen, who settled in Greenland about the year 1000. The Greenland colony is known to have existed in the same place for about four centuries but after the beginning of the fifteenth century, no track of it was to be found. It was supposed that this colony had been wiped out by pestilence, or had intermarried with the real Eskimos, who abounded on the shores of the mainland. Renewed interest is given to the story of the colony by the newly advanced supposition that the new tribe is the posterity of the old Norse colony, which, true to its nomad instinct, has move farther west.

WHAT THE GLOBE SAYS ABOUT THE GERMAN PERIL

That the German peril is real, is plain from the Globe's despatch of October 21, from its Berlin correspondent. It is as follows—

Berlin, — From an authoritative official quarter, The Globe correspondent learns that the German navy has decided to install 15-inch weapons on its latest super-dreadnoughts.

The guns, which will be of fifty calibre length, will throw a projectile weighing 165 pounds and will be far and away the most powerful weapons ever placed on a warship.

The so called Kaiser class already carry 14-inch guns. Two of them, the Kaiser and the Friedrich der Grosse, are ready for service and three others will be completed by April 1913.

The vessels which are to carry 15-inch guns are now on the stocks and are expected to be completed by June 1915. Statements issued by the Italian authorities in reference to the big guns of the world's navies show that Germany and the United States are the only countries which have so far gone in for weapons of 14 inches and over. Great Britain's biggest are said to be 13 1-2 inches in the Lion class. Japan is mounting guns of the same size in her newest Fuso class. The tabulation not only discloses for the first time that Germany is arming her newest Dreadnoughts with the biggest guns on record, but also shows that these weapons, which are of course, manufactured by the Krupps, will be of vastly longer life than the most powerful Vickers and Armstrong guns, employed by Britain. The latter are credited with a life of only sixty rounds, while the German fourteen and fifteen inch guns, it is said, can fire 250 rounds.

If these remarkable figures are correct, it would mean that after an action the entire heavy battery of a British Dreadnought would have to be placed or laid off to be retubed.

None of these facts have been allowed thus far to become public in Germany, where the fiction is assiduously propagated that 12-inchers are the biggest guns that Germany is using.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.—Cables on Manitoba spring wheat came strong at a further advance of 3d to 6d per quarter. The demand from foreign buyers was fairly good and sales of several loads were made early in the day, but owing to the advance in prices in Winnipeg later no further business could be worked. There was also a good enquiry for oats and barley at advanced prices. CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning the offerings of live stock were 1500 cattle, 1200 sheep and lambs, 1800 hogs and 400 calves. Considering the unfavorable weather which prevailed thruout the day, along with the increased offerings of cattle, of which the quality ranged from inferior to medium principally, a fair trade was done and prices were fairly well maintained. Choice steers sold at $6.25; good at $5.50 to $6; fair at $4.75 to $5.25, and common at $4 to $4.50 per 100 pounds. A few choice butchers' cows brought as high as $5, but the bulk of the trade in this class of stock was done at $4 to $4.75, and the lower grades at $3 to $3.75 per 100 pounds. There were no good bulls on the market, and sales of common were made at from $2.50 to $3.25 per 100 pounds.

The demand for sheep and lambs was good, and an active trade was done at firm prices. Lambs sold at $6 to $6.25, and ewes at $3.75 per 100 pounds. The trade in veals was active at prices ranging from $3 to $10 each, as to size and quality. The tone of the market for hogs was strong, but prices showed no further advance. The demand from packers was good, and sales of selected lots were made at $9 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars, and small lots at $9.25, while some very common stock only brought $8.50.

Poor But Honest.

With a view to testing the poor children of his Walworth (Eng.) parish on business morality, Canon Horsley mentions in "I Remember" that he one day propounded to them the following question: "If a boy sold a pair of roller-skates that were broken, and he knew it but the purchaser did not, what would you say about it?"

"One child," says the canon, "and one alone—a boy—puts the matter entirely from the view of immediate self-interest dominating all other considerations. He says boldly: 'If I had a pair of skates that were broken, I would not let him know, because I would not be able to sell them.' Another wrote: 'The boy was dealing unfare to the buyer, and the buyer is not sencerble for not examening the skates before he bought them.' One righteous boy seemed to have a precocious, if not personal, knowledge of the ways of the unrighteous, for he says: 'The boy was unfair, was a cheat and a thief, and would run away happy, buy some sweets or some fried fish and potatoes.'"

Conditionally.

"Well, sir," said Mabel's father after Algy had asked for the maiden's hand, "she tells me she loves you, but do you think you can afford to pay for all the little luxuries she is accustomed to?"

"Why, yes—that is, if she'll do without the necessities, I can," said Algy.—Judge's Library

DECISIVE BATTLE BEING FOUGHT BY BULGARIANS AND TURKS

No Trustworthy Indications as to the Ultimate Result.

Servians Defeated by Turks Who Are Following up Victory.

Special To The Review.

London, Oct. 24— What may prove one of the decisive battles of the world is undoubtedly being fought between the Bulgarians and Turks around Adrianople, but news regarding it, is of the scantiest, The Times military expert says—Official bulletins from each side are not definite and give no trustworthy indications as to the ultimate result.

Early successes of the Bulgarians as the attacking side, were to be expected.

A report from Constantinople this morning, says the Servian army, operating near Kumanova, which is on the road to Uskup, has been completely defeated by the Turkish troops. The Servians, believed to have been comprised of four strong divisions, suffered enormous loss and are now being energetically pursued by the Turks.

BULGARIAN VICTORY.

Sofia, Oct. 24.—After three days' strenuous fighting, the Bulgarian army has captured Kirk Kilisseh. This is the universe road to Adrianople.

Athens, Oct. 24.—(1.45 a.m.)—The Greeks have occupied the town of Servia, and have also captured the bridge over the River Aliakmon (Indje Karasa), thereby cutting off the retreat of the Turks. The Government has despatched telegrams congratulating the commander and troops.

Victories at Heavy Cost.

London, Oct. 24.—The news from the seat of war last night tells of the continued successes of the allies. The Servians have captured Novipazar, and are the virtual masters of Kumanova. The victories, however, have been purchased at heavy sacrifices.

The situation in Thrace is becoming clearer. A great battle is being fought over a wide semi-circular front before Adrianople, upon which town the Bulgarians are gradually closing in. On the east they have occupied Vasilika and Tirnovo, and are continuing their advance southward.

On the west the Bulgarians, according to official Sofia accounts, have reached the Arda River, close to Adrianople, which is being vigorously bombarded. Already the two outer forts have fallen. Some positions to the north of Adrianople are also said to have been taken after fighting of the severest character.

Of the army in the centre operating in the direction of Kirk-Kilisseh there was no news yesterday, and evidently that fortress is still holding out.

It is significant that last night's Constantinople despatches, which say that a decisive result is expected today, have a less confident tone than previous despatches from that capital, while they admit a heavy struggle, in which both sides are showing the utmost bravery.

Information concerning the Montenegrin progress is meagre, but the Turkish authorities claim that Scutari has been reinforced and is safe.

A Saloniki despatch asserts that the Malisorri tribesmen are offended because the Montenegrin commanders are proclaiming the sovereignty of King Nicholas in the captured Albanian towns. They demand that King Nicholas give a guarantee that he evacuate Albanian territory and secure autonomy for Albania. So far they have received no satisfactory reply, and it is reported that they are refusing to fight further for the Montenegrins, whose absence has been thereby checked.

The next news of the Greek campaign should be an important battle around the town of Servia, to which place the Turks have retreated from Elassona and have been reinforced from the north.

About 1,000 Bulgarian prisoners of war have arrived in Constantinople, according to a special despatch from the Turkish capital.

Greek Boy Seeks Revenge.

London, Ont., Oct. 24.—Determined to have revenge for the killing by the Turks of his mother, three little brothers, and two sisters, Alexis Vegos, aged 17, a young Greek, who recently came here from Toronto, where he was employed in a restaurant, has left for the front.

He recently received a letter from his father, asking him to come back and fight with him. The two Vegos only escaped death by the merest chance, being absent in the hills hunting when a party of marauding Turks burned their home and killed all they found there.

Took Cyanide by Mistake.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Oct. 24.—Bradley Marblex, 17 years old, employed in Peter Croy's drug store, was found dead in the photographic dark room of the store yesterday afternoon. It is believed he took cyanide by mistake, as that poison was found in the dead youth's stomach.

JOHN SCHRANK

The above is a good likeness of John Schrank, who shot Colonel Roosevelt in Milwaukee. The would-be assassin has pleaded guilty and his trial will be held some time between November 11th and 15th.

MURDER CASE HINGES ON SCHEPPS RELATION TO BECKER

Judge Has Doubts as to Whether Schepps Was an Accomplice.

Special To The Review.

New York, October 24—Judge Goff finished charging the jury in the Becker trial at 1.55 o'clock, and said the case hinged on whether Sam Schepps was an accomplice. He had doubts on the question himself and refused to influence the jury. He said Rose, Vallon and Webber were accomplices, and Becker couldn't be convicted on the first degree of murder on their evidence, even though it showed Becker instigated the murder.

New York, Oct 24—"Do not confuse graft, bribery, and extortion with murder," said Mr. McIntyre, concluding his address to the jury on behalf of Lieut. Becker. "Becker is on trial for murder, and murder alone. In the name of justice and God, I ask you to say that Charles Becker is not guilty of murder in the first degree."

Mr. McIntyre sat down at 2 o'clock, breathless and perspiring, with his collar wilted and his coat awry. He had been speaking for four hours. A moment later the court took a recess until 3 o'clock, the time set for the summing up of the prosecution.

Asistant District Attorney Moss began summing up for the state. "It is of no particular consequence which one of these six men indicted with Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, fired the shot that killed him," Mr. Moss began. "They are all equally guilty. Villification on the part of the defence proceeds from weakness, the weakness of the defence, in an effort to divert attention from the real criminal. Not only by innuendo, but by direct accusation has the district attorney of this county been accused by the defence of misconduct."

Mr. Moss charged Becker's counsel with having misquoted the testimony of Jack Rose and with failure to include Rose's statement that Becker told him he wanted Rosenthal "murdered, dynamited, shot or croaked."

The fate of Lieut. Becker will rest with the jury to-day. Counsel for both sides completed their appeals yesterday, and all that remained to close the case when adjournment was taken last night was Justice Goff's charge to the jury, which he will deliver to-day.

Pelletier Replies.

Ottawa, Oct. 24—The following statement was issued yesterday morning by Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General:

"The statement in The Globe received here this morning, that Mr. Pelletier dismissed the postmaster of Ameliasburg without cause or reason known to the postmaster, is on a par with all The Globe statements. This postmaster was dismissed by the Hon. Mr. Nantel, acting Minister in Mr. Pelletier's absence in Europe. This dismissal was made because the postmaster had been for years a most energetic political partisan and the fact as proved to Mr. Nantel's complete satisfaction. "It is moreover a matter of public notoriety."

Volcanic Eruption Checked Survey.

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—The members of the Dominion Government survey parties engaged all summer between the Porcupine River and the Arctic Ocean have all returned. It was stated that the work of determining the international boundary line was delayed for several weeks by volcanic dust from Mount Katmai.

The eruption was also responsible for a five weeks' delay of survey operations engaged at Glacier Bay.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 24.—Because he took a brand new automobile, presented to Bert Cole by The Niagara Falls Journal in a subscription contest, on a trip to Buffalo without permission Tuesday, Albert Rand, New York, appeared before Magistrate Fraser yesterday charged with stealing the car.

He was remanded for a week. Rand claims to be employed by Jay Gould.

TURKEY CALLS EVERY MAN

Rural Conscripts are Marched to the Front

Special To The Review.

London, Oct. 24—The Daily Mail's Constantinople correspondent says Turkey is putting every available man in the field. Now, the rural conscripts from Asia Minor, staring wild eyed at the sights of the city have been successively paraded in the cities and marched off to the front. Despatches from a Servian source report the capture of part of Kumanova and contradict Turkish reports of a decisive defeat to the Servian army at that place. Montenegro losses, according to the Servian reports, are being greatly exaggerated in the Turkish stories.

BAY OPEN FOR EIGHT MONTHS

Lepas, Man., Oct. 24.—At a complimentary banquet tendered Judge Senkler, stipendiary magistrate for the Northwest Territories, on the occasion of his departure for Vancouver. J. R. Gordon, assistant chief engineer of the Hudson Bay Railway, made the statement that so far as ice is concerned, there would be no trouble operating a grain route via Port Nelson. The Ministerial party found no ice in the Hudson Straits, nor on the coasts of Labrador.

G. Halcrow, a retired factor of the Hudson Bay Co., and a resident for forty years in the district, ridiculed the statement made by eastern papers that navigation by the Hudson Bay route would be impossible for the greater part of the year. From personal observation he believes that navigation can be kept open eight months in the year.

TORONTO POLICE ROUGHLY HANDLE PARADING STUDENTS

Two Hundred 'Varsity Men Are Disorderly After an Initiation and Clash With the Police Reserves—Batons Are Used Too Freely and Many Heads Are Bandaged—One Student Is Locked Up In Station.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—When 200 students from the Toronto University set out late last night to make things lively a fight with the police resulted. Before the Varsity boys had been dispersed, many innocent spectators were struck with batons, revolvers were drawn, one student was arrested, and several constables displayed cuts and bruises.

It was the initiation night in "arts" for the students. After treating the freshmen to a ducking, a covering of flour, etc., the sophomores invited them to parade.

There was no trouble until the students struck Yonge street. Here they turned their attention to the street car service. Trolley poles were pulled off; signs carried away, fenders loosened and pandemonium reigned for a few minutes.

Nearly all of the passengers vacated their seats, willing to forfeit the ride rather than take chances on being hurt. The students then proceeded down Yonge to Richmond street. As they passed along car poles were pulled off the wires. While this was going on a call had been sent in for the police reserves.

At the corner of Richmond and Yonge streets a trolley pole was pulled off. The motorman promptly dropped the fender. But at this point the reserves arrived. They came from all directions, the largest number from Agnes street station.

The police did not spare their batons in the least. In fact they struck at anything, everything and anybody that came within their reach. One or two of the younger constables lost their heads, apparently being intent only on connecting with something. That something in many cases proved to be the person of some passerby who was not looking for trouble.

Colin C. Grant, a sophomore, was attempting to maintain a little order in the student body. Constable Dan Robinson rushed in and put him out of commission with a rap on the head. Colin went down. Robinson stood over him and swung his baton on a few more students.

The aim of a few other constables seemed to be to knock somebody out. A score of the city's night prowlers took a hand. They hurled stones at the police, striking constables in many instances.

The officers became more vicious, and as usual the innocent ones suffered for the trouble caused by those on the outside of the mob.

Taking Grant with them, the police marched along to Agnes street. Here the students closed in. One constable suddenly appeared with a revolver in each hand. Leveling these at the crowd before him he cried: "I'll shoot! I'll shoot!"

Those in the front could not get back, as they were being shoved by the curious people at the rear. The police charged and some more were injured.

Finally Grant was locked up at No. 2. The students declare that the officer in charge made fun at their offers of bail, although he previously said it could be fixed at $100.

HON. MR. NANTEL DENIES STORY

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—Hon. A. B. Nantel, Minister of Inland Revenue, who returned to Ottawa yesterday afternoon from St. Jerome, gives an unqualified denial to the story sent out from Montreal Tuesday night to the effect that Jean Prevost had threatened to take the stump against him in his own constituency unless he resigned his portfolio on the naval question.

"I have not been asked to resign," said Mr. Nantel, "and I have no intention of doing so."

MISS EVANS RE-ARRESTED

Dublin, Oct. 24—Miss Gladys Evans, the militant suffragette, has been re-arrested for failing to report herself to the police as required by the license on which she was recently released from jail. She was remanded for a week, bail being refused.

Miss Evans was sentenced on August 7 to a term of five years' imprisonment on the charge of setting fire to the Theatre Royal here the day before Premier Asquith was to speak on home rule. She was one of the "hunger strikers," and on October 3 was released on the advice of physicians owing to the grave condition of her health. She was ordered, however, to report periodically to the authorities during the remainder of the term.

ROWELL ASKS SOME QUESTIONS

Lambeth, Ont., Oct. 24.—Mr. N. W. Rowell raised the provincial issue in the East Middlesex campaign at Lambeth last night when he challenged Sir James Whitney, who speaks at Thorndale on Thursday night, to answer the following questions:

1. Why did the Government withdraw from the control of the Legislature the expenditure of $5,000,000 borrowed for the development of Northern Ontario, contrary to the long-established and the fundamental constitutional principle under our British system of Government, that the representatives of the people should retain control of public expenditures by voting each year the annual supplies?

2. Can he give us any precedent for such unconstitutional action in the legislation of the Government of Great Britain since 1688, in the legislation of the Dominion of Canada or of the Province of Ontario, except the partial precedents of the Sandfield-Macdonald Government, when it placed at the disposal of the executive $1,500,000 to aid the building of railways? It is worthy of note that on this issue the Sandfield-Macdonald Government was subsequently defeated.

3. Why did he deny the members of the House the right to interrogate the Ministry on matters of vital public interest, contrary to the long-established and well-set precedents in Great Britain and Canada, and contrary to his own previous practice while Leader of the Opposition?

4. Why did he refuse to give to the House an explanation of his own conduct as Prime Minister in a matter involving a large expenditure of public money, and directly affecting the conduct of elections in the province, namely, whether he sent a telegram to Elk Lake on the 9th of December last, two days before the election, assuring that the Elk Lake branch of the Timiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway would be constructed, a telegram requested and designed to carry the election in the interests of the Government candidate?

GUILTY OF MURDER; SENTENCED TO HANG

After Deliberating For Three Hours the Jury at Lindsay Convicts Arthur A. Ellis and Execution is Set For Jan. 7 Next.

Lindsay, Oct. 24.—Following quickly upon a verdict of guilty, delivered by the jury here last night, Arthur A. Ellis stood up to receive the sentence of death at the hands of Mr. Justice Clute, who decreed that he shall die in the jail yard here on Jan. 7 next.

The jury left the court-room at 4.30 p.m. Ellis had sat calmly through his trial and listened stolidly through the address of counsel, while Mr. Robinette ably pleaded his cause, and through the stinging denunciation of Crown Prosecutor Meredith and while Mr. Justice Clute coldly and dispassionately rehearsed the damning facts against him. As the jury filed from the court room, Ellis was asked what verdict he expected. "I don't know," he replied. "May be manslaughter. It won't be worse than that," he declared hopefully. Three hours later that jury returned and in answer to the question from the clerk if they had agreed upon their verdict and what that verdict was, the foreman in a low, unsteady voice replied, "Guilty."

"Guilty, guilty," repeated the clerk, in a still more shaken voice, for the verdict came as a surprise, almost a shock, to the crowds who had waited patiently through an adjournment of over an hour, taken at 7.10 o'clock, to hear the words, but few of them had expected anything more than a verdict of manslaughter.

As the foreman's words were repeated by the clerk someone dropped an umbrella, and the spell of silence which hung in the crowded court was broken. There were a few smothered exclamations from the watchers and up in the gallery women sobbed.

"Arthur Ellis, have you anything to say why the sentence of the court should not be passed upon you?" asked the judge. The prisoner, who had risen to his feet at the word of the judge, leaned forward across the bar of the dock with his hand to his ear, "I don't understand—I didn't hear," he said, with a puzzled look upon his face, which had gone deadly pale at the words of the juryman. The judge repeated his question and the prisoner shook his head "No, no, nothing," he said in a steady voice as he stood erect, as if to receive a blow.

The judge began the terrible words of the death sentence. "Arthur Ellis, you will be taken hence to the place from whence you came, there to be kept until Jan. 7 next, when you will be hanged by the neck until you are dead."

That was all. The prisoner sat down with his staring eyes upon the judge, who had just decreed his death. He did not stir. Again a woman sobbed in the gallery and then there was a craning of necks as the prisoner was led across the court-room to the door leading to the jail, where for months he had lived confidently awaiting the outcome of his trial and where last night he sat under the death watch.

The verdict was a shock to many in the town, and was subject matter of awed comment at street corners and in hotel lobbies. The general expectation as gleaned from these conversations and those who awaited the verdict at the court house had been strongly for a disagreement or a verdict of manslaughter.

At the close of the judge's charge and when the jury had left the room Mr. Robinette rose and asked for a reserved case upon the admissibility of certain evidence. Judge Clute said that he would reserve his ruling in this matter until after a verdict had been returned. At that time Mr. Robinette had returned to Toronto and will renew his motion at Toronto.

TRUSTEES VOTE TO SEPARATE

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—There is dissension in the Ottawa Separate School board over the new regulations of the Provincial Department of Education with regard to the English-French schools. By a vote of seven to one, the English section of the board last night decided to break away from the French section, which is opposing the regulations. There are nine French and nine English trustees, and when the matter comes before the board for final decision to-night, a lively time is promised.

The resolution adopted is: "We, the English trustees in committee assembled, being of the opinion that the regulations regarding the English-French schools have no reference to English schools, hereby place ourselves on record as being opposed to the English section of the Separate School board taking any part at the present time in the opposition being evinced by the French section to the said regulations."

TWO PERISH IN STORM?

Toronto, Oct. 24.—Two men have perished in a gasoline launch, it is feared, in the recent rough weather on Lake Ontario.

On Oct. 7, Ellswood Leeman, an engineer, and Charles Ross, a moving-picture machine operator, both of Smith's Falls, Ont., started off from there in a gasoline launch called the Gosoon. They had on board a camping outfit and a dog.

The last heard of them was at Trenton, on Oct. 14, over a week ago, and although every port has been telegraphed on the shores of the lake, no tidings of the couple or their boat can be gained. It is now feared that the boat has gone down with the two men. The launch is 33 feet 6 inches long and is white striped. A watch is being kept over the shores of Ontario. Leeman is short and dark and stands 5 feet 4 inches. Ross is fair and stands 5 feet 10 inches high. The Toronto Harbor Board has been notified.

TO ASK FOR NEW TRIAL

St. Kitt's Orangemen Rally to Help of Rev. G. M. Atlas.

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 24.—As the result of the address here Tuesday night, the Orangemen of the city will petition both Mr. Lancaster, M.P., and Dr. Jessop, M.P.P., to use their efforts to obtain a new trial for Rev. George M. Atlas.

Mr. Atlas said he was not out after money; all he wanted was a new trial so that his good name may be vindicated. He wished this for the sake of the five little children, and for the sake of his dead wife, whom the persecution of the authorities had murdered. He had been offered a handsome salary to go back to the East and buy rugs, which he might have accepted if it was money he wanted, but he preferred to remain here and carry on the fight for vindication.

"I have found out that it does not pay to tell the truth," exclaimed Mr. Atlas dramatically. "John the Baptist tried it and he lost his head. I tried it, and I lost my good name, my money, and my wife."

He charged the Protestants of Canada with cowardice in not rallying to his support when he essayed to defend the Protestant faith against the attacks of Father Minehan. He was afraid it was a case of "My pocketbook first and my God when I get time," with the Britisher of to-day.

VEILED WOMAN BLAMED FOR THEFT

Woodstock, Oct. 24.—The inquest on the death of Agnes McKissick, who died at Lakeside Monday under circumstances pointing to suicide will be continued next Tuesday. The girl had been to Hamilton last Friday to visit her cousin, Mrs. Orr, and went to Toronto on Saturday. Some jewelry she wore to Toronto disappeared and the girl claimed a mysterious veiled woman who took her to a house of ill-repute got it. She feared that her cousin, Mrs. Orr, was dead when she arrived at Hamilton, Miss McKissick said, and that was the reason she went on to Toronto.

The vial with strychnine in it bore a label of a drug store in St. Mary's.

London Without Gasoline.

London, Ont., Oct. 24.—London was practically "gasolineless" last night and patrons of the opera had to either walk or once again accept the hospitality of the street cars. One garage yesterday morning said it had about seven gallons of the fluid on hand, but inquiry at the others elicited the information that their taxies and automobiles would be stalled until a supply reached the city. A shortage of cars and failure on the part of one or two of the oil companies to send in early orders are blamed for the famine.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell Hurt.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—Sir Mackenzie Bowell fell on the stairs at the Albany Club Tuesday night. His nose and chest were bruised, but the hale ex-Premier was not seriously injured, although he tumbled down twelve steps. He will return home to Belleville shortly. He is 89 years of age.

MR. ROWELL'S FALL

In the North Waterloo campaign, there are four candidates in the running. They are, Ald. Mills, Conservative; Allen Huber, Independent; Matthew Wayman, Socialist, and James Uttley, Suffrage Reform. "But where, oh where, has my little dog gone? Where, oh where—in other words—is the Liberal candidate? In the words of Aunt Susan "There ain't goin to be no candidate."

It is stated that Mr. Rowell wanted a candidate put into the field to support his "Abolish the Bar policy, and was prepared to stump the riding to give support. But there wasn't any Liberal to be had who wanted to be the Rowell sacrifice, so the race degenerates into a sure thing. Mr. Rowell seems to have fallen into hard places and an unpleasant lot. He is beginning to find that there are many good Liberals who do not believe that to wipe out the bar, and leave the liquor store would effect any real reform. That is not prohibition. In fact, while Mr. Rowell himself may be sincere in his temperance professions, he has not got the united support of even the much bedraggled Liberal party in Ontario behind him. He has not gained any accession of strength from the Conservatives, for the latter recognise that in his proposal to abolish treating, Sir James Whitney is striking at the chief root of the evil and also is proceeding about as fast as temperance sentiment in Ontario will allow for. There is certainly no use in trying to abolish the bar before the people are willing to stand behind the policy. If Mr. Rowell does succeed in educating the people to this point, Sir James Whitney, ever responsive, ever heedful of public sentiment, will promptly proceed to put it in force. Sir James is a bluff old codger, but when it comes to taking decisive action, and carrying out what he thinks is right, he is worth a dozen Rowells.

SHORT SPEECHES

It is a real pleasure to be able to agree with the Toronto Star. That bright journal is very ably edited, but being a strong follower of the Laurier ideas it says much and probably thinks more, that we do not care to approve. On the navy question, for instance, it is in full hue and cry on the trail of the Borden governments emergency contribution, even though when the time comes to vote on the matter in the House, most of the Liberals will probably be compelled to vote with the government. But when the Star says that public speeches, in Parliament and out, are too long, it ought to get the support of every newspaperman in the country. The Star says:

In the Australian Parliament a recent rule limits any speech to ninety-five minutes on a vote of censure or in an address in reply debate, in a second reading debate to sixty-five minutes, and in committee to half an hour. In committee a member may speak twice. It is said that the Ministry finds the new rules rather more irksome than do the members of the Opposition. But something had to be done. As in the Canadian Parliament, long-speaking had become a vice at Melbourne. Matters came to a head when in one debate seven speakers held the floor for nearly twenty-three hours or more than three hours each.

In contrast to this may be quoted the time occupied by seven speakers in the British House of Commons on the second reading of the Home Rule bill, as follows:

	Minutes.
Mr. Balfour	66
Sir Edward Grey...	59
Mr. Mackinder	25
Lord C. Beresford... ...	46
Mr. Swift McNeill	21
Sir John Lonsdale	39
Mr. Monro Ferguson ...	15

It is to be feared that in the Canadian Parliament only about two speakers could deliver themselves in the four hours and a half covered by these seven speakers in the British House. But did these seven speakers leave anything unsaid that needed saying from their point of view or in the interest of their cause?

What subject can a man not deal with pertinently in half an hour of public speaking?

Mr. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier are not addicted to long speeches. Both are supported in the House by men who, when they get the chance, square away to talk by the hour.

Some arrangement should be possible whereby, without depriving a private member of the right to say what he thinks, he should be restrained from reciting at tedious length everything that everybody thinks.

QUEBEC EDUCATION

Quebec education.

The Montreal Witness is to be congratulated on its long battle in the cause of free schools and compulsory education in Quebec. The results are beginning to show, though admittedly the educational problem in Quebec is the hardest nut the people of the province will have to crack for the next half century. The clerical newspapers of Quebec —La Croix, the Verite, continue to urge the doctrine that free schools and compulsory education are anti-catholic principles, and that consequently Godfrey Langlois, editor of Le Pays, and others, who preach these recognised essentials of a democratic society, are inspired by 'Masonic' or other deadly influences. The activity of these organs seems to indicate that the cause of compulsory education and free schools is at last making rapid headway in the province. The intellectual backwardness of Quebec is being realised more and more by the thinking people, and there is an instinctive appreciation of the fact that some large principle of public action must be adopted if a forward movement is to be made in earnest.

As an argument that compulsory education and free schooling ought not to be considered against the principles of the Roman Catholic church, the Witness quotes Senator Dandurand, who says— "That the Belgium Government, which is in the hands of Catholics, and supported by all the Catholic clergy, does not hesitate to proclaim in its bill, free primary education and the obligation of the parents to give that instruction to their children.' The Senator adds, 'I have said that the policy of the Belgian Government contains the principle of free schools and compulsory education. It rallied, at the elections of June last, all the Catholic forces. The adoption of this policy was imposed upon the ministerial majority by the fact that each year was showing an increased proportion of conscripts unable to read or write.' Last year according to Senator Dandurand there were 130 illiterates in every thousand of the Belgian conscripts whilst in the neighboring countries where compulsory education is in force, there were only from one to forty per thousand. In Germany the proportion is less than one. To be exact, the latest figures show that only the six-tenths of one person in every thousand is illiterate. The quality of the education given in Germany is remarkable. We have seen a letter from a German settler just two years in this country, whose language, grammar and spelling are as good English as the best of us can speak or write. Who in Canada gets schooling like that?

THE BLONDE ESKIMOS

Dr. Vilhjalmar Stefansson, the explorer who discovered a tribe of white people on Victoria Island, two thousand miles east of the Mackenzie river mouth, has arrived in New York with confirmation of the story of his journey. A boatload of anthropological curiosities is on the way to substantiate his claims. It seems a pity that the explorer did not bring half a dozen of the tribe to show the scientists that his discoveries are actually true. The impression left by Dr. Cook is not effaced in a moment. In speaking of the Blonde Eskimos, Dr. Stefansson says that they are not at all related with the ordinary Eskimo, with his Mongolian face, and beady black eyes and swarthy skin. These people have blue and brown eyes, fair skins, and red or brown beards.

It seems undoubted that they are descended from the Icelandic Norsemen, who settled in Greenland about the year 1000. The Greenland colony is known to have existed in the same place for about four centuries but after the beginning of the fifteenth century, no track of it was to be found. It was supposed that this colony had been wiped out by pestilence, or had intermarried with the real Eskimos, who abounded on the shores of the mainland. Renewed interest is given to the story of the colony by the newly advanced supposition that the new tribe is the posterity of the old Norse colony, which, true to its nomad instinct, has move farther west.

WHAT THE GLOBE SAYS ABOUT THE GERMAN PERIL

That the German peril is real, is plain from the Globe's despatch of October 21, from its Berlin correspondent. It is as follows—

Berlin, — From an authoritative official quarter, The Globe correspondent learns that the German navy has decided to install 15-inch weapons on its latest super-dreadnoughts.

The guns, which will be of fifty calibre length, will throw a projectile weighing 165 pounds and will be far and away the most powerful weapons ever placed on a warship.

The so called Kaiser class already carry 14-inch guns. Two of them, the Kaiser and the Friedrich der Grosse, are ready for service and three others will be completed by April 1913.

The vessels which are to carry 15-inch guns are now on the stocks and are expected to be completed by June 1915. Statements issued by the Italian authorities in reference to the big guns of the world's navies show that Germany and the United States are the only countries which have so far gone in for weapons of 14 inches and over. Great Britain's biggest are said to be 13 1-2 inches in the Lion class. Japan is mounting guns of the same size in her newest Fuso class. The tabulation not only discloses for the first time that Germany is arming her newest Dreadnoughts with the biggest guns on record, but also shows that these weapons, which are of course, manufactured by the Krupps, will be of vastly longer life than the most powerful Vickers and Armstrong guns, employed by Britain. The latter are credited with a life of only sixty rounds, while the German fourteen and fifteen inch guns, it is said, can fire 250 rounds.

If these remarkable figures are correct, it would mean that after an action the entire heavy battery of a British Dreadnought would have to be placed or laid off to be retubed.

None of these facts have been allowed thus far to become public in Germany, where the fiction is assiduously propagated that 12-inchers are the biggest guns that Germany is using.

The trade in veals was active at prices ranging from $3 to $10 each, as to size and quality. The tone of the market for hogs was strong, but prices showed no further advance. The demand from packers was good, and sales of selected lots were made at $9 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars, and small lots at $9.25, while some very common stock only brought $8.00.

Poor But Honest.

With a view to testing the poor children of his Walworth (Eng.) parish on business morality, Canon Horsley, mentions in "I Remember" that he one day propounded to them the following question: "If a boy sold a pair of roller-skates that were broken, and he knew it but the purchaser did not, what would you say about it?"

"One child," says the canon, "and one alone—a boy—puts the matter entirely from the view of immediate self-interest dominating all other considerations. He says boldly: 'If I had a pair of skates that were broken, I would not let him know, because I would not be able to sell them.' Another wrote: 'The boy was dealing unfare to the buyer, and the buyer is not sencerble for not examening the skates before he bought them.' One righteous boy seemed to have a precocious, if not personal, knowledge of the ways of the unrighteous, for he says: 'The boy was unfair, was a cheat and a thief, and would run away happy, buy some sweets or some fried fish and potatoes.'"

Conditionally.

"Well, sir," said Mabel's father after Algy had asked for the maiden's hand, "she tells me she loves you, but do you think you can afford to pay for all the little luxuries she is accustomed to?"

"Why, yes—that is, if she'll do without the necessities, I can," said Algy.—Judge's Library

In the Smart Little Trap

The One Who Didn't Land Its Owner and the One Who Did.

By VIRGINIA LEILA WENTZ.

"And he has the smartest looking rap you ever saw, Madge! It's cham-gne colored and a perfect love. What o you bet I don't land him, trap and ll, before the summer's flown by?"

Miss Irene Warden, a beauty (and ware of it), was writing to her girl hum concerning the bachelor who had ust taken the big colonial house with e carriage road and iron archway hich for several seasons now had bandoned hope of usefulness.

She was writing by an open window here the scent of the roses came up rom the front garden. Beyond lay e pretty tree lined road over which e bachelor and his champagne col-red traps had just flown by.

"Although I've told you his name is orace Matlock," ran on Miss War-en's pen, "I haven't told you what he oks like. He's an old man, forty or fty, I should say. His nose is rather o big, although people call him hand-ome, and he's a bit bald; but, then, I uppose most men who live in big ouses and drive smart traps have big oses. What?" Miss Warden smiled little soft smile into the glass above er dressing table and then bent over er portfolio again:

"Of course I'd prefer dear old Tom. e's young and stunning and sings col-ge songs so beautifully; but, as you now, he hasn't a red! And I really ust do something this summer, adge. My already meager allowance ill be cut considerably in the autumn, r in September pa's going to enter e matrimonial game himself—a hor-d, designing widow too! So I must 'step lively,' in the parlance of street car officials.

"In point of fact, though," pursued the voluble pen, "it'll be pretty easy, plain sailing. I haven't a single good looking rival up in this out of the way place except old Professor Thornton's daughter, and she's the quietest poke of a girl—a regular stay at home. And as for dressing—well, Madge, you and I spend as much on our gloves and veils, I reckon, as she does on her whole outfit. That's what comes from having a bookworm for a father."

The next week in the little village postoffice a friend presented Mr. Horace Matlock to Miss Irene Warden. Apparently the meeting was by accident, but Miss Warden felt her smooth cheeks flush, and her habitual composure was rippled for a second, while, for his part, Mr. Matlock scarcely looked at her and, having passed a conventional "glad to meet you," lifted his hat politely and walked out to his smart little trap.

"I had on my chic voile, the one Aunt Tessie sent me from Paris, you know," wrote Miss Warden to Madge, "and my big white hat with flopping fuchsias. But it was all rank waste."

She couldn't understand it. Her dreams hadn't ended that way at all.

One day in the tiny idle little bank Horace Matlock stopped short as he recognized a stooped, gaunt figure with a patrician face.

"Why, it's Professor Thornton, isn't it?" he cried, stepping up to him with a cordially outstretched hand.

When Matlock years ago had entered Yale as a freshman Thornton had been tutoring, and quite a friendship had sprung up between them. Subsequently they had lost track of each other. But the satisfaction of the younger man in meeting the older one again was genuine.

"Poor old professor! How thin and worn and aged he's become!" thought Matlock as he drove the professor home to his modest little cottage.

Out in the cottage's side yard by the hollyhocks a girl was picking a great bunch of sweet peas for the lunch table. When she heard the smart little trap stop at the gate she looked quickly up from the blossoming vines and wondered. Who was the distinguished looking stranger? And where had he picked up dear daddy?

A few days later Matlock drove up to the cottage again. It was only decent, he told himself, that he should show the professor some attention and take him driving now and then. Perhaps some day also he would take the professor's daughter. He liked her. He liked the natural, unabashed way in which she had acknowledged her father's presentation of him, with her sleeves rolled up and her arms full of sweet peas; he liked the width between her eyes, the breadth of her brow, the lines of her mouth. She was less pretty than many young girls, but there was about her a freshness, a sweetness, that pleased him, and he had noticed that her figure in her simple little gown was well molded and slim.

One evening toward twilight, when out in the open lawn bats were whirling aimlessly and tirelessly, Matlock dropped in upon the professor to make him a little call. He had fetched him his afternoon mail as pretext. While they were sitting out on the porch from the shadowy little parlor came the first chords of Beethoven's beautiful "Moonlight Sonata."

"That's Cynthia," said Professor Thornton in answer to his guest's start of surprise. "She's never too tired, no matter how hard or long the day has been, to play that sonata for me in the evening. I love it above all other written music, and she never forgets."

Then while the three toads droned their harmonies he told Matlock a little about his daughter—how four years ago he had suffered a paralytic stroke and she had been obliged to leave school in her graduating year and nurse him night and day with untiring sweetness; how, when their slender income was exhausted a year back, she had begun to make use of her musical skill and give lessons on the piano. And when the professor told of Cynthia's triweekly trips to Adams, the nearest town, his silvered head went down on his coat sleeve, and in the gloaming behind the honeysuckles the two men were silent.

Presently they smoked their usual cigars and indulged in their usual conversation—newspaper topics chopped fine by individual opinion, a good deal of politics, a little of art and science. Last of all, Cynthia came out.

"Delighted!" she said, going prettily up to Matlock with outstretched hands. "While you two have been gossiping I've been remembering your weakness for tea and have drawn you a cup. Will you come in, or shall we have it out here?"

They went in. Near the little fern screened fireplace was a tea table, dainty in its array of polished silver and thin china. The hanging lamp shed the rich, soft glow of olive oil, and there was an air of intimate homelikeness about everything. Matlock had been a stranger to that sort of thing for so long that it sent a kind of thrill shivering through him. After all, to have a cozy tea table and a slim white hand to inclose in yours—Cynthia's hands were slim and white enough as they moved along the china in the half light. He pulled a chair close for the professor and then sat down himself.

Before Horace Matlock went to bed that night he remembered that on the morrow Cynthia Thornton was to drive with him in his champagne colored trap. How it would harmonize with her soft hair before the ambitious sun touched it to gold! What a dear, womanly little treasure of girlish brightness she was anyhow!

Cynthia only returned from Adams the next day a half hour before her drive and was consequently a bit tired. She was not one to make conversation, and the quiet and beauty of the scenes stretched out before her made her very silent. Matlock as he handled the reins watched both her and the landscape. There was a certain peace about them both. And peace was, above all things, what he wanted.

The next day Miss Warden wrote to her girl chum again:

"In the beginning of the summer, Madge, dear, I wrote you that a certain matrimonial venture would be 'easy, plain sailing.' Alas! I'm afraid I shall never find port—not at least with my bachelor up on the hill. And in the name of wonders, who of all people do you suppose has taken the wind out of my sails? Cynthia Thornton, the old bookworm's daughter! He had her out driving in that little beauty of a trap three times during the last week to my knowledge! I'm afraid Cupid isn't very kind to me. You'll find I'll die an old maid after all, unless Tom"—

At this point Miss Warden's pretty teeth absently caught the top of her penholder, while she looked dreamily toward the sunny, tree lined street. Then she began to hum.

As she started on the fourth bar of her song a champagne colored trap skimmed by. In it was the charming bachelor, and by his side was Cynthia Thornton.

Animals Seen in the Sea.

Many land animals and birds have their titles taken from dwellers in the deep sea. Perhaps the most curious is the sea mouse, which does not resemble the land mouse in the slightest. It is a worm of curious shape and lives on land beyond the tide mark. Often, however, it is thrown up on the beach by storms.

The sea otter, whose fur is remarkably valuable, resembles more its cousin on land. It is, however, very rarely found, being mainly confined to the coast of the northern Pacific.

Another finny inhabitant of the sea is the sea owl. It is not a bird at all, but a fish. Its more common name is the lump sucker. Its curiously formed mouth, by which it fastens itself to the rocks, resembles that of an owl; hence the name.

Then the sea snake—not to be confused with the mythical sea serpent—the sea slug, the sea lion, the sea spider, the seagull, the sea wolf and many others are all named from land types, but in many cases it is only some peculiar characteristic that gives them their title.—Pearson's

The First Locomotive in Maine.

The first locomotive used in the state of Maine came from England, having been built at the works of Robert Stephenson & Co. in the year 1835, and made its first trip over the Bangor, Oldtown and Milford railroad on Aug. 19, 1837. This road was then generally known as the "Veazie road," and the track was made of wooden rails strapped with iron. The shackles used to connect the engine and cars were made of three thicknesses of sole or belt leather held together by copper rivets and had a hole in each end so as to hook over an upright stationary pin bolted or driven into a rigid beam extending from the end of the car. It is said that for a time the engine was run in opposition to a six ox team employed by a Bangor lumber dealer who was not willing to pay the rates charged on the railroad, and it was not until the management of the line came to what he considered fair charges that he turned his traffic over to it.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

How Mrs. Reed of Peoria, Ill., Escaped The Surgeon's Knife.

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctor said I had a tumor and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a well and healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. I am glad to tell anyone what your medicines have done for me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Lynch Also Avoided Operation.

Jessup, Pa.—"After the birth of my fourth child, I had severe organic inflammation. I would have such terrible pains that it did not seem as though I could stand it. This kept up for three long months, until two doctors decided that an operation was needed.

"Then one of my friends recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after taking it for two months I was a well woman."—Mrs. JOSEPH A. LYNCH, Jessup, Pa.

Women who suffer from female ills should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of the most successful remedies the world has ever known, before submitting to a surgical operation.

For the Children

A Little Mother of New York's East Side.

Young people who live in the country where flowers and trees and green grass are on every side have playgrounds that the finest city park cannot furnish. Parks in the big cities are comparatively few, and then they are kept more for their beauty than for the entertainment of children. "Keep Off the Grass" is a sign that warns one not to leave the path. Except for a few small playgrounds this rule is rigidly enforced. How different in the country, where fields and woods are free! The happy youngsters may wander at will without fear of reproof. The picture shows a little mother of the east side tenements of New York amusing her baby brother. How she would enjoy a frolic with him in the green meadows instead of being confined to a busy city street!

Barn Game.

A jolly barn game to be enjoyed during rainy afternoons when the children cannot play in the open is "The Little Man's House." It is played in this way:

The children participating sit in a semicircle, the leader in front of them. The leader begins by addressing the first boy or girl on his right, "I sell you the little man." This is repeated down the line till it comes to the leader again, who says, "I sell you the house of the little man." This is again repeated, as at first, and on reaching the leader a third time, he says, "I sell you the door to the house of the little man." And again the leader's words are taken round the semicircle. And again the leader adds to his sentence, this time saying, "I sell you the lock to the door to the house of the little man," and so on without end.

If any of the players misquote the leader they are put out of the game.

Little Man's House.

The little man's house is a game that one never grows tired of if a quick witted leader is chosen, one who can think out clever things to say about the little man's house. He may even go inside the house and sell away the little man's clothing or furniture. It can be made very laughable.

Home Again.

We spent the summer down by the sea.
Somehow it seemed so short to me.
But when I came back the birds had flown
Save for a robin that sang alone,
Over and over all day long,
One little bar of one little song.
In place of the roses I thought to see
Late nodding daisies welcomed me;
Goldenrod stands by the dusty road,
Fruit trees are heavy with crimson load;
The tall green corn that I left is brown,
Withered and dry, with its arms hung down;
The kittens that waddled wherever they went
Are good sized cats, with their legs unbent;
The baby calf is almost a cow,
The puffball chickens are grown up now.
I can't stop looking, it seems too strange,
When you aren't watching, how things change.

BOY'S FOOT BADLY SCALDED

MOTHER SAYS ZAM-BUK ACTED LIKE MAGIC.

Mrs. E. Capell, 31 Sydney Street, Hamilton, tells how beneficial Zam-Buk proved in her family. She writes: "My little boy, aged one and a half years, put his foot into a pot of boiling water. The foot was so badly scalded that the skin came off with his stocking, and he had a shocking scald, from instep to toes.

"I at once sent for a supply of Zam-Buk, and as soon as this was applied, it seemed to act like magic and give him ease. It was good to tell that Zam-Buk stopped the pain, because up to applying it I had to nurse the child all the time, but soon after I applied Zam-Buk he was anxious to get on the floor and go on with his play!

"I only used four boxes of Zam-Buk and the scald was then entirely healed; so I consider this the best investment I ever made. I believe Zam-Buk would have cured the scald even more quickly had the boy been lying down all the time, but after beginning with Zam-Buk, it made the sore so easy that he was soon on his feet and playing about again.

"I might also tell you that my next boy to him, aged five years, had some bad broken chilblains. We used Zam-Buk on these also, and it cured them. For sores of any kind I shall in future use only Zam-Buk."

Housekeepers everywhere speak similarly of Zam-Buk. It is a sure cure for eczema, rashes, ringworm, chapped hands, scurvy, heat rashes, cuts, burns, ulcers, discharging sores, abscesses, piles, inflammation, festering and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box, all druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. For skin diseases use also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by MaDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

Fate of the Monkey.

There are, with monkeys as with men, sad possibilities in life. While some live out all their days in peace and pleasure, others are early brought face to face with a very hard fate.

The merry, playful little rascal may be taken by a trader, torn away from his comrades and carried overseas, to become the slave of a traveling organ grinder and to shiver in the strange cold streets of our crowded cities.

Or, again, as he is swinging himself on a slender bough he may become suddenly conscious of a pair of fierce eyes watching him, the eyes of an immense catlike creature, which has a superb buff coat, covered all over with black spots, and paws so strong that a single blow from one of them must be death to poor Jacko.

The leopard preys upon monkeys and is quite able to climb trees in pursuit of them. Even if he could get out of the way the hunted animal is usually too frightened to do so. With a kind of fearful fascination he sits watching the approach of the leopard until, with a spring and a cry, the tragedy is ended.

But that is not always his fate, and, after all, perhaps the monkey, who finds a quick death in his native land, is less to be pitied than the shivering little exile in a red jacket which we sometimes meet about our streets.—C. J. Blake.

One thing about a gas meter we can't understand is how it always manages to pick out an exceptionally extravagant month and maintain it ever after for an average.

Take Every Precaution

Eyestrain sometimes comes on so gradually that the individual does not realize his trouble until it has reached a serious stage.

In fact there are many effects of eyestrain that only a physician would trace to their true source.

The man who does a great deal of work with his eyes, should be on the watch for the first indications of strain, and do everything possible to prevent it from occurring.

Sometimes the eyes are in such an irritable condition that the wearing of the ordinary "flat" lenses produces great discomfort. Light is reflected from the rear surfaces of the lenses and the eyes are wearied by unconciously trying to focus on these reflections.

Then when looking to either side the edges of such lenses annoy the eyes

These irritations are avoided when you wear Toric Lenses. You are not taking every possible precaution against eyestrain if you do not get a pair of Torics.

All lenses ground on the premises

MR. BURNHAM'S SUGGESTION TO THE CITY COUNCIL

Peterboro Should Not Be Behind in the General Tax Reform Movement.

The letter of Mr. Burnham, M.P., to the Council regarding exemption of buildings has opened up a new field for discussion. To a Review reporter Mr. Burnham said to-day: "The increasing tendency to exempt industry and place the share of the burden of taxation now borne by it for the benefit of non-industry or mere land speculation, on land is plain to those who follow the trend of modern progress. Toronto is awakened to the great advantage the West is enjoying in this respect and is about to resolve to bring in a by-law to change things in that city. Land assessed as farm lands and selling for vast sums per acre have aroused the people there to the injustice of compelling industry to shoulder the burden of improving property which is allowed to lie idle at a low taxation and assessment until the moment arrives for reaping a fortune at the expense of the toilers who made it valuable. Peterborough cannot remain behind. Notwithstanding Ald. Gordon's remark as to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislature I can tell him if he were in the House at Ottawa for a time as he may some day be, he would see the constantly recurring opportunities there of aiding the cause of industry indirectly, as well as directly. If Peterborough pursued this modern policy of common justice and common sense, it would boom the town with a suddenness and effectiveness that probably some do not realize. Taxes are roughly speaking 1 1/3 per cent. Relieve a building to be erected of this burden, and there is just so much greater inducement to locate and build isn't there? The share of the land under it might increase by a trifle but the bulk of the building's tax would go elsewhere. The building would be exempt to the extent of at least 1 per cent. Labor would profit enormously by the change. What now goes to the land speculator would go to labor."

C.P.R. PRIZE WINNERS FOR FLOWER GARDEN DISPLAY

The annual distribution of bulbs to the agents and trackmen along the lines of the C.P.R. by the Floral Department took place this week, and on Tuesday there was a fine display of flowers at the head offices of the department. No less than one million bulbs were sent out, and as the many agents and other employes of the company are being encouraged to preserve the bulbs of the previous year, millions of bulbs will soon be planted at the stations of the C.P.R. from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The following is a list of the prize winners for the garden displays of the past summer:

Glenn, Beeton, $5.00; District No. 4—J. C. Browne, agent, Parkdale; J. S. Hill, agent, West Toronto; R. H. Graham, agent, North Toronto special prize of $10.00 each.

Twenty-three years ago the stations along the Canadian Pacific Railway from one end of the system to the other commencing at St. John and traversing its length to Vancouver were in a semi-state of wilderness and this continued until the inauguration of the Floral Department, which has its headquarters in Montreal and every year since that time the station agents along the line have taken more and more interest in the decoration of their stations until they have attracted considerable attention from outside sources. Every year the Floral Department devotes much time to the sending out of numerous packages of seeds perennials shrubs and plants, and bulbs, according to the season of the year. Thousands of packages are distributed all over the system and the plots of land adjoining the stations not in use are cultivated and the seeds planted, well watered, and in due course the station instead of presenting a dismal appearance forms one of the joys to the weary traveller as he alights from the trains and his eyes rest on the delightful bit of garden scenery. The gardens along the C.P.R. have become famous and in some places vacant plots have been transformed into miniature parks. The station agent is encouraged in this direction as much as possible, the company taking as much pride in the cultivation as the station agent himself, and prizes are offered for the best garden along the system. But the cultivation of flowers does by no means end here; the delightful sweet smelling beauties of nature are to be found among the grimy roundhouses and many other places where one would never dream of finding them, so thoroughly is the work of distribution carried out, that every one is encouraged to cultivate a taste for nature's beauties. The Saskatoon Star of recent date contains the following: Among the prettiest lawns in the city are those on the east and west side of the C.P.R. station. Much credit is due to the company who provide such a pretty sight for travellers on their line and to the gardener who keeps the little parks in such perfect trim. The grass is as fresh as if it were just making its first appearance in the spring and the flowers have not yet begun to lament the coming of winter. On the east side of the station the lawn is bordered by a row of trees and a row of trees along the south side while on the corner between these two is a small grove of trees edged with flowers. Then there are two circular flower beds flanked with crescent-shaped plots in which sweet elyssum and lobelias are used for bordering with red and pink geraniums in the centre. On the other side of the station the lawn is bordered by a row of trees then a row of shrubs and inside of that a row of flowers. Sweet elyssum, nasturtiums and phlox are the most prominent flowers in this border. One large circular bed in the centre and two long narrow beds have a good showing of gladioli corn, flowers and phlox. And all this summer sweetness and loveliness will be remembered at Saskatoon by the passing tourist who may not have stopped to explore the city's charms but yet will think of it as a garden place from his recollection of the greenery and floral beauty he saw while his train [illegible] stopping.

COMMITTEE WHO ARRANGED FOR NORDICA CONCERT LOST MONEY

The finance failure of the Nordica concert at the Grand Opera House, was a hard blow to the four gentlemen who were back of the undertaking. Each of the committee is out of pocket about $200 as a result, and quite naturally they are not pleased. Yet the famous prima donna can sing to packed houses in other cities, smaller than Peterborough. Brockville turned out en masse to hear her. Other places did similarly. There was no deficiency in the receipts there after Madame was awarded her portion. But there was in Peterborough, and the backers were responsible until the deficiency was forthcoming, from their own pockets.

"The reason, to my mind," said one of the committee, "is that people prefer to go to Toronto and hear a noted artist instead of patronizing any grand concert when it actually visits here. People refuse to have their musical taste cultivated. They are like a reader of literature, one person preferring detective stories to the exclusion of any superior reading that would educate them."

The gentleman in question has been behind many efforts to bring noted artists to Peterborough, and in only one instance has he been rewarded with receipts enough to clear expenses.

WORK OF RE-UNION ASSOCIATION

Numerous Worthy Applications Are Being Dealt With

At a meeting of the Imperial Re-union Association this week several applications were passed from Britishers wishing to bring their families out to join them here. Every applicant was a worthy one, and, in fact all those who have applied have been fully worthy of the assistance rendered through the medium of the Association.

Mr G. N. Gordon stated to a Review representative to-day that the families brought out will prove to be good citizens. Those who have been able to work have already been placed out to employment.

The Association is working along smoothly and have had funds at their command to enable them, so far, to meet all requirements.

SOMETHING FOR THE FIFTH WARD

May Be Made Known at Meeting in Old Town Hall

Another meeting in the interests of the De Laval bylaw will be held in the old town hall, East City, to-night, when it is hoped every ratepayer of the fifth ward will be in attendance.

It is important that every registered vote [illegible] recorded on Wednesday, October 30th.

The general feeling is that East City will do its share in boosting the majority for the by-law but this is not enough. It is the votes that are wanted. Those who have arranged for the meeting will be ready to supply any information asked for, and East City ratepayers who attend may hear something to-night, that will be of interest to their section of the city.

PRINCIPLES OF DRY FARMING

The First Aim is to Conserve Moisture For Crops

Lethbridge, Alta., Oct. 24.—What dry farming is and what it aims to accomplish was summarized for the Western Associated Press by Dr. John A. Widstoe, international president of the Dry Farming Congress.

"Dry farming is a branch of agriculture that primarily aims to conserve for the use of crops, the moisture that falls on rain or snow. The difference between dry farming and older farming is that the former is simply a question of the conservation of moisture, while the latter has for its fundamental the conservation of fertility.

"Dry farming has three-fold principles. Its first aim is to store in the soil the falling moisture so that the action of drought might be eliminated and the soil be made to yield more uniformly year to year. In the second place, it extends to the irrigated area by teaching the irrigation farmer to store in the soil the falling moisture and make less the need for irrigation. The third aim is to reclaim for agricultural purposes that portion of the earth's surface which has hitherto been looked upon as irreclaimable—the portion which has only 20 inches of net precipitation annually."

"As this portion of the earth's surface," concluded Dr Widstoe, "is about six-tenths the whole area, it is plainly seen that this aim will in time become the greatest of all."

Prof Bedford, deputy minister of agriculture, referring to the extent of western Canadian territory interested in dry farming, pointed out that a great section of Southern Manitoba, particularly around the Melita district, was dry and sandy, as were southern Saskatchewan and Alberta and parts of British Columbia and needed dry farming methods.

HE WAS READY FOR THE CALL

Impressive Service at the Home of the Late Ernest Thornton

The service which was conducted this morning at the funeral of the late David Ernest Thornton was of more than the usual solemnity. Judging from the unrestrained evidences of grief which many close friends of the deceased were unable to control, the untimely passing of the young man has deeply affected the community and is generally mourned. The devotional exercises conducted by Rev. James Rollins were of especial significance, and he dwelt strongly upon the nobility of the character of the deceased during his short life. He referred particularly to the Christian-like qualities which he had always exhibited.

While the young man may have been lost in the woods, he had the blessed companionship of the Lord, and during his hours of straying he undoubtedly felt the comforting presence of God. To the family and bereaved ones the pastor commended them to trust themselves to the to the Lord Who would enable them to submit to the affliction.

Rev. Mr. Rollins also spoke of the active work which the deceased had participated in at St. Andrew's.

The two hymns sung were "Rock of Ages" and "Nearer My God to Thee."

MANY FLORAL TRIBUTES.

The casket was profusely banked with flowers and beautiful wreaths. Floral tributes were sent from the Marlborough Club of which Mr. Thornton was a former member; from St. Andrew's Young People's Society; the Bell Telephone Company, and from the family, besides many other wreaths.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. C. Henry, F. Roan, A. Hall, V. Splisbury, A. Wood and W. Armstrong.

The cortege left for the Omemee Cemetery about eleven o'clock, from the family residence on Sherbrooke street. The house service was very largely attended.

ELDERLY LADY BROKE AN ARM

Mrs. Sarah Menzies Slipped and Fell on Pavement

Mrs. Sarah Menzies, of 228 Stewart street, met with a very painful and serious accident yesterday morning at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Menzies, who is about 65 years old, was turning onto the sidewalk leading up to the house of her neighbor, Mrs. Sandy, when she slipped on some wet leaves and fell. She was taken into the house of Mrs. Sandy and Dr. Young was called. It was found that Mrs. Menzies had broken an arm, and was severely bruised about the body.

About a year ago, Mrs. Menzies broke the same leg as was bruised, and this has, it is feared, made the leg practically useless for at least a long time to come.

This morning, Mrs. Menzies was taken to her own home. The latest reports state that she is progressing very favorably.

ONLY ONE CLAIM WAS GRANTED

Mrs. Susan Henderson Given Judgment for $70 Against Clixby Estate

Three claims against the estate of the late Smith Clixby, formerly of Peterborough, were disposed of by His Honor Judge Huycke, yesterday morning, in the Surrogate Court of the Court House. The three parties who were claiming were Mrs. Annie Mark, sister of the deceased, Mrs. Margaret Henderson, of Montana, another sister, and Mrs. Susan Henderson, niece of the deceased.

The claim in the first instance was for nursing the deceased during his illness. The second sister also entered a claim for nursing deceased during the last few weeks of his illness.

Mrs. Henderson's claim was for expenses incurred and care of the deceased during some months prior to his death, and for board of the two sisters of the diseased.

Mrs. Margaret Henderson's claim was not upheld by the Judge.

In the case of Mrs. Susan Henderson, His Honor gave judgment in her favor for $70.00 in all.

The claims for the board of the two sisters of the deceased were disallowed as against the estate. The claim against Mrs. Mark, Mr. Clixby's sister, was reserved, the Judge suggesting that it is a proper case for settlement and that perhaps a compromise could be arrived at between the parties.

J. L. Whiting, K.C., of Kingston, acted for the executors of the estate and Mr. E. H. D. Hall for the plaintiffs.

MERCHANTS RESPONSIBLE

Every merchant in business to-day should be responsible for every statement made in connection with the sale of goods.

Honest advertising of honest goods, at honest prices, is now the slogan of the most successful stores in the world. It is the slogan of the New Men's Wear Store, "Cameron," on George-st. This store positively guarantees every purchase made in it, so that it is not necessary for a person to be an expert judge of goods in order to make a purchase, for when you are told that you can buy a pure Wool Serge or Tweed Suit as low as $12, you can depend that it is right.

When you are told that you can get a fine all Wool Tweed Suit or Overcoat, made in the most fashionable style, with pure wool linings and the latest Patent Bartell Pockets, for only $16, you will easily understand that it is real good value.

There are a lot of the New Fall Suits and Overcoats piling into the store now, but they also keep going out every day, so much so that "Cameron" wears a smile.

There are new found friends being made to the new store and there are more on the way. Be one of the friends. Go in and get acquainted.

FUNERAL OF WILLIAM GREEN

Havelock People Recognize the Loss of a Good Citizen

The funeral of the late William H. Green took place to the Maple Grove cemetery on Tuesday afternoon. Services which were largely attended, were held at the Presbyterian church at 1.30, by Rev. James Skene. The floral tributes to the memory of the deceased were unusually numerous and beautiful and testified strikingly to the love and esteem in which he was held. The obsequies were conducted by the local Order of Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the members of the I.O.O.F., of which order he was also a member, attended in a body to pay their last tribute of respect to a beloved brother. The deceased leaves a widow and a family of six children to mourn the loss of a kind, indulgent father They are William, Myrtle, Russell, George Clara and Keitha, all of whom reside at home. In the death of Mr. Green Havelock loses a most respected and model citizen and the expressions of regret and sympathy are universal. Much has been taken from this wife and family, from the lonely sisters and brothers and the large circle of relatives and friends; dear ties have been severed, but much is left The Christian's hope and fadeless memories are still theirs. Besides the immediate family, Mrs D. A. Forde, Mrs. Wm. Watson, and Miss Nancy Green, of town, were sisters of the deceased.—Havelock Standard.

The devotional exercises conducted by Rev. James Rollins were of especial significance, and he dwelt strongly upon the nobility of the character of the deceased, during his short life. He referred particularly to the Christian-like qualities which he had always exhibited.

While the young man may have been lost in the woods, he had the blessed companionship of the Lord, and during his hours of straying he undoubtedly felt the comforting presence of God. To the family and bereaved ones the pastor commended them to trust themselves to the to the Lord Who would enable them to submit to the affliction.

Rev. Mr. Rollins also spoke of the active work which the deceased had participated in at St. Andrew's.

The two hymns sung were "Rock of Ages" and "Nearer My God to Thee."

MANY FLORAL TRIBUTES.

The casket was profusely banked with flowers and beautiful wreaths. Floral tributes were sent from the Marlborough Club of which Mr. Thornton was a former member; from St. Andrew's Young People's Society; the Bell Telephone Company, and from the family, besides many other wreaths.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. C. Henry, F. Roan, A. Hall, V. Splisbury, A. Wood and W. Armstrong.

The cortege left for the Omemee Cemetery about eleven o'clock, from the family residence on Sherbrooke street. The house service was very largely attended.

South of the G.T.P this work has been completed, and Mr. Grassie hopes that it will also be finished on the northern side during the coming winter. ELDERLY LADY BROKE AN ARM

Mrs. Sarah Menzies Slipped and Fell on Pavement

Mrs. Sarah Menzies, of 228 Stewart street, met with a very painful and serious accident yesterday morning at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Menzies, who is about 65 years old, was turning onto the sidewalk leading up to the house of her neighbor, Mrs. Sandy, when she slipped on some wet leaves and fell. She was taken into the house of Mrs. Sandy and Dr. Young was called. It was found that Mrs. Menzies had broken an arm, and was severely bruised about the body.

About a year ago, Mrs. Menzies broke the same leg as was bruised, and this has, it is feared, made the leg practically useless for at least a long time to come.

This morning, Mrs. Menzies was taken to her own home. The latest reports state that she is progressing very favorably.

ONLY ONE CLAIM WAS GRANTED

Mrs. Susan Henderson Given Judgment for $70 Against Clixby Estate

Three claims against the estate of the late Smith Clixby, formerly of Peterborough, were disposed of by His Honor Judge Huycke, yesterday morning, in the Surrogate Court of the Court House. The three parties who were claiming were Mrs. Annie Mark, sister of the deceased, Mrs. Margaret Henderson, of Montana, another sister, and Mrs. Susan Henderson, niece of the deceased.

The claim in the first instance was for nursing the deceased during his illness. The second sister also entered a claim for nursing deceased during the last few weeks of his illness.

Mrs. Henderson's claim was for expenses incurred and care of the deceased during some months prior to his death, and for board of the two sisters of the diseased.

Mrs. Margaret Henderson's claim was not upheld by the Judge.

In the case of Mrs. Susan Henderson, His Honor gave judgment in her favor for $70.00 in all.

The claims for the board of the two sisters of the deceased were disallowed as against the estate. The claim against Mrs. Mark, Mr. Clixby's sister, was reserved, the Judge suggesting that it is a proper case for settlement and that perhaps a compromise could be arrived at between the parties.

J. L. Whiting, K.C., of Kingston, acted for the executors of the estate and Mr. E. H. D. Hall for the plaintiffs.

MERCHANTS RESPONSIBLE

Every merchant in business to-day should be responsible for every statement made in connection with the sale of goods.

Honest advertising of honest goods, at honest prices, is now the slogan of the most successful stores in the world. It is the slogan of the New Men's Wear Store, "Cameron," on George-st. This store positively guarantees every purchase made in it, so that it is not necessary for a person to be an expert judge of goods in order to make a purchase, for when you are told that you can buy a pure Wool Serge or Tweed Suit as low as $12, you can depend that it is right.

When you are told that you can get a fine all Wool Tweed Suit or Overcoat, made in the most fashionable style, with pure wool linings and the latest Patent Bartell Pockets, for only $16, you will easily understand that it is real good value.

There are a lot of the New Fall Suits and Overcoats piling into the store now, but they also keep going out every day, so much so that "Cameron" wears a smile.

There are new found friends being made to the new store and there are more on the way. Be one of the friends. Go in and get acquainted.

FUNERAL OF WILLIAM GREEN

Havelock People Recognize the Loss of a Good Citizen

The funeral of the late William H. Green took place to the Maple Grove cemetery on Tuesday afternoon. Services which were largely attended, were held at the Presbyterian church at 1.30, by Rev. James Skene. The floral tributes to the memory of the deceased were unusually numerous and beautiful and testified strikingly to the love and esteem in which he was held. The obsequies were conducted by the local Order of Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the members of the I.O.O.F., of which order he was also a member, attended in a body to pay their last tribute of respect to a beloved brother. The deceased leaves a widow and a family of six children to mourn the loss of a kind, indulgent father. They are William, Myrtle, Russell, George Clara and Keitha, all of whom reside at home. In the death of Mr. Green Havelock loses a most respected and model citizen, and the expressions of regret and sympathy are universal. Much has been taken from this wife and family, from the lonely sisters and brothers and the large circle of relatives and friends; dear ties have been severed, but much is left. The Christian's hope and fadeless memories are still theirs. Besides the immediate family, Mrs D. A. Forde, Mrs. Wm. Watson, and Miss Nancy Green, of town, were sisters of the deceased.—Havelock Standard.

The Nutshell.

The residents of a certain suburb of Chicago were for a time governed by a passion for giving sweet, poetical names to their "estates." There was one such man who built a handsome villa, calling it the Nutshell. To the surprise of all, therefore, the name was one day suddenly changed to Sylvan Nook, and a flood of inquiries soon began to pour in.

"Why have you given your home a new name?" a friend asked. "What was the matter with the Nutshell?"

"I sickened of being joshed about it," said the owner, with a sigh. "There isn't a boy within two miles hereabouts who hasn't stopped and rung the doorbell to ask if the colonel was in."—Lippincott's Magazine.

"Yes," replied the senator proudly. "I think it is rather neat. My wife invented it."—Saturday Evening Post.

PURGATORY FIRES NOT YET, BUT SOON

Word Purgatory Not in the Bible, But Teaching Is There.

Saintly of Present Time Few, Yet All Must Become Holy Ere They Will Be Granted "the Gift of God, Eternal Life, Through Jesus Christ."

PASTOR RUSSELL

Indianapolis, Oct. 27.—The world-renowned Pastor Russell is here. We report one of his discourses from the text: "Some men's sins go before to judgment, and some they follow after." (I. Timothy 5:24.) He said:

Gradually as the eyes of our understanding open to the true beauties of God's Word, we find that while the gross Error of the past has some foundation in the Truth, the two are very different. As Bible students allow the Word of God to interpret itself, their faith is strengthened as they find that the real teachings of the Bible are acceptable to sanctified common sense.

Wrong Views of Future Punishment.

Wrong views of future punishment have divided Christians into many sects. Our forefathers were not to blame. Ability to read was not common until within a century. Furthermore, for fifteen centuries the Bible was out of the hands of the people and clerical zeal had tried to bring the whole world, through fear, into the church. Now, all thinking people repudiate the torment theories, and many are turning away from the creeds, and also from the Bible, the supposed foundation for the creeds.

The trend of to-day is toward Higher Criticism, and Evolution. In France, it is claimed ninety-six per cent. of the people have lost all faith in religion; in Germany ninety per cent. How important that the people should see that the Bible presents a just and loving God; that He has made generous provision for all through Christ, and that He will bring all to a knowledge of Christ; that every wilful sin must bear its reasonable and just penalty, either in the present or in the future life! The Christian's duty is to lift up the Bible.

The subject of future punishment is most important; with the head wrong, the heart and the morals cannot remain right. The people should know respecting the word Hell in the original Scriptures—that the word Sheol of the Old Testament represents the Bible teaching of Hell for the first four thousand years, and that Hades in the New Testament means the same; that these words do not stand for torture, but for the state of death, and are usually translated grave and pit. In old-time English the word Hell was a synonym of pit and grave. Humanity are redeemed from Sheol, the grave, by the death of Christ, and Sheol, Hades, the grave, shall be destroyed during Messiah's reign. (Hos. 13:14; Isa. 25:8; I. Cor. 15:54, 55.)

Gehenna fire means as all scholars understand, the garbage-furnace valley outside Jerusalem; it is symbolical of the complete destruction of the finally impenitent.

Purgatorial Fires of the Bible.

These are symbolical — for the Church in this Age, for the world in the next Age. The Church is now on trial for everlasting life or everlasting death. The world's purgatorial period will be under the supervision of the Church. (I. Cor. 6:2.)

St. Peter tells of purgatorial fires which now are purifying the saints: "Think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which shall try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you." (I. Pet. 4:12, 13.) Jesus referred to these experiences; read I. John 3:13; John 15:18; Matt. 16:24.

St. Paul says that Christ "learned obedience by the things which He suffered," and that "if we suffer with Him we shall also reign with Him"; that "our light affliction worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." (II. Cor. 4:17.)

These persecutions come from those who profess to be God's people. "The world," which persecuted Jesus, was made up of Scribes and Pharisees and Doctors of the Law. He forewarned His followers. "A man's foes shall be they of his own household."

St. Paul points out that in the end of this Age fiery trials will come upon the Church. "The fire of that day shall try every man's work of what sort it is." Faith built with the gold, silver and precious stones of Divine Truth will come forth unscorched. Jesus declared to the Church, "Through much tribulation shall ye enter the Kingdom."

The world's purgatory will begin with a severe ordeal upon all mankind but will continue in instructive tribulation upon all needing the same.

The "fires" will be symbolical. The New Age will be ushered in by "a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." (Daniel 12:1.) Jesus declares that unless that trouble were checked no flesh could be saved; but because of the Elect, those days shall be shortened. The Messianic Kingdom will end the strife and anarchy.

St. Peter used the symbolisms of the Psalms in describing these troubles. The "sea" represents the restless peoples; the solid "land"—earth—represents the social structure, whose "mountains" are the Kingdoms and whose "heavens" are the ecclesiastical powers.

The Lord pictures mankind anxious to know and obey the Truth. "Then will I turn unto the people a pure message, that they may call upon the name of the Lord to serve Him with one consent." (Zeph. 3:9.)

Three negro prisoners serving 60-day sentences walked out of Sandwich jail yesterday.

PROCESS OF DIGESTION.

Secrets of the Stomach Disclosed by X Ray Moving Pictures.

Regular moving pictures of the stomach of human beings and animals in the process of digestion have recently been exhibited in Germany, and it is believed that it will not be very long before such pictures will be exhibited to all medical students as a part of their course of training.

Experiments were made first on cats. By adding a little subnitrate of bismuth, a harmless powder, to the foods of the felines the contents of the stomach became visible to the X ray apparatus. By taking X ray photographs in rapid sucession it became possible to secure a moving picture showing the exact motions the stomach goes through when digesting a meal.

The old idea that the stomach is divided practically into two parts, one being used as a sort of reservoir and the other doing the digesting, is fully disproved by the pictures. The whole stomach works.

Soon after the food enters the stomach begins to churn and knead back and forth. This churning movement takes the form of regular waves, which succeed one another at intervals of twenty seconds. As the food becomes thoroughly digested it advances to the "pylorus," or "gatekeeper," which allows it to pass on. So long as there are undigested masses in the stomach the kneading action continues and the pylorus remains obdurate.

It is plainly shown by the moving pictures that worry, anger or other excitement causes the digestive apparatus to stop. Observation on cats and other animals proves that when they are teased or even when they have been asleep and have had bad dreams there is a cessation of stomach movements.

It is believed that a careful study of this subject will throw much new light on the digestive processes and aid in the treatment of disease.—Philadelphia Press.

MOST POWERFUL POISON.

A New Product That Exhibits Some Remarkable Qualities.

The most powerful poison known is reported to have been extracted by a German chemist from the seeds of the ricinus, the familiar castor oil plant, and has been attracting much attention on account of its remarkable properties.

Its power is estimated to be so great that a gram—about one-thirtieth of an ounce—would kill a million and a half guinea pigs. If administered so as to cause severe illness without death it gives immunity against a larger quantity, and the dose can be gradually increased until more than a thousand times as much can be endured as would kill an untreated animal.

Though arsenic, morphine and other poisons can be taken in larger and larger quantities, nothing approaching this marvelous increase in dose can be borne.

The ricinus poison has effects much like those of living germs, and in immunized animals an antitoxin is formed, so that injections of their blood serum may cure animals that are already in danger or have become ill from ricinus poisoning.—Los Angeles Times.

To Burn Coal Without Mining It.

Sir William Ramsay, one of England's famous scientists, says there is absolutely nothing, so far as he can see, to prevent a bore hole from being put down until the coal stratum is reached and the setting of the coal on fire by electricity, thus converting the coal in the bowels of the earth directly into gas. Air would be sent down to enable the coal to burn, the amount of air being restricted when sufficient heat had been engendered; steam would be sent down to provide a mixture of hydrogen and carbonic oxide, or water gas; great gas engines would be mounted at the mouth of the pit or bore hole, and the gas would be used to develop electric power.—Mechanics' Monthly.

A Long Telescope.

M. Armengaud, a French engineer and scientist, who for years has been experimenting with an invention known as the "telespectroscope" or "telephote," intended to extend the range of human vision to extraordinary distances, says that he has so far perfected his apparatus that he can now foretell that the time is not far distant when a man sitting in Paris or London will be able to see what is going on in New York. His apparatus is like the machine employed by Professor Korn for telegraphic transmission of photographs.—Dundee Advertiser.

Feat of a Messenger Boy.

John Wollaston, a telegraph boy of Brockham, Surrey, England, was intrusted with a telegram addressed to the foreman of a firm of contractors who were repairing the village church spire. When the boy arrived at the church the foreman was at the top of the scaffolding which surrounded the steeple. The lad would not part with the telegram, but ascended the scaffolding and delivered it to the man to whom it was addressed. The reply was written at an altitude of some 150 feet, and Wollaston made the descent without assistance.

Calamity Joe

Afterward Called "Cupid"

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Five men on the Flying V ranch watched the approach of the latest addition to the force. He was riding slowly up the trail, his long legs dragging below the stirrups.

"You can sup on trouble now, boys," declared Hen Morgan.

"How's that?" queried his companions curiously.

"This here gent approaching, him who is to be line rider on the Flying V along with the rest of us, is the champion dispenser of bad luck. Wherever he goes he brings calamity with him."

"I've heard about him, then. Ain't his name Joe Bliss?" asked Pete Willis.

"Yes. They call him 'Calamity Joe' because of the sure woe that camps on his trail perpetual," answered Morgan.

They sat about the door of the mess house and watched the shambling forms of horse and rider approach them.

Presently the horse scuffled to a standstill, and Mr. Joe Bliss threw a long leg over the saddle and stepped to the ground.

"Howdy, gents?" he said, looking gloomily down at them.

"Howdy, Joe?" said Morgan sadly. "Let me interjooce my feller sufferers!" and he gravely mentioned the names of his companions, who all exchanged nods and muttered "howdys" with the newcomer.

"What happened over to Flamm's?" asked Morgan as Bliss sat down and rolled a cigarette.

"Measles," replied Bliss stoically. "I never had 'em in my life, but old Flamm seemed to be afraid I'd catch 'em, so he fired me. I'd only been there a week."

The next morning they rode forth together, Joe Bliss ahead and the five following in a broken line.

"Seems to enjoy his bad reputashun," remarked Morgan to Freeman.

"Quite some! I been looking for measle spots all the morning," returned Freeman.

"It won't be measles this time. He changes his calamity every time he changes a job. We'll get something else as sure as eggs is eggs," muttered Morgan.

"If he plants any calamity on this here outfit he'll sure get his," declared Freeman violently, and somehow Joe Bliss heard the words.

"I got ter do something to get rid of that reputation," he admitted to himself and thereupon thought long upon the matter.

And it bore startling results. It took some time to accomplish, but the nature of Calamity Joe's vindication of his ill name will go down in the history of Poorgrass county.

Several weeks passed without anything unfortunate occurring to bear up the evil reputation of the new man. Then one day Joe Bliss received leave of absence and was gone all the morning. At noon as his fellow riders were eating lunch on the fringe of the scattered herd of cattle Joe rode hastily up to Morgan.

"Gents," he said excitedly, "there's some ladies in distress yonder in Salt canyon. Picnic ladies they are, and some yaller minded individual has stampeded their horses. What's them delicate females goin' to do?"

"Huh!" ejaculated Morgan. "Where they from?"

"They say they are salesladies from Finklestein's dry goods emporium in Eagle City."

"What they picnicking so far from home for?" demanded Freeman.

"Skeered—plumb skeered for fear old Finklestein will change his mind and call 'em back on the job. Why, them girls is so upsot about how they're going to get back to Eagle City that they can't enjoy their lunch nohow," exclaimed Calamity Joe.

"Finklestein's, in Eagle City?" queried Smith suddenly. "Why, that's where I bought this here handkerchief. She was a queen, that girl was!"

"Was she a blond?" asked Jepson eagerly. "I remember a peach of a blond in Finklestein's, who"—

"Nary blond," was Freeman's emphatic reply. "She was a dark eyed queen! I'll go over, Morgan, and help my lady friend out of trouble."

"Huh! You don't even know her name!" snorted Morgan contemptuously. "I guess I'll move along over there myself. I bought a shirt in Finklestein's last week, and I want to ask the red haired lady I got it from if it's a fast color." His handsome face flushed defiantly.

"Mebbe there ain't a red haired lady to the picnic," said Smith disagreeably.

"She's there!" interpolated Joe Bliss hastily. "Mebbe all you gents could ride over to the canyon and rescue them dames. I ain't much on ladies' company, and so I'll jest look out for the critters."

The five other men consulted together, and finally all rode off in the direction of Salt canyon. Meantime Joe, the harbinger of calamity, stuck to his job and manfully did the work of six herders that sunshiny day.

"That combination ought to break up that there evil reputashun I've got," he grinned as he rode back and forth.

The five men rode single file through the narrow entrance to Salt canyon, and once within its confines a pleasing sight rewarded their coming.

Around a campfire were seated half a dozen girls. Most of them were pretty, and all were attractive. The queenly brunette and the "peachy" blond and the red haired damsel all were there, as well as three others.

All of them sprang up from the picnic feast around which they were gathered and viewed with alarm the approach of the cattlemen.

Morgan was in advance, and, whipping off his hat with a graceful sweep, he addressed the red haired divinity.

"Excuse me, miss, but we are the rescue party," he said pleasantly.

"What you going to rescue?" demanded the red haired one imperiously, while the others drew close together and giggled.

"We was informed that some yallow hearted varmint had stampeded your horses," said Morgan calmly.

"Yes," said the imperious one stiffly. "It's all true, but we don't need any rescuing. We're going to get home all right."

"How?"

"Walk," she returned calmly. "Any objection?"

"Yes, ma'am," said Morgan emphatically. "We don't let ladies walk twenty miles when they're out for a holiday time—not in Peregrass county."

"I'm sure they're very kind, Mabel," spoke up one of the other girls.

"You know, we were saying just before they came that we didn't know how we were going to get home," added the queenly brunette, with a flashing smile at Freeman.

"I suppose it is well meant, and we are obliged," said the spokeswoman suddenly. "Perhaps you gentlemen can tell us how to get our horses back. They belong to Dan Perry, the liveryman at Eagle City."

In response to these amenities on the part of the red haired damsel the five rescuers slipped from their horses and awkwardly submitted to Morgan's elaborate ceremony of introduction to six ladies whose names were unknown to any of the cattlemen.

In their guise of members of a rescue party they were invited to partake of the lunch and having done so entered into serious consultation as to the best methods of discovering the miscreant who had run off the horses or stampeded them and also the all important question of how Finklestein's salesladies were to be returned to Eagle City that evening.

At last the unfortunate picnickers consented gracefully to submit to the better judgment of the men, and it was agreed that each lady should ride one of the Flying V horses and that its owner should walk beside the horse so as to ride it back when their deed of chivalry should have been accomplished.

Of course all this required much discussion in general and then in tete-a-tetes, where names were exchanged and there was much merry badinage as past purchases of "gents furnishings" at Finklestein's emporium were recalled.

It was Smith who scouted around and found one of the missing ponies grazing out on the plain. He quickly mounted his own horse and caught the animal, and in this way there was provided a mount for the sixth lady, who was suffering from the toothache and cared little whether she was furnished with an attendant cavalier or not.

It was she who hurried them homeward at sunset, when her companions had decided to ride back to Eagle City in the moonlight.

They formed a procession as they set forth on the twenty mile journey to Eagle City. The toothache lady led the way, and the others straggled after with a man at every horse's bridle. This was, of course, necessary, because never had there been collected together such a number of vicious, ill tempered brutes as the horses that belonged to Messrs. Morgan, Freeman, Smith, Jepson and Pete Willis, and the fair riders appeared timid.

At dawn the five weary cattlemen rode slowly into the camp. Calamity Joe was on watch and without a word handed cups of hot coffee to his friends.

"You gents are some heroes," he ventured, breaking into their reveries of tender looks exchanged and engagements promised for Wednesday evening to come, for the Flying V men were bachelors all.

"I reckon so," said Freeman absently. He was wondering if he could earn enough to support a certain blond beauty in case she would marry him.

Morgan suddenly looked up and caught Calamity Joe's attention with a sharp glance.

"Who do you reckon run off them hosses?" he asked.

"I dunno!" declared Joe.

"You was seen doing it and might as well own up," shrewdly said Morgan.

Then Calamity Joe confessed his duplicity. He told how he had waited his opportunity and, hearing about the proposed picnic of Finklestein's clerks, had himself stampeded their horses and thus created a situation whereby his comrades could rescue the fair damsels and at the same time make their acquaintance.

McClary's

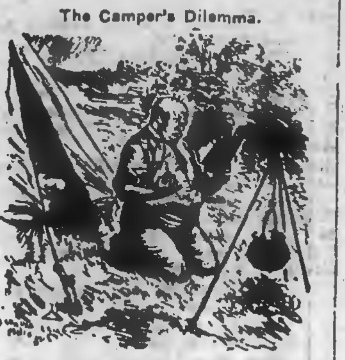
In the guise of a matchmaker Calamity Joe had hoped to hide his unfortunate reputation.

And he did, for ever after they called him "Cupid," and he was obliged to officiate as best man at so many weddings that he almost regretted the step he had taken.

After all, the foreman of the Flying V declared that Joe had brought calamity in his wake, for five of his best men married within a year and started ranches of their own.

But he retained Joe Bliss because there were no signs of his getting married and straying off.

The Camper's Dilemma.



Uncle Joe (who has been left to cook dinner for the party, reading from "Things All Scouts Should Know")—If your only wax match falls into a puddle * * * you need not despair. Dry it roughly on your coat and then stick it in your hair. Leave it there for a minute, and it will come out perfectly dry again.—Punch.

Her Black Hope.

"You yourself have been arrested, have you not?" he began in cross examination.

"Look-a-heah!" exclaimed the dusky witness. "Does yo' think I's gwine to tell yo' mah private business? I guess not!"

"I have the right to know, and you must tell me," the lawyer persisted. And the judge instructed the witness that she would have to answer.

"I's been arrested fo' lickin' mah husband," the woman finally said, her eyes flashing.

"Is that so?" queried the attorney, with satisfaction. "What is your husband's business?"

"He's a prizefightah," she added. And amid the general merriment that ensued the cross examination suddenly ended.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

German Naval Reserve.

Various proposals are under consideration for building up a German naval reserve, and one which finds much favor with the authorities is to establish a special naval reserve service of seven years, during which 33,000 men comprising the force would be obliged to go afloat with the active fleet for not less than four and a half months annually. It is argued that, though this would be expensive, the cost could be defrayed by calling out new recruits a month later every year.—Shipping Illustrated.

ILLITERACY IN OUR LAND.

Census Statistics Show That It Is on the Decline.

The census statistics of illiteracy for 1910, now published, are very encouraging, while leaving much to be desired. In every section of the country the proportion of those ten years of age and over who cannot write, which is the census test of illiteracy, has been reduced since 1900. It has fallen from 24.9 to 17.4 per cent in the most illiterate section, the east south central states. It has fallen from 4.1 to 2.9 per cent in the most literate section, the west north central states. It has fallen from 10.7 to 7 per cent for the whole country.

New York, with its great flood of immigration, stands as in 1900 with 5½ per cent of illiteracy. Massachusetts, also handicapped in this way, has made a reduction from 5.9 to 5.2 per cent. Connecticut alone of all the states has lost ground, its illiteracy proportion now being 6 against 5.9 per cent in 1900.

Louisiana still leads in illiteracy, as in 1900, but the proportion is cut from 38.5 to 29 per cent, while Iowa, which tied with Nebraska for first place in literacy in 1900, now leads Nebraska and all the other states with a proportion of 1.7.

If immigration affects adversely the standing of the northeastern states the negro population still holds back the south. But even here there is noteworthy advance. Over 61 per cent of Louisiana's colored population ten years old and more was illiterate in 1900; now the proportion is 48.4. The reduction of negro illiteracy since 1900 in the south Atlantic states has been from 47.1 to 32.5 per cent; in the east south central from 40.2 to 34.8 per cent; in the west south central from 48 to 33.1 per cent.—New York World.

SPANKING BAD KOREANS.

Official Rules Under Which the Punishment Is Applied.

The Official Gazette contains an administrative order giving minute directions as to the method of application of corporal punishment in the Korean peninsula.

The culprit shall lie on his stomach, his hands stretched out above his head and fastened. Straps are to be passed around the body and round the knee joints and arms, with the clothes so arranged as to expose the hips. The executioner shall stand with his whip at arm's length, the tip protruding three inches over the edge of the prisoner's body. The executioner's left hand shall be on his left side, palm upward, and right foot in advance and bearing the weight of the body.

The stroke is to be delivered perpendicularly, and the skin is under no circumstances to be broken. The punishment is to take place one hour after a meal, and the prisoner, if he requires refreshment during the operation, shall be given a drink of fresh water.

The notice has provided the Tokyo press with an opportunity for displaying its wit. It is suggested that Mr. Yamamoto, minister of finance, might obtain something toward covering the deficit in the budget by making the spectacle a public one at a charge of a penny a head for spectators.—London Post.

Joy's Crown of Joy.

Mr. Dorkins—Well, now that we've got our motorcar, Maria, I suppose you're happy.

Mrs. Dorkins—I'm cheerful and contented, anyhow, John. I found out what it takes to make a woman really happy when I saw our Bessie reading her graduating essay at the high school commencement.—Chicago Tribune.

YOU CAN BE ABSOLUTELY SURE OF VALUES

If you carefully read the store advertisements and follow them in your buying.

Merchants advertise certain lines because they know these lines will advertise their stores. Because there is something about certain goods, they are put in conspicuous places and the people are told about them. It may be the exclusiveness or newness of design, it may be an unusual quality, it may be an attractive price.

But there is at least one definite, sure reason why a merchant advertises an article and is willing to stake the reputation of his store upon it.

Therefore, when you see an article advertised in THE REVIEW, depend upon it, that article is good value, as good value as can be obtained in that particular store.

NORWOOD NEWS

Special Correspondence

Norwood, Oct. 22.—The directors of the Norwood Public Library held a meeting on Monday evening. The members present were Messrs Geo. J. Keefer, president; A. Breault, J. K. Rosburgh, R. G. Lawlor, Charles Tucker and Charles O'Reilly. It was decided to add new books at once to the value of thirty-five or forty dollars. Our library is becoming quite popular. The directors have been very careful in the selection of the reading matter, and judging from the list of books submitted at the present time, we look forward to adding quite a number of new members to the list.

The Public Library is an institution of which our citizens should be more interested in, as it furnishes a variety of reading not found in many homes of even the most wealthy and at a cost of only one dollar a year for each family.

The Norwood devotees of the "roarin' game" are getting into line for the coming winter. Messrs. Finley Bros. are intending to erect another rink with one extra sheet of ice. It is expected with two sheets of ice the membership will reach enough to make at least eight rinks. Norwood will enter into the Curlers' Association and participate in the Tankard and District games.

Mr. George J. Keefer, editor of the Norwood Register, who has been confined to his house through illness for a few days, is, we are pleased to state, able to be around again, and is so much himself that he intends going hunting on the first of November.

Mr. C. E. Pakenham, who represented the village at the sitting of the Board of Railway Commissioners, held in Toronto on Sept. 27th, reports that the Board has ordered the C.P.R. to install at the Peterborough street crossing an automatic electric bell with the cut off at the station. This should fill a long felt want, as the approach to the crossing at that place is somewhat obscured by the gravel hills on both the east and west of the track which makes it very difficult for people approaching the track to see an oncoming train.

Mr. Chas. McDonnell intends holding an auction sale at his home on Peterborough St., on Saturday afternoon the 26th inst., when he will dispose of his horses and rigs used in the Mail Route between Norwood and Warkworth.

A series of revival services is being conducted by the pastor at the Baptist church here.

WIFE AND SONS.

On Saturday evening, Oct. 5, there passed away the bright young life of Alice, wife of Mr. Harry Payne of Lakefield. The deceased was twenty years of age and was the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dunsford of Douro.

Though never robust in health yet she was of a sunny disposition which won for her a large circle of friends. During her illness of a few months, efficient medical aid was secured, and though loved ones were so kind in their ministrations, yet these could not prevent death from claiming one so dear.

The pastor, Rev. Mr. Coon, who conducted the funeral service, spoke of her patience in suffering; to him she had expressed her trust in Christ, and told of renewed consecration. The message given to the mourners was for them to seek strength and comfort in their trouble in the "Rock that is Higher than I." It is natural for all weak ones to turn to a stronger one for help. The following hymns were sung; "One by One," and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

Left to mourn her loss are the husband and infant daughter, Ruth Violetta, the parents, two sisters, Mrs. Ernest Butler and Ferne, and three brothers, Reginald, Galvin and Clayton.

Interment was made at Warsaw cemetery.

She is not dead, the child of our affection,
But gone to that school
Where she no longer needs our poor protection,
But Christ Himself doth rule.

We will be patient, and assuage
the feeling,
We may not wholly stay;
By silence sanctifying, not concealing
The grief that must have way.

FIERCE FIGHTING ABOUT TURKISH TOWN OF SCATURI

One Branch of Montenegrin Army Turns Turks From Their Position and Compel Ottoman Troops to Retreat to the Town—Crown Prince Constantine Enters Servia.

Special To The Review.

Athens, Oct. 25 — Crown Prince Constantine, on Thursday, formally entered the Turkish city of Servia. The capture of this town is regarded as the first and most serious stage of the war.

Cettinje, Montenegro, Oct. 25—Engagement is proceeding between the Montenegrin army under General Lazovitch and the Turks, near Koplik, about twelve miles to the north of Scutari, on the eastern shore of the lake. It is reported that the Montenegrins have turned the Turkish position and compelled the Ottoman troops to retreat hastily on Scutari. General Martinovitch's Montenegrin troops have established themselves at Zogaj and Murichan to the southwest of Scutari.

Rick, Montenegro, Oct. 25— The Montenegro army surrounded the Turkish town of Scutari yesterday and after the failure of envoys to secure surrender, the Montenegrin infantry made a desperate attack but were compelled by an annihilating fire from the Turkish infantry to desist and retire to their former position.

The Montenegrins immediately prepared for a renewal of attack under the protection of artillery fire and a vigorous onslaught is being made on three sides of Scutari to-day.

Sofia, Oct. 25.—Kirk-Kilisseh fell at 11 o'clock in the morning, according to the latest reports received last night from Bulgarian sources, from which all news here originates. The Turkish troops retired in disorder in the direction of Bunanhissar, fourteen miles to the southeast. They left a battery of quick-firing guns, sixteen ammunition wagons and large quantities of ammunition and food.

The stories assert the capture of the Turkish garrison, numbering 50,000. That so many Turks have been taken is regarded as improbable, and the more likely report is that the Turks retreated.

The capture of this stronghold, to which the Turks attached almost the same importance as to Adrianople, was confirmed last night from Constantinople in an official communication explaining that the Turkish army at Kirk-Kilisseh, in attempting to split the enemy's forces, discovered that they were in greater strength than had been anticipated. The Turks therefore retired to the south to await reinforcements.

An interesting situation will develop should the Turks be compelled to evacuate Adrianople. It is supposed that the next stand of the Turks will be made at Demotica, 26 miles south of Adrianople, an important strategic position on the road to Constantinople.

In other directions both the Servians and the Turks claim great victories at Kumanova, the Servians declaring they have captured the town and the Turks claiming they have repulsed the enemy. Late reports indicate that heavy fighting is still proceedings in this district.

The Greeks are operating from Arta toward Janina Metcheck and the neighborhood of Grimbova.

When the news was received at Sofia, crowds bearing the flags of all the allied states, formed processions and marched to the Greek, Servia and British legations, the palace and the military club. In front of each the national anthem was sung and cheers were given.

A party of boy scouts headed one of the processions and the Greek Minister was carried through the streets on the shoulders of some of the enthusiastic demonstrators.

Masses will be celebrated throughout the kingdom to-day for the Bulgarians who have fallen in the fighting, and thanksgiving services for the success of the Bulgarian armies.

The Turkish garrison of Adrianople suffered heavy losses during a sortie attempted Wednesday night from the northeastern quarter of the town. They left twelve cannon on the field when they retired.

The Bulgarian troops are now only from three to five miles from the redoubts, and are fortifying their positions.

Ships To Be Detained.

Cardiff, Wales, Oct. 25.—The British Foreign Office has instructed the customs officers here to detain the Greek ships which have been commandeered by the Greek consul.

LIBERALS HOLD SEAT

Cardin is Elected in Richelieu With Reduced Majority.

Sorel, Que., Oct. 25.—The bye-election for the House of Commons to fill the vacancy for the County of Richelieu, caused by the unseating of the sitting member for corrupt acts by agents, took place yesterday and resulted in the return of Cardin, Liberal, by a majority of 301, the complexion of the division thus remaining unchanged.

No member of the Government visited the constituency during the campaign, the leading speaker on the Conservative side being Sir Rodolphe Forget. The Liberals, however, had the advantage of a meeting addressed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The constituency went Liberals in the last general election by over 700 and the result of yesterday's polling was not unexpected. Sorel gave Cardin a majority of 264; St. John, 43; St. Ours, 48; Strobert, 67; St. Louis, 47; St. Aime, 48; Marieet, 14. E. A. D. Morgan, the Conservative candidate, obtained majorities in St. Anne, 52; St. Pierre, 26; St. Roch, 5; and St. Victoire, 148, leaving Cardin's net majority 301.

No Surprise at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Oct. 25.—The result in Richelieu did not cause much surprise in official and political circles here. None of the Cabinet Ministers visited the constituency to support Mr. Morgan, whose chances for election were not considered bright from the first.

CANADA NEEDS MORE LABOR

London, Oct. 25.—(C.A.P. Cable. Chairman Smithers, presiding at the G.T.R. meeting yesterday, had some earnest remarks to deliver to the immigration authorities, and also to the workers already established in the Dominion. "Canada requires more capital," he declared, "but much more she requires additional labor. It seems regrettable that the question of immigration has not been taken up by the British Government. If certain machinery could be devised, the transference of British labor to Canada with excellent results, political and otherwise, could be arranged.

"I would urge on the Dominion and Provincial Governments the necessity of encouraging immigration. The idea among many of the laboring population of Canada that increased immigration will depreciate their wages is, within very dire limits, utterly groundless."

The man who bets more than he can afford to lose deserves to lose.

MORIN WAS MURDERED

Coroner's Jury Lays Death to a Band of Poachers.

Quebec, Oct. 25.—A coroner's jury has found that Alfred Morin, an aged resident of Montreal, was murdered in his cabin in the woods of Portneuf County. He had been shot.

One witness, Napoleon Gadbois, said that on Oct. 5 Morin telephoned to him to come over and assist him, as there were poachers on his territory. When Gadbois met Morin the latter said that he was afraid of being killed by the poachers, and gave the names of three men, two being father and son. Morin went with Gadbois to the woods, where the latter confiscated several muskrat skins, Morin being afraid to touch them. While they were waiting in the woods, one of Morin's feet got caught in a trap that had evidently been set for him, and it took the two men three quarters of an hour to extricate him.

The two men also found a place in the woods blazed in the form of a coffin with a rough wood cross, at the head of which was a piece of paper with a name inscribed on it. At the foot of the coffin was a marked post, which was said to be a warning that if Morin went past that point he would do so at his peril.

ELLIS MAY GET COMMUTATION

Toronto, Oct. 25.—Arthur A. Ellis, under sentence of death at Lindsay, Ont., has not yet abandoned hope. T. C. Robinette, K.C., will go to Ottawa next week to interview Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, in an effort to have the sentence commuted to life imprisonment. He will urge this upon the ground that there must be an element of doubt as to what happened on the fatal night on the lonely road where the shooting occurred, and that the fear raised in Ellis' mind by the receipt of the letter which Provincial Inspector Miller told him had been written by Edith Porter, and in which she warned him of threats made against him by Porter were sufficient to make his action deserving of a less penalty than death.

Want City to Give $200,000.

Toronto, Oct. 25.—Forty leading business men of Toronto, at an informal luncheon yesterday, enthusiastically endorsed the proposed million dollar King Edward Memorial Fund for Consumptives, and unanimously agreed to accompany a deputation which will ask the Board of Control to submit a bylaw raising $200,000 as the city's contribution toward the fund. The Secretary of State for the Colonies has informed the Duke of Connaught that King George and Queen Mother Alexandra have approved of the use of the late King's name in connection with the fund.

BECKER IS CONFIDENT THE VERDICT WILL BE REVERSED

Condemned Police Lieutenant Pins Strong Hopes on the Appeal.

"I'm Sorry the Jury Found as it Did," is His Comment.

Special to the Review.

New York, Oct. 25.—"I am sorry the jury found as it did," was the comment of Lieut. Becker to his jailer this morning. He is bearing up as firmly as during the ordeal of his tried. His coolness is partly accounted for by his confidence that the appeal will mean a reversal of the verdict. He declares that he believes he has not had a fair and impartial trial, and further claims that three ballots only are necessary to determine the question of first or second degree murder, all the jurors being agreed as to Becker's guilt but not as to the degree.

New York, Oct. 25.—Police Lieut. Charles Becker was found guilty last night of murder in the first degree by the jury which has been trying him for instigating the death of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler. The verdict was "Murder in the first degree," and was pronounced exactly at midnight. Becker was remanded for sentence to the Tombs by Justice Goff, until Oct. 30.

Becker did not flinch when he heard the verdict pronounced by Harold B. Skinner, foreman of the jury. Mrs. Becker, sitting outside the door of the court room, fell in a swoon when the verdict was announced.

John F. McIntyre, Becker's chief counsel, announced that he would take an immediate appeal, but added beyond this he had nothing to say.

The twelve jurors, with solemn faces and measured steps, filed into the court room at 11.56 o'clock. A minute later the defendant was brought in from the Tombs. Justice Goff had not yet entered the room, and for a moment Becker took a side seat.

As he waited he scanned with anxious eye the faces of the jurors, but none of them returned his gaze. A tense silence prevailed.

At 11.57 o'clock Justice Goff entered the court room and bowing low to counsel, took his seat. The jury roll was called. The clerk then asked the jurors if they had reached a verdict.

"We have," announced Foreman Skinner. The jury rose to its feet.

"We find the defendant guilty as charged in the indictment." Mr. Skinner said, slowly and evenly, looking squarely at Justice Goff.

"Do you find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree as charged in the indictment?" asked the clerk.

"We do," the foreman replied.

The court then directed that the roll of the jurors be called for their individual verdicts.

As he repeated the question, "Do you find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree as charged?" each juror answered "I do."

Becker stood at the bar with squared shoulders, head erect. Not a muscle moved in his face, but he swallowed hard. That was all.

After each juror had answered Justice Goff instructed the clerk to take the defendant's pedigree. Becker answered the questions in a low, firm voice. A court officer brought the questions to him written on a slip of paper, and as the prisoner read them to himself, he replied:

"Forty-two years old," he said. "American citizen, born in Germany; address, 3,239 Audubon avenue; lieutenant of police; married; Protestant; mother living; habits temperate; never convicted before."

With her head almost at the keyhole outside the courtroom door, sat the prisoner's wife. As the last juror left the room by another exit, the door flew open and a man rushed excitedly into the corridor. The crowd gave way. He was halfway down the steps to the telephone booth when a policeman shouted:

"What's the verdict?"

The fleeing man looked over his shoulder.

"Guilty," he shouted.

For a moment there was silence, keen, intense, gripping. It was broken by a woman's muffled scream and the sound of a falling body.

When Becker's voice died away, Mr. McIntyre, who had covered his face with his hands as the verdict was given, rose and asked that all further proceedings be deferred for one week, "until I can prepare the proper motions for appeal."

"I will defer sentence," announced Justice Goff, "until Oct. 30, and remand the prisoner until that date."

Becker gave a fleeting glance at the judge and rested his eyes for a moment on the jury. Then he turned and, followed by a jail warden, walked with unfaltering, rapid step up the aisle of the court room and disappeared through the door leading over the "Bridge of Sighs," to the Tombs.

The jury had deliberated nearly eight hours before reaching the verdict, although the case had been in their hands since 2.20 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Deliberation began at 4.57 o'clock, when the doors of the jury room swung behind them on their return from luncheon.

Admiral Kills Himself.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 25.—Rear Admiral Chagin, commander of the Emperor of Russia's yacht Standart, committed suicide at his residence on Wednesday. The cause of his act is unknown.

It was reported at the time of the recent trouble among the sailors of the Russian Black Sea fleet that they had arranged a plot to seize the Standart while the Emperor and the Imperial family were being conveyed from Yalta to Sebastopol. A large number of bluejackets were then arrested.

Members of Admiral Chagin's family declared later in the day that the suicide was due to a love affair.

Leader of Rebellion May Receive Same Sentence

Special To The Review.

Vera Cruz, Oct. 25—Majors Zereat and Guesta, two of the staff of Felix Diaz captured by federal troops, were shot here at ten thirty last night following a verdict of the court martial. It is believed that the death sentence will also be passed on Diaz, who comes before the court this afternoon.

SIR JAMES WITNEY ON ROWELL'S BAR POLICY

Premier Gets an Enthusiastic Reception at Thorndale, Where He Appears in Behalf of W. J. Neely, Conservative Candidate in East Middlesex.

Thorndale, Oct. 25.—That he will continue to carry out the policy which he thinks is in the best interests of the masses of the people in order to do away with the results of the liquor habit, and that local option, in his opinion, is better than the abolition of the bar, were two statements made here last night by Sir James Whitney when he addressed a meeting held in the interests of W. J. Neely, Conservative candidate.

Not till the conclusion of his speech did the Premier refer to Mr. Rowell's challenge of yesterday, in which there were four questions for the Premier to answer. "They are the most typical Rowell questions that I have ever seen," said he. "One cannot answer for things that have never happened."

Sir James was given an enthusiastic reception, and he reviewed the work of the present administration, he praised Hon. Adam Beck and his associates for the work they have done on the Hydro-Electric Commission, and stated that Mr. Rowell had been speaking of workmen's compensation after he had read the report given by Sir William Meredith, who was appointed by the Government to enquire thoroughly into the matter.

Sir James began his address by declaring that he had always tried to lessen the drink habit, despite opinions to the contrary. People had wondered why he had come down to East Middlesex. In explanation, he said he was greatly interested in the statements of the leader of the Opposition, who had been "struck with a deep emotion" by the greatness and awfulness of the liquor traffic and he wanted to find out at close range how said deep emotion was affecting the people of East Middlesex.

Speaking about the refusal of the former Federal Government to give subsidies to Ontario for roads, while it frittered money away on wildcat schemes throughout the country, Sir James read the name of the Senators who had deprived Ontario from aid for roads at the last session. Their names would go down in history, if not with fame, with notoriety.

The Government had doubled the revenue of the province within the last three years, and with the increased revenue we have increased the expenditures cautiously in the interests of the people. He said there would be little use of the money being stored away in vaults where it would be of no value to anyone.

The Government had carried out the law with respect to bilingual schools, dealing with which legislation was passed at the last session of the House.

"It is the bounden duty of a public man, if he is a good British subject, to take every reasonable step according to his light and power to minimize or do away with the awful results of the drink habit," said Sir James, with great fervor. "I will continue to carry out the policy which I think is best for the masses."

Local option was much better than abolition of the bar, the Premier declared. He said they had an example of how the three-fifths' clause had worked in Middlesex, where three of the four townships are now without liquor, all of which were licensed in 1905 before the Government came into power.

"Why does Mr. Rowell want to preserve liquor shops?" asked the Premier. "He says that the bars must be abolished and then local option can be put to use to dispose of the shop licenses. As long as we have no right to prevent the importation of liquors, what would be the result of abolishing the bars? The liquor would be sold illegally. Surely, no one doubts that the sale of liquor would be more harmful at shops than at hotels? If the bars were gone and shops allowed to remain, people would purchase liquors which would be terribly adulterated and in all respects poison."

"I'll tell you why Mr. Rowell does not want to abolish shop licenses. He is a shareholder of The Globe newspaper in which appear advertisements of liquors sold in the province. The Globe's attitude in this matter is something appalling. By the advertisements in the paper, it is coaxing and seducing boys to buy liquor."

"Why is it that Mr. Rowell fails to see that by taking such a course he is shattered forever. The Liberal party deserves a better fate than is evidently in store for it, while Mr. Rowell is its leader."

Sir James then referred to the questions which he said needed no answer.

Two Bishops Elected.

Winnipeg, Oct. 25.—Venerable Archdeacon Edward Robins of Athabaska and Archbishop James R. Lucas of Mackenzie River were yesterday elected bishops of the dioceses of Athabaska and Mackenzie River respectively at a meeting of the house of bishops for the ecclesiastical province of Rupert's Land held in St. John's school house.

Both have had long experience in the north country, the former having been connected with the dioceses of Athabaska since 1909 and the latter with Mackenzie River since 1892.

Motored From Coast to Coast.

St. Catharines, Oct. 25.—L. V. Haney of this city, who drove Charles H. Wilby on his transcontinental highway trip from Halifax to Vancouver, arrived home yesterday. He states that Halifax air was carried in one of the tubes of his car clear to the Pacific coast.

MR. ROWELL AT BELMONT

He Makes a Plea for His Abolish the Bar Policy.

Belmont, Oct. 25.—Mr. Rowell carried his fight into the southwestern part of the riding last night, addressing an enthusiastic gathering in the Masonic Hall here.

He asked why, in the face of a large majority in the House, were the Government so anxious to accomplish the defeat of Mr. Sutherland. The combination of forces in the riding was operating for the purpose of discrediting the advanced temperature issue of the abolition of the bar, he declared. "The word has gone forth both from Queen's Park and from the liquor interests that the man who stands upon our policy must be defeated, and the Government candidate, who opposes it, returned."

Continuing, Mr. Rowell declared that the Government was not entitled to the adulation it received for the local option legislation. The first legislation in that direction was passed in 1890, but in the agitation for prohibition and the campaign resulting on the referendum vote, no advantage was taken of the statute until after 1902. The attitude of the then Conservative Opposition towards this legislation was negative, Sir James Whitney himself taking no part in its passage through the House. When the Conservatives came into power they accepted the local option principle, the only change they made being the requirement of the three-fifths vote in order to carry it in any municipality. Sir James Whitney's conversion to local option Mr. Rowell likened in suddenness to that of Paul before Damascus.

Mr. Rowell pointed to certain lessons which might be learned from the contest in the riding: (1) The importance of the issue raised; (2) that the Government believed the defeat of that issue vital to its existence; (3) the combination of the Government and the liquor interests; (4) the diversion of the attention of the electors to other matters; (5) that Conservative temperance men like Mr. Finch, chairman of the London Township Temperance Alliance, were realizing the real nature of the issue, and supporting the Liberal policy.

Dealing with the forces which were operating in the campaign, Mr. Rowell said:

"When I moved my resolution in the Legislature for the 'abolition of the bar' I stated I knew the forces which would be arrayed against us in such a fight—that we would have opposed to us the best organized, strongest and most effective opposition that could possibly be brought forward, backed by all the money necessary, supplied by the liquor interests. We are now realizing the truth of this statement in this contest in East Middlesex."

Mr. W. H. O'Dell of Belmont gave some instances of the effect of local option in the locality, speaking out of his own experience extending over a long period of years. He showed that property in Dorchester Township had greatly increased in value since local option was introduced.

In a brief speech Mr. W. H. Elliott said that the abolition of the bar would immediately put an end to the anomalies of local option, where there would be no bars in one township and an hotel would thrive just across the street line. It would also put an end to the injustice of the three-fifths clause. Mr. Thomas Baty also spoke.

ANOTHER TRIAL FOR THE INDIAN

Minister of Justice Orders That Stephen Kyoah be Given Another Chance.

Ottawa, Oct. 25.—The Justice Department has ordered a new trial for Stephen Kyoshk, an Indian under sentence of death at Sarnia. Kyoshk was charged with, and found guilty of the murder of two men. On the second trial he was found not guilty.

Now, owing to the peculiar circumstances surrounding the case, the Minister of Justice has ordered another trial. The Attorney-General is now arranging for it.

Kyoshk was tried on two charges of murder. Two men were killed at the same time. Kyoshk was accused and tried, one of the victims being named in the indictment. He was found guilty. New evidence was then found which threw a new light on the matter. Kyoshk was again tried, the other victim being named in the indictment. This time he was found innocent. As both men had been killed at the same time and under the same circumstances, this created an anomalous position. The Department of Justice has, therefore, granted a retrial on the first indictment on which Kyoshk was found guilty.

THE NAVAL EMERGENCY

Speaking at Hamilton Admiral Kingsmill referred to the number of British naval ships that were obsolete, in reality reducing the strength of the British navy far lower than it apparently seemed to be. The German navy, on the other hand, consisted very largely of new, and modernly equipped ships, giving Germany a much greater advantage in fighting power for the money spent. The narrow margin of superiority for the British fleet in home waters over the German home squadrons itself presents an emergency that would justify the Canadian contribution which Premier Borden proposes to give. The tonnage of the 25 best battleships in the three squadrons and flagship on each side, gives Britain only 10 per cent. superiority, the weight of metal fired, 38 per cent., and only 10 per cent. in the number of guns. The German ships have extra advantages in the way of torpedo tubes, and other accessories. Such facts as these, and the recent report that Germany is mounting 15-inch guns, the largest in the world, upon her new ships building, ought to be sufficient evidence that Canada is justified in a special contribution.

The Liberals in the House of Commons will support the government proposal. They can take no other action, for the sentiment of the country is solidly with the Government. In this, as a matter of political strategy, Premier Borden has the whiphand of his opponents, just as the Liberals were defeated all along the line last session.

THE DOLLAR DYNASTY

The New York World has figured out that J. Pierpont Morgan and John D. Rockefeller have, through their dominance of interlocking directorates, the control of about $30,000,000,000, or two-thirds of the national wealth of the United States. That there should be within the influence or control of any two men or any two hundred men, such vast power over the business fabric of a century seems inconceivable, yet the banking system of the United States and the very high tariff that it has adhered to, have been prime factors in encouraging such a state of affairs. President Taft cannot be looked to for any real action to remedy the matter. He is too much a jurist to be an active force in any such colossal program. Roosevelt has declared for the regulating of the trusts, on the ground that some are good and some are bad but that the same medicine should not be handed out to both. Woodrow Wilson takes much the sanest view of the matter. He says that he is not against big business. He makes the distinction however, that a trust is big business which uses its powers to kill off competition and big business is enabled to progress because it is better managed, and more resourceful than its competitors. Wilson has declared not for the prosecution of the trusts that break the law, but for the criminal prosecution of the men in the corporations that instigate the criminal action. To fine a corporation is to inflict a loss upon the stockholders, who are not at all to blame. Wilson also proposes to go about lowering the tariff in such a way that legitimate commerce and business will not be at all injured. He declares for a downward revision of the tariff, with regard for the tender sensitiveness of business on all legislation affecting the economic policy of the country.

The control of the financial powers who have mixed up big business and trusts so that able legal talent can scarcely get to the bottom of the business complexities, will be acquired if it is, only at much risk. In the panic of 1907, it was thought that much of the trouble had been precipitated by financiers, who wanted to issue a warning that the public would interfere with them at its peril. They have the power to precipitate a panic if they want to, through their ramifying control of the big business of the country, and it is questionable if the "Dynasty of Dollars" would submit to being cuffed and kicked out of the palace without smashing about all the furniture lying around. If Wilson attempts to carry out a program to curb the money powers, he will be tackling the biggest evil in the United States, and treading over a very fine mine of dynamite.

THE WEST AND RECIPROCITY

In an address to the Canadian Club of Toronto, the Duke of Connaught took occasion to remark that while he had been told before he made his recent Western tour, that he might find evidences of a desire for separation from the East, he had actually found none. As far as the general sentiment in the West is concerned, there is a strong Imperialistic and Canadian idea. But the West has been misrepresented to outsiders, maligned by some of its own people, who have imagined that they could further their political cause by commencing an agitation for separation. That bluff was based upon the hope that Eastern Canada would take alarm, and grant these politicians concessions in the hope that the West might be pacified. These agitators do not represent the bulk of the Western people, nor do they represent any considerable body of feeling. There may be in the large immigrant population, and the large American settlements, a few who care nothing for Canadian nationality, who have no loyalty for Canada as their home but they are comparatively few, and as a real force count no more than flies.

There surely ought not to be any dispute between one part of Canada and another that cannot be settled in the usual British way at the polls. The majority must rule, the rights of the minority being reasonably protected by constitutional procedure. The only grievance the west has, or is represented as having, is that embodied in the matter of reciprocity, or "wider markets." But this, in effect, is really more a grievance of inadequate transportation, since the American market does not offer any greater advantages for export products than other markets. It looks very reasonable, at first sight, to say that if the markets of the United States were opened to the Canadian farmer, he could ship his products across, get his money quickly, and be much ahead than through the longer system here. But these advantages are largely illusory. The United States this year is producing 20 per cent more crops than last year. Prices in October have dropped materially. If reciprocity had been in force, the earlier American wheat and flour could have been shipped into Canada, displacing the Canadian products in their home markets. That would have been a splendid achievement for reciprocity. Other products the same. In fact, President Taft never uttered truer words than those in the letter to ex-President Roosevelt, in which he stated that reciprocity would make Canada an adjunct of the United States. All these considerations affect the west, and its supposed demands for wider markets. We do not believe that there is half as much reciprocity feeling on the prairie as is represented, and in any event, the Westerners are, or ought to be, too good Canadians to jeopardise their national welfare for a mess of pottage.

Toronto Mail and Empire: — The first football fatality of the season is reported from McKeesport, Pa., where a player received injuries that resulted in his death at a hospital. At Col. It is stated by a New York press despatch that the publicity account of the Republican and Democratic parties amount to over half a million dollars. Of the total Democratic expenditure, about $230,000 will cover the activities of the publicity end. This includes $50,000 for boiler-plate, or the news service furnished to small country newspapers; and a large sum spent in publishing mailing and circulating literature. The amount spent by the Republican committee for the direct advertising work is not yet available, but Secretary James A. Reynolds says that one-fifth of the entire amount spent by the Republicans has gone into advertising contracts and one-tenth into poster and billboard advertising. The Democratic committee also has patronized the moving pictures and has spent about $6,000 in this form of advertising.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Heavy selling of wheat today resulted mainly from lower cables, the effect of less tension concerning the influence of the Turkish war. MONTREAL, Oct. 24.—The demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat was fair, but cables were easier at a decline of 1½d and little business was done. The demand for Manitoba barley continues good and sales of No. 3 were made to Glasgow at 27s 3d and No. 4 at 26s. The export and local trade in oats is quiet and the tone of the market is easier, with supplies offering to arrive at much less money than spot stock is held at. There is a fair demand from foreign and American buyers for bran and sales were made for future shipment. Butter is strong, full carloads of finest creamery selling at 30c. Cheese is rather quiet. A Gallant Old Bachelor

He Had a Curious Adventure in Paris.

By DONALD ALLEN.

Mr. Cyrus Stebbins, attorney-at-law and a resident of Philadelphia, had some legal business to transact in Paris, and, knowing that it would take him several months to accomplish it and being a man who preferred peace and quietness, he looked about for lodgings and soon found what he wanted.

Mr. Stebbins had turned the sixty mark, and there were young and envious attorneys who spoke of him as old Stebbins. He had never married, and there were other young and envious attorneys who said that it was a blessed good thing for at least one woman that he hadn't. The fact was that Mr. Stebbins was bitter, cranky and not at all willing to extend the glad hand. He had never been known to exhibit the least consideration for womankind, even when one of them was on the stand for him as a witness.

One day in walking about with his hands clasped behind his back and his shoulders humped over the old lawyer happened on an auction room. There was a sale going on, and in idle curiosity he dropped in. An escritoire was up for bidding. It was an antique. The bids were low and the auctioneer indifferent, and as a result the lawyer found himself the owner of the piece of furniture at what he knew to be about one-third its value.

A minute after it was knocked down to him a man came rushing in and seemed greatly put out that the escritoire had been sold. When he found that Mr. Stebbins was the new owner he took him aside and said:

"That article was included by mistake among a lot of other goods sent here for sale. It belonged to a friend of mine who is dead and was really left to me by his will. I will give you 100 francs advance on your bargain."

Mr. Stebbins was sorry if any one in Paris had died and sorry if any mistake had been made in loading up vans with furniture, but he couldn't see his way clear to parting with his purchase. The offer was increased to 200, 300, 500, but in vain. He said he might sell it when he was ready to leave Paris, but not before. The escritoire was removed to his lodgings and rubbed up a bit, and its next adventure took place a week later.

The lawyer was in the public library to look up some dates connected with his case when he saw a man who closely resembled the one he had met in the auction room. They did not speak, and the trifle was forgotten in five minutes.

Three hours later the lawyer got to his lodgings just in time to halt two men who were bringing his recent purchase downstairs to be loaded into a van. The landlady explained that a very nice French gentleman had called and exhibited an order signed by Mr. Stebbins, and of course she thought it was all right to let the article go. The man he had seen in the library had put up the job to get possession of the escritoire.

Mr. Stebbins sat down to reason it out. He had paid 50 francs for the piece of furniture. He had been offered 500 francs advance. The piece wasn't worth the money. Why was the man so anxious, then, to get it into his possession? It had been pretty closely examined when first brought home. It was now given another inspection, but the lawyer could discover no secret drawers. He gave the landlady strict orders and went his way.

Ten days later he told her he would be gone all day. Half an hour after leaving the house he returned for some forgotten data and found her showing his room to a stranger—the man he had met twice before. The stranger hurried away without excuse, and the landlady said she was showing the room because the gentleman stood ready to take it as soon as Mr. Stebbins vacated. The caller had looked at and admired the escritoire and had even moved it about, but had taken nothing from it. She was talked to in plain, legal Philadelphia language and her key taken away.

A couple of weeks passed away before anything more happened. Then as the lawyer sat reading one evening the landlady came up with a young woman behind her. This young woman was plainly but neatly dressed and looked to be a lady's maid. She introduced herself, and the landlady left. She had friends in Philadelphia, and, learning that Mr. Stebbins was from that city, she had made bold to call on him to ask for information. The lawyer didn't believe her story for a minute, but while he was preparing to draw her out and show up her inconsistencies she suddenly clapped her hand over her heart and tumbled down in a faint. Of course Mr. Stebbins summoned the land[illegible] he started to go downstairs to her, his room having no bell, when a lawyer-like idea came to him, and he turned about. He was just in time to find the fainting girl at work at the escritoire. She screamed. Then she was taken by the ear and led to the door and ceremoniously bowed out.

"Sir, you are no gentleman!" she exclaimed as she went.

"Miss, you are not a success as a fainter!" he called after her.

The escritoire was now hauled into the middle of the room, all the drawers removed, and Mr. Stebbins went over it inch by inch. He was in the midst of his work when the lady's maid returned to say:

"I came here and told you a story, and I am sorry for it."

"I have no doubt the jury will take that into consideration," grimly replied the lawyer.

"I will now tell you why I wanted to look into the escritoire," she continued. "The date of a certain person is written on the bottom of one of the drawers or some other place. I was offered a thousand francs to get it."

"But you got over your faint too soon."

"Will monsieur put his price on the piece of furniture?"

"Monsieur won't. I'll take the old thing all to pieces and find out what you folks want of it."

"If monsieur would take, say, 2,000 francs"—

"I'm busy this evening, my dear."

She stood for a moment as if wondering how she could accomplish her object and then burst into tears and took her departure. Mr. Stebbins peeked and peered and worked for two hours before he found the secret drawer, but it was discovered at last. The contents consisted of six letters from a woman to a man. If he had been a poet he might have had compunctions, but as a lawyer instead he sat down and read every one of those letters with as much interest as if a breach of promise case was on the tapis. Some of them he read over twice. When he had finished and tied them up again he said to himself:

"A jury wouldn't be ten minutes bringing in a verdict of guilty after reading those letters."

He had scarcely eaten his breakfast next morning when the landlady announced a lady caller.

"Is it that girl of last night again?" he asked.

"No; it is a grand lady. Such a hat, such diamonds!"

"Show the lady and the hat and the diamonds up."

Mr. Stebbins knew that he stood in the presence of the real thing as soon as his visitor entered.

"I shall speak the truth and say that I have come on account of the escritoire," she began.

"I admire your candor, madame. Always speak the truth on the witness stand. Several persons have come on the same errand."

"It belonged to a gentleman who died very suddenly."

"How suddenly?"

"He was killed in a railroad collision. I desire to get some indiscreet letters written to him and which he probably kept in that escritoire.

"But as the last one was written a whole year ago he had time to burn them."

She looked him in the eyes, but made no reply.

"There are documents that should be sacredly preserved and documents that should be burned as soon as read."

The lady inclined her head.

"My advice to you as a lawyer is not to write at all."

She bowed again.

"This package is what you are after, madame, and I present it to you, with my compliments."

And, with a wave and a bow, he took the package of letters from his pocket and presented it to her.

"Monsieur, I am grateful," she murmured.

"Tush, tush!"

"I shall hold you in dear remembrance."

"Run along, countess. The jury says not guilty, but don't do it again. You have your letters. I have the escritoire, and I'll use that secret drawer to keep my comic valentines in."

Spelling in the Year 1408.

By the following, which is an exact copy of the first paragraph in the will of Henry IV. of England, written in January, 1408, it will be seen that even kings are not always good spellers:

"In the name of God, Fadir, Son and Holly Gost, three Persons and one God, I, Henery, sinful wrech by the Grace of God Kyng of England and Fraunce, the Lord of Irland, being in my hole mynd, mak my testament in manere and forme that suyth, Fyrst, I bequethe to Almighty God my sinful soul, the whyche had nevere been worthy of the man, but thro' hys mercies and hys grase, which lyffe I haven't myspendyed thereof I put myselfe wholly in his grase and mercye with all myn herte. Also I thanke my lordis threw the pepie for the trew servyse that they have dune unto me, and I ask them forgyvnis if I hasth mysentreted them in any wyse."

It will also be noted that Henry, besides not being up to the standard as a speller, had a peculiar habit of spelling one word in different ways.

A Cold More Pleasant.

Mr. Tricure (anxiously)—My dear fellow, what a dreadful cold you have!

Mr. Strongman—Yes; I get a cold now and then—my only ailment.

Mr. Tricure—But that's very wrong. I never get a cold, and you wouldn't either if you treated yourself as I do.

Mr. Strongman—Well, how, for instance?

Mr. Tricure—I take a Turkish bath every week—it's excellent for my rheumatism, I find—and massage twice a week; that's for insomnia. I rarely sleep more than six hours any night, then a cold plunge the first thing in the morning for my lungs and a two mile walk. I seldom take much breakfast. Dyspepsia's too bad. I drink about three quarts of hot water during the day for my liver, and then I take a nerve tonic at night. I tell you, my boy, if you'd follow my—

Mr. Strongman—Oh, thanks very much, but—er—ah—I think I'd rather have a cold.—London Answers.

CHAT WITH THE BRIDE.

About Going to Housekeeping and About Furnishings.

Are you going to housekeeping?

A sensible girl if you do.

Love of home life should be instilled in the early days of marriage in the hearts of both man and wife.

The man will be much less apt to wander from his own fireside if he feels that he has a personal interest in it.

The woman will be less apt to degenerate into a gossip if she has the care of her home in her keeping.

It is such a pleasure to beautify your own home and add a little to your belongings from month to month.

Pay for everything as you get it.

Better delay your marriage a year than to begin overburdened with debts. If funds are low start with the furnishings of the kitchen, dining room, bedroom and living room.

Put only the absolutely necessary articles into these rooms.

Purchase only good, substantial furniture, allowing nothing for show.

These articles will last a lifetime and will never look poor, while showy, tawdry furniture grows shabby in a few months' time.

A couple married four years ago adopted the following ideas with great success:

They bought their small house before it was finished and less the cost of papering.

They are buying it through a building association.

The papering will come later.

What little furniture they have bought has been paid for and is really good.

Two beautiful children gladden the hearts of their parents, and their training is just what you would expect from such sensible people. This is one of the homes where happiness is sure to reign.

It is expected that Sir William Meredith will be appointed Chief Justice for Ontario.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

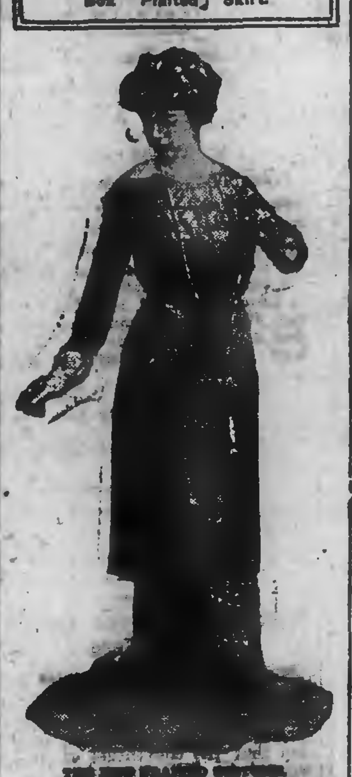
There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named [illegible] well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

SANOL IS SAFE AND SURE

THE LAST WORD.

Fashion Approves the Box Plaited Skirt.



THE NEW PLAITED COSTUME.

Plaits have once more come back to fashionable favor, and they are to be seen forming the underskirt of many of the best fall costumes.

Pictured is a gown with the new box plaited skirt, which, you see, adds no fullness to the width at the bottom. The plaits are stitched and pressed flat so that the slim silhouette is preserved. The overdrapery is somewhat on the tunic order with an odd sash effect. The collar and cuffs of white faille silk are edged with scantily plaited lingerie embroidery. This collar, broad at the back, ends sharply at the shoulder line.

Trouble With the Douks.

The Doukhobors seem to have been getting into hot water in British Columbia. The Government claims that they are not complying with the ordinary civic regulations which require the registration of births, marriages and deaths.

So impressed is the Government with this delinquency that it has appointed a commissioner with full powers to investigate the habits and customs of the Douks and determine their value to the province as settlers.

HAPPY THOUGHT

There is One Most Important Thing About a Stove

And that is this, —What heat value will it develop from the fuel you put into it?

Mind you, heat in the firebox does not count for anything. The heat must be in the oven or at the holes—where you need it for cooking.

So, when we say that from every ounce of fuel you put into a HAPPY THOUGHT you get the full return in heat value, we mean that you get something more than you get from other stoves.

A small fire in a HAPPY THOUGHT is equivalent to a big fire in a less efficient stove. It does more work. It saves you the difference in fuel.

That is the kind of saving that it pays you to invest in. A good stove is not a cheap article. It should be carefully selected. It should be chosen chiefly on this one point of greatest importance.

That is why a Quarter Million Canadian women use the HAPPY THOUGHT every day.

Take Every Precaution

Eyestrain sometimes comes on so gradually that the individual does not realize his trouble until it has reached a serious stage.

In fact there are many effects of eyestrain that only a physician would trace to their true source.

The man who does a great deal of work with his eyes, should be on the watch for the first indications of strain, and do everything possible to prevent it from occurring.

Sometimes the eyes are in such an irritable condition that the wearing of the ordinary "flat" lenses produces great discomfort. Light is reflected from the rear surfaces of the lenses and the eyes are wearied by unconciously trying to focus on these reflections.

Then when looking to either side the edges of such lenses annoy the eyes.

These irritations are avoided when you wear Toric Lenses. You are not taking every possible precaution against eyestrain if you do not get a pair of Torics.

All lenses ground on the premises

CASE TAKEN TO WRONG COURT

Judge Huycke Desmises Appeal of Eight Chinamen

Each Was Fined $40 and Costs in Police Court

Judge Huycke yesterday gave judgment in the case of D. W. Dumble versus the eight Chinamen charged with playing cards on Sunday contrary to the Lord's Day Act. His Honor dismissed all the appeals as wrongly entered, allowing no costs. The Judge held that the appeals should not have gone to Division Court, but to the Court of General Sessions.

The conviction by Police Magistrate Dumble in police court is upheld.

Each of the eight Chinamen was fined $40 and costs.

CHIEF THOMPSON HAS LATE BERRIES

It is rarely that strawberries are found growing in October yet Chief of Police Thompson has any number of them, some almost ripe, on the bushes in his garden. Naturally the very unusual growth has greatly surprised the Chief and he is quite proud of possessing such a high grade quality of bushes.

Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie contributed two vocal selections, one being a patriotic number, entitled "Greater Canada," and the other, a solo, entitled, "Good-Bye to the Leaves."

A most entertaining and interesting paper on Peterborough was read by Mrs (Col.) Stevenson, tracing the development of the city from its early days to the present time. Refreshments were served at the close.

COSTS $4.60 TO USE PAVEMENTS

Still Another Fine For Violation of Traffic By-law

The receipts from police court fines this morning reached the total of $17.80.

A Millbrook man who was never arrested before admitted rather shamefacedly that he was drunk yesterday. He had plenty of money to pay a $2.00 fine.

FIFTEEN DAYS.

John Ryan, who was discharged yesterday on a charge of being drunk cropped up again this morning. Ryan violated his promise yesterday by going out and indulging. Not being supplied with $5.75 he will think over his folly in jail for the next fifteen days.

The same fate befel James Bradley, who was drunk and disorderly, and who had not $5.75. Bradley used profanity during his spree.

BAD MEDICINE.

Thomas Banks claimed that some brandy that he had purchased for medicine upset him. It also induced him to use bad language. It cost him $4.60 which he paid forthwith.

A man named Thompson allowed his horse to stand on George street without being tied. He drives for Alderman Butler. A $2.00 fine was imposed.

RODE ON PAVEMENTS.

Thomas Richardson was assessed $4.60 for riding a bicycle on the sidewalk on Cedar street. He wished to explain the circumstances to the Magistrate, but it was sufficient for His Worship to know that he was guilty.

Joseph Murphy cheerfully handed over the same amount without being asked, being up on the same charge.

It is likewise true that each of the three great railroad corporations has selected Weyburn as a divisional centre —that Weyburn will, within two years from now, be one of the principal centres on the shortest line connecting the Atlantic and Pacific ports—that Weyburn will, by the end of this year, or early during 1913, have two international roads, transporting human freight from the United States to the great last West, a feature of which no other centre, with the exception of Winnipeg, can boast. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has stated that Weyburn will be one of the most important points on its Western system—and with such promised activity it is logical to state that Weyburn real estate offers investors an opportunity for large profits enjoyed by but few other [illegible] of opportunities.

THE WONDERS OF NEW ONTARIO ON EXHIBITION

Samples of Grain Fruit and Vegetables Shown in the Demonstration Car.

"If you have never been there you can have no conception of just what our New Ontario is with the immensely rich soil, the mineral and timber wealth." That is the way it was put by Mr. G. E. Palmer, government demonstrater on the New Ontario car here to-day, and an examination of the grain, fruit and vegetables in the car bore out his enthusiastic statements about New Ontario as a wonderful country. The car and what it contained was a veritable revelation of the resources and possibilities of Ontario's vast northland. It would be impossible for one who did not know to at once accept the verdict that hundreds of miles to the north lies a land, which will one day, as sure as fate, vie with Old Ontario as a producer of good staple crops of all kinds of hardy grains and ordinary fruits. While on the C. P. R. siding it was visited by hundreds who were anxious to see just what was produced in New Ontario besides silver bearing ore, muskeg, and mosquitoes. Those who went and saw, came away with the sober impression that the country that can send out such products as those shown in that car must have a great future before it and also that those sturdy agriculturists who get in early, on the ground floor as it were, are going to be the pioneers of a country which will witness wondrous development in the next decade.

The greater part of the exhibit were from the Temiskaming county. There were peas there the like of which have not been seen here since the old days when the fallows were first broken up, years and years ago and wheat which is as good a sample as the world famous Manitoba No. 1 Hard. Also fall wheat that cannot be beaten in Old Ontario. "There is no rust there. Neither is there pea-weevil or bug in that country," said Mr. Palmer, "that's one reason, I suppose that the peas can't be beaten in Canada." The oats shown both in the bin and on the head, were an excellent sample. "We get from sixty to eighty bushels to the acre of those and they weigh up at about forty pounds to the bushel—pretty fine oats, eh?" said the genial demonstrator. "The barley gives us from forty to forty-five bushels to the acre," he continued, "and in fact any grain that you grow here we can grow there, and beat it too, as a general rule. At first we feared that we would not be able to get much fruit but now look at those apples," and he pointed to a couple of bins of beauties that would have tempted Adam to reach forth again to secure the forbidden fruit. "There is no doubt that it will be a great fruit country and that in the very near future. On exhibit were samples of auriferous rock, the famous Cobalt silver ore, with the glistening outcroppings. There were an exhibition three samples of alfalfa—samples of three cuttings from one field this year, and the second was as good as the first and the third was just about as good. When three crops of alfalfa [illegible] be taken off one field in one year there must be really excellent soil beneath.

The vegetable exhibit was fine, the cabbage, turnips, onions, potatoes, and kindred growths being as good as any seen at the fall fairs around here. There were varied exhibits from Temiskaming, Algoma, Rainy River and Manitoulin and all were fine, but the Temiscaming showing was the best. Then the demonstrator was asked the vital question "How about the frost, does it not do you considerable damage in that high latitude?" To the question, Mr. Palmer said that in the five years he had been up in the new country he hadn't seen a summer frost until this year, when such frosts were general all over the country. "But it did no damage to grain or fruit," concluded Mr. Palmer. In conclusion the impression was forced home that the last "Great West," of Canada does not lie really in the west, but in several hundred miles due north of here.

REVOLVER CARRIED BY STUDENT WAS ACCIDENTLY DISCHARGED

This morning during an exchange of teachers a student of the Collegiate Institute in Form 1B, accidentally discharged a revolver which he had in his possession. Fortunately the barrel was not in the range of another student and the bullet went through one of the windows. The noise was heard in the other forms but at that time was given only a passing thought by the teachers.

Before the next teacher arrived the blind was drawn and the damaged pane of glass covered. No further reference was made to the incident but the matter will likely receive the attention of the principal.

EXCUSE ME COMPANY HAD LATE ARRIVAL

Scenery Had to be Handled in Quick Time

Foreman Arch. Barbeau, for the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Company and his "crew" found a big task on their hands last evening, when the Port Hope to Toronto train was 45 minutes late. The train brought the "Excuse Me" Company, and scenery from St. Thomas for their engagement at the Grand, and the boys had to do some fast work in order that the first act could be staged in proper time. There were over four loads of scenery. They did their work well, and the curtain went up a few minutes after the audience was seated.

A C.P.R. Booklet

A very neat booklet, full of up-to-date information is No. 1, of a series of "Handbooks of Information regarding business and opportunities in Eastern Canada," published by the colonization and industrial branch of the Department of Natural Resources of the Canadian Pacific Railway, at Montreal. As one reads about the wonderful amount of raw material that is available for manufactures and of their most varied nature, one looks forward to the day when the province of Quebec's water-power development will enable Montrealers to buy power as cheaply as do the people of Hamilton and Peterborough. Openings for business of all kinds in the eastern provinces, are published in the handbook and also existing manufacturers trades, etc. The illustrations are very fine. The publication is given away and may be obtained by writing to the Department of Natural Resources, C. P. R. offices, Windsor street, Montreal.

CANADIAN CLUB ONE OF THE GREAT MODERN FACTORS

One of Many Points Brought Out in Address by Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, K.C.—First Meeting of the Season for Peterboro Canadian Club Was Highly Successful—Dr. Creelman the Next Speaker.

Progress and high ideals; ideals that are above mercenary motives; ideals that will elevate public and private life; ideals that we owe to our country and our State.

If we would live worthy lives, we must live noble and true in every sense. If you but carry out the suggestions outlined tonight you will depart this life with no regrets, and departing leave your footprints, on the sands of time.—E. F. B. Johnston K.C., to Canadian Club.

It was a source of positive satisfaction to the officers of the Canadian Club last night to realize that the inaugural meeting for this year undoubtedly surpassed all attendance records. The success of the first meeting was evident to all. Every seat at the tables was occupied.

The banquet was commenced about 6.30 and the address by Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, one of the brilliant men in the legal profession to-day occupied a little over an hour. The speaker during an address on "Some Great Modern Factors," uncovered a marvelous amount of instructive, original matter, the topic being one that afforded him almost unlimited scope. His address was a treat in every sense and that it was abundantly enjoyed was evident by the outburst of applause that rewarded him as he resumed his chair.

In commencing his address Mr Johnston stated that it was not his custom to prepare specially written speeches as is so commonly done in dealing with the subject of modern factors, one had to deal with matters of world-wide import. All the great changes in the world have taken place without attracting particular attention. He referred first to the change in the human race itself. From individuals the race drifted into communities and then into a national body. The human race had developed into a world-wide force with all its wonderful changes. To illustrate his address the speaker drew two imaginary pictures. For instance he asked his hearers to imagine that all railways were wiped out of the world. Take away all social amenities all sources of education and the result would be barbarism. The human race had come to take all these privileges for granted. They have come gradually without being noticed. Then imagine a man awakening from a sleep of one hundred years. What would he find? He would find quick and wonderful means of communication; he would find horseless carriages and small machines which were capable of performing the work of twenty men. He would find wonderful power development schemes and nature obedient to the powers of man. "We accept these wonderful things without much surprise and without devoting much attention to them."

THE CANADIAN CLUB.

Mr Johnston went on to speak of one important factor, namely, the Canadian Club. "The Canadian Club has an underlying element, and is a most important factor in the British Empire to-day. There is a desire by the Clubs to procure new ideas and broaden and strengthen national sentiment. The Canadian Club is an imperial organization. Clubs should not be operated on political lines but on broad national lines. Neither should they be confined to class but cultivate the spirit of democracy. In many clubs you will see labor and capital sitting together, associated by the imperial unity spirit."

CITIZENSHIP FIRST

The first underlying principle in Canadian Clubs should be the matter of citizenship. There should be the feeling of democracy in every club. Another underlying principle should be the love of country. These elements combined produce the sentiments which affect the whole Anglo-Saxon race. If these three principles are carried out "you see a great future for Canada. You will see everything working together for the good of Canada. You will see Canada as a country capable of standing alone and not existing, as only a colony of Great Britain."

Continuing, said Mr. Johnston: "We must experience the feeling of the great Wizard of the North when he penned the lines:

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead.
Who never to himself has said,
This is mine own, my native land"

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

"One of the greatest elements to-day is the broadening and widening of religious thought. The day is past when men of two different denominations would not walk on the same street with each other. Great harmony now exists between the ministers of various denominations and things have now reached the stage when the matter of church union is under discussion. In the last twenty years religion has made tremendous strides in human hearts. Now there is great religious toleration. There is no persecution and you could not get a martyr if you had to pay a man to be one."

Referring to this tendency to toleration Mr. Johnston said one of the greatest dangers is the tendency to substitute morality for religion. The latter was one of the greatest dangers of the present age.

"What can counteract many of these latter evils, is humanity in the pulpit, based upon the teachings that found their way to this world from the banks of the River Jordan."

THE PRESS.

Referring to the press, Mr. Johnston thought it was difficult to conceive of a more important element in the world. The speaker stated he was not going to give an eulogy of the press. But the product of the press goes into every home. One of the greatest things that can be said of the press is its purity. The press can be looked upon as a champion of Democracy, and it really is the advanced age of progress and development, and undeniably one of greatest factors of modern times.

"No paper to-day would dare run counter to a sound, clean, honest policy. As an advertising medium the press has marvelous power. It has been the means of building up the great commercial industries of the world. It has done its duty in breaking up trusts and monopolies, and actually undertakes to make and unmake governments. It builds up and changes whole towns and cities. A newspaper is a morning welcome and an evening solace. On account of all these things the press is undoubtedly one of the greatest modern factors in the world."

ANOTHER MODERN POWER.

Continuing, the learned speaker dealt with electricity as a great modern factor. "No man really knows what it is. Electricity is only in its infancy. The time was when power was restricted to certain localities and to certain appliances. Electricity to-day, however, is becoming a merchantable quantity. To-day you have dynamos which will generate power for hundreds of miles. Power is no longer a fixture. People should nowadays be careful about the matter of granting franchises for long periods, because power is now more and more becoming merchantable. At the present [illegible] that of demand and supply.

"Electricity is now becoming so universal that it does almost everything that a human being can do.

LABOR UNIONS.

"Another great factor is the question of labor and labor unions. The day is past when labor unions are not recognized by law. To-day the power of the labor union against capital is so great that a year ago it paralized the whole industrial life of England."

The speaker stated that he was not expressing any opinion, one way or the other in regard to unions.

"The great object of labor is to produce an article and get a market for that article. That is a matter which jointly interests capital and labor. Trusts and combines must lower the price of production or they would not be countenanced. It is then that conflicts take place between the two parties."

As to a remedy for the struggle

MERCHANTS RESPONSIBLE

Every merchant in business to-day should be responsible for every statement made in connection with the sale of goods.

Honest advertising of honest goods, at honest prices, is now the slogan of the most successful stores in the world. It is the slogan of the New Men's Wear Store, "Cameron," on George-st. This store positively guarantees every purchase made in it, so that it is not necessary for a person to be an expert judge of goods in order to make a purchase, for when you are told that you can buy a pure Wool Serge or Tweed Suit as low as $12, you can depend that it is right.

When you are told that you can get a fine all Wool Tweed Suit or Overcoat, made in the most fashionable style, with pure wool linings and the latest Patent Bartell Pockets, for only $16, you will easily understand that it is real good value.

There are a lot of the New Fall Suits and Overcoats piling into the store now, but they also keep going out every day, so much so that "Cameron" wears a smile.

There are new found friends being made to the new store and there are more on the way. Be one of the friends. Go in and get acquainted.

EGYPTIAN TOMBS ILLUSTRATED

Lecture by Prof. Currelly Was Intensely Interesting

The first of the series of lectures for the Normal school was held last night instead of to-night on account of school closing at noon to-day for Thanksgiving. The remainder of the lectures will be held on Friday evenings.

Prof. C. T. Currelly of the University of Toronto, was the lecturer, and he gave an exceedingly interesting talk on "Egyptian Tombs." He explained the belief the Egyptians had in the future, where the body and soul would be reunited and that the king again became the king again of the underworld.

Succeeding kings, to prevent their rivals in this underworld kingship, attempted to destroy the body of the former king. The kings, to preserve their bodies intact, built pyramids to be used as tombs for a place of security. The Professor gave lantern slide illustrations of the pyramids and of the interior of the tombs, and in one or two cases, the ombs, and in one or two cases, the mumified bodies. The lecture was intensely interesting and gave to all a new view of the pyramids and the Egyptains.

SHE HOPES TO SAVE OTHERS

Mother of Johnson's White Wife, Very Bitter Towards the Negro

New York, Oct. 25.—"If the suicide of my daughter might be taken as a warning to other white girls; if I thought it might save some one else from a similar fate my own crushing burden of sorrow would be easier to bear, and I would feel that her death had not been in vain."

Mrs David Terry widowed mother of Etta Duryea-Johnson the white wife of Jack Johnson who shot herself in Chicago September 12 made this statement to-day, believing it to be her Christian duty she said, to help Mrs. Cameron drive the black pugilist from the city and country.

"It would be wrong for me to tell what ought to be done she said, her voice hardening. "It is not for me to judge. God will do that, but every night a prayer goes up from my pillow asking God to send upon this man the punishment he deserves."

SAYS HE WAS CRUEL

"Was Johnson cruel to her?"

"No one will ever know just how cruel" Mrs. Terry replied, in that low tired voice. "He beat her so she had to go to the hospital for treatment. She was mortally afraid of him. She ran away not long before she killed herself, hiding in a hotel near Chicago. Johnson set detectives after her, found her, and had her brought back. I have seen her with her eyes black and bruises on her face. Before she left for Paris she told me she would rather die than go.

"When Etta shot herself I was prostrated but went to Chicago. We stayed at a hotel with my daughter Arline and not at Johnson's house as the papers stated. When we went to Etta's home to see her I begged the negro to grant me one request I wanted the body of my dead girl. He refused.

"He forced his company upon us until we left Chicago.

"On the way to the cemetery by the side of the grave on the way back at our hotel, at the railway station in the train itself, he pursued us relentlessly. He sat on the arm of Arline's chair in the car and said so everybody could hear him: 'I'll forgive you, Arline for the way you treated me to-day.'

"It was not because he loved us that he did all that. He did it for show and all the time I was tortured by the desire to cry out so all the world might hear that it was all sham.

"I have kept silence because I wanted the world to forget the tragedy. I can never forget it; but I don't care for myself now and I am willing to bear further humiliation if I can keep some other girl from going the way my daughter went. If I can save one other daughter from a similar tragedy. If I could feel that I am thus doing some good my own burden of sorrow would oppress me less and I would know that my daughter's life and death had not been in vain."

Macdonald Cases To-day.

Winnipeg, Oct. 25.—Two cases in connection with the recent Macdonald bye-election will be aired to-day in the courts. Before the Court of Appeals, the informants in the St. James' personation cases, in which Magistrate McMicken imposed fines but not imprisonment, will place the magistrate on trial for malversation. The other case is a police court charge by Magistrate McMicken against W. H. Trueman and E. J. McMurray for theft and assault respectively in connection with the mix-up in that court.

Magistrate McMicken defending his action, says that he thought he had dealt very fairly with the Liberals. The only men he had fined were Conservatives, and he was not aware at the time that imprisonment was compulsory under the Dominion Election Act. Besides, he thinks he should get credit that fines were imposed and the cases not merely dismissed, as had been the invariable previous practice in Manitoba.

JAMES BOXALL.

Canada Fraternal Society Man Lays Down the Reins of Office.

Probably no man in any Canadian fraternal organization has climbed up the ladder of offices to the very top as quickly as Mr. James Boxall of Lindsay, who but a few years ago stepped down from the exalted position of Supreme President of the Sons of England Society, after having held it for several terms, to give way to what he termed "younger blood." Mr. Boxall, who is at the present time one of the busiest and most prominent business men of Lindsay, Ont., at one time was an active member of Lodge Ruby, in Toronto. Twenty-five years ago he was a full private in the rank and file of the famous order. He joined the ranks at Port Perry and was known throughout the countryside as a young man of never-failing energy, and he is still a dynamo for business in the shire town of Victoria County. Mr. Boxall, besides being a Sunday school superintendent in the Methodist Church for many years, is a member of the Board of Waterworks Commissioners, ex-president of the Lindsay Board of Trade, and at the present time one of the five members of the Industrial Commission of Lindsay. He is also a keen and ardent politician, and during campagins can always be found in the thickest of the fray. At political gatherings he can champion the Conservative cause with the best of platform speakers, while his ready wit always serves him well. A story told of how Mr. Boxall silenced a heckler at Oakwood not long ago is characteristic of that gentleman's quick wit. One farmer was continually interrupting Mr. Boxall in his speech, when the latter stated that he would tell a story for the benefit of the farmer in question. "Not so very long ago," started the speaker, "when fodder was scarce and dear, a farmer conceived the idea of feeding his hens by mixing sawdust in the bran. Soon he put a little more sawdust in and a little less bran and by-and-bye all sawdust and no bran, the hens thriving wonderfully well on the new food. By-and-bye he wished to hatch a batch of chickens, and put mother hen on the eggs. The result was that a fine brood was hatched, thirteen in all, and on examination it was found that 12 of the chicks had wooden legs, while one was a woodpecker." At this point Mr. Boxall stopped, and the farmer again "butted in" with the sarcastic remark, "Well, where does the woodpecker fit into your story?" "Well," continued Mr. Boxall, "I did not wish to draw the application here to-night, but I am sure that anyone in this intelligent audience will readily understand my story, and will also readily understand where the woodpecker is in this audience." Needless to say, the story had the effect of turning the laugh on the farmer, and silencing him for the rest of the evening.

Made Up His Loss.

Mr. John Ross Robertson, proprietor of The Toronto Telegram, has a way of assisting needy causes that bespeaks a sympathetic interest in the problems of his fellowmen. Sometimes this humane sentiment reaches down to places and people who may never have an opportunitiy to praise his benefactions in the open court. In one of these acts about three years ago an office boy figured as the principal. He was then in the employ of Mr. Robertson's newspaper, and on the day following the failure of the Farmers' Bank remarked to the city editor that his grudge against the bank was no light one, for his passbook had contained savings of twenty-five dollars intended for his night school expenses. Next day Mr. Robertson, who had heard of the incident indirectly, walked through the city room and spied the dolorous lad seated on a bench.

"So you're a bank victim, eh?" observed the proprietor, kindly. "What did they take from you?"

"Everything — $25," confessed the lad, timidly.

"And you still want to attend night school?"

"You bet I do."

The boss drew forth five five-dollar bills and pressed them into the little chap's hand.

"Now, for goodness sake," he said, "be careful how you select your banker."—Toronto Star Weekly.

Is There a Coal Famine?

A rather remarkable condition exists just now in Montreal. Recently the coal dealers in the metropolis made the calm announcement that they had in stock fifty tons of stove coal, while ordinarily at this time of the year 50,000 tons are on hand. With chilly nights coming due, such a statement might well cause a mild sensation. Of course there is an explanation. The trouble is the labor unrest. Recently there was a gigantic coal strike in Great Britain. Coal intended for the Canadian market was shipped across the Atlantic to help out the English situation. Then followed the Pennsylvania strike, throwing dealers in the Dominion away behind in their orders. With a big demand for coal, and no ready supply, naturally prices have aviated. This is a further complication in the matter which may be responsible for furrows in the brow of Mr. Consumer this fall.

In Montreal, loose stove coal is $7.75 a ton, and all the time going up; loose egg is the same; and chestnut twenty-five cents more.

Oil-Propelled Vessel.

With a full cargo of port and sherry wine the new oil-propelled vessel, Fordonian, at present in course of completion in the Old Country will arrive shortly in Toronto harbor. The new ship, which is the property of the Merchants Mutual Line, will, it is expected, be something of a revelation in the marine line to lake vesselmen.

Driven by an 1,100 h.p. oil engine it is calculated that she will be capable of attaining a speed of upwards of 12 miles an hour, whereas the only other oil vessel on the lakes, the Toiler, can only make some six miles per hour. The new vessel is full canal size, 253 feet, with a beam of 14 feet.

Police Lieut. Becker will testify in his own behalf in the trial at New York.

OLD NIAGARA.

Father Daillion Visited It as Missionary in 1626.

It is believed that the first white man who visited Fort Niagara was Father Daillion in 1626, who performed Mass there. Then in 1678, a ten-ton craft came with sixteen Frenchmen, among them the not very veracious historian Father Hennepin; then in January, 1679, came La Salle, whose vessel was lost. There is much dispute as to where the first stockade was erected, here at Lewiston, but in 1688 a fortress was built by Denonville on the site of Fort Niagara to resist the Senecas, and then occurred the first tragedy, as of the hundred men left to defend it only twelve were found living in the spring by friendly Indians, and then relieved by a French force, having yielded their lives from bad food, scurvy, starvation and the attacks of fierce Iroquois; Parkman says, first a prison, next a hospital, then a charnelhouse. Here was erected on Good Friday of that year, 1688, a large wooden cross, 18 feet in height, with the inscription: "R.E.G.N., V.I.N.C., I.M.P., C.H.R.S. Christ reigns, conquers, governs."

Charlevoix writes in 1721 to Madame de Maintenon a description of the scenery. Imagine the Court of France listening to these enthusiastic words: "Magnificent forests, purest air, beautiful and fruitful hills." In 1726 the fort was rebuilt by stratagem, the Indians who were opposed to this being engaged in a hunting expedition, only returning to find the walls were high enough for defence. It is described soon after as having ravines, ditches, counterscarp, drawbridge, chapel with ancient dial, the whole covering a space of eight acres. During the seven years' war, 1756-1763, this fort was vigorously attacked by the British under Prideaux and Johnson, and as vigorously defended by Ponchot, who summoned to his assistance French and Indians from the west, the river at Navy Island being black with boats. Prideaux meanwhile was killed and Sir William Johnson carried on the siege successfully, and Ponchot's force marched out, laying down their arms July 25, 1759. The stores found in the fort were immense. Prideaux and Col. Johnson were buried in the chapel with great form, according to the diary of Sir William, who was the chief mourner. Much discussion has arisen as to whether their bodies were left there when the chapel was taken down or removed to the military graveyard. At all events something should be done to commemorate the names of two officers who gave their lives for Britain's glory. It is remarkable that, while so much is said of the conquest of Quebec by Wolfe, so little is made of the capture of Fort Niagara two months before—a fort which it had been said was the key to the continent and for the possession of which statesmen had disputed and soldiers had fought.

Gen. Lee on August 9, 1759, gives a glowing description: "The situation of this place is certainly magnificent. Had I a thousand tongues I might attempt to describe it, but without them it certainly beggars all description. For an immense space around it is filled with deer, bears, turkeys, raccoons—in short, all game. The lake affords salmon and other excellent fish. But I am afraid you will think I am growing romantic, therefore I shall only say that it is a paradise." Here were brought stores of food, articles for exchange with Indians in the west, sent afterwards by portage around the same way. And the next picture is that of the tragedy of Bloody Run, when soldiers of Fort Niagara, in 1763, hearing the firing when an ambush of Indians had killed and scalped an escort of twenty-five men, two only escaping, went to the rescue and shared the same fate, the Senecas bearing away eighty scalps, and when the rest of the garrison marched from the fort to the scene of slaughter they found an inextricable mass of men, horses, oxen, wagons at the base of the cliff, giving to the rivulet the name of Bloody Run.—Janet Carnochan in Toronto Globe.

A Wet Time.

Blue Bonnets race track at Montreal, when it opened its gates for the first time, about five years ago, ran up against unfortunate weather conditions — there was rain during the whole fourteen days of the meet.

During the second week, the German warship Bremen dropped anchor in the harbor, and on board was an admiral and a member of the German nobility.

Sir H. Montague Allan, president of the club, invited the German visitors to attend the races, and they accepted.

Speaking to Mr. J. F. Ryan, the secretary of the club, Sir Montague stated that their guests would be attended by two hundred bluejackets.

"How would you suggest that they should come down?" asked Sir Montague.

"Well, if it continues to rain," replied Mr. Ryan, "I believe that the Bremen might sail into the back stretch."

Cholera Menaces Europe.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 25.—Cholera again is sweeping India, according to a report to the United States public health service. In August, in the Province of Madras alone, there were 10,000 deaths.

Cholera is also said to be prevalent in Asiatic Turkey, and with Turkish troops being hurled into southern Europe, officials here fear the plague may spread through Europe.

Generous Americans.

Jerry was treating Mike to a trolley ride. The conductor, a good looking Irishman, came through collecting the fares. Mike watched his progress with great interest. Presently he turned to Jerry with tears in his eyes.

"Jerry," he said huskily, "I've a lump in me t'roat."

"What for?" demanded Jerry.

"'Tis the gladness of me that's too big to swally!" said Mike. "Every American has the big, generous heart. D'ye mind the poor young felly wid the blue cap? 'Tis beggin' his livin' he is. I saw him hould out his hand to twenty-siven people, an' every blessed wan o' thim giv' him a nickel."—Judge.

between capital and labor it seemed to the speaker that representatives to Parliament should strive to devise means to prevent these terrible strikes which from time to time paralyse the life of the country. Labor has no way of producing a reserve of labor in itself, that is the laboring man suffers immediately, and has no reserve to fall back upon such as is at the disposal of capital.

"Labor occupies a different position from what it did several years ago. The laboring man years ago worked alone. Now no man stands individually, but as part of a complex fabric. The man makes a part and that part only. Every man depends upon his relation to capital."

TRANSPORTATION.

Mr. Johnston also dwelt upon what he conisdered the most important factor of modern times, namely Transportation. "Of all the other factors together, excepting the morality factor, Transportation was the strongest and most important. "Not so many years ago we were 3,000 miles from Halifax to Vancouver; now we are only 300, and so on; all the result of transportation. It opens up new trade changes and establishes intercourse between countries and communities. It opens up communication with the most remote market. Once we had only the village market; to-day we are just as near England as we are to China or Japan. Another phase is that we have established a wonderfully interesting and interwoven system of trade and commerce. The greatest preventative of war to-day is the fact that transportation has so interwoven the countries together that it would be suicidal for one country to antagonize another. The first shot fired in an English-German battle would be first heard upon the cliffs of Dover. One single shot would send the money and stock market down almost to liquidation. Not because we are afraid, but because the slightest trouble between the closely connected countries of the world would inevitably jar the entire world.

In summing up, the speaker interpreted transportation as putting things in place. Without a product reaches the place for which it was intended it would be of absolutely no use. "There can be no value in production unless that production reaches a proper market. Articles must be brought to their place and the better it is for the place where there are the suitable means of transportation. This being so one can readily understand why railways are so important. Without railroad transportation population would be destroyed."

THE ENGLISH TONGUE.

Mr. Johnston's final word was in the form of a question. "Has it ever occurred to you that one of the modern factors to-day is the matter of the English tongue?"

"The English language in the last twenty years has developed a tremendous scope. It has become a nationalizing factor. It modifies the laws of countries where it has been introduced. It is developing a new line of thought in countries where the Anglo-Saxon language is used. For instance, in Holland the English tongue is taught to the children principally to help in the carrying on of trade relations with the English."

"The great danger in our western provinces where so many languages are spoken, is the absence of the solidifying tongue of the British people. They must have the language which carries with it the great and glorious traditions of the past. You must have all the great historic traditions of Great Britain instilled deeply in the minds of the entire population. The individual must have these great and glorious events to remember the Anglo-Saxon by. The Anglo-Saxon tongue is the great tie between England and the United States. A war between these two countries would be almost an impossibility owing to the great bond which the English language represents to them."

Canada the Target.

"Canada is now the bull's-eye of the world," drawled an Englishman of prominence when interviewed the other day at Montreal. If the tourist immigration of this summer be taken as an indication, he is not far wrong. Seventy-five members of the British Parliament have "hit" Canada since the Parliamentary session closed at Westminster, and fully a dozen lords and dukes. Some of the best known men in the social and political life of Great Britain are in the country just now.

MADE HIT IN LONDON

TWO CANADIAN ARTISTS HAVE SURPRISED METROPOLIS.

Archibald Browne and Homer Watson Went to England and Held Private Exhibition This Summer and Haldane Macfall, the Best of the London Critics, Is Loud In Praise of the Two Pioneers.

It is a strange fact that, whilst nearly every Englishman "talks large" of Empire and of the Imperial race, and of "hands across the seas," and the like handsome sentiment, he ignores our colonial kin about as thoroughly as though he hated them, says Haldane Macfall, the celebrated English art critic, in a recent issue of The Academy. Let us take our English attitude towards the poets of the outposts of this wondrous realm of ours. In London, this summer, may be seen the paintings of two true Canadian landscapists. The lyric poems of Archibald Browne and the virile hand in pastoral and woodland scenes of Homer Watson give more than a strong hint of the vigorous breed upon our frontiers. These are not the only ones—they are but two out of several. Yet we have a heavily endowed official Royal Academy that makes no slightest advance to give these men hospitality, far less honor. Why cannot this official body, in return for the manifold honours and benefits showered upon it by the King, do something to further the royal interest and give substance to the keen sympathy of the King for his vast inheritance? Surely it needs no prodigious self-sacrifice for the Royal Academy to give at least one room every summer to the display of the genius of the colonies in painting and sculpture! What is the value of all our protestations of fellowship with the colonies if we treat them as our Cinderellas, and fling them the rags of neglect in the back kitchen of our high estate? The Academicians can ill afford to patronize the colonial breed; nay, it were no bad thing for the Academy to learn from them. Were there a colonial room at every summer show, it might brace up the sluggish energies of that august body more than a little.

Both Archibald Browne and Homer Watson are tried and tested artists who have established reputations, though 'tis likely enough that the Royal Academy has never heard of them. At the Goupil Gallery is a display of the lyrical art of Archibald Browne which reveals an exquisite poetic sense that conjures up for us at home the mysteries that lie over the land of Canada. His sensitive touch and romantic vision weave from the scenes of his native land those twilight moods that are aroused in the senses out of the dusk between the day and night the world over, but added there is the haunting call of the Canada that has bred him and is his love. It is a far different land from the silvery land of France, and Browne's art is not the art of Corot; but between the two men is a lyric brotherhood that tells of a like subtlety of vision, a like sweetness of disposition, a like content, and a romantic love of the land that has yielded its allure into their hearts from childhood. To say this is to say that Browne is a genuine poet, gifted with singer's skill to utter the music that is in him.

In Homer Watson, as three or four of his displayed canvases witness, we have a virile and forceful poet of the pastoral life, and, above all, of the woodland life of his native land. Here is a man whose sincere art descends to him, as by hereditary vision, from the great English landscape painters—an art through which the men of Barbison, by their mastery, proved us to be kin to the Northern Frenchmen. Homer Watson's bold handling and loaded brush might have been trained by Constable and Crome and Rousseau and the men of Barbizon of whom he knew nothing until his art was confirmed and his name honored in Canada. But he has—as his sincerity of vision was bound to give him, even if his schooling give him none—a touch, a vision, and handling apart and all his own, which are skillfully employed in the rendering of great trees and in the stern and dramatic landscapes so typical of the pastoral life of Canada. The russet hues of autumn amongst the woodlands seem to bring out all his strength; and he catches the moods of the forest with a certainty of grip and a vigor of handling tha give a marked personal quality to all that he essays.

I wondered as I stood before the sincere art of these two poets, whether Canada herself realizes that she has poets in her midst, or whether her rich and well-to-do are "furnishing" their walls with pictures persuaded upon them by the dealers—wondered whether the "faked" Barbizon landscapes and the machine-made "masterpieces" of the picture factories of Holland are being flung upon the people at great price, whilst the native genius is being passed by. It is a matter for pride in Canada that a people who have torn the forest out of the waste and raised a mighty realm midst a vast continent should already be bursting into song, and that there are arising amongst her virile breed such artists as these, of whom two may be seen in London to-day. It is not easily credible that Canada does not realize her own splendor, yet we have before us the historic tragedy of the Dutch, who, even whilst they brought forth their greatest genius, from Rembrandt and Hals and Vermeer onwards, let their greatest starve whilst they gave fortunes to the mediocrities and poured money into the purses of tenth-rate aliens.

But how can we blame Canada for seeking after false gods in art when the worship lies so heavily upon our own souls? The craftsmen are many, but the singers are few. There are giants like Brangwyn who hymn their age, who sing the might of our race to-day, its triumph of toil and its conquest over the earth and the elements.

Getting Even.

Did you ever live in the same neighborhood as a man who complains that the neighbors' children spoil his lawn, that their chickens scratch up his seeds, and so on?

There's a Mr. Blank in Hamilton who frequently makes such complaints concerning his neighbors.

One night Blank heard a dog barking. He thought he knew whose dog it was, so he called up Neighbor Fisher and said, "Your dog is barking and annoying the neighborhood."

"It's not my dog," said Fisher.

"It is."

"It's not."

Once or twice more before he turned in, Blank called up Fisher and they had the same conversation.

Fisher who stayed out very late that night, decided to get even. At 4 a.m. he called up the kicker.

"Is that Mr. Blank?" he asked.

"Yes," answered Blank, sleepily.

"Well, I want to tell you," said Fisher, "that that wasn't my dog."

Blank was too tired to put up even a telephone fight, and Fisher added, "My dog has been down cellar all night, and he's scratching at the door now and whining to get out."—Canadian Courier.

Didn't Worry Sir Mackenzie.

In the days when Sir Mackenzie Bowell was one of the Conservative leaders, and an active campaigner, the honest electorate used to take liberties with his name on his campaign tours.

Once while canvassing the county of Hastings, the Belleville knight was variously addressed by the "free and independent," as "Sir Mackenzie," "Sir Mack," and just plain "Mack."

One of his colleagues noted the familiarity and was rather nettled by it, so he spoke to Sir Mackenzie.

"Why do you allow people to be so free with your name?" he asked.

Sir Mackenzie was too thick-skinned by long practice at the game of politics to mind it.

"Tut!" he said, "I don't care a rap what they call me so long as I get their votes."

And he got them.

Education Progress.

Four years ago the University of Alberta commenced operations in a room in one of the public schools of Strathcona. Four professors kept the freshmen in order.

To-day Dr. Fry and his assistants number twenty-four, and there is 300 of an enrollment expected when the college term opens. Education, like other things, moves rapidly in the West.

WET WEATHER FOR A YEAR.

All Our Weather Woes May Be Attributed to Spots on Old Sol.

Sun spots. These little dark blotches on Old Sol's surface are, according to Prof. Galbraith, head of the School of Science, responsible for the leaden skies and cold, wet months of this past summer. Sun spots have spoiled many a picnic party this season, and cut down the profits of the summer boarding-house. Maybe, too, they have had more than a little to do with the street car tie-ups that have intermittently afflicted Toronto.

Now the professor's line of science is not weather prophecy. Moreover, he did not express this opinion as against any that might be put forward by the regularly constituted authorities on meteorological subjects. No doubt, however, they entirely concur with him, as the spots are there, and astronomers have always contended that their presence in numbers was portentous climatically. The Dean's surmise, which was elicited in conversation with a friend, foretells a broken and uncertain winter to follow this drippy summer. It would appear that the sun spots which have been trying in vain to prevent a record attendance at the Toronto Exhibition are due to stay with us, or rather between us and the great dispenser of heat and light, for twelve months.

Many lengthy and learned opinions have been penned on the subject of sun spots since the time of Dr. Alexander Wilson of Glasgow, the first man to observe them in 1769. Sun spots are caused, so the savants say, by great masses of the vapor and gases given off by the sun ascending to a tremendous distance from its surface, cooling, and finally when they are out of range of the heat, condensing into solid masses and falling with meteoric speed to the sun's surface again.

"A sun spot," says one authority, "is one of the dark spots that appear from time to time, consisting commonly of a blue-black central portion, or umbra, with a surrounding border of penumbra, of light shade, and usually visible only with the telescope.

"Sun spots are very changeable in the figure and dimensions, varying from mere apparent points (perhaps 1,000 miles across), to spaces over 100,000 miles in extent. They last often a month, sometimes several months. They occur with periodic frequency, the length of cycle being 11.13 years, and their appearance is accompanied by loss of light, sometimes by loss of heat and often by magnetic storms on the earth. Their exact nature is not fully known.

"In 1851 astronomers measured one huge sun spot, which measured 140,000 miles across, and in which the commotions were so great that they could be detected by eye observation with the telescope."

Are Preventing Cholera.

The report of deaths from cholera infantum during the months of June, July and August coming from Fort William demonstrates what an energetic M.O.H. and a staff of nurses are able to accomplish in preventing infant mortality. Fort William heads the province of Ontario in this respect.

In June, 1911, there were four deaths from this dread disease and one in 1912. In July, 1910, 34 deaths were reported, six in 1911, and two in 1912, while in August, 1910, 29 was the total, 12 for the same month in 1911 and only three for the past month.

Dear Sir,

I have just received from you cheque in settlement of indemnity for injuries received while at camp some weeks ago. I wish to thank the Company through you for the very prompt settlement of this claim and would be glad if you would express to them my appreciation of the prompt settlement. I was more than surprised to receive about $125.00 additional indemnity on account of the bonus which has been added to my policy during the past few years, especially when this feature of the policy did not cost any additional permium.

Very truly yours,

Accident Occurred Near His Home at 316 Bethune St. Was Found by Boy.

Newton Moft, an Indian, in the employ of B. Hicks, as teamster, had his left foot cut off by a Grand Trunk train about 7.45 o'clock last night at the south crossing of Hunter and Bethune streets.

Shortly before the accident two trains went up the line and the shunter came down. It is not known which of these three was the first to pass over his leg or how the accident came about.

He was found almost simultaneously by two boys and his wife, and the injured man was carried to J. H. Cameron's store at the corner. Comstock's ambulance conveyed the unfortunate man to the Nicholls Hospital where Drs. Scott and McClelland attended him.

The scene of the accident is less than half a block from his home, 316 Bethune street. He came from Deseronto. It is reported that he is progressing very favorably.

ROLLER RINK IS DENOUNCED

By Clergymen at Children's Aid Society Meeting

Tag Day to be Held Saturday, November 16th

The Children's Aid Society tag-day canvass will be conducted this year on Saturday November 16th. It will be carried out on exactly the same principle as last year. Further particulars will be announced later.

The officers of the Children's Aid Society met yesterday afternoon and after arranging the date for the canvass, Rev. Robert Pogue referred to the habit of children between the ages of seven and fourteen, being allowed to either patronize or linger around the roller rink. It is understood that ministers of the city are behind a movement to have the practice abated and that a committee from the Children's Aid Society will take the matter up and petition the Government. Rev. Father McColl and Rev. R. Pogue both denounced the roller rink because of the baneful effects it exercised upon children and the young people of the city.

ADVERTISING PETERBOROUGH

It is generally conceded that the man who gets the most good out of life is the one who tries to do the most good for his fellows. The man who joins the new-born, but lively, organization, the Peterborough Ad Club will receive to the extent that he gives. One who joins solely to get pointers on how to prepare the most effective advertisement, may be disappointed. It is only by the free exchange of ideas and information that the first results will obtain. The exchange of opinions by rival ad. writers and merchants will go a long way toward building a bigger and better Peterborough.

One of the questions that should be asked and answered is? What can the Ad. Club do to promote the prosperity of this city? Some definite object other than self-improvement should be entertained.

The planning of a campaign to advertise Peterborough and suburbs might be considered. The club members could undertake the work of preparing plans and copy, and with the assistance of the Board of Trade raise funds to give wide publicity to the many advantages of Peterborough as a manufacturing city and a place of residence, and of its neighboring watering places as summer resorts. While hundreds of citizens of the United States come long distances annually to enjoy fishing and shooting in the district, people who reside in the same province have never heard of these attractions.

Another matter that the club might well give consideration to is the question of the public market. A good market place for producers (not hucksters or middle men) is a big asset and advertisement for a city. The providing of a proper shelter for the farmer against rain and snow would be a move in the right direction—the means of bringing thousands of dollars to the city. If these farmers came to the Peterborough market to sell their truck, they would naturally do all their shopping at the local stores, where they could see just what they were getting for their money. This would tend to "widen the locality" and arouse in the residents of the district a stronger local pride and might eventually lead to the building of suburban electric lines which have done so much to build up many cities in different parts of the country.

How You Win with Cash

THE money-making faculty will not prevail if there is not behind it the money-saving instinct.

You must buy for cash if you would always have cash. Credit is expensive. Every credit store gives a cash discount to cash buyers, but that discount does not equal the net price of the one-price and cash-only store. We know.

The credit buyer is kept poor because he is always paying more for his clothes than he who pays cash. In one year, his excess fine for credit buying would buy him another suit.

Roosevelt Up Again.

Oyster Bay, Oct. 25.—From morning till night, Col. Roosevelt was up and fully dressed yesterday, walking unassisted about the house. It was the first time since he was shot that he had been out of bed long at a time, but he felt so much better after his two days of rest at home that he refused to stay in his room another day. He put on his khaki riding suit, and surprised his family by appearing in the living-room and saying that he was going to have lunch with the others.

To-day, Col. Roosevelt expects to resume his work.

BRANTFORD VOTES TO ACCEPT HYDRO COMMISSION'S OFFER

With a Majority of 231 the City Changes Its Decision After Four Years and Comes Into the the Government's Circuit.

Brantford, Oct. 26.—After several years of dangling the offer of rates ten per cent. less than those of the Hydro Commission before Brantford ratepayers by the Company, an offer which was never carried out, a bylaw to install a Hydro-electric plant was carried here yesterday by a majority of 231. The vote for the bylaw to issue $115,000 debentures was as follows: For, 1,273; against, 1,042, and the vote authorising a contract with the Hydro-Electric Commission was: For, 1,283; against, 1,037.

The majority in favor of the bylaw, considering the light vote polled, and in view of the fact that strenuous opposition was waged, is most decisive. Brantford formerly rejected Hydro-electric by over 400 majority, and the turnover after four years, is held to be most significant. Every division except one yesterday gave a majority in favor of Hydro-electric.

The carrying of the bylaw, it is expected, will have an important bearing in the price of power in other municipalities, and Brantford's admittance to the union is all the more welcome on that account.

Means Other Successes.

London, Ont., Oct. 26.—"Brantford carried the hydro power bylaw to-day by a splendid majority, because the city has confidence in the cheap power policy," was the comment of Hon. Adam Beck last night. "The success of the hydro in other places no doubt had a great effect.

"The result of the voting means that at least six places will be added to the power ring from Ayr to Port Dover, including Waterford and St. George. These and other places will be added to the thirty-four municipalities known as the Ontario Municipal Power Union, they having been prevously unable to get power because of lack of a station, although they have passed power bylaws. Moreover, it will mean ultimately a reduction in cost to all."

People's Power Popular.

Beachville, Oct. 26.—Hydro is booming here, the power demand having increased no less than 150 per cent. since the system was established less than four months ago, winning at the same time a reduction of nearly 2 per cent. per horsepower. The number of street lights, moreover, is to be increased by one-third at once, and there is a constant demand for house wiring and extensions.

Rev. W. C. Weir Dead.

Woodstock, Oct. 26.—Rev. W. C. Weir, who a few months resigned the pastorate of Oxford Street Baptist Church in this city on account of ill-health, died very suddenly here yesterday while on a visit to friends. Internal troubles were the cause of death. The deceased had been a resident of Woodstock for about three years. Since his resignation he had been supplying in Toronto. He was a graduate of Toronto and McMaster Universities. A widow and four sons survive.

"Moose" Westbrook Shot.

Brantford, Oct. 26.—"Moose" Westbrook, a well-known local man, had his left arm shot off while out rabbit-shooting at Cathcart yesterday morning.

Westbrook exclaimed to his friend, Jack Hynes, when a rabbit shot up, "There it is," and Hynes, who stood behind, shot at the rabbit, hitting Westbrook.

The condition of the injured man at the hospital last night was considered serious.

NEXT WEDNESDAY'S VOTE

While it is pleasing to know that Peterborough is to have a new industry there are a number of especially satisfactory features about the De Laval Dairy Supply Company. It is a growing concern with nearly one hundred employes now engaged in its Canadian factories and these factories with their established business will be moved to Peterborough. It is a branch of one of the strong and progressive industrial concerns of the United States; a company that has been a pioneer and is a leader in its line and that has kept to the front by the ability and energy of its management. Its products are staple articles required on farms and in dairies throughout the Dominion and the market for them is as wide as the Dominion and will grow with its growth. To reach this expanded market the company now has established and working thirty-five travellers and 2,500 agencies, and the growth of their business has called for a larger factory and better facilities for turning out their goods. That is why they are erecting a new factory building and the prospects are that they will soon require still better facilities which will result in more buildings being erected and in more employment being given.

There is only one way in which the advancement of the city can be secured and that is by industrial growth—by securing new industries and by the enlargement of those that are here. This will fill up the vacant lots on the streets. On many streets that are served with sewers sidewalks waterworks and light—where all the expense of providing these services has been incurred—there are vacant lots that will only be filled with houses by a demand for houses created by employes of new industries. Then they will pay taxes and these taxes, owing to the services being there already, will help to lower the taxes and to pay for services on other streets.

The De Laval factory will do this. It begins in no small way. The first building will be 112 feet by 400 feet—a building large enough to take in the whole population of Peterborough and give each person two square feet of space on the floor. It has plans laid out for more buildings which will come in due time. It will cause Peterborough to grow—increase the volume of business in every trade and in every quarter and everyone will share in the benefit.

Every ratepayer should help the city along by remembering that the by-law to aid the company will be voted upon on Wednesday next and by casting his vote for the by-law. The cost to each ratepayer will be trifling—or would be trifling—16 cents on $1 000 of assessment—if it did not result in the erection of new houses but new houses will be built owing to the factory coming here and will meet the cost to the city of securing the industry.

BIG DEAL IN REAL ESTATE

Toronto, Oct. 26.—The Janes Building and land, at the northeast corner of King and Yonge streets, one of the most prominent properties in the Dominion, has been sold by Sir Edmund Osler and the Dominion Bank to John and L. M. Wood of Toronto and Montreal, for a sum exceeding a million dollars and probably for $1,150,000. Robins Limited, who negotiated the deal, the largest single property transaction in the city, refuse to give the actual sale price.

Sir Edmund Osler bought the property less than two years ago for $768,000. The assessment on the land is $426,000 and on the building $22,500. The King street frontage is 84 feet and the Yonge street frontage is 112 feet. The structure is five storeys high and antiquated.

Figuring the consideration at a million and a quarter dollars, which was as near the actual figures of the sale as Mr. Robins would come, the property, taking the King street frontage, sold at $15,000 a foot. Three years ago Mr. Robins, it is said, offered the property to English people at $400,000, but at that time the future of Toronto inside property was not appreciated in the old country.

TERM IN JAIL AND TEN LASHES

Edward Bennett Threw Plate at His Wife and Abused Her

Special To The Review.

Toronto Oct. 26.—Ten days in jail with ten lashes to be administered at the end of the fifth day of sentence was the punishment meted out by Magistrate Denison this morning to Edward Bennett, who confessed to throwing a plate and his wife and otherwise abusing her. He has been in court on a wife beating charge and as his wife had no means of support if he was sent down for a long term the Magistrate decided on this means of punishing him and at the same time letting him out so as to be able to support her.

FRIENDS PREPARING TO PROTECT COL. ROOSEVELT

The Attack Upon His Life Has Had the Effect of Stirring Up Cranks All Over the States and Further Outrages Are Feared—He Has Received Many Threatening Letters—Health Improves.

Oyster Bay, N.Y., Oct. 26.—On account of a number of threatening letters received by Col. Roosevelt and the presence in Oyster Bay of a stranger who attempted yesterday to make his way into the colonel's house, steps were taken last night to guard the life of the ex-President. A tentative decision was reached to engage one or two men to protect Col. Roosevelt during the remainder of the campaign and for a time thereafter if the colonel had not recovered sufficiently by election day to be able to defend himself.

Col. Roosevelt's condition continued to improve yesterday, and his physicians said that he would be able to speak at the Madison Square Garden meeting in New York on Wednesday night if no unforseen complications arise. But they said that he would be unable to do any further campaigning.

The attempt on Col. Roosevelt's life was said by Dr. George W. Faller of Oyster Bay, one of the colonel's physicians, to have stirred up "cranks" and to be responsible for the letters which Col. Roosevelt has received since his return to Oyster Bay. In some of them threats have been made against Col. Roosevelt, and it was decided that the danger of another attempt to assassinate him was sufficient to make it necessary to guard him. The colonel's physicians wish to have him get out of doors as soon as possible, believing that he will be benefited by doing so, but they are unwilling to risk the chance of another attack. It is probable that Col. Roosevelt will be kept in the house until adequate protection has been provided.

CHAS. BECKER IS HOPEFUL

Condemned Man is Planning For His Appeal.

Shapero Not Afraid to Give the Names.

Special To The Review.

New York, Oct. 26.—Wm. Shapiro, who drove the murder car in which the slayers of Herman Rosenthal were taken to the scene of the crime, is reported to have taken courage from Becker's conviction and is ready to sign or has signed an affidavit giving the names of the man [illegible] who did the actual shooting.

New York, Oct. 26.—Police Lieut. Charles Becker spent his hours of confinement in the Tombs yesterday planning his fight to annul the verdict of the jury which convicted him Thursday night of the murder of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal.

Becker has lost none of the iron nerve which bore him through the trial and the ordeal of hearing himself condemned as guilty, if his appearance and every action yesterday count for anything. He awoke refreshed from a sound sleep and after a hearty breakfast summoned his chief attorney, John A. McIntyre.

The two conferred for more than an hour and later Mr. McIntyre announced that immediate notice of appeal from the verdict would be filed. Becker, who is due to be sentenced next Wednesday would, if the usual procedure were followed, take his seat in the electric chair the first week in December. The filing of the notice, however, will act as a stay, and it is not impossible that months may lengthen into years before the ultimate fate of the convicted police officer is determined. In a recent case two years elapsed before the appeal of a first degree murder was settled.

"I don't mind saying that we expect a reversal," Becker's attorney announced. "The appeal will be on the grounds that the verdict was against the weight of evidence; that the justice's charge was of a nature to injure the chances of the defendant; upon the justice's failure to rule that Sam Schepps was an accomplice in the murder, and upon the error of law in the refusal of the justice to allow testimony submitted by the defence to go in the record."

Becker's wife visited him in his cell yesterday afternoon, and, according to the prison attendants, the meeting marked the one moment since the prisoner was indicted when he seemed on the verge of breaking down.

Either "Whitey" Lewis or "Lefty Louie" will be the next of the seven men indicted for the murder to be placed on trial on Nov. 7. Meantime Jack Rose, "Bridgie" Webber, Harry Vallon and Sam Schepps, the four informers, will be kept in confinement in the West Side Prison.

ROWELL AT THORNDALE

Praises the Whitney Government For Its Good Legislation.

Thorndale, Oct. 26.—"If convinced that we are wrong, I have nothing to say; but if you think we are right, then fight for the Liberal party till the last vote is polled."

This was the way N. W. Rowell, C.K., leader of the Opposition, finished a speech here last night in support of William Sutherland, the Liberal candidate in East Middlesex.

In reference to the Premier's statement that Mr. Sutherland was chosen by the Liberals without a word from him, Mr. Rowell said that three days before the convention he had held a meeting in Toronto and decided that Sutherland was the right man to carry the "abolish the bar" banner.

He acknowledge that the Workingmen's Compensation Act brought about by the Whitney administration would be a great benefit to the province. He said that he had taken the same question up four years ago. Sir William Meredith's report he considered was the only complete knowledge of the question the Government had ever obtained.

Hon. W. J. Hanna's statement that Mr. Rowell would only cut off hotel licenses and not clubs, was denied by the Liberal leader. Mr. Rowell said that he wanted clubs abolished, too, but local option would have to be put to use in order to do so.

He had nothing but good to say of Sir James' action in levying a greater tax on railways. He said, though, that the Liberals were first to impose taxation in 1899, and Sir James had made amendments to the act since his coming into power.

"Another statement made by Sir James Whitney was that I desire to retain shop licenses, giving as the reason for it that I was a shareholder in The Globe, which sometimes publishes liquor advertisements. This statement of Sir James is typical of the man and a striking commentary on the character and political methods of the Prime Minister.

"He knows I am not in favor of shop licenses, and he knows that I have supported every campaign to secure the adoption of every progressive piece of temperance legislation which has come before the electors. I want, with great pertinence, to ask when Sir James has ever lifted his hand to put an end to shop licenses."

PELLETIER TO SUCCEED MONK

Reorganization Will be Postponed for Awhile.

Montreal, Oct. 26.—The Montreal Gazette says:

"It has practically been declared that the reorganization of the Cabinet made necessary by the retirement of Mr. Monk will be postponed until after the session of Parliament. There will, however, be a temporary reorganization in order to allow the Government to meet the House with all the portfolios filled."

The Gazette says Hon. Robt. Rogers will take the works portfolio temporarily, Hon. Dr. Roche to take the interior department and L. A. Coderre, M.P., or Mr. Marechal to become the secretary of state. After the session "it is quite likely" that Hon. Mr. Pelletier will administer the works department, having declined to do so at present because of important legislation in hand respecting the postoffice department.

"BOBS" AROUSING SOME CRITICISM

London, Oct. 26.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Lord Roberts despite his eighty years is touring the country advocating national military service. He addresses huge gatherings, who cheer the famous veteran lustily, but his direct reference to Germany as the undoubted foe of Britain arouses considerable hostility in certain quarters outside his meetings. A memorial has been signed by over a score of members of Parliament protesting against this method of advocating military service to-day. Sir V. Strong, ex-Lord Mayor of London, writes deprecating statements, especially by one so distinguished as "Bobs" as to the warlike intentions of Germany against England.

GRAIN GOING TO MINNEAPOLIS

Larger Quantities of Grain May be Stored in Minnesota.

Minneapolis, Oct. 26.—Congestion at the Port Arthur and Fort William docks, combined with a refusal of the railway companies to make the same rate on grain from Winnipeg to Port Arthur, may result in much larger quantities of Canadian grain being stored this winter in Minnesota elevators.

The railway and warehouse commission yesterday received a letter from Winnipeg complaining that the railroads would not reduce the Winnipeg-Duluth rate as was done last year and asking what facilities for storing grain in Minnesota would be available this winter.

The commission will make an investigation.

BETRAYED HIS MATES

Herbert S. Hockin Has Informed, Say Four Witnesses.

Indianapolis, Oct. 26.—Herbert S. Hockin, a defendant in the "dynamite conspiracy" trial, who succeeded John J. McNamara, the dynamiter, as secretary of the Ironworkers' Union, was identified by four witnesses yesterday as having given information to the Government against his forty-four fellow-defendants.

Walter Drew, New York, counsel for the National Erectors' Association, testified that Hockin had said: "I know they've got me, but I don't want to be the only one."

The witness said that during the sessions last winter of the federal grand jury which returned the indictments Hockin offered to give information but was turned away with the remark, "Go to the district attorney and make a clean breast of it. He is the only person with authority to make promises."

"Hockin came to me several times and told me my life was in danger," said Mr. Drew. "He told me fellows on the Pacific coast, naming Olaf A. Tveitmoe and Ed. Nockels, were after men and that I had better look out for a fellow named John Stevens of Chicago. He said he would warn me later when I might expect danger.

"Another time he came to my room at a club and in the presence of J. F. Foster, a detective, arranged to let us have the key of the Ironworkers' office so we might put in a telephone device by which we would be able at all times to record what President Frank M. Ryan and others said about the dynamiting. At first Hockin said, 'You know I've got too much brains to get mixed up with McNamara.' But when I replied, 'You haven't any brains but only a low cunning, and we've got the goods on you,' he weakened."

WANT THE TARIFF RAISED

Steel Men Visit Ottawa and Present Their Grievance.

Ottawa, Oct. 26.—The request of the iron and steel manufacturers of Canada for a substantial increase in tariff protection, or, failing that, for the renewal of a bounty on pig iron as a temporary measure of relief, pending permanent action at the next general tariff revision, was renewed to the Government yesterday by an influential deputation headed by J. H. Plummer, president of the Dominion Iron & Steel Co., and including representatives of the eight large iron and steel manufacturing establishments in Canada.

Their request was substantially along the same lines as have been twice presented to the Government since the expiration of the iron and steel bounties, in 1910 and 1911. This time, however, they emphasized the request for a permanent policy of "adequate tariff protection" in preference to temporary bounty renewal. They maintained that the steel and iron interests were entitled to have as much protection as the other manufacturing interests of Canada, which now averages about 26 per cent., whereas the output of the iron and steel mills now have a protection varying from only 7 1-2 to 20 per cent., according to the character of the product. The request was turned down two years ago by the Liberal Government, and was again turned down last session by the Borden Government.

BULGARIANS CAPTURE OUTER FORTS AROUND ADRIANOPLE

Also Take Railway Station and Eighteen Hundred Prisoners—Turks Reported to be Retiring in Panic, and the People Fleeing Towards Constantinople—Europe is Amazed at the Result of Nine Days War. Intervention Mooted.

Special to the Review.

Sofia Oct. 26.—Private despatches from the front say Bulgarians set fire to Adrianople with artillery and captured the outlying forts of Maras Havaras and Sufilar, on the north and north-east of the city as well as taking the railroad station on the outskirts and capturing eighteen hundred prisoners. The Bulgarians report their army advancing along the whole frontier with Turks retiring in panic and the population fleeting towards Constantinople.

Paris Oct. 26.—Matin report from Constantinople says the Bulgarians routed Turks Friday morning at Kavakly with a loss of thirteen hundred killed to the Turks

London, Oct. 26.—After a four days' heavy battle the Bulgarians are resting. There were no reports of fighting yesterday along the line from Kirk-Kilisseh to Adrianople. The Bulgarians have not yet decided whether they will attempt to capture Adrianople by assault or to starve out its garrison by a siege. The full extent of the Turkish disaster at Kirk-Kilisseh is still unknown, but it is almost certain that the bulk of the garrison there effected a retreat from the town before it fell into the hands of the Bulgarians.

The early capture of Kirk-Kilisseh was a great surprise even to the Bulgarian staff officers and their allies, and the swift progress of the war unexpected by Europe generally. It has been only nine days since Turkey declared war, and yet events have marched to the point where the possibility of intervention by the powers already is talked of.

Much interest centres in the nature of the alliance of the Balkan states. It is said on good authority that one of the provisions of that alliance is that no one state shall conclude peace without the others agreeing to do so.

Next in importance to the operations in Thrace is the struggle between the Servians and Turks in the Kumanove region. Constantinople at last admits the success of the Servian arms. The Servians Thursday captured two towns, Vuchitrin and Gilan, on the road between Mitrovitza and Vranya.

The Montenegrins are pressing their attack on Scutari. It is reported that the Turkish garrison at Scutari has retired to the heights of Zadrina, south of the town. This action is interpreted as a preparation to evacuate Scutari.

The Greeks are continuing their northward march and yesterday occupied Kosani, about 12 miles northwest of the town of Servia.

Servians Chased Turks.

Belgrade, Servia, Oct. 26—Telegrams received here from Pristina, ten miles west of the Servian frontier, in the Turkish Province of Kossovo, say that the Mohammedan arnauts and Turkish troops are retiring southward, followed by the Servians, who are pressing their pursuit without intermission.

The entrance to the town of Pristina by the Servian advance guard on Wednesday was preceded by desperate fighting at Toresh Pass and the positions around the town. The inhabitants greeted the victorious Servians with enthusiasm. When the Servian commander and his staff arrived they were received by the authorities and clergy of Pristina. Replying to an address, the commander said he had brought liberty to all sects and nationalities and guaranteed the safety of life and property of the population.

Many of the arnauts gave up their arms and ammunition, but others of their sect who are hiding in cellars occasionally fire shots at the soldiers. The Servians found in Pristina large quantities of war materials.

Fought With Knives.

Vranya, Oct. 26.—An incident of the battle which resulted in the capture of Kumanova by the Servians indicates the desperate character of the conflict. A company of Servian infantry charged the Turks with bayonets and the hand-to-hand struggle developed into individual combats in which many of the soldiers dropped their rifles and drew knives with which they hacked and slashed one another.

It is reported that in the Turkish ranks the words of command given by the officers were in German.

Bayonets Used In Fight.

Constantinople, Oct. 26.—Stories of desperate hand-to-hand fighting between the Bulgarians and Turks are told in newspaper despatches reaching here from Adrianople. Great losses were sustained by both armies in the battles around that city on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Bayonets were used freely in the fight for the possession of the banks of the Tundja River and hundreds were killed and wounded.

Eight battalions of Bulgarian troops attacked the village of Maras Thursday and were repulsed by the Turkish troops with heavy losses.

The Turks have 150,000 of their finest troops on the line from Kirk-Kilisseh to Adrianople, which is garrisoned by another 60,000 men. Still another 60,000 guard the line back to Dule Burgas. Abdullah Pasha, the commander-in-chief, some time ago declared that his troops were sufficient, and since then the great stream of fresh troops have been directed toward Saloniki.

Hopes for Peace.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 26.—"If the powers sincerely desire to pacify the Balkans, peace can soon be concluded," said Premier Gueshoff of Bulgaria, in an interview yesterday morning. He continued:

"The best friends of Turkey now are those who advise her not to prolong this hopeless struggle. The sooner the Turks submit the better it will be for them and humanity.

"All friends of mankind must deprecate the mischievous talk that this war is one of extermination. The Balkan states have no intention of exterminating the Turkish population.

"The significance of the fall of the Turkish stronghold of Kirk-Kilisseh lies in the fact that the Turks had gathered there the best troops in their army and their best generals. If they failed to hold this stronghold, they will scarcely be able to resist further south."

An optimist is a man who is thankful for a lot of things he doesn't get.

SOUR RISINGS FROM STOMACH

Those Who Experience Fullness and Pain After Meals, Stomach Disorders, and Indigestion, Should Read Below.

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

LORD ROBERTS AND THE NAVAL CRISIS

Lord Roberts and the naval crisis

Lord Roberts may be a Jingo, but he knows how to talk about the position into which Britain is drifting in reference to the prospect of German rivalry. Lord Roberts signalised his eightieth birthday by a solemn warning to the people of the old land about their immediate national danger. After referring to the hallelujahs of peace over all the earth that were commenced by Richard Cobden, and continued by John Bright, Lord Roberts remarked that just about that time there were silent mighty forces drilling between the Elbe and the Rhine, from the North Sea to the Bavarian frontier. History made an ironic comment on these eloquent pleas for universal peace. "Now," says Lord Roberts, "in this year 1912, as in 1866 and 1870, war will take place the instant the German forces by their "superiority at every point are as "certain of victory as anything in "human calculation can be. Germany "strikes, when Germany's hour has "struck. This is the time-honored "policy of the German Foreign Office. That was the policy relentlessly pursued by Moltke in 1866 "and 1870; that has been Germany's "policy, decade by decade, since. That "is her policy to-day. It is an excellent policy for every nation that "is prepared to play a great part "in history. Under that policy Germany has sprung as at a bound "from one of the weakest naval "powers to the greatest naval power, "save one, on the globe. But yesterday, so to speak, British fleets "did not feel the furrows of German keels on the wide seas. To-"day every British warship, every "British merchant vessel, thrills in "all its iron nerves to that mighty "presence." Lord Roberts had more to say along this line and his closing injunction to the nation was to "Arm; prepare to quit you like men "for the day of your ordeal is at "hand."

There is a highly serious side to this matter. It is not a serio-comic vaudeville performance. Lord Roberts feels too keenly on the subject, or even to simulate earnestness upon such a question. It is a deadly grave issue. The question is, What shall Canada do? Is there a German peril, or is there not? Canada is an integral part of the Empire that rests its fate upon the predominence of the British navy. If that navy is destroyed, if Britain is crippled or beaten what happens to Canada? Shall we take refuge under the protection of the Monroe doctrine? Shall we become a part, in actual effect, of the United States, through the smashing of British naval power, and the rending of the defence which is the main security of the Empire? If Lord Roberts is to be believed, the emergency is very grave. Canada in that event has a plain duty.

Canada ought to contribute to the strength of the British navy, as she can afford, to augument its power that it may remain predominant. It cannot be justly urged that the slow process of creating a Canadian navy, manned by Canadians, and under the control of Canada except in time of war, is any material help to the British navy in the presence of a real and grave emergency. The only solution is an immediate contribution in a way which it will earliest become an effective addition to the naval fighting strength. That is the proposal which Mr. Borden intends to place before the House of Commons. That is the true inwardness of the emergency contribution proposal which some Liberal newspapers feel duty bound, out of partisan loyalty to their naval policy, to deprecate and ridicule. But the sound sense of the country is different. It is behind Mr. Borden so completely that even Mr. Monk is being told by one or two responsible Liberal journals that he is straining at a gnat and swallowing in a camel in resigning. He is being told that if there is an emergency, he ought to stick by the ship as a Canadian Minister and see Canada's part well done. These contradictory attitudes are amusing enough. Even the Examiner comes out with the assertion that if Mr. Borden shows there is an emergency, the Liberals will not stand in the way, but leave the matter on Mr Borden's responsibility. There is no question whatever that the Borden Government is right on this question. There is no question but that the Laurier policy, perhaps good enough for a little starter, is utterly inadequate as the measure of Canada's duty in the crisis of the Empire.

THE "WIDER MARKETS"

The Examiner prints an elaborate schedule of grain prices in the Minneapolis and Winnipeg markets for the period of this year from July 1 to October 14, as compiled by P. P. Woodbridge in Calgary. Its object is to show that the prices have not been lower in Minneapolis than in Winnipeg and that the Canadian farmer would not have suffered under reciprocity. Now the period covered by these quotations is next to useless as a basis for any real comparison, since the quantity of grain coming forward was too light. The real basis ought to be made in the rush season, when the export markets rule the roost, as regards prices.

The Calgary Herald advances what seems to be a splendid argument against the assumption that the Minneapolis and Chicago grain markets are able to absorb the Canadian wheat production on any other but an export basis. As a matter of fact, the Minneapolis market seems to be just 100,000,000 bushels wide, and the Canadian crop if dumped on it would be passed on to the export markets just as it now goes out partially through United States channels to the Atlantic seaboard.

The Herald's argument is based on Minneapolis figures, and seems to afford an indisputable basis for calculation. The Examiner would do well to consider what it says—

"So much has been said about Minneapolis being "a wider market" for Canadian wheat that some people are willing to believe the story is well founded. But the idea may be very easily disposed of.

The Herald has consulted some statistics published by "The Chamber of Commerce of Minneapolis," extending over a period of thirty-eight years, and these figures show that the local market of Minneapolis is a comparatively small one, and that its requirements would not begin to touch the enormous wheat crop in Western Canada this year.

On page twenty-five of the Chamber of Commerce report it shows that Minneapolis in the year 1910 received a total of 99,721,600 bushels of wheat. On this total 19,207,180 were shipped out as wheat. Seventy six million bushels were ground into flour and exported; the remaining four millions being used as flour in the nearby states.

The same year 1910, the wheat crop in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota was (see page 162 of the above mentioned report) 176,905,000 bushels. These figures show that the wheat crop of 1910 in the three States named was greater than the requirements of Minneapolis for its local market by 77,183,400 bushels.

The Herald will go a step further and prove that the local Chicago market is also a relatively small one and that its receipts added to those of Minneapolis are not large enough to absorb the crop of Minnesota and the two Dakotas.

On page 125 of the Minneapolis publication we find for the year 1910 the receipts of wheat at Chicago amounted to 27,540,100 bushels, of which it shipped 18,679,100 bushels. Tabulated these figures show—

Wheat crop (1910) Minnesota, North and South Dakota, equals, bushels 176,905,000

Club Jelly Sauce made with one-third package of Club Jelly Powder adds the finishing touch to a dessert as delicious in flavor as it is tempting in appearance. Sixteen Jelly flavors, as true as the pure fruit. Put up by S. H. EWING & SONS, MONTREAL. 5

Receipts at Minneapolis, 1910 99,721,600
Receipts at Minneapolis, 1910 99,721,600
Receipts at Chicago, 1910 27,540,100
127,261,700

Balance in favor of crop 49,643,300

It will be seen therefore that for the year 1910 both the local markets of Minneapolis and Chicago were unequal to the task of consuming the whole of the crop of the adjacent States for the year 1910. And the balance that we have shown above 49,000,000 odd bushels was put upon the export market. Now if the local markets of the United States wheat broking centres could not absorb the wheat crop of three of their adjacent wheat producing States, what chance have they of buying enough of Western Canada's enormous wheat crop of this year to make their purchases a controlling feature of the wheat market? They could only buy on an export basis, because for many years they have been placed in that predicament by the crops of Minnesota and the Dakotas, which they could not absorb in 1910, and stand a much less chance of absorbing the much greater crop in these States in 1912.

The figures which The Herald has quoted from the annual report of the Minneapolis chamber of Commerce very conclusively prove that the Minneapolis market is not as it is popularly supposed by the Liberal press to be, capable of "infinite extension."

Just to show really how small this inside market is, we will quote once more. On page 164 of the Chamber of Commerce publication, the world's wheat supply for 1910 is given as 3,660,978,000 bushels. For that year Minneapolis receipts were 99,721,600 bushels. What influence does anyone suppose the smaller total given here exercises on the large total? None. Well! it represents just all that Minneapolis has anything to say about.

The Minneapolis market is just approximately 100,000,000 bushels wide and you can't get the Western Canadian crop of 230,000,000 bushels in through that door by any sophistry known to Liberal politicians, to say nothing of the greatly increased crops in Minnesota and the Dakotas this year.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Wheat made a sudden upshoot in price today on account of active buying for a leading house, said to believe that the Turks were facing a gigantic defeat. No much of the gain was held, however, the market closing ⅛c to ½c up as compared with yesterday. Corn finished unchanged to ¼c higher, oats a shade down to ⅛c to ⅛c advance and provisions unchanged to 12½c down.

The Liverpool market closed today ⅛d to ¼d lower on wheat and ⅛d to ¼d higher on corn. Paris wheat was ½c to 1⅛c lower, Antwerp ⅜c lower, Budapest 1½c higher, and Berlin ⅜c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Oct. 25.—There was a fair enquiry from European sources for Manitoba spring wheat, but, as the prices bid were all from one cent to two cents per bushel out of line, based on present asking rates of ocean freights for December-January shipment from St. John, no sales were made. There is also a good demand for Manitoba barley and oats for prompt and nearby shipment, but owing to the scarcity of ocean freight from here business is checked. An easier feeling prevails in the market for oats, and prices are one cent lower, with only a small trade passing.

Manitoba feed barley has advanced one cent. The foreign demand for spring wheat flour is fair. Millfeed is fairly active. Butter firm, under a fair demand. Cheese quiet. Eggs active.

The Water Fay

A Legend of the River Rhine

By F. A. MITCHEL

A tourist viewing the ruined castles on the Rhine bank from the boat that plies up and down that historic stream, just above Wiesbaden, will see a broken pile of stones which mark the former home of Baron Korner. The baron's wife was in her youth considered the most beautiful woman in all Germany. Indeed, so beautiful was she that persons came from a distance to have a look at her.

As was to have been expected, the lady became so vain that her beauty, instead of being a source of comfort to her husband, was a matter of regret. He never complimented his wife on her beauty; consequently she cared little for him, devoting herself to admirers who went into raptures over it. The baron naturally became very bitter on the subject of woman's beauty, and when the baroness presented him with a daughter, Hildegarde, since beauty is hereditary and the child would likely be a beautiful woman, he gave orders that no one should even tell Hildegarde that she was beautiful. He also destroyed all the mirrors in the castle and disposed of the jewelry and other woman's adornments that tended to cultivate vanity. Then he gave orders that no one should bring any of these things into his home on pain of being thrown into the donjon under the castle.

The baroness died when Hildegarde was but a few years old and long before the child could be conscious of her appearance. She grew up as beautiful as her mother and, never having seen her face, was unconscious of her attractive appearance. But she lived rather a lonely life, for her father admitted few visitors to the castle, and no one was supposed to enter without making a pledge not to give evidence of having noticed Hildegarde's beauty, nor was the girl ever permitted to leave the castle.

Baron Korner as he grew older and his daughter's splendid beauty grew more transcendent formed a plan when Hildegarde came to a marriageable age of marrying her to a husband who should keep up his policy with regard to her. Having no son, he selected a younger son of a neighboring baron to wed her and take his place at his death as lord of the domain. Carl Von Ehrenstein was the chosen man, but not before he had sworn a solemn oath to surround his wife with the same barriers to which she had been accustomed.

Soon after the celebration of the nuptials the baron was killed by a fall from his horse while hunting, and Carl Ehrenstein became the lord of the castle. He deeply loved his wife and was very proud of her beauty, but he had been thoroughly informed by the late baron of all he had suffered on account of her mother's vanity and was intent to prevent it in Hildegarde. But she was now twenty years old, and it was not so easy for her husband to keep her shut up in the castle as it had been for her father to imprison a child. No sooner had there come an end to the late baron's obsequies than Hildegarde began to evince a desire to see the world.

Now, Hildegarde's nurse when her young mistress emerged from childhood became her maid, and the young baron consulted with her as to taking his wife outside the castle and still keeping around her the safeguards to which she had been accustomed. The maid, Gretchen, thought that the baroness could be taken on a tour without seeing a reflection of her person. Mirrors were not so common in those days as now, and Gretchen promised to watch for them and guard against her mistress being brought face to face with one. So the baron yielded to his wife's persuasions and set out with her, attended by her maid to show her the world.

The young husband was in terror from the first. Every person who passed them started on seeing Hildegarde and looked at her rapturously.

"Why do these persons stare at me thus?" she asked.

"It is because, never having been out into the world, which is filled with wickedness," replied her husband, "your features show that the innocence to which you were born is still in you."

Hildegarde was pleased with this, but not satisfied. They were at the time passing through different scenes from those to which her vision had been limited, and she was delighted with them.

"Shall I become wicked now that I have left the castle?" she asked.

"Not if you remain with me and Gretchen and do not mingle with the throng."

Hildegarde meditated for some time over this and at last said:

"[illegible] have to be perfect. I think I shall risk being corrupted by mingling with a few persons."

The young baron had arranged to take his wife for their first stop to the home of Heinrich Reinheart, a friend of his living near Worms. He had confided to this person the plan on which his wife had been brought up and had secured the promise of the removal of all mirrors from the premises and that all persons there should refrain from appearing to notice the beautiful guest.

A few hours after their arrival at their stopping place, which was situated in the center of beautiful grounds, Hildegarde slipped away from her guardians and went out to walk by herself. On the peak where she had been born there was no water except the Rhine flowing far below. In Reinheart's place there was a very beautiful sheet of water. As soon as Hildegarde saw it she ran toward it, clapping her hands with delight. There was no breeze, and the surface was perfectly placid. The young wife was enraptured with the smoothness of it, surrounded as it was with verdure, which on the opposite side was reflected in it. She wondered if the brink on which she stood was thus reflected. Looking down into it, she saw the blue sky there and white clouds sailing slowly along. Bending, she saw her reflection gazing at her.

Instantly a look of admiration came upon the reflected features.

"Who are you down there, a water fay? Whoever you are, you are very beautiful."

No answer came, but Hildegarde noticed that the lips of the image moved while she herself was talking.

"You must be an immortal else you would give me some reply. Strange that you should live down there in the water. I have heard of mermaids, but there is nothing of the fish in your composition. You must be a human being, who instead of breathing air breathes water; but, though you can see me, you can't communicate with me. Therefore you must be a human being who has grown to my age and died. Oh, dear! I wonder what you are!"

She ran back to the house and called to her husband: "Oh, Carl! Do come and see the beautiful girl living in the under world."

The baron knit his brows. He feared that the secret was out—that she had seen her image. He went with her to the pond, she chattering on the way about the vision of loveliness she had seen and wondering if it would be there when she returned. Carl meanwhile feeling confident that she had seen herself was trying to invent a story that would satisfy her. When they reached the pond she ran ahead of him and bent over it.

"There she is!" she exclaimed joyfully. "Come and see her."

But Carl hung back. "I know whom you are looking at," he said, "a water fairy. Come away. She will contaminate you."

"No, no! She is as good as she is beautiful. I can see purity in every feature."

Should Carl lean over the water to see the fairy his own face would be reflected there, and his wife would recognize it at once. This would lead her to understand that the other reflection was her own.

"No, no, sweetheart," he said. "Should I look at her she might enthrall me. Not for the world would I risk being drawn away from you."

"Would she?" exclaimed the girl in a tone that betrayed both fright and disappointment. "Then it would be your fault. She would never tempt you."

"Come away. This is the Lorelei, who has come from the banks of the Rhine. You know how she lures boatmen to their death. She would draw me down into the water, and I could never return to you."

Hildegarde, fearful that her husband might be right, knit her brows and saw her image do the same.

"Ah," she said, "I see that you are evil, after all. You have lured me here that you may take my husband from me, and now that you see he is not to be tempted you frown. Good-by. You are beautiful, but you are evil."

With this she rejoined Carl and, putting her arm through his, returned with him to the house.

When again they set out on their journey Carl persuaded his wife that they must not go near any more water, for the fairy would be in any water they approached and he might see her before he could withdraw. And once seeing her he feared the worst. Hildegarde was quite sure the girl she had seen was the Lorelei of whom she had heard so much and was ready to avoid the waters in which she lived. And so fearful was she of losing her husband that she proposed they go back to the castle, where there was no danger.

This pleased the young husband, who was in constant terror lest the admiring glances of the persons they met would betray the secret of his wife's beauty.

So they returned to their home, where there were no mirrors, no sheets of water and where every one was trained to refrain from showing admiration for the beautiful baroness. Presently a little son came to take up her attention, and she did not again feel any desire to see the world, or, rather, she feared to leave the castle with her husband for fear the water fay would get him.

This worked in two ways—the baroness not only remained at home, but would not permit her husband to go even down to the Rhine. This kept him with his wife and his family and his retainers. When the physical beauty of his wife faded it left an expression of purity, of unconscious beauty of soul. Persons who had formerly come to see her as a marvel of bodily perfection now came to view a saint.

It was not till this time that the baroness discovered that she had been so hedged about that she did not know that she was the fairy she had seen in the water and that it was she who had already enthralled her husband. But by this time she and he and their children had become welded together in one loving family, and her past beauty was not a matter of regret to her.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

WOMAN SICK FOR YEARS

Wants Other Women to Know How She was Finally Restored to Health.

Hammond, Ont. — "I am passing through the Change of Life and for two years had hot flushes very bad, headaches, soreness in the back of head, was constipated, and had weak, nervous feelings. The doctor who attended me for a number of years did not help me, but I have been entirely relieved of the above symptoms by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills, and give you permission to publish my testimonial." — Mrs. LOUIS BEAUCAGE, Sr., Hammond, Ont., Canada.

New Brunswick, Canada. — "I can highly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any suffering woman. I have taken it for female weakness and painful menstruation and it cured me." — Mrs. DEVERE BARBOUR, Harvey Bank, New Brunswick, Canada.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

WOMAN'S LOT IN PERSIA.

A Land Where Mothers Weep at the Birth of a Daughter.

While the woman of China and India is in the forefront of the fight for better conditions, her sister of Persia seems to be in no better plight than she was a century ago. In Je Sais Tout appears an extract from the report of Henry R. d'Allemagne on woman's sphere in Persian life.

"The birth of a girl in Persia," says d'Allemagne, "is received with pity even by her mother. 'Why should I not weep over my little girl, who will have to endure the same miseries as I have known?' she cries. 'She is of so little value! Who knows whether her father will not one day throw her out of a window and so silence forever her wailing? And why should he be annoyed? He knows he may do such a thing with impunity. No one cares any more than if it was a cat which had to suffer for his wrath.'

"From the hour of birth the social inequality between the sexes asserts itself. Infant mortality is very high owing to the ignorance and inexperience of the women. Since celibacy is considered a disgrace, girls are often married as young as ten or twelve years. In order to reduce the rate of infant mortality some men have suggested that the mother should have a finger cut off every time she lost a child. This cruelty, however, has not been adopted. But that it should have entered into the minds of any Persian men is significant enough."

TO CLEAN A SWEATER.

Dainty Women Prefer White Ones That Soil Easily.

A sweater is one of the necessities of the seashore or mountain wardrobe. No other wrap can take its place. The dainty woman always prefers the creamy white ones, but often hesitates to buy because of the seeming difficulty of cleaning them. The following method simplifies that process so that no one need hesitate to buy one on that account. Woolen blankets may be cleaned in the same manner.

A quarter of a bar of a good white soap is melted over the stove. To this is added about half a cupful of ammonia. Enough hot water is run into the pan or tub to cover the sweater. The soap and ammonia are stirred in, and then the sweater is placed in. With a stick or the top of a washboard this is stirred and turned until the dirt is out. Rinse in several waters, then lay on a slanting board to drain, but do not squeeze dry.

There are several methods of drying. One is to fasten a sheet flat over several clotheslines and spread the sweater on that in the sun.

Robespierre Vests.

The Robespierre "gilet" promises to be a notable feature. Seen recently was a gown from a renowned atelier in shot taffeta—rose with silver lights—the perfectly straight, unadorned skirt just eased into the waist while the corsage, cut with long shoulder seams, was similarly treated, the front cut away to reveal a vest of white silk visibly buttoning up the center to a short distance above the figure line, where it was thrown back with a great pointed collar, the front angle finished with a deep falling frill of lace.

The sleeves were long and close fitting to the wrist, great ruffles of lace falling over the hands. But to bring about a wrinkled suggestion on the inside of the arm just at the bend of the elbow three or four tiny tucks were arranged, and the waist belt consisted of a crossway fold of dull mauve taffetas, terminating in front with a great spiky bow poised in a diagonal position.

Floor Wax.

The floor polishes purchased are sometimes not satisfactory, but a very fine wax may be made at home with but little trouble.

To every pound of beeswax allow three pints of turpentine. Cut the wax into small pieces and put these into a pan. Set the pan in a saucepan of boiling water and let the beeswax melt thoroughly. Take it off the fire, add the turpentine to the beeswax and mix them well together. This preparation should be mixed at a distance from the fire.

Boudoir Caps.

The boudoir cap is in fashion again, and, though less fully and fluffy round the head, it contains quite as much material as those of last year. Some are made of the very finest lawn, while others are entirely of lace. The idea is to cover the hair during the various processes of the toilet, but the cap has been found so dainty and pretty that it is often worn when the toilet is quite complete, and it forms a charming adjunct of the breakfast table.

TAKEN HOME ON A MATTRESS

How a Sufferer Form Sciatica Found Permanent Relief

Fierce darting pains, pains like red hot needles being driven through the flesh in the thigh, perhaps down the legs to the ankles—that's sciatica. None but the victim can realize the torture of this trouble, and many suffer from it hopelessly in the belief that it cannot be cured. This is a mistake, sciatica is a nerve trouble, and if the starved nerves are properly nourished with rich, red blood, the trouble will soon disappear. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make just the new pure blood needed to feed the sciatic nerve and drive out the racking pain. It has been proved over and over again that they can do this and we offer now the following additional piece of evidence. Mr. E. H. Pastorious, Harrow, Ont., says: "Some years ago I was terribly afflicted with sciatica, starting just in my hip and then extending through the leg to the foot. At the time I was attacked I was away from home and had to be brought home on a mattress in a spring waggon, and the agony of the trip was almost more than I could endure. Reaching home I was not able to sit up and remained in bed for six weeks. The doctor did not help me and I tried a number of medicines recommended by neighbors. I paid $8.00 a bottle for one preparation, but it was no better than the rest, and I began to think there was no cure for me. While suffering this untold misery, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended and my wife got me a supply. In the course of a few weeks I began to feel better and could get around with the aid of a cane. I kept on taking the Pills until all the pain disappeared and I felt as well as ever I did. I have never had an attack of the trouble since, and although I am now 65 years of age, I feel as vigorous as I did at 40, all of which I ascribe to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If you are suffering from sciatica or any nerve or blood trouble, begin to cure yourself to-day by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which will assuredly do for you what they have done for others, if you give them a fair trial. Sold by all medicine dealers, or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

Take Every Precaution

Eyestrain sometimes comes on so gradually that the individual does not realize his trouble until it has reached a serious stage.

In fact there are many effects of eyestrain that only a physician would trace to their true source.

The man who does a great deal of work with his eyes, should be on the watch for the first indications of strain, and do everything possible to prevent it from occurring.

Sometimes the eyes are in such an irritable condition that the wearing of the ordinary "flat" lenses produces great discomfort. Light is reflected from the rear surfaces of the lenses and the eyes are wearied by unconsciously trying to focus on these reflections.

Then when looking to either side the edges of such lenses annoy the eyes.

These irritations are avoided when you wear Toric Lenses. You are not taking every possible precaution against eyestrain if you do not get a pair of Torics.

ABOLITION OF BUSINESS TAX

Secretary of Retail Merchants to Speak on This Subject

A movement is on foot in Toronto by the Retail Merchants to abolish or at least to reduce the present business tax on all places of business claiming as they do, that as they pay any taxes on the highest assessed property in the city that an extra burden should not be loaded on them.

It is intended to bring this matter up with all the Retail Merchants' organizations throughout the province and a meeting of the Retail Merchants here will be held very shortly when Mr. G. M. Trowern, Provincial and Dominion Secretary will explain the whole problem, and the Peterborough merchants will be given an opportunity to express themselves on the subject.

If this business tax is abolished every retail merchant will be benefitted to the extent of from $10.00 to possibly $100.00 a year depending on the value of the store they occupy.

DEDICATION OF THE NEW MISSION

By the Bishop on Sunday, November 11th

Arrangements for the opening of the South Peterborough Anglican Mission are now complete. Next Saturday evening the Bishop will meet the workers and friends of the mission and give an address.

On Sunday November 11 His Lordship will dedicate the new building to divine service and also preach. In the afternoon and evening, Archdeacon Warren of Toronto will be the speaker.

On the following Sunday, the Rural Dean of Northumberland, Rev. E. W. Pickford, of Norwood, is to preach both morning and evening, and on Thursday evening, a banquet will be held.

On the three succeeding Sundays the preachers will be Rev. Canon Davidson, Rev. F. J. Sawers and Rev. R. B. Grobb.

It is quite plain that the authorities of the church were justified in the steps taken to establish this mission, as already, there are signs that the question of extensions will be taken up.

Scene fro[illegible] "The Girl of t e Underworld," Grand [illegible]ksgiving Day—Matinee [illegible] Evening.

"A Girl of the [illegible]erworld" that plays Peterborough [illegible] a new idea in play writing, [illegible] and constructing. Did you ever see a play that you knew [illegible] it would end before it was ha[illegible] through? You were disappointe[illegible] "A Girl of the Underworld," is never finished, you think of it ov[illegible] and over again. You laugh at its [illegible]ny situations, you wonder at i[illegible] daring theme, you have heard [illegible] these things, but you have never [illegible]en them before. "A Girl of the [illegible]derworld," is as logical as the air [illegible] breathe, its common sense theme [illegible] prevailing throughout four beautif[illegible] of laughs and surprises. The sto[illegible] itself was written from an in[illegible]dent in real life. Therefore it is [illegible]atural. That a theme in real li[illegible] that can be elaborated upon the stage and furnish food for tho[illegible]ht and amusement is the succe[illegible]ful play of the present generation. "A Girl of the Underworld," is [illegible]t such a play. There is a laugh [illegible] minute, with a touch of nature that is heart interest. The people of Peterboro will find in this play something new, something novel, and as successful as Gibraltar.

The C.P.R. and C.N.R. will each require 200,000 tons of street rails next year.

WANTED BY THE POLICE

M. L. Delong, Manager of Real Estate Company is Missing

A Calgary despatch says—

M. L. Delong, of Calgary, manager of the Mondane Land company, was charged with the embezzlement of $237.50 from the Coquitlam Terminal company Limited of Vancouver, in a complaint sworn to by Harry L. Knappen, of Vancouver. Delong disappeared from Calgary one week ago and is believed to be en route to Mexico.

Gambling and fondness for liquor are said to be responsible for Delong's trouble. He was an active church member and is reported to have swindled two Calgary ministers out of sums aggregating $500 a few days before he left this city. Delong's speculations are said to be in excess of $1,000.

G.T.P. BUILDING IN WEYBURN

Operations Being Concentrated on the Weyburn Branch

Weyburn, Sask., Oct. 26.—No effort is to be spared by the officials of the G.T.P. to complete the line from Talmage to Weyburn this year, and in order to counteract the shortage of men available for construction, it has been decided to withdraw the gangs from the Regina boundary line, near the North Dakota border, and transfer them to the Weyburn branch.

A large survey party is now at work east of Talmage locating a line to link up with the main line at Treat just east of the Manitoba boundary. This line will replace that originally projected from Brandon, Man., to Weyburn, and will be built next year, in order to compete with the new short line of the C.P.R. from Winnipeg to Weyburn. This new line of the G.T.P. will cross the C.P.R. main line in the vicinity of Moosomin and will give a short and direct connection with the Manitoba capital.

Weyburn will be a divisional point of this line.

Mr. Moore's subject will be "The Vision of the Saviour." It is hoped that he will also preach at 11 a.m.

Jack Frost's Master
McCLARY'S "Sunshine" Furnace

Jack Frost had the time of his life last winter. He warred against all elements and froze them stiff. Lakes and rivers he turned into solids; he also put a razor-like edge on the wind. He even bit into steel rails making them as brittle as burned glass. Outside, Jack reigned supreme, but his chilly majesty was licked to a frazzle inside by "The Understudy of the Sun"—McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace.

Think of the past winter when the mercury swung timidly below the freezing point—not for a day or a week, but for months at a time. How you shovelled coal, and how you talked about the appetite of that poor old furnace in the cellar. It simply ate up coal and then fell down when it came to heating the house evenly and comfortably.

McClary's "Sunshine" Furnace makes the most of very little fuel, and distributes a much greater percentage of heat throughout house than the ordinary furnace.

Ashes cannot bank up between the active fire and the walls of the Fire-pot in the "Sunshine" Furnace. It is an absolute guarantee of balmy June weather in the home, when Jack Frost's icy garments are jingling in the Arctic cold without. That's why the "Sunshine" is called "The Ice King's Master." The "Sunshine" Furnace is an excellent investment—It will last a life-time with ordinary care—and return you a handsome interest on the investment every year by the actual saving it effects.

Now, we want you to do us a favor—we want you to call on the McClary agent and ask him to prove every claim we make for the "Sunshine" Furnace—ask him to prove every claim true.

Ask him to show you—The fuel-saving features of the "Sunshine" — The mechanical reasons which make balmy healthy June weather possible in the home when Jack Frost is in his element without—Why the "Sunshine" saves money which other furnaces burn up, and—Why the largest makers of furnaces in the British Empire so amply and so fearlessly guarantee the "Sunshine"—The Understudy of the Sun.

Your decision will please us and pay you. If you don't know the McClary agent, write us at our nearest address.

ASTRONOMY

Position of Schaunasse's Comet Received by Dr. Marsh

Rev. Dr. Marsh has been advised that a telegram received at Harvard College Observatory, from the Lick Observatory, gives the position of Schaunasse's Comet, as observed by Prof. Aiken, October 21.

The position is right ascension, 15 hours 4 minutes 10 seconds decimal 4 with the declination minus 1 degree 13m., 37 s.

A cablegram from Kiel states that Jayet and Schaunesse announce that the elements of Schaunesse's Comet are nearly identical with those of Tuttle's Comet, which was discovered January 4, 1858 at Harvard College Observatory by Horace Tuttle. It was soon shown to be identical with Mechain's Comet, 1790, No. 2., observed in 1871, 1885, 1899. Its period is about 14 years.

Dr. Marsh on account of the cloudy skies has been unable to locate this comet, but hopes to do so to-morrow morning at 4.30 a.m.

There will be no meeting of the citizens' committee for some time now, and in the meantime, the official stated, the party will be working along quietly, but none the less effectively.

Save Systematically

Haphazard, occasional saving seldom accomplishes much. It's the steady, persistent, regular depositing of so many dollars a week, or month, or season, in the Union Bank of Canada, which makes one financially independent. The money accumulates all the more rapidly, too, because of the Interest which is added every six months.

Try it.

The stiff fine of $20 and costs, or $22.60, was imposed this morning upon Robert L. Anderson, who pleaded guilty of supplying liquor to a fifteen year old lad named Sullivan. He was ordered to pay forthwith, in default to go to jail for 30 days. It is understood that the fine will be forthcoming.

SLEPT IN CLUB HOUSE.

Michael Larone was accused of vagrancy but pleaded "not guilty." He recently served a term in Central Prison for the same offence.

Last night P. C. Brown was notified that Larone was sleeping in the Bowling Green Club House, having gained an entrance by means of the key which was left hanging on the verandah post.

His worship did not wish to make Larone a bill of expense by sending him to Central, when he was strong and capable of working.

He is a bricklayer by trade and can earn $4 a day.

Judgment was reserved for eight days to allow him a chance to cultivate industry.

CITY CIRCULATION AGENT

Of Leading Montreal Daily Endorses GIN PILLS

FIVE long years of suffering from Kidney Trouble—two boxes of GIN PILLS — and it's all gone. That has been the experience of Mr. Eugene Quesnel, Chief City Circulation Agent of La Patrie, of Montreal. He describes it feelingly:

Montreal, May 3rd, 1912

"I have been suffering from Kidney Trouble for over five long years. I had also Rheumatism in all my bones and muscles, could not sleep nights and on some occasions could hardly walk. I had been treated by some of our best Physicians but without relief and I lost over fifteen pounds. One day I met one of our leading hotelkeepers, who had been cured by your famous GIN PILLS, and he advised me to try them. So I bought two boxes at my druggist's and before I had used one box I felt a big change. Before I finished the second one I was completely cured.

I can assure you I can hardly believe it for if I had only known what I know now I would not have spent over One Hundred Dollars for nothing when two boxes of GIN PILLS cured me."

EUGENE QUESNEL.

GIN PILLS are gaining a world-wide reputation, by the way they conquer the most obstinate cases of Rheumatism and all kinds of Kidney Trouble.

MERCHANTS RESPONSIBLE

Every merchant in business to-day should be responsible for every statement made in connection with the sale of goods.

Honest advertising of honest goods, at honest prices, is now the slogan of the most successful stores in the world. It is the slogan of the New Men's Wear Store, "Cameron's" on George-st. This store positively guarantees every purchase made at it, so that it is not necessary for a person to be an expert judge of goods in order to make a purchase, for when you are told that you can buy a pure Wool Serge or Tweed Suit as low as $12, you can depend that it is right.

When you are told that you can get a fine all Wool Tweed Suit or Overcoat, made in the most fashionable style, with pure wool linings and the latest Patent Bartell Pockets, for only $16, you will easily understand that [illegible] value.

There are a lot of the new Fall Suits and Overcoats piling into the store now, but they also keep going out every day, so much so that "Cameron" wears a smile.

There are new found friends being made to the new store and there are more on the way. Be one of the friends. Go in and get acquainted.

FOILED ON A TECHNICALITY

Winnipeg, Oct. 26.—Barrister Hugh McKenzie's motion before the Court of Appeal for an order authorizing the trial of Provincial Police Magistrate Alex. McMicken was not entertained by the full court yesterday morning, for the reason that the notice of motion was not served on the magistrate personally, but on a servant in his household. The judges held this did not constitute a legal notice, and W. H. Trueman, appearing for McKenzie, will make a new motion and have it served personally on the aged magistrate.

The case arises from the magistrate's "informal trial" of two alleged personators in the Macdonald bye-election.

Not the Missing Furs.

Woodstock, Oct. 26.—Chief Killing yesterday morning received from Lakeside the mink stole which Agnes McKissick wore on her return from Toronto and which it was alleged she had taken from the home of Mr. Ireland, her employer in Toronto. The fur does not answer to the description given by the Toronto police and will be kept here until after the inquest next Tuesday afternoon.

Police Shoot Burglars.

New York, Oct. 26.—A trail of blood leading from the roof of a twelve-storey loft building in West Twenty-Sixth street, where dynamite had been used to effect an entrance to a fur establishment on the top floor, led to the capture yesterday of two men who had been shot and wounded by patrolmen stationed on the roof of a loft building adjoining.

Democrats Subscribe $678,364.

New York, Oct. 26.—The Democratic national campaign fund up to Oct. 24 amounted to $678,364, contributed by 53,303 individuals, accordings to an official statement by Henry Mongenthau, chairman of the finance committee, given out at the Democratic headquarters here yesterday.

In a personal statement to newspaper men when the report was made public Mr. Mongenthau said Thomas F. Ryan and August Belmont, who have testified at Washington as to their large contributions to previous Democratic campaigns, had not been asked for funds this year, and had contributed nothing.

Board Is Refused.

Ottawa, Oct. 26.—The Labor Department has refused to grant a board of conciliation in the dispute between the C.P.R. and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employes, which controls five thousand men in the service of the railway.

A communication to this effect has been sent President Mosher of the brotherhood by the Minister. This decision, the representatives of the men state, will not be accepted as final, and further representations will be made to the Department.

The company has so far refused to treat with the men as a union.

London Woman Ends Life.

London, Ont., Oct. 26.—Mrs. Rochford Nelson, aged 43, committed suicide yesterday afternoon with carbolic acid while temporarily insane. Mrs. Nelson had been in attendance on a sick friend and about five o'clock she rushed into the invalid's room and attempted to force her to take poison. Mrs. Ball, the sick woman, ran from the house and alarmed the neighbors, who found Mrs. Nelson unconscious. She died shortly afterward.

THE MAYTYRS TO DIABETES

There are hundreds of martyrs to diabetes walking the streets of our cities and towns. They are found in every walk of life. They will be found principally among the business men, the men who have worked and eaten and drank, not wisely but too well, who, in the frenzied pursuit of success and wealth, have neglected to take proper rest and proper exercise. These men are daily suffering untold mental and physical agonies. They are paying the price of neglect and heedlessness. They need their ability now more than ever, need to be fit and well. Instead they are in the grip of the dread malady, Diabetes-mellitus.

While they were piling up their wealth or working indefatigably toward some goal of political or professional success, a scientist in far-off Germany was working in their behalf—working patiently, industriously to provide a means of saving for them their health, the greatest boon of life. He succeeded. They—the martyrs—may now enjoy the benefits of his research and work. He has given it to the world in the form of SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES (in the United States EXPURGO-ANTI-DIABETES), which remedy has already made some wonderful cures in Winnipeg and other Canadian cities. The makers have strong testimonials from residents of various cities. A post-card will bring these addresses. The formula for this remedy has been secured for the exclusive use of the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg, Man. The remedy is for sale by McDermid & Jury, Peterborough. Price $2.00 per bottle.

Toronto Man Electrocuted.

Cornwall, Oct. 26.—Thomas Knox of 510 Yonge street, Toronto, who joined the yacht Zara at Toronto on Wednesday, was electrocuted west of the guard lock at Milles Roches yesterday. The young man climbed a pole in an effort to ascertain if the lock gates ahead were clear, and he came in contact with the electric wires and was instantly killed.

The Zara is owned by G. P. Grant, president of the Dominion Bond Co., Toronto, and was on its way to Montreal and Quebec and thence to New York on a pleasure trip.

Knox was a married man.

Occasionally a man commands respect by merely looking wise.

LACK OF EXERCISE
Brings on Troubles which are Best Corrected by
Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

Sedentary Habits Develop Constipation

Man was intended to live an active, outdoor life, and his digestive system was modelled accordingly. Indoor work with hands or head, long hours sitting or standing still, especially in air that's none too good, slow down the healthy activities of stomach, liver, kidneys and the millions of tiny skin glands.

Constipation, headaches, indigestion, biliousness, rheumatism and similar troubles follow.

Then the worth of that good old reliable family medicine, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, is appreciated. Though it has been in use for over half a century, modern science has not been able to devise a safer or better cleanser for the whole system.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are largely vegetable in composition, free from any harmful drug, and mild yet most effective in their action. They are "Mother's standby" in hundreds of homes because they nip in the bud so many of the common ailments.

WM. CARRUTHERS IS FIRST MAYOR

Election for Model City at the Y.M.C.A.

Great enthusiasm was displayed last night when the "Model City" of the Boy's Department of the Young Men's Christian Association elected its Mayor and Aldermen. Regular ballots were used and the election was conducted in the same manner as at a regular city election. In spite of the disagreeable night forty-five votes were cast, with the following result:

Mayor—Wm. Carruthers.

Aldermen—Alex Pidgeon, Fred McNeeley, Kenneth Brown, Douglas Macdonald, Percy Grey, Max Patterson, Cecil Brown, Keir Sturgeon, George Green, Melville Sucee.

Decision Is Delayed.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 26.—The customs court has granted the Government's application for an indefinite postponement of the wood pulp and paper case involving the right of European countries under the "most favored nation" clause of their treaties with the United States to send into this country wood pulp and paper free of duty.

That privilege is now granted only to Canada under the reciprocity act. The issue thus will be stayed for several months.

Most any Suit of Clothes may "look good" on paper. But, when you stand before a mirror, with the Suit on your own figure—that's quite another story.

"SOCIETY BRAND" Clothes are better than the pictures, better than the printed descriptions, better than the dealer's praise, yet you need not take any of these for granted.

You need not buy "SOCIETY BRAND" Clothes on anyone's say-so, nor on anyone's recommendation. There is the evidence, right on your own figure, in front of a mirror.

There are 25 distinct points of advantage in "SOCIETY BRAND" Clothes, which no other clothes have.

Ask us to point out these 25 features; then, try on a suit, or a dozen suits, till you find the one that pleases you.

THE SAVIOR'S TEACHINGS

BROOKLYN TABERNACLE

INTERNATIONAL BIBLE STUDIES

"HE DOETH ALL THINGS WELL."

—October 27.—Mark 7:31—8:10.—

"He hath done all thinks well: He maketh both the deaf to hear, and the dumb to speak."—V. 37.

IN PREVIOUS STUDIES we have noted that Jesus invariably, in connection with His miracles, impressed the healed ones, and all the witnesses, with the fact that the healing power was Divine, thus to establish faith in God. Today's lesson gives a special illustration along this line. A person was brought to the Saviour to heal who was deaf and had an impediment in his speech.

The instance under consideration is peculiar. (1) Because Jesus took the man away from the multitude and healed him privately; (2) it is peculiar as to the means used. He put His fingers into the man's ears, as though to start some life current through them; then He spat and touched the man's tongue. We understand that these methods were used in order to attract the man's attention and assist him in the exercise of faith.

He touched his tongue.

The statement that Jesus sighed is worthy of note; we can only surmise that it indicated His deep sympthy with the man before Him and with the groaning creation in general. The lesson seems to be that He was touched with a feeling of man's infirmities, as had been prophesied. He was perfect. He did not have a body with aches and pains and blemishes, as other men have, but this did not make Him cold and unsympathetic, rather the reverse. His perfect mind would make all His sensibilities more active than ours; His sympathy would be stronger, His sense of pain keener. We, as a fallen race, have become so accustomed to many of our surroundings that we are inclined to consider them natural—forgetting that the natural order of man would be the perfect order, and that the blemished state is the unnatural.

In yet another way may we suppose our Master was touched with a feeling of our infirmities, namely, by reason of His losing vitality on the occasion of each miracle. Is not this the meaning of the Scripture which declares that "He poured out His soul unto death"?

This thought, that the Master was not merely using a Divine power as an Agent of God, but that He was using up His physical power for man's relief, should properly bring our hearts into very close touch and sympathy with Him, and give us that much clearer view of the Saviour's love.

The day before His crucifixion our Lord said, "My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death; I have a baptism to be baptized with, and how am I straitened until it be accomplished!" It was accomplished fully the following day, on Calvary, when He cried, "It is finished!"

It is following the account of this miracle that we read that the multitude declared the words of our text. We are not to understand that merely this one healing was the basis of their comment, for the account of these same instances by St. Matthew (15:29-31) tells of great multitudes gathered, having with them many lame, blind, dumb and maimed and many others, and they cast them down at His feet, and He healed them, insomuch that the multitudes wondered, and glorified the God of Israel.

Let us never lose sight of the great central thought connected with our Lord's miracles. His mission was not to heal the sick and to cast out devils, but to "give His life a ransom for all, to be testified in due time." The secondary feature of His work was the calling of the "Israelites indeed" to be His footstep followers, who would be received of the Father and begotten of the Holy Spirit, at and after Pentecost. The miracles and cures performed were merely incidentals and not His real work. They were incidental in the sense that they were illustrations on a small scale of the great work which His Kingdom will accomplish during the thousand years of His reign. Then "all the blind eyes shall be opened and all the deaf ears shall be unstopped."

All that touched his garments were healed.

It would have been a still greater and grander work for Jesus to have expounded the Divine Plan, and to have opened the eyes of the understanding of the people, and their deaf ears; but this work could not be accomplished to any extent until after He had ascended up on high, and had appropriated the merit of His sacrifice to the justification of believers. Hence it was that Jesus said to His disciples, "Greater works than these shall ye do, because I go to My Father."

The account of the feeding of four thousand people with seven loaves, and the taking up of seven hampers of fragments, was another manifestation of Jesus' power, or as He would express it, of the Divine power in Him. When the five thousand were fed, five loaves and two fishes were used, and they were gotten from a small boy. In this case the disciples themselves had seven loaves, and gave their all for the feeding of the multitude, and all had sufficient. Let us exercise faith in God and partake of our daily bread with grateful hearts; there will be a blessing in it, however plain.

EDMONTON, ALTA., Nov. 20th. 1911

"I have been a sufferer since babyhood from that terrible complaint, Constipation. I have been treated by physicans, and have taken every medicine I heard of, but without the slightest benefit. I finally concluded that there was no remedy in the world that could cure Constipation.

About this time, I heard about "Fruit-a-tives" and decided to try them. The effect was marvellous.

The first box gave me great relief, and after I had used a few boxes, I found that I was entirely well.

The Comprehensive Characterization of the German Farmer.

An old German farmer in Kansas by industry and frugality acquired a rather large property and at the same time a ponderous physique. He sold his farm and stock and bought a neat place in the outskirts of the town. Not wishing to be entirely idle, he cultivated a garden patch in which he took great pride.

One day an adventurous calf found its way into the garden through a hole in the fence. The old man ran him around the garden several times, but Mr. Calf could not or would not find the hole through which he had entered. At last, out of temper and breath, the man sat down on a bench and, fanning himself with his hat, said:

"Der caluf is der meanest insect vot schumps. Dot's vot der matter iss."—Kansas City Star.

OUR WHITE ESKIMOS

THE LOST TRIBE IN THE NORTH HAVE QUEER HISTORY.

Explorer Stefansson Is Convinced That the Two Thousand People He Found In the Arctic Circle of Canada Are Descendants of "Lief the Lucky," Who Migrated From Iceland About the Year 1,000.

Further details are now arriving concerning the discovery in the far north of Canada made by Prof. Villjalmar Stefansson of a lost tribe of 2,000 white people who are believed to be direct descendants of the following of Lief Erickson (Lief the Lucky), who went to Greenland from Iceland about the year 1,000 and later discovered the north coast of America.

The people living on Victoria island, thirty degrees east of the mouth of the Mackenzie river, more than 2,000 miles by the coast line, are still in the stone age. While the civilization of nearly 1,000 years has grown they have stood still.

The tribe of white people, who Stefansson declares are purely of Norwegian origin, never had seen other people of their own color. Their number is about 2,000. More than half of them have red hair, blue eyes, fair skins and light eyebrows and beards. They live on both shores of Coronation gulf, on the mainland of North America and Victoria island, which formerly was known as Prince Edward Island.

It was for this people that Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the south pole, searched while making his trip through the northwest passage.

Amundsen, it will be remembered, said natives had told him of a race of white people living to the northward. He sent an expedition along the shore of the island, but saw nothing of the tribe, nor did they see anything of him.

Many other Arctic explorers have brought down from the north stories of this tribe of lost white people, but the tale came to be regarded as an Indian legend.

Ethnologically, the newly-discovered tribe is entirely different from the Eskimo, not only in the shape of the skull, but in general features, color of eyes and texture of hair. They have not a single trace of the Mongolian type.

While they retain some of the customs of the Norsemen who were lost from Iceland in the twelfth century, their method of living is entirely different. The conditions under which they live are of the most primitive sort. No vegetation, except moss and a few stunted willows, grows in their habitat.

They are meat and fish enters. The island abounds with caribou and the sea with seal and other fauna. They use bows made of willow bound together with sinews and their arrows are tipped with flint and native copper, which is pried out of ledges or found in stream beds on the mainland. Their knives are made of copper, with horn handles, and made in much the same manner as implements were made by the early Norsemen who inhabited Greenland.

Like nearly every savage tribe they have a legend of a flood which a long time ago devastated the world. This legend, anthorpologists say, is universal among savage tribes and therefore cannot be regarded as proof that this particular tribe is descended from Christian forefathers.

Prof. Stefansson accounts for their existence by the fact that in the year [illegible] Greenland was discovered and settled by 3,000 Icelanders. One thousand of these people sailed from Norway and missed Greenland, but landed on the coast of Newfoundland, where they established a colony, built fourteen churches, two monasteries, a nunnery and other structures, the ruins of which are still standing.

These people crossed to the coast of America for timber. There were no Eskimos at this time, either on Greenland or Newfoundland. The Norsemen settled in two colonies, one on the north and one on the south side of Newfoundland.

In the fourteenth century Eskimo came from the north and exterminated the north settlement. Their record was complete till 1441, when the black plague scourged Europe and for two centuries communication between Newfoundland and the old country was cut off.

When communication was restored the people of the second settlement were missing. Their graveyards, buildings and other adjuncts of their semicivilization were found. The theory was formed that the people had drifted to a settlement further west across the narrow straits, where they intermingled with Eskimo, whom they took along with them to the island on which their descendants make their headquarters.

They still use the bone needles that were invented by their forefathers, and many of their methods of life are similar to those of their progenitors. Different environment, a more rigorous climate and a lack of vegetation, however, have changed many of their usages.

In one place on the island Prof. Stefansson discovered a conical stone house which bears a striking resemblance to the houses built in Greenland and Newfoundland by the Norsemen who first inhabited those places.

Their houses are made of snow, with a roof of driftwood which on rare occasions is found on the coast. The stray fragments of wood are highly prized.

Furs furnish their clothing. Their shoes are cut to come well up to the thighs. Here it is met by a kind of underskirt which reaches to the waist. The coat is fashioned in almost precisely the same manner as the full dress coat worn at innaugural balls by their civilized brothers. It cuts off at a sharp angle just about the waist line and a long tail divided into two pieces hangs down behind. The whole outfit is strapped together by means of thongs and buttons made from rawhide and bone.

FAMILY IS TO BE RE-UNITED

Former Peterboro Man and Wife Have Lived Apart

Toronto, Oct. 25— Benj. H. Cope now of Los Angeles, California, wants the custody of his two boys, aged 6 and 9, who are with their mother at Paudash, Haliburton. Mr. Cope's wish was submitted to Mr. Justice Middleton at Osgoode Hall, on a habeas corpus writ.

Cope was present, as were Mrs. Cope, the two boys, Mrs. Cope's father, white-bearded but sturdy, Walter R. Kidd of Haliburton, and Mrs. Cope's three sisters. Mrs. Cope is teaching in Haliburton, and the two little lads attend her school.

Cope was born in Peterborough in 18 5. His wife was born at Chemong Peterborough County in 1874. They were married in Toronto in September, 1901. Since then they have lived in Buffalo, Rochester, Cincinnati, Tonawanda and Kansas City. The two sons, W. B. Cope and A. H. Cope, were born in Rochester.

Cope is a machinist, makes $20 a week in Los Angeles, expects to make more, has no bad habits, and is never out of work.

NO CHARGES MADE

"What is the trouble?" asked Mr. Justice Middleton.

"The mother," said Cope's lawyer, "wants to live in Paudash or Toronto. The father wants to live where he can get work.

"Any charges made?"

"No," was the answer.

Cope could not afford $200 every summer for Mrs. Cope to come home with the children.

"When she comes home, she does not want to go back," said Cope's counsel as to Mrs. Cope's affection for Canada.

"She wouldn't live in Rochester or Tonawanda, so Cope decided to go to Kansas City, away from the border."

Family interference was charged and countercharged.

Mr. Godfrey urged a settlement, and Mr. Justice Middleton suspended the hearing for half an hour. Lawyers and interested parties conferred.

SETTLED THE CASE

Certain furniture will be taken from Toronto to Los Angeles when the husband goes back; the children will return to Haliburton with the mother; the husband will re-establish the home in Los Angeles and if money or tickets came to the wife within a year, she will rejoin him, with their sons.

Such will be the happy ending.

Bryan McShane who died yesterday in Montreal, aged 96, was one of six survivors of the St. Vicksburg which foundered off the coast of Newfoundaldnd in 1875.

Hundreds of tons of peaches lie rotten in the orchards around Vernon B.C., and thousands of barrels of apples will never be shipped so great is the crop.

WEDDING BELLS

MERRETT—BOOTH

A very pretty wedding took place on Thursday last at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Booth, 176 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough, when their third daughter, Viola was united in marriage to Mr. Albert Merrett by the Rev. A. H. Brace of Caledonia, their old and beloved pastor who officiated at the wedding of her two sisters. The bride wore a dress of silver grey silk palette with all over lace, trimmed with pearl and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. Her sister Lily was the honored bridesmaid and was gowned in a cream voile with pale blue sash sash and carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. F. T. Book waited upon the groom. The bride was led to the alter on the arm of her father to the strains of the Wedding March played by Mr. Sam Thomas and stood beneath an arch beautifuly decorated with a large white bell of carnations and smilax.

The groom's present to the bride was a pearl necklace and to the groomsman a gold wish-bone tie pin. The bride's present to her maid was a pearl brooch.

The invited guests numbered over 50. Those present from a distance were Mrs. A. H. Brace Caledonia; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Booth Green River and their daughter, Lena, and Miss Pearl Fitchet of Agincourt.

The presents were numerous valuable and useful including a cheque and a present in gold. Her going away dress was navy blue broadcloth with white felt hat and plume.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding dejeuner was served. Mr. and Mrs Merrett will reside in their own house on Brown street Peterborough.

CARY — VANZANT

A very pretty and quiet wedding took place at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon, at 516 Aylmer street, when Mr. Walter Cary was united in marriage to Miss Leona Vanzant, the Rev. James Rollins officiating. The bride was unattended.

Both the bride and groom were recipients of many handsome presents, among which was a half-dozen silver spoons from Coleman Bros store staff to the bride.

The happy couple left this afternoon for Toronto and points west. On their return they will reside at 516 Aylmer street.

WINTER ECZEMA CURED BY ZAM-BUK

Mrs. P. W. Drummond, of Thetford Mines, Que., writes: "Every fall, as soon as cold weather sets in, my little daughter's face and hands would covered with rough watery patches, which before long turned into scabby sores. These would itch and smart terribly, and would remain on her face from fall until spring. This happened for three years, and we could get nothing did her any good, until a short time ago I started using ZamBuk, and now, after using half a box of same, the sores have entirely disappeared, leaving her skin as smooth and clear as it could possibly be."

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for ulcers, abscesses, ringworm, blood poison, scalp sores, chapped hands, cold sores, and all skin diseases and injuries. 50c. a box, all stores.

PEERLESS PENINSULAR RANGE

"Ask your neighbor"

THE saving of a few dollars by purchasing a cheap range is far outweighed by the heavy disadvantages attaching to inferior ranges.

A propensity for eating up the coal—A constant repair bill—And perhaps an indifferent baking record—Are all drawbacks which take the gilt off the original saving in price.

You are in need of a range if the one you have wastes coal. It will be a saving to get a PEERLESS.

It is designed to save coal. It is built to last. As a baker it satisfies the most exacting housewife.

Your neighbor will tell you that her PEERLESS range reduces the coal bills.

Special To The Review.

Toronto, Oct. 29.—With the exception of W. H. Sheard, all the victims of the wreck at Streetsville Junction last night are reported to be making satisfactory progress towards recovery. W. H. Sheard is not expected to survive the day. Pending the result of an investigation of the wreck all members of the crew of the military train and the despatcher at London have been suspended. It is said Engineer Hart admits understanding the orders to cross the Express at this point, and cannot explain how his train overrun the switch after the airbreaks were applied. No official statement has been given out, and will not be until the conclusion of the investigation.

Private J. M. Geoffrey, A Company, 48th Highlanders, 209 Howland avenue; legs and head cut and suffering from bruises.

Private Willis, A Company, 48th Highlanders, 118 Silver Birch avenue; legs crushed.

Private M. Malcolm, A Company, 48th Highlanders, 78 Givens street; crushed foot.

Willie Watson, aged 12, son of Corpl. Watson of the Highlander Pioneers; eye and nose cut and head and face very badly bruised.

Sergt. Green, D Company, 48th Highlanders; leg twisted while helping to take the injured out of the telescoped passenger coach.

William Corbett, traveling passenger agent, C.P.R.; legs injured.

Harry Sinclair, Galt, Ont., passenger on Detroit train; shoulder injured, head and eye badly cut.

Heavy mogul locomotives were hauling the two trains, which, owing to the holiday traffic and large number of troops carried, the trains were exceptionally heavy and of considerable length.

The scene of the wreck is about 200 yards west of the C.P.R. station on the Windsor main line. The flyer was gradually drawing out of the station when it met the "trooper" advancing around a dangerous curve at a twenty-mile gait.

The engineers of both trains immediately saw the danger ahead and jammed on their emergency brakes, but they were of no avail.

The heavy troop train smashed into the pilot of the passenger train, the baggage car telescoping the first passenger coach, which was occupied by A Company of the 48th Highlanders, seriously injuring four and practically injuring the whole company.

The baggage car was pushed shear through the passenger coach on a level for a distance of ten feet. It then shot upwards, pinning those at the rear end of the car under its weight, flying glass and heavy pieces of wood and iron were strewn in all directions. Murdock, the first man extricated from the debris, being almost cut in two.

One minute after the crash came the "alarm" was sounded by a 48th Highlander bugler, immediately followed by the call to "Fall in" and "Officers." Highlanders poured out of their coaches to a man, and dropping their equipment, worked like demons to extricate the dead and injured comrades. Soldiers were rapidly pressed into the service, and the wrecked coach was soon pulled to pieces by eager and willing hands.

The impact had but little effect upon the heavy coaches composing the Detroit train. Two passengers were more or less slightly injured. The only car on the train damaged at all was the diner, this car having its furniture strewn over the floor and its rear platform broken off. The passengers state that they felt but very little shock from the collision, appearing to them as if there had been a sudden application of the emergency brake. In fact, most of them did not realise that there had been a wreck at all, until they saw the procession of stretchers containing the dead and wounded to the temporary hospital.

Up to a late hour last night the exact cause of the wreck was unknown, although several theories were advanced by experienced railroad men.

UNITED AFTER THIRTY YEARS

Mother Finds Daughter Who was Kidnapped When Young

Special To The Review.

Montreal, Oct. 29— Mrs. George Marcotte, Ontario Ave., Viauville, and her mother, Mrs. Susie White, once Mrs. Susie Newton, of Brant Rock, Mass., have been united after a separation of thirty years, when the daughter was kidnapped by William Morse from the home of her parents near Boston. A sister of Morse had lost her children and he took the Newton girl to replace her, because she resembled a dead child. The secret came out as a result of a deathbed confession of the woman who raised the girl, and died a few weeks ago.

Special To The Review.

Ottawa, Oct. 29—Judgment in the two mountains case confirms the election J. A. C. Eithier, Liberal. The difficulty arose from irregularities in the election papers of M. Fauteux, the Conservative nominee.

Ottawa, Oct. 29— Hon. Louis Coderre, M.P., for Hochelaga, was sworn in as Secretary of State, at one o'clock this afternoon, by the Duke of Connaught, and Hon. Dr. Roche took the oath as Minister of the Interior and Hon. Robert Rogers as Minister of Public Works.

EAST MIDDLESEX CONSERVATIVE

The result of the campaign in East Middlesex is a victory for the Conservative candidate and for the Whitney Government. The Globe predicted a Liberal win but was very wide astray in its prediction.

The result is an indication of the yprinciples of the Whitney administration, and a decisive rejoinder to those who asserted that Mr. Rowell and his policy would appeal to the people.

The defeated candidate is a brother of the deceased member, who had a majority last December of 25.

The vote cast was slightly less than that of last December, altho the interest in the campaign was intense and during the last week there have been three or four meetings a night Sir James Whitney and three of his ministers were in the riding in Mr. Neely's behalf and the Liberal leader, N.W. Rowell, campaigned for Mr. Sutherland, who had adopted his plank "abolish the bar" in the closing week of the campaign.

SHERMAN HAD GOOD NIGHT

Improvement Shown in the Condition of Vice-President.

Special To The Review.

Utica, N.Y., Oct. 29.—Vice President Sherman spent a good night, and was regarded as much improved when his physician left him this morning. The physician spent the night at the Sherman home.

Utica, N.Y., Oct. 29.—Alarming rumors regarding the condition of Vice-President Sherman influenced his physician, Dr. F. N. Peck, to issue the following bulletin yesterday:

"Vice-President Sherman is a very ill man, although the reports in circulation during the night were greatly exaggerated. Mr. Sherman was sitting up yesterday and he walked about the house from room to room. His condition is bad, it is true, but I do not apprehend any immediate crisis."

While his physician believes there is no immediate danger of death, yet the patient's condition is such that it is a matter of conjecture how much longer he can withstand the ravages of the disease with which he is afflicted.

Republicans In Quandary.

Washington, Oct. 29.—The illness of Vice-President Sherman and speculation over the posibilities of his withdrawal from the Republican ticket because of the precarious condition of his health, aroused discussion here yesterday over the probable methods of filling his place.

The general opinion expressed is that the Republican national committee or the executive committee possessed power to fill a vacancy upon the ticket.

Should a vacancy occur, the Republican ticket, either before or after election, some Republicans here yesterday argued, the electors would have power to vote for any candidate for vice-president they might choose. Precedents were admitted to be lacking, but it was declared that only party discipline and honor had in the past bound electors to vote for their party nominees. No one suggested, however, that a choice by the Republican national committee or its executive committee would fail to receive the support of the Taft electors.

COMPLETE VINDICATION OF GOVERNMENT'S POLICY

Rowell's "Abolish the Bar" Candidate Snowed Under in East Middlesex.

London, Oct. 29.—In the bye-election held in East Middlesex yesterday to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Robert Sutherland, M.P.P., the Conservative candidate, George W. Neely, was elected over William Sutherland, Independent, by a majority of 551. The defeated candidate is a brother of the deceased member, who had a majority last December of 25.

The vote cast was slightly less than that of last December, although the interest in the campaign was intense and during the last week there have been three or four meetings a night. Sir James Whitney and three of his Ministers were in the riding in Mr. Neely's behalf, and the Liberal leader, N. W. Rowell, K.C., campaigned for Mr. Sutherland, who had adopted his plank "abolish the bar" in the closing week of the campaign.

The Liberal vote was not cast strongly for Sutherland because of the adverse attitude taken toward him by the temperance candidate. The fact that Mr. Rowell, after this, took him up had the effect of spliting the temperance vote.

The riding is made up of the Townships of London, North Dorchester, West Nissouri and Westminster. The latter three are all "dry" through local option and London Township votes on it this year.

The result of yesterday's vote by townships was as follows:

	Neely.	Sutherland.
London Township ..	1,038	525
N. Dorchester	420	314
West Nissouri	349	270
Westminster	402	549
Totals	2,209	1,658

Majority for Neely, 551.

Mr. Rowell's Statement.

Toronto, Oct. 28.—On learning the result of the bye-election in East Middlesex, Mr. N. W. Rowell, the Liberal leader, said:

"When we consider the efforts put forth by the Government and the liquor interests to carry the riding, the result, though regrettable, is not surprising. Mr. Sutherland, the Independent candidate, while working faithfully himself, had no organization whatever throughout the riding, and it appeared difficult to awaken any enthusiasm among Liberals on behalf of an Independent Conservative. The result is shown in a large falling off in the Liberal vote in the Liberal stronghold of Westminster Township. Elsewhere also a large number did not go to the polls.

"On the other hand, by reason of Mr. Sutherland's alleged attitude in the past on the temperance question it was not easy to awaken enthusiasm on his behalf among the friends of temperance.

"I went into the campaign not primarily to win, but to force to the front a great issue, and to compel the Government to take a stand. This I have done. This contest, while important, was only a preliminary skirmish. It has developed the position of the enemy. The fight will proceed to a finish, for the bar must go."

Mills Is Elected.

Berlin, Oct. 29.—The large majority of 1,400 was rolled up yesterday for Charles H. Mills, the Conservative candidate in the bye-election to fill the vacancy in the Ontario Legislature.

Mr. Mills, who has made a good record for himself in the city as a public-spirited citizen, is returned as comfortably as if by acclamation. The industrial centres, Berlin, Waterloo and Elmira gave him a thousand majority alone. Matthew Wayman, Socialist, polled 511, an increase of 57, and ex-Mayor Huber received 160 votes.

The suffrage reform candidate, J. T. Uttley, whome name did not appear on the ballot, said last night that he accepts the verdict of the people with entire satifaction.

Returns are not yet complete, but later figures will not materially affect the majority.

ITALIAN IS MURDERED

Guelph's First Murder Case in 23 Years.

Guelph, Oct. 29.—For the first time in twenty-three years a murder has been committed in the city of Guelph, and while no one has been charged directly with the crime, the police have six Italians locked up, some as material witnesses in the case, and others on suspicion. Michael Frazara, who was shot in the back on Alice street shortly after midnight Saturday night, died in the general hospital about twenty-four hours after he was shot, without giving the authorities any definite information as to who his murderers are. He made an ante-mortem statement, but the police have so far declined to divulge the contents. It is understood, however, that he refused to accuse anybody, stating that his uncle, with whom he lived, could tell anything he wished to concerning his actions Saturday night. The uncle is one of the men now being held as a witness, and he is said to have been an actual witness of the shooting.

The entire police force have been working on the case ever since the murder occurred, and are making excellent progress. It is stated on good authority that Joe Veroni, the Alice street baker, while innocent of doing the actual killing, was concerned in an attempted robbery which resulted in the murder. He was shot, so the story goes, by the murdered man, who was endeavoring to protect himself from the attack of Veroni and another Italian, whose name cannot be learned, but who was arrested yesterday afternoon and locked up on suspicion of being the actual murderer.

VERRIA FORTRESS NOW AT THE MERCY OF THE GREEKS

Capture of Verria Town, Only a Question of Hours—English Press Take up Question of Intervention—Turks in Scutari Cannot Get Supplies—Lighthouse of Turkish Seaport Destroyed.

Special to the Review.

Athens, Greece, Oct. 29. — The strong Turkish fortress of Verria has been placed absolutely at the mercy of the invading Greek Army which captured Tripotamos defiles forming a key to the situation. The capture of the town of Verria itself is only a question of hours. The whole Turkish army around Monastir will be cut off when Verria falls, and will be unable to communicate with Salonica or Constantinople.

London Oct. 29.—The possibility of intervention by the Great Powers on the Balkan situation is the leading theme of eidtorials in the English press, the Post expressing the opinion that if the four Balkan Kingdoms can mak egood by force of arms their claims to territories inhabited by their own flesh and blood, no power has any right to interfere. The Telegraph conjures up the spectre of Austrian intervention to prevent Servia holding Sanjak of Novipazar, predicting that Germnay will support here and Britain, Russia and France oppose. Most of the papers agree that no intervention is advisable until after the next decisive battle.

Vienna, Oct. 29. — Montenegrin troops have cut off the supplies for turkish forces at Scutari where provisions already were scarce.

Constantinople, Oct. 29. — The Turkish town of Servia recently captured by the Greek Army is reported to have been re-occupied by Ottoman troops according to a telegram from Saloniki published in newspapers here. Bulgarian bands have destroyed the lighthouse at the Turkish seaport of Inuia on the Black Sea coast 75 miles from Adrianople.

London, Oct. 29—Extreme importance is attached to a telegram which the Czar of Russia has sent to King Peter, of Servia, congratulating him that the Servian armies proved successful in Macedonia without calling on outside assistance. It is surmised that the message will be regarded in Vienna as an alarming demonstration.

London, Oct. 29.—An interesting question at the present moment is the whereabouts of the Turkish army, of which nothing definite is known. The news that Eski Baba has been taken by the Bulgarian cavalry, apparently without resistance, shows that Nazim Pasha's army is not where it was supposed to have been—on the line between Kuleli Burgas to Lule Burgas. It may be further west, in the direction of Demotica, but it is generally supposed that it has retired from the line of the railway and entrenched itself on the long line from Demotica to Tchorlu.

Constantinople despatches continue to speak of the readiness of the Turkish army to take the offensive. In any case a few days must see something decisive.

The victorious Bulgarian army is still advancing. It has occupied Bunarhissar and is marching toward Kuleli Burgas. It is reported that the Bulgarians have blown up a bridge over the Tchorlu river, showing that the turning movement is making rapid progress.

Unless the Turks are able to take the offensive vigorously the present indication is that they will be driven out of Europe altogether, failing interference by the powers at the present stage to end the war, as happened in the Russian campaign in 1828 and 1878, when Russia had captured Adrianople and was at the gates of Constantinople.

There have been renewed activities with regard to European intervention in the past few days and great diplomatic activity in London.

The Turkish ambassador had two hours' conference on Saturday at the French embassy and an important conference was held yesterday between Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary; Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty; and Lt.-Col. J. E. Seely, Minister for War. Then the Turkish, French, Russian and Italian ambassadors visited the Foreign Secretary who, afterwards, had an audience with the King at Buckingham Palace.

The news from other parts of the theatre of operations shows that the Turks everywhere are retiring before the victorious allies. The Turkish army, defeated at Kumanova, appears to be demoralized and has evacuated Kuprill or Veles, as it is also known, and is retiring on Monastir.

Communications Cut?

Sofia, Oct. 29.—The Bulgarian forces, according to advices received last night, have captured the towns of Lule Burgas and Demotica. It is also reported that the Turks are constructing earthenworks along the river Erkene, west of Eski Baba.

It is stated that Bulgarian cavalry has succeeded in cutting communications between Adrianople and Constantinople and between Adrianople and Macedonia. The bridge over the Tchorlu river at Cherkesskoi has been blown up. It is understood that civilians leaving Adrianople are permitted to pass through the lines to the south.

The Turkish commander at Adrianople has been formally summoned to surrender the town. A second military train from Constantinople, loaded with flour, has fallen into the hands of the Bulgarians at Eski Baba.

Bulgarians Capture Train.

Sofia, Oct. 29.—The Bulgarian troops yesterday captured a military train in the vicinity of Eski Baba, carrying troops and supplies from Constantinople to Adrianople.

WILSON THROWS UP THE SPONGE

Progressives to Rule With Roosevelt as President.

New York, Oct. 29.—Woodrow Wilson has practically thrown up the sponge. In an address issued Sunday night from his home at Princeton, N.J., he urges the Democrats to concentrate their strength upon the election for members of the Legislature in states where U. S. Senators are to be elected. In short, the governor advises Democratic voters in states like New Jersey and Maine to trade him off for candidates for the State Legislature.

It is now conceded that the Progressives will dominate the next House of Representatives and Col. Roosevelt's election as President is scarcely less doubtful; hence the cry from Macedonian by Mr. Wilson. The only chance for the Democratic party to get a toehold is the Senate.

Toronto, Oct. 29.—Sir Mackenzie Bowell was reported at noon to-day to be resting quietly, but the authorities at Wellesley hospital admit that the condition of the aged statesman is critical.

SPIRITUALIST IS ON TRIAL

Doctor Says Three of Family Died From Poison.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—The state introduced its principal evidence yesterday in the trial of Mrs. Louise Lindloff, spiritualist, clairvoyant and crystal gazer, charged with poisoning her son, Arthur, and who, the prosecution asserts, predicted the deaths of the members of her family.

Dr. Walter S. Baines, toxicologist, testified that he found between three and four grains of a mineral poison, enough to cause death, in the body of Arthur Lindloff, the son of the defendant, and that he found the same drug in fatal quantities in the bodies of William Lindloff, one of Mrs. Lindloff's husbands, and of Alma Lindloff, her daughter.

"In my opinion all three members of the family died of poison," said Dr. Baines. He also testified that he had analyzed the powder in a box said to have been found in Mrs. Lindloff's house and found it to contain 80 per cent. mineral poison. The embalming fluid in the bodies, he said, contained no poison.

The undertaker who buried William Lindloff testified that Mrs. Lindloff told him that he would have another funeral at her home within a year. An insurance agent testified that the woman placed a $2,000 policy on the boy's life a few months before his death.

Rev. J. R. Dickson Better.

Galt, Oct. 29.—The condition of Rev J. R. Dickson, D.D., Ph.D., pastor of Central Presbyterian Church, who collapsed in the pulpit Sunday morning, shows signs of improvement. Three physicians in attendance report that the patient is resting easily.

TO-MORROW'S DUTY

The vote to be taken to-morrow on the By-law to Aid the De Laval Dairy Supply Company is an important one for Peterborough. It will decide whether the ratepayers want this city to advance or not. It is only by industrial growth that there can be progress, and new industries cannot be secured without some encouragement. This company is one of the very best. It has a larger capitalization and is owned by one of the strong, wealthy and vigorous industrial companies of the United States. The size of the first building it proposes to erect, 112 by 400 feet, shows that it purposes to carry on a large manufacturing business here. It would not invest at least $75,000 as it has agreed to do, unless it was certain that it would succeed in building up a large business and give employment to a large number of men. It now has eighty employees in its Quebec factories, and these factories will be moved to Peterborough, and it has plans laid for the erection of further large buildings.

The cost to the city, for such an industry, is small. A large vote for the By-law will show that the ratepayers have been in earnest in urging the Council to secure industries, especially industries of a good class, so that the city will not be allowed to stand still, but will continue to advance. The Council has done its part, and done it well, and now the ratepayers should act.

Everyone entitled to vote should bear in mind that the law requires a larger proportionate vote in favor of the By-law. A majority only of those who vote is not enough. Everyone should make an effort, if an effort is needed in any case, in order to poll a vote for the By-law. Do not let even the legal requiremnet suffice, but show in a marked way that Peterborough means to maintain its position as an industrial centre. Do not wait to be asked to vote; go to the poll and do your part to make Peterborough grow.

GREAT GAIN LITTLE COST

If the establishment of the De Laval factory here did not result in any direct increase in the revenue of the city treasury, the cost of securing it would still be only 18 cents a thousand on each $1,000 of assessment for a few years. The returns in increased business and prestige would much more than make up for that. Every dealer and every trade will have more to do and everyone will benfit much more than enough to make up the cost. But the company itself will pay in taxes several times the amount now received from the property upon which it locatea. And the employes will need houses to live in, and on these houses taxes willl be paid that will more than recoup the city treasury, and give the factory to the city without cost.

The only way in which the vacant lots on streets served with sewers, sidewlaks and other services will be built up is by securing new industries. There is an opportunity to [illegible] of the best class. The opportunity has been recognized, and the ratepayers should show that they will take advantage of it by passing the by-law. One of the surest ways of losing an election is by over-confidence. This must not happen to-morrow. Each ratepayer should feel that the result depends upon his vote, for by single votes the necessary aggregate must be secured, and should not fail to record his vote in favor of the By-law.

"THE EMERGENCY"

If any further proof were needed that there is now a naval emergency, a need for a special naval contribution by Canada, the status of the German and British navies as contrasted by J. T. Middlemore, M.P., for North Birmingham, in the National Review, ought to settle the question. Mr. Middlemore says that the Asquith Ministry, being Liberal, has not maintained the navy in its full strength. It has been letting the Germans creep up until they are within striking distance of the British strength. In making his comparisons, Mr. Middlemore gives the following data:

"Battleships. 1.—In the spring of 1906, when the present Government came into power, we had 31 completed battleships not more than ten years launched to Germany's 14. Now we have 27 to Germany's 18. A superiority of 121 per cent. has dwindled to one of 50 per cent. Is that maintaining our naval position?

"Crusiers. 2.—In the spring of 1906 we had 35 completed protected cruisers not more than ten years launched to Germany's 20. Now we have 15 such vessels to Germany's 20. A superiority of 75 per cent. has been exchanged for an inferiority of 25 per cent. Is that maintaining our naval position?

"Destroyers. 3.—In the spring of 1906 we had 110 completed destroyers not launched more than ten years to Germany's 43. We have now 104 such vessels to Germany's 88; that is to say, a superiority of 132 per cent. has been exchanged for one of 18 per cent. Furthermore, in home waters we now have 67 fully commissioned destroyers to Germany's 66. Finally, we have 48 destroyers older than the oldest in the German navy. Is that maintaining our naval strength?

"Battleships in Full Commission. 4.—At the beginning of 1906 we had 31 battleships in full commission to Germany's 15. We have now 27 to Germany's 19; that is to say, a superiority of 107 per cent. has been reduced to 42 per cent. In 1914 we are to have 33 battleships with full crews permanently on board to Germany's 29—a superiority of less than 14 per cent. Is that maintaining our naval position?

"Mediterranean. 5.—In the spring of 1906 we had 8 battleships in the Mediterranean—now we have none. Is that maintaining our naval position?

"Armoured Ships Building. 6.—On March 31, 1906, we were building 16 armored ships to Germany's 8. At the present moment we are building 13 (two of which are four months overdue) to Germany's 10, the latter figure not including 2 ships of the current program, which were ordered in April. Is that maintaining our naval position?

"Armored Ships Building. 6.—On the 6 1-2 years immediatley preceding the present Government's accession to power we launched 54 armored ships to Germany's 20. In the subsequent 6 1-2 years we have launched 30 to Germany's 22, and in the last 4 1-2 years (1908 onwards) only 18 to 18. Is that maintaining our naval superiority?

"Authority.—The figures for 1906 are taken from the Official Return of Fleets for that year. Those for 1912 are based upon the 1912 Return, and brought up to date."

Surely, no more convincing presentation of the facts could be desired. The figures as presented here may lend countenance to the argument, that if Canada does make an emergency contribution, it merely displaces the British program by that much—that there will be no increase in the strength of the navy because the Asquith ministry will retrench by that amount. But Mr. Borden is stipulating that there must be no recession of the British Government's program. The Canadian contribution will supplement of the strength of the navy.

DEFENDERS OF THE BAR

It is quite characteristic of the Globe's style of political warfare that it should refer to George W. Neely the Conservatie candidate in Middlesex as the defender of the bar. Mr. Neely is a strong temperance man and has [illegible] associated in temperance work and to say that he is a defender of the bar is not much more than a libel upon him. Of course the reason is because he is supporting Sir James Whitney's program of first abolishing the treating system and as public sentiment progresses going farther in the restriction of the liquor traffic. If Sir James Whitney were convinced that the public wanted the abolition of the bar he would not hesitate to take the step but there is no warrant for any such belief at present. In fact the local option system has abolished the bar and also the liquor store in over half of Ontario municipalities now. It has gone father in wiping out the liquor traffic as applied to these communities than Mr Rowell's proposal because the stores have been put out of business and Mr Rowell does not propose to abolish the liquor stores. In the local option contest coming on in Peterborough there will be a very fine sample of the need of a strong public sentiment behind any general legislation such as Mr. Rowell proposes. If Premier Whitney the Conservatives and Mr. Neely are defenders of the bar then N. W. Rowell, a life-long temperance man, is the defender of the liquor store. But the Conservatives contend, and rightly, that the spread of local option is doing more in the temperance cause than any general legislation that reopens a source of liquor in local option municipalties. For the present local option districts to keep out the liquor store under the 'Bolish the Bar' program they would have to re-pass local option and what a satisfaction that would be to be sure The Globe and the London Advertiser have been making a direct issue of the temperance question in this campaign. If their pseudo temperance candidate Mr Sutherland is not elected, the slump for the "Bolish the Bar" cause will be as great as it is not unexpected.

Rough on the Chinamen.

The Sikh policemen of Shanghai speak the language of nobody at all in the city except themselves, but from the standpoint of the people of the settlement they are ideal police, for in case of a row between a white man and a Chinese they do not bother to reason or figure out the case, but simply belt the native over the head. The Chinese hate and fear the Sikhs, and when a native riot occurs, and riots are not infrequent, the men from India are the first point of attack.—Argonaut.

CHAPTER I.

The Wreck of the Taxicab.

The young woman in the taxicab scuttling frantically down the dark street, clung to the arm of the young man alongside, as if she were terrified at the lawbreaking, neck-risking speed. But evidently some greater fear goaded her, for she gasped:

"Can't he go a little faster?"

"Can't you go a little faster?" The young man alongside howled as he thrust his head and shoulders through the window in the door.

But the self-created taxi-gale swept his voice aft, and the taut chauffeur perked his ear in vain to catch the vanishing syllables.

"What's that?" he roared.

"Can't you go a little faster?"

The indignant charioteer simply had to shoot one barbed glare of reproach into that passenger. He turned his head and growled:

"Say, do youse want to lose me me license?"

For just one instant he turned his head. One instant was just enough. The unguarded taxicab seized the opportunity, bolted from the track, and flung, as it were, its arms drunkenly around a perfectly respectable lamppost attending strictly to its business on the curb. There ensued a condensed Fourth of July. Sparks flew, tires exploded, metals ripped, two wheels spun in air and one wheel, neatly severed at the axle, went reeling down the sidewalk half a block before it leaned against a tree and rested.

A dozen or more miracles coincided to save the passengers from injury. The young man found himself standing on the pavement with the unhinged door still around his neck. The young woman's arms were round his neck. Her head was on his shoulder. It had reposed there often enough, but never before in the street under a lamppost. The chauffeur found himself in the road, walking about on all fours, like a bewildered quadruped.

Evidently some overpowering need for speed possessed the young woman, for even now she did not scream, she did not faint, she did not murmur, "Where am I?" She simply said:

"What time is it, honey?"

And the young man, not realising how befuddled he really was, or how his hand trembled, fetched out his watch and held it under the glow of the lamppost, which was now bent over in a convenient but disreputable attitude.

"A quarter to ten, sweetheart. Plenty of time for the train."

"But the minister, honey! What about the minister?"

The consideration of this riddle was interrupted by a muffled hubbub of yelps, whimpers and canine hysterics. Immediately the young woman forgot ministers, collisions, train-schedules—everything. She showed her first sign of panic.

"Snoozleums! Get Snoozleums!"

They groped about in the topsy-turvy taxicab, rummaged among a jumble of suitcases, handbags, umbrellas and minor impedimenta, and fished out a small dog-basket with an inverted dog inside. Snoozleums was ridiculous in any position, but as he slid tail foremost from the wicker basket, he resembled nothing so much as a heap of tangled yarn tumbling out of a work-basket. He was an indignant skein, and had much to say before he consented to snuggle under his mistress' chin.

About this time the chauffeur came growling into view. He was too deeply shocked to emit any language of the garage. He was too deeply shocked to achieve any comment more brilliant than:

"That mess don't look much like it ever was a taxicab, does it?"

The young man shrugged his shoulders, and stared up and down the long street for another. The young woman looked sorrowfully at the wreck, and queried:

"Do you think you can make it go?"

The chauffeur glanced her way, more in pity for her whole sex than in scorn for this one type, as he mumbled:

"Make it go? It'll take a steam winch a week to unwrap it from that lamppost."

The young man apologised.

"I oughtn't to have yelled at you."

He was evidently a very nice young man. Not to be outdone in courtesy, the chauffeur retorted:

"I hadn't ought to have turned me head."

The young woman thought, "What a nice chauffeur!" but she gasped: "Great heavens, you're hurt!"

"It's nuttin' but a scratch on me t'umb."

"Lend me a clean handkerchief, Harry."

The young man whipped out his reserve supply, and in a trice it was a bandage on the chauffeur's hand. The chauffeur decided that the young woman was even nicer than the young man. But he could not settle on a way to say it. So he said nothing, and grinned sheepishly as he said it.

Henry Mallory and Marjorie Newton.

The young man named Harry was wondering how they were to proceed. He had already studied the region with dismay, when the girl resolved:

"We'll have to take another taxi, Harry."

"Yes, Marjorie, but we can't take it till we get it."

"You might wait here all night wit'out ketchin' a glimp' of one," the chauffeur ventured. "I come this way because you wanted me to take a short cut."

"It's the longest short cut I ever saw," the young man sighed, as he gazed this way and that.

The place of their shipwreck was so deserted that not even a crowd had gathered. The racket of the collision had not brought a single policeman. They were in a dead world of granite warehouses, wholesale stores and factories, all locked and forbidding, and full of silent gloom.

In the daytime this was a big trade-artery of Chicago, and all day long it was thunderous with trucks and commerce. At night it was Pompeii, so utterly abandoned that the night watchmen rarely slept outside, and no footpad found it worth while to set up shop.

The three castaways stared every which way, and every which way was peace. The ghost of a pedestrian or two hurried by in the far distance. A cat or two went furtively in search of warfare or romance. The lampposts stretched on and on in both directions in two forevers.

In the faraway there was a muffled rumble and the faint clang of a bell. Somewhere a street car was bumping along its rails.

"Our only hope," said Harry. "Come along, Marjorie."

He handed the chauffeur five dollars as a poultice to his wounds, tucked the girl under one arm and the dog-basket under the other, and set out, calling back to the chauffeur:

"Good night!"

"Good night!" the girl called back.

"Good night!" the chauffeur echoed. He stood watching them with the tender gaze that even a chauffeur may feel for young love hastening to a honeymoon.

THE FERTILE FRENCHMAN.

Quebec Canadians Have Doubled Every 25 Years.

Race suicide, so often pointed to as a grave peril for France, is invisibly remote in French Canada. The province of Quebec so abounds in large families that it is capable of supplying the deficiency of its mother country. Indeed, the late distinguished economist, Mr. Leroy Beaulieu, recently said: "Give us 10,000 French-Canadians and we will repeople France." In 1754 the last census under French regime showed 55,000 French in Canada. This number has doubled every twenty-five years, says Eugene Rouillard, so that now they aggregate 3,300,000.

A paternal government has not been slow to reward the effort of its people in "multiplying and replenishing" the earth, says a recent writer.

In 1890 the Government of the Province of Quebec passed a law granting a piece of land to every head of a family that could boast of twelve or more children. This grant was later changed to a cash premium. Until 1905 a total of 5,414 families received the premium. Of this number 150 families had 14 to 18 living children; in some cases where one or the other of the parents was married twice, the number of living children ranged from 18 to 27 children. Since the foundation of Quebec in 1608 there have been entered upon the parish registers, up to 1883, a total of 2,909,000 births, or 67.25 per one thousand population. French-Canadian families of eight and ten children are not uncommon. The average size of a family is five children—an average that will be maintained, one should think, unless alcoholism, which is beginning to plague our race, pervades the rural districts.

The French-Canadians have few millionaires among them, but there are a few. On the other hand, they have no poor. The poor, even in the great city of Montreal, are not French-Canadians. Among the smaller places one town, Nicolet, will serve as an example. Conversing with one of the citizens, the writer asked him if there were a large number of poor. He answered that practically there were no poor. "We are neither rich nor poor. Every one makes a living, and a comfortable living. Our farmers are even prosperous." The question was asked if the large families did not have the tendency to make the people poor, and he laughed and said that on the farms the large families were a distinct advantage, for, while farmers in English-speaking portions of the country could get no help at all, the French-Canadians never lacked for it."

Large families do not appear to interfere with educational opportunities. In the archdiocese of Montreal there is a Catholic population of 472,000. Roughly, we might say that 400,000 of these are French-Canadians. For this population there is one university, having a normal school and faculties of arts, medicine, law, etc., [illegible] colleges and 731 Catholic schools. And then we have spoken only for the boys. This does not count the numerous educational boarding schools and other educational institutions for women. In this archdiocese alone there are 88,000 pupils.

To Cure Brittle Nails.

Brittleness of the nails is caused by a weakened physical condition. Then again if you do your own housework the strong soap which you probably use for cleaning purposes will make your nails brittle.

Twice a day hold the tips of your fingers for five minutes in a vessel containing enough olive oil to cover the nails. At night before retiring dip the fingers into cold cream and let the tips take up as much as they will retain. After this dip them into talcum powder.

Never polish the nails too vigorously, as this heats them and increases their dryness.

Milady's Mirror

Harm Dandruff Does.

Dandruff has come to be such a common disease that many of us lose sight of the harm it works until the real harm is done. It causes the hair to become dry and lusterless and by clinging to the clothing gives the appearance of uncleanliness.

One of the chief causes of dandruff is weakness of the scalp, caused by infectious diseases. Pressure of heavy or close hats on the head is another common cause, while the practice of matting the hair close to the scalp is a well known promoter of the disease. Hair oils and dyes used to excess invariably cause malignant dandruff.

If you find your scalp is becoming affected make haste to discover if one of these prevalent practices is not bringing about a condition you will find great difficulty in overcoming.

First of all, keep the scalp perfectly clean. Shampoos containing yolks of eggs, with chloroform, borax (with or without camphor), carbolic acid, soda and chlorate of potash are recommended for dandruff.

Add to the yolk of an egg ten drops of chloroform and beat with an egg beater to a stiff froth. Rub the size of a black walnut of this remedy into the roots of the hair, then wash it well with a good soap. Dry quickly with a soft towel, and you will find the remedy most efficacious.

A tendency to gray hair is often hereditary—that is to say, in certain families there seems to be a lack of the pigment which gives the hair its natural color. This deficiency in such cases sometimes makes itself apparent in early life and cannot be prevented. Other people notice gray hairs for the first time after some illness or other loss of their normal vitality, and in such cases there is rarely any restoration of the natural color.

Sudden or severe mental disturbance may sometimes produce gray hair, and if the mental worry be very quickly removed and the general health has not suffered there may be a chance of the hair regaining its original color.

Chocolate and the Teeth.

A box of chocolates and a matinee ticket constitute happiness for a great many girls of today. If the play is good the matinee ticket is a real benefit, which is more than can be said for the chocolate.

There is always a temptation in a mellifluent layer of rich brown goodies holding all manner of delicious surprises beneath their glossy coats. So strong is this temptation that the girl who neglects her dentist throws discretion to the winds, knowing full well the price of her indulgence will be aching teeth and a disgruntled digestion.

A famous authority who recently declared "chocolate can only do harm, in common with all good foods, when eaten to excess" seems to ignore the view generally taken by the dental profession that chocolate, like other sweetmeats, does a vast amount of harm to the teeth, at least when eaten, even in small amounts, at the wrong time—that is, between meals or before going to bed.

Unfortunately it is at these times that chocolate generally is eaten. If it were always taken toward the end of a meal, followed by a detergent foodstuff, such as fresh fruit, what is claimed for it would no doubt be true.

Unfortunately we like to nibble on chocolate over our books and magazines or in idle moments such as come to us at odd hours of the day. A thorough cleansing and sterilizing of the mouth and teeth will do much to counteract the harmful effects of chocolate.

The Royal Bank has bought one of the most prominent sites in Vancouver, at Hastings and Granville streets at the record price of $5,575 a foot.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

Take Every Precaution

Eyestrain sometimes comes on so gradually that the individual does not realize his trouble until it has reached a serious stage.

In fact there are many effects of eyestrain that only a physician would trace to their true source.

The man who does a great deal of work with his eyes, should be on the watch for the first indications of strain, and do everything possible to prevent it from occurring.

Sometimes the eyes are in such an irritable condition that the wearing of the ordinary "flat" lenses produces great discomfort. Light is reflected from the rear surfaces of the lenses and the eyes are wearied by unconsciously trying to focus on these reflections.

Then when looking to either side the edges of such lenses annoy the eyes

These irritations are avoided when you wear Toric Lenses. You are not taking every possible precaution against eyestrain if you do not get a pair of Torics.

All lenses ground on the premises

NEW MUSICAL ORGANIZATION

St. James' Methodists have launched a new organization in connection with the church for the bringing out of hidden vocal talent. It will be a form of training school for the development of singers' voices. Mr. J. M. Greene will be the conductor and under his direction the organization should flourish. There will be a regular fee charged, which, however, it is understood will be very nominal

The president is Mr. J. M. Greene and the secretary, Mr. A. Barton. A meeting to complete arrangements will be held to-night.

St. James' Church is reported to be in a most prosperous condition; its membership growth and spiritual help in the south part of the city being most gratifying.

LADIES WILL HAVE SURPLUS

Supper at St. James Church Was Largely Attended

"The best yet," were the words of Rev. J. N. Clarry in describing the annual Thanksgiving Day supper and concert held last night in St. James' Church. The attendance was exceedingly large and the financial receipts after expenses are paid, will range around $75.00. In connection with the supper part of the entertainment the ladies of the church supplied such liberal quantities that a vast amount of edibles had to be sold afterwards.

The program which succeeded the supper fully sustained the usual high standard of merit of previous programs. Mr. J. M. Greene gave a trombone solo and Mrs. Clarry a piano selection. A trio selection by Messrs. Callander, Pratt and Greene was warmly received and as an encore they rendered a selection entitled "When I've Nothing Else to Tell."

A solo by Mr. Frank Pratt was also well received and in response to a determined encore he sang the rousing patriotic number "Heroes and Gentlemen."

The combined choir and Brotherhood also contributed two excellent choruses.

Following the musical program Mr. H. Stabler made a very neat speech during which he entered a plea for local option and urged south end residents to support the cause with all the vigor they could command, at the January elections.

Rev. W. C. Riddiford, always a popular speaker related some of his impressions gathered at the recent Sunday School Convention in Hamilton where thirteen hundred delegates were present. He also urged support for the local option campaign.

Rev. T. J. Mansell and Rev. Isaac Couch were unavoidably absent.

Lent a Guiding Hand to Holiday Drunks

Most of the bleary-eyed gentry who sat in the Councillors chairs this morning were there for too much indulgence in liquor yesterday. Contrary to the general holiday rule in Peterborough, yesterday was an off day for the drunks and quite a number were led off to the friendly shelter of the police station.

"ELIJAH"

In an interview with Theodore H. Bauer, the general manager of the Majestic Grand Opera Company which will present "Elijah," at the Grand on Thursday Nov. 7th. he says:

"The Majestic Grand Opera Company is born to supplement the permanent Grand Opera organization of Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and New York.

"In its present organization, the new Opera Company is capable of presenting a repertoire of Italian, French and German opera in their respective languages. This means that the singers we have engaged to appear in the first American production of the opera "Elijah" are material for international Grand Opera fame.

"The reason managers are compelled to charge $5 and $5 for Grand Opera in America is because the fame of the singers once established creates [illegible] value. The talent and artistic work of the singers we have engaged in Europe for this special tour of "Elijah" is equal, in some respects perhaps superior to that of artists whose names command fabulous sums. We have looked for talent more than for names, and this has made it possible for us to present Grand Opera in America at the regular theatre prices of $2."

"We do not forget that the American people are the most intelligent and eager musical audiences in the world. It is they who make the fame of unknown European singers and create for them the fortunes which [illegible] frequently the fame which inflates the value of international singers, lasts long after their voices are in decadence. The artists engaged by the Majestic Grand Opera Company, Inc., have many surprises of artistic excellence. Several of them will achieve international fame for themselves during our American tour."

"In making the first American production of [illegible] "Elijah" in the form of Grand Opera, we make our debut to the American people, not as a venture, but as the beginning of a permanent organization in Grand Opera. "Elijah" will be sung in English. The dramatic and scenic opportunities of the operatic production have in them many of the features of Wagner's "Parsifal.""

VOTE FOR THE DeLAVAL BY-LAW

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I would like the use of a small amount of your space to respectfully but strongly urge the qualified ratepayers to poll their votes for the DeLaval factory by-law tomorrow. The Council has done hard work in order to secure factories, much more than is known, for what is done in this direction cannot be made public without giving the information to other cities and towns. And I sincerely hope that every freeholder will help to give not only the necessary large proportionate required by law, but a strong pronouncement in favor of the By-law. The company is a strong and sound one, and the securing of the industry will mean a great deal for our city, in which we are all interested.

Yours truly,
W. H. BRADBURN.

ANOTHER HYDRO ELECTRIC CITY IS ADDED TO THE LIST

Brantford After Four Years Experience with Company Power, Votes in Favor of Municipal Ownership

During this week, the City Council will have submitted to it, the proposition or propositions to be made by the Seymour Power interests here. It is quite right that such should be made. And if nothing more is accomplished, the citizens will be able to judge of the comparative merits of Municipal ownership and company controlled service.

In all this there is one thing to be kept well in mind. Municipal ownership and Hydro service mean operation for the benefit of the city and service in which the ultimate object is not so much profit, as service at lowest service cost.

With the company, operation is carried on (as might and should be expected) to make profits. Everything is directed to that end. For instance, in Toronto the Street Railway Company knows that it makes more profit from two cars jammed to the doors than from three cars moderately filled. But the three cars would give infinitely better service, and the company admits that fact—but hates to forgo the profit.

Here is something to ponder. Brantford, after four years of dangling of rates for power and light from the Catarract Power Company, has, by a large majority, decided to tie up with the Hydro Electric, because it has confidence in the cheap power proposition and results under the Hydro system. Brantford formerly rejected the Hydro proposition by over four hundred majority. The city believed that promises as to rates, 10 per cent under Hydro terms, would be given. Such promises were never filled. There was always some string the knots of which were never united. What Peterborough if after is insurance against excessive rates for power and light in the future. Not for five, but twentyfive years, not for the benefit only of users of to-day but for those who come after; that electric light may be the light in the home of the workingman; that the benefits of electricity will come to him as well as to the better off.

No company will do this. No company, from the company viewpoint, can afford it. Cheap light will mean low dividends under company rule. The energy of the Otonabee river should be at the service of the people, and that may only be accomplished by municipal ownership.

The Seymour Power Company will submit several offers. Most of these will be tied up with conditions. If it were not so intended, they would not be submitted. And they must be carefully weighed to find out what is underneath. No mere glance will suffice. A thorough searching investigation by outside and competent authorities should be had. Rightly or wrongly, our people are of a mind that it is impossible to tie any company or trust down to actual performance for the present and future. It may be done, but the experience of the last ten years, in other places, show that so far it has not been accomplished.

An instance of international fiscal relations with our American neighbors, shows how these things are done. It was agreed, after much legislative effort, that Nova Scotia salmon, canned, should be admitted free of duty to the American market, but the first dealer who made shipment, found that a duty had been imposed on the labels on the cans to equal the duty taken off the fish. So therein is a lesson.

That there are others than the Catarract Power Company who do not give a satisfactory service, is apparent. The Port Hope Times prints the following paragraphs—

"The street lighting of Port Hope is not what it ought to be and the streets are not safe for travelling at night.

The lamps are too few and so old that they do not produce their proper light. The cost of the private lighting also is rather high.

The promises of the Power Company should be kept. Jollying is no good.

Mr. Culverwell, we hear, is annoyed at the Seymour Power Company as he understood they would take good care of Port Hope and district that had previously supported his Companies, which were handed over to the Seymour Power Company people—by the urgent necessities of the situation.

People are complaining.

Lieut-Col H. A. Ward, who is solicitor of the Seymour Power Company, and who previously was interested in the private ownership deal with Mr. Culverwell against the Hydro-Electric Commission, might be induced to assist in this matter of better lighting arrangement—so saith again the Power King."

What these promises, that are said not to be kept, are, we know not. No one promises Port Hope anything large, and all the more reason that, whatever was promised, should be afforded.

ALBERT SMOKE AND FRANK LEAHY WERE FIRST TO THE TAPE

Protest Against Junior Winner, That He is Over Eighteen years of Age

Albert Smoke brought the colors of the Chemong Athletic Club to the front again when he came home an easy winner from a field of six in the big event of the double bill of races, held under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. yesterday morning.

The Indian's time was 30.27 for the five miles and in making a very strong finish he was home ahead of Edwin Lean, of Camborn, by 1.20.

Jimmie McMartin, who was looked upon as a good choice for second, if not first place, was 1.13 behind Lean, and George Robinson came next, eight seconds in the rear of McMartin. Charles of Toronto, and Southern, of Millbrook, the remaining two runners finished.

PROTEST IN JUNIOR EVENT

In the Junior event of three miles Frank Leahy found the tape first, his time being 17.35. Tom McAuliff was right on his heels with a mark of 17.38 and Leahy had to do his prettiest at all stages of the distance.

Baylor was third with 17.45, and Armstrong fourth, with 18.20. McDonald and Bain finished fifth and sixth respectively.

The result of this race developed into an argument as to whether Leahy was eligible to enter the race with is for runners under eighteen years.

McAuliff produced a signed statement from Rev. Father O'Brien, which gave the age of Frank Leahy son of Bartholomew Leahy, as being nineteen, this November, the dates being, born November 11, 1893; baptized, November 23, 1893.

This protest by McAuliff is being taken up and investigated by Mr. J. J. Thompson.

The outcome of the races was awaited with plenty of interest, the crowd about the Y.M.C.A. and Central park being very large. Mr. G. Galley looked after the runners at the two turning points and reported a bunched race in both cases. In the senior event, Lean held to the Indian on the return trip till Higgins' corner was reached when Smoke gradually drew away.

The runners were greatly pleased with the accommodation provided by the Y.M.C.A., they having access to the dressing rooms and the baths. Dr. McPherson examined each runner before he took the road.

In the event of the Y.M.C.A. continuing the Thanksgiving Day races an effort will be made to add to the interest of the events, by adding one or more races for juniors. These specialties would certainly create certainly create interest among the younger runners and would be a means of developing material for the longer distance.

THE PRIZE LIST

The prizes which were donated by Hon. J. R. Stratton and exhibited in Trebilcock's window, will be awarded as follows—Suitcase, Albert Smoke; ring, Edwin Lean; locket, James McMartin; sweater, George Robinson.

The prizes for the junior event are as follows—first prize, silver cup as a permanent possession; second prize, handbag; third prize, stick pin; fourth prize, fountain pen.

These prizes will not be awarded till the protest is decided.

Judges at finish—Ald. G. N. Gordon, Messrs. Jos. Picard and Fred. Trebilcock.

Marshall of course—H. Long.

Judge at turn—G. L. Galley.

Starter—J. J. Thompson.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

HONEY AND POLLEN PLANTS.

The Flowers on Which Bees Thrive Best In Canada.

For a number of years, it is mentioned in the bulletin (No. 69) on the Honey Bee, written by Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, the Dominion Entomologist, observations have been made upon the honey and pollen-producng plants and the times of the year at which they flower.

The following is a short list of such plants giving the months in which they flower; the variability of the seasons and the climatic conditions render the exact date of flowering of little real value. The calendar may be of value to the beginner in indicating when he may expect the different honey flows, though he will soon learn the incidence of such periods:

Manitoba maple and soft maple, April.

Willows (pollen producing), April to May. In British Columbia, February and April.

Dandelions, April to May.

Gooseberry, Currant, May.

Apple, Plum, Cherry, Peach and Pear, May. British Columbia, April and May.

Siberia Peat Tree (Cartgana), May.

Lilac, Honeysuckle and Barberry, May.

June Berry or Service Berry (Amelanchier Canadensis), May.

Grape Vine, May and June.

Strawberries June.

Raspberry, Blackberry, June.

Wild Mustard, June.

White Clover (Trifolium repens), June and July.

Alsike Clover (Trifolium hybridum), June and July.

Alfalfa, June and July.

Basswood (Tilia Americana), July.

Sweet Clover or Melilot (Melilotus albus), July and August.

Willow Herb, July and August.

Buckwheat, August and September.

Golden Rod (Solidago), August-October.

Wild Asters (Aster), August-October.

The question is sometimes asked whether anything can be gained by planting nectar-producing flowers for the bees. Owing to the fact that bees forage over a wide area, it is impracticable to sow special crops for the bees, especially as there usually exists plenty of natural forage. Frequently, however, waste pieces of land may be advantageously sown with white clover, and in those regions where crocuses can be grown in the gardens or near to the apiary, they provide an appreciable amount of pollen in the spring when such food is of value.

Blacksmith's Rise.

Monsignor McNeil, the new Catholic Archbishop of Toronto, has reached this eminence from the humble stepping-stone of the blacksmith's forge.

He is descended from the McNeils of Barra, the Highland clan whose battlecry was "Victory or death." The clan claims descent from Neil Og, who fought at Bannockburn, and was granted lands by Robert Bruce. The last McNeil of Barra, Major-General McNeil, died in England in 1863.

The new archbishop, on his mother's side, is Irish. Her home was in County Kilkenny. In his youth Monsignor McNeil worked at his father's trade in his native town in Nova Scotia. He studied so diligently, however, that he was brought to the notice of the parish priest, who helped him to college, and thus to the priesthood.

He became in succession head of St. Francis College, Bishop of St. Gregory's, and Archbishop of Vancouver, while in Newfoundland he traveled hundreds of miles from mission to mission, on pack-horses and on foot, in all kinds of weather. He is an astronomer and a profound mathematician.

Mr. Foy's Little Bull.

Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General for Ontario, like all true Irishmen, is prone to make a bull occasionally, and in a speech at Gravenhurst, during a warm bye-election in Muskoka some nine years ago, he adjured his hearers to "lay your hands on your hearts and consciences" when deciding the solemn question of voting, thereby evidently convincing his leader of his fitness to enter the future Whitney administration as the Irish Roman Catholic member of that carefully-balanced representation of the races and creeds of the province. Apparently the infection of verbal acrobatics was in the Muskoka air in the campaign mentioned, as Sir James himself (then plain Mr. Whitney) uttered this weird phrase: "This Christian country, of which we are happy to be proud," while an enthusiastic orator on the other side of politics paid his party a doubtful compliment when he urged the voters to elect the Liberal candidate and so assure themselves of having "one honest man behind the Ross Government."

Demonstration Farms.

Those who have followed the work of Dr. James W. Robertson on behalf of agriculture are aware of his confidence in the value of illustration or demonstration in the teaching of better methods of farming. During his recent tour of European countries, Dr. Robertson has become further convinced of the good influence upon the community of well managed farms. The committee on lands of the Commission of Conservation, of which Dr. Robertson is chairman, has introduced a system of illustration farms throughout Canada with a view to demonstrating locally the great advantages of a proper system.

Nova Scotia Brick Industry.

The manufacture of bricks is one of the growing industries of Nova Scotia. The demand has increased so much that one firm has established a new plant near Annapolis Royal. Fires were started recently in the new continuous kilns, and the whole plant is now in full swing. This will relieve the demand and make shipments more prompt. This new plant has a capacity of 10,000,000 bricks a year. It is intended to enlarge the plants at Avonport, Middleton and Elmsdale. When this is done 40,000,000 bricks per year will be the output.

Near Dundee, Scotland, a woman is using electrical current instead of fertilizers on her farm. Wires in the ground.

A SUPPER FOR TWO.

Taken In Russian Grand Duke Style It Cost Just $10,000.

All the records made by American multimillionaires have been broken by a Russian grand duke, Boris Vladimirovitch, who has just paid £2,000 for a supper for two. He recently invited a friend to sup with him at Ernest's, the most fashionable restaurant in St. Petersburg, and told the manager that he wanted to have the most expensive meal possible. The happy manager told him that he would do his best.

"What are your average takings per night?" asked the grand duke.

"Two hundred pounds, excellence."

"Very well; request all your customers to leave and then serve us. You will add the sum of £200 to my bill."

This was done, and supper began; but, although the grand duke ordered the choicest food and the most expensive wines, he found that the amount spent still seemed absurdly small. Calling for the manager, he asked him if he would consent to have his ears boxed for £100. After some hesitation the latter accepted, but after receiving a dozen hearty smacks he declared that he had made enough money for one night. The bill was then brought and read as follows:

Compensation for sending away customers	£200
Supper for two persons	680
Boxing manager's ears twelve times	1,200
Total	£2,080

Boris Vladimirovitch cheerfully paid the bill, which is now one of his proudest possessions.—Pearson's Weekly.

Spellbinders Start Work.

New York, Oct. 29.—The Democratic national committee announced yesterday that 350 speakers would be put on the stump in New York State this week for the conclusion of the Presidential election. Each of the three leading parties is to have a demonstration in Madison Square Garden during the week, the Progressives, Wednesday, and Democrats Thursday, and the Republicans Friday, and leading speakers of all three parties will cover the city and state during the time intervening before election.

After an interruption of a week, Governor Woodrow Wilson resumed campaigning yesterday. He left Princeton yesterday morning for Philadelphia and southeastern Pennsylvania. The governor looked forward to a strenuous week of speech-making, mostly in New York and New Jersey.

THE FRIEND OF MAN.

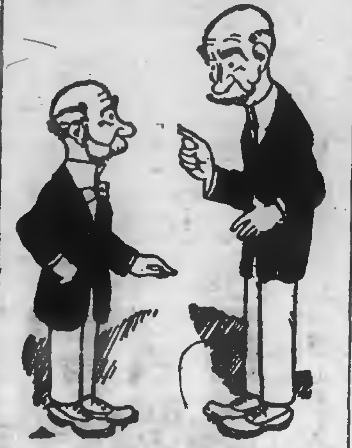
[Professor Metchnikoff declares that the germ which is to overcome the process of senile decay in man is found in the interior economy of the dog.]

Dear Ponto, is it really true
That if your well loved form I sever
I shall locate a germ in you
By which I may exist forever?
So says Professor Metchnikoff,
Father of many a brilliant notion,
And since, it seems, sour milk is "off,"
Suppose I try his latest potion.

Though naturally I should pause
Before accomplishing your section,
I own I never yet had cause
To doubt your deep and true affection.
You scarce would grudge your priceless gift
Despite unpleasant complications
Or boggle o'er this little rift
Within the lute of our relations.

That germ to you is little use.
You soon must pass through death's dark portal,
While I have got the grand excuse
That it will render me immortal.
Your fate, because your love is strong,
Is one that you should gladly rush on.
Come, Ponto, I will not prolong
This rather harrowing discussion.
—C. E. B. in London Evening News.

From a New Angle.



"I hear you've hired an eighty-year-old veteran as office boy!"

"I have. But it's no improvement. During the baseball season he's all the time asking for an afternoon off to attend his granddaughter's funeral."—St. Louis Post-Despatch.

No Help For Him.

The eminent specialist leaned back in his chair.

"What you need, my friend," he said, "is broadening of vision. You should read more. You should read the opinions of leading writers on the current events of the world. Your mind is stagnated. The petty happenings of the little sphere in which you move have dulled your mentality. I advise you to read the newspapers and become familiar with daily happenings. May I ask your business?"

The patient sadly smiled.

"I'm an exchange editor," he replied and drifted away.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Thinking It Over.

"Ma caught pa kissing the hired girl."

"What's she going to do about it?"

"That's the trouble. She doesn't know. She can't make up her mind whether to get rid of pa or the hired girl. Sometimes she says she thinks she can get a new husband easier than she can get a new servant."—Detroit Free Press.

Nice Distinction.

"How do you tell the difference between a yacht and a sailboat?" said the girl with the inquiring mind. "By lookin' into the pantry," replied Captain Cleet. "If she carries plenty of refreshments and seegars she's a yacht. If it's mostly plain victuals she's a sailboat."—Washington Star.

ANCIENT PORT NELSON

"NEW" TOWN HAS A HISTORY THAT GOES BACK TO 1682.

The Settlement That May Be the Hudson Bay Terminal Is Just Forty Years Younger Than Montreal and Was Founded by Adventurous Fur-Traders Who Entered Canada by the Northern Route.

Although Port Nelson is an outpost in the wilderness, it has a past that reaches back to a time when Montreal was only forty years old, and Eastern Canada but a scar on the forest that then rolled away in all directions from the banks of the St. Lawrence.

It will be remembered that among those who organized the Hudson Bay Co. in 1670, were the two famous Canadians, Radisson and Groseilliers, who, a few years before, had been among the first white men to explore the Northwest, and who, it is claimed, were the first to reach the shores of the Bay by an overland route.

A few years after the founding of the company the two men left its service and entering into an arrangement with several adventurous French merchants, agreed to take charge of an expedition to Hudson Bay; there to engage in the fur trade, and there become the rival, and, if need be, the enemy of the Hudson Bay Co.

It was in the summer of 1682 that this expedition of Radisson reached the southwestern waters of Hudson Bay, where it fell in with an English expedition, commanded by Captain Gillam, who had been an associate of Radisson when the latter was in the employ of the Hudson Bay Co.

The two expeditions exchanged hospitalities although each was suspicious of the other.

A few days later Gillam's expedition, which was accompanied by Governor Bridgar of the Hudson Bay Co, landed men near the mouth of the Nelson River, and they set about building a fort—the fourth establishment of the company in Prince Rupert's Land. This was the beginning of settlement on Port Nelson — the place selected two hundred and thirty years later as the terminus of a Hudson Bay Railway.

The first fort built at Port Nelson did not stand long. War between England and France again broke out, and Iberville wrought havoc with the English trade in the Bay. Fort Albany, near the mouth of the Albany river, which flows into James Bay, was in the hands of the French, but as it did not pay to carry furs from Fort Albany overland to Quebec, the French decided to get possession of Fort Nelson and so secure a safe outlet to the north.

In 1691 a French frigate appeared at the mouth of the Nelson at a season when all the garrison of Fort Nelson, except the commandant and two men, were away hunting. Resistance was useless, and so the commandant, Phipps, set the place on fire and retreated with his two companions. The fort and its contents, consisting of $40,000 worth of furs, were destroyed. When the French landed they found smouldering ruins, and returned to their ships with a few hatchets as the sole trophies of the enterprise.

Phipps and his men in their retreat came up with some Indians and established themselves with the band in the forest. In the following season Fort Nelson was rebuilt by the English, and two years later Fort Albany was recovered.

The story of its recovery is one of the many tragic chapters to be found in the history of the Far Northland.

In 1694 three powerful English frigates wintered at Port Nelson, and in the spring they proceeded to James Bay. Forty men were landed, and as they approached the Fort Albany they were met with a brisk fire, which, however, failed to check their advance. Much to their surprise they were permitted to close in upon the fort, and a trick was suspected. The fort was, therefore, entered with great caution, and it was found apparently deserted.

But at length in a corner of the cellar they discovered a wretched being. His legs were ironed, and he was chained to the wall, while a few rags covered his emaciated body, worn almost to a skeleton by the scurvy and hunger. While the officers were marvelling at this pitiable sight a sailor ran down to the cellar to inform the captain that three Frenchman had been seen flying towards the adjacent forest. These three formed the entire garrison.

The wretch in the cellar, was a bush ranger, who in a paroxysm had murdered the surgeon of the fort. The sole witness of the crime was a priest, the chaplain of the garrison. Upon recovering his reason, the wretched man was horrified at what he had done, and fearing that the priest would disclose the crime to the other members of the garrison, he slew the priest also.

The latter with his expiring death disclosed the murder, and the garrison then numbering ten, had chained the criminal in the cellar, evidently fearing to take upon themselves the responsibility of summarily executing him.

The fortunes of the rivals in this northland continued to rise and fall in rapid succession. In the following September Iberville with a powerful force besieged Fort Nelson and compelled its surrender. One of the garrison was an English youth, Henry Kelsey, whose bravery was so marked that he was specially mentioned in the report to the head office of the company and presented with $200. His name is worthy of lasting remembrance, for he was the earliest English explorer of the Canadian West, —the West of the prairies which he traversed during the summer of 1691, or forty years before the visits of the French-Canadian Verandrye. Kelsey afterwards became governor of Fort Nelson.

England recaptured the port. In 1697 the French assaulted and won the town, but at the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713 it was given again to England.

SATIRIC "MARMADUKE."

Witty Sayings of London Truth's Epigrammatist.

For something like twenty-two years readers of London Truth have enjoyed the quaint aphorisms of "Marmaduke," the pen name of Charles Edward Jerningham, who has just retired.

Not long ago "Marmaduke" collected in a single volume some of the epigrams and aphorisms which had appeared in Truth. A few typical specimens follow:

"He who is drunk in a first class carriage has had a fit. He who has a fit in a third class is drunk."

"There are few Englishmen now who have a library in them; many who have ledgers."

"Man is the lord of creation; woman the lady of recreation."

"The ordinary English man and woman when they go to France look upon it as a holiday trip around the improper."

"The English distrust the clever. They conceive that cleverness is next to ungodliness."

"The middle ages have been replaced by the middle class ages."

"The ordinary Englishman is a man of few words, and these are generally disagreeable."

"The English are divided into three classes. These are the aspiring and the perspiring. The middle class is composed of those who both aspire and perspire."

"Ability will out—in England, generally at the elbows."

"'No man is a hero to his valet,' but many a man is a valet to his hero."

MRS. WARD HAS HOBBY

NOVELIST CARRIES ON A SETTLEMENT IN LONDON.

She Puts Most of Her Energies Into the Passmore Edwards Institution In a Metropolitan Slum Where Basketry, Woodworking, Art and Stories Form the Greater Part of the Training for the Children.

Mrs. Humphrey Ward does not forget the claims of social service in her efforts to frustrate the designs of the suffragettes. There is no other eminent woman writer quite as active as the author of "Robert Elsmere" in trying to ameliorate the hard lot of the poor.

Most of her philanthropic energies are focussed on the Passmore Edwards Settlement in the west central district of London, where, owing to her initiative, a vacation school has been opened for children who would otherwise have to spend their holidays in the streets.

Over a thousand scholars are in daily attendance, although they are not compelled to attend. The refreshing departure from ordinary scholastic routine accounts for this pressure at the Passmore Edwards School. When weather conditions permit, a mixed class assembles for tuition in basket-making on the large lawn at the rear of the Settlement. The children work with happy application, and it is difficult to recognize in them the uproarious youngsters who turn the back streets into a pandemonium during the vacation weeks. Then there is a woodwork class for boys, and a mixed art class, where the pupils paint flowers from natural specimens taken from the garden.

MRS. HUMPHREY WARD.

But by far the most popular class is the story-telling class. Stories of old romance are recited by the teacher, and this section displays, more than any other, the keynote of the work, which is recreative occupation. The more practical side of tuition is not forgotten, for boys are shown how to cobble boots, and girls are taught cooking and housewifery, while dancing and drill are also provided for both boys and girls.

Before the vacation school breaks up, Mrs. Humphrey Ward invites the parents to a Parents' Day, when specimens of the school work are exhibited.

Troubles of a Whip.

A former British Liberal Whip, Mr. George Whiteley, now known as Lord Marchamley, gives one or two instances of the things that are expected of the man who holds that position in one of the parties. One member sent him a note which read:

'Dear Whiteley,—Please try and reserve for me, throughout the session, a seat in the third row as near as possible to the Speaker's chair." Another member wrote saying that he had recently become a man of considerable wealth, and his wife had said that he ought to attend a levee. "Can you," he inquired, "give me the name of a tip top tailor where I can get a suite made with plenty of gold braid on it?"

It will be seen that the position of Chief Whip is no sinecure, and the man who aspires to the post must be endowed with a sense of humor, and a deal of philosophy.

The duties of a chief whip are varied and onerous. He has to be all things to all men, see that his party makes a good show in the divisions, and generally keep the members up to scratch. He has also a deal of patronage to bestow, and his leaders never enter on any important campaign without first seeking his advice.

"Shine, Sir?"

One day not long ago, as Mr. Ellis Griffith, the Under Secretary for Home Affairs, was leaving the British House of Commons, he was asked if he wanted a "Shine, sir?"

"Ah, I think I will," said the Under-Secretary, looking down at his boots.

While the operation was being performed the politician began to question the youthful bootblack, and soon discovered in cross-examination that he had wandered up from the country to seek his fortune in London.

"What is you father?" asked Mr. Ellis Griffith, presently.

"A farmer, sir," was the answer.

"I see," said the politician, with a smile; "he makes hay while the son shines."

Lassa.

Lassa, which is the capital of Tibet, for generations was known as the Forbidden City because of its political and religious exclusiveness. In 1904 a British armed expedition opened the mysterious old city. Previous to that time practically every European traveler had been stopped in his efforts to reach the place. The population of Lassa is about 35,000.

Some Frog!

The largest frog ever caught in the vicinity of Galt was captured on the east bank of the river below the town limits, by John Lee, a young man on the River road. The frog measures exactly 13 inches from the mouth to the hind leg, and 12 1-2 inches in girth, and weights 4 1-2 pounds. When it croaks it makes a noise resembling a loud auto horn. Mr. Lee has the frog in a cage at his home.

Dear Sir,

I have just received from you cheque in settlement of indemnity for injuries received while at camp some weeks ago. I wish to thank the Company through you for the very prompt settlement of this claim and would be glad if you would express to them my appreciation of the prompt settlement. I was more than surprised to receive about $125.00 additional indemnity on account of the bonus which has been added to my policy during the past few years, especially when this feature of the policy did not cost any additional permium.

TIMELY WORDS OF COUNSEL IN THE INTEREST OF PETERBOROUGH BOYS

Written by Mr. Nash Boy's Work Secretary, Y.M.C.A.

The three previous weeks had been strangely eventful. Bill was tired. He had gone the eight miles along the river by train with horse and rig, and on foot. And now that he was leaving the town for good he betook himself to the boat.

The morning of July 12th, 1905, found Bill up bright and early and when the whistle blew "All Aboard" at seven o'clock he took a farewell look at the beautiful town of Henry and set his face towards Lacon.

The boat was a strongly built freighter also arranged to accommodate passengers.

Along the winding banks on either side were bluffs covered with shrubbery and trees. And the river itself was dotted with little islands covered with green.

Looking ahead sometimes Bill would think the river had come to an end and that they would run right into the land. But on coming closer the boat would make a sudden turn and soon leave the apparent obstruction in the rear.

All this was very interesting and restful. On approaching his destination Bill saw a bridge spanning the river. They could not go around it for it reached from bank to bank; they could not go under it for it was too low; nor could they go over it because it was too high. Here then, was a real barrier. But presently he noticed two men on the centre of the bridge walking in a circle round and round. Soon he saw the bridge move slowly, to be sure but by and by, instead of crossing the river it stood lengthwise of the stream right out in the centre of the river.

The boat steamed past. The whistle blew; the half hour is spent and Lacon is reached.

As Bill stepped ashore he thought of the apparent obstructions in the river which as the boat approached, had always given way. And so he took new courage and went on his way rejoicing determined to overcome every difficulty that might confront him.

GOLD PAVED STREETS.

Wealth May Be Washed Out of the Roads at Axim, Africa.

Travelers assure us that at Axim, on the Gold Coast of Africa, gold may be picked up on the streets. One Briton, naturally, thought of this as a mere figure of speech, but his informant immediately bade a woman servant to go out into the main street, gather a bucketful of road scrapings and work it for gold dust.

In ten minutes, according to this account, the servant returned with two galvanized iron buckets, one filled with road scrapings and the other with water. She also brought three or four wooden platters varying in size from a large plate to a saucer.

Removing several handfuls of the road scrapings and placing them in the largest platter, the woman picked out and threw aside the large stones, pebbles and bits of stick and loosened the remainder by sprinkling it with water from the other bucket. This enabled her to remove further refuse.

The residuum was put into the next smaller platter and the process repeated until there was a quantity of uniform stuff ready for treatment. This she sprinkled freely with water and by a deft circular movement of the platter brought the small gravel outward where it could be thrust over the edge.

When this operation had been repeated three or four times the stuff, which now looked more like mud than anything else, was ready for treatment in a smaller platter. Here the same circular movements resulted in the discarding of further undesirable elements.

At last, in the smallest platter, the stuff had resolved itself into a small quantity of black sand. This was carefully washed and sifted by the aid of circular movements, and at last a dexterous twist brought the sand into a crescent on the platter, when there appeared on the outmost edge a thin gold rim. This was unmistakably gold. The whole operation had consumed half an hour, and the result was about a shilling's worth of gold dust.—Harper's.

Says Vallon Fired Shots.

New York, Oct. 29.—It was learned last night from sources close to the defence that the appeal which counsel for Charles Becker will make for a new trial for the former police lieutenant will set forth, under what will be described as "new evidence," that Harry Vallon, the informer, fired the shots that ended Herman Rosenthal's life; that "Bald Jack" Rose's story was a frame-up against Becker; that Sam Schepps, state's witness, who gave corroboration to Rose's tale, perjured himself when he swore he knew nothing of the murder plot and that Harry Vallon also committed perjury when he said he did not ride from the Hotel Metropole in the "murder car" after the slaying of Rosenthal.

Pumpkin Pie Blamed.

Toronto, Oct. 28.—That poisoned pumpkin pie may have been responsible for the death of William Mainwaring and his wife early Sunday morning at their home, 16 Ellsworth avenue, is a new theory that the police are working on in the hope of solving the mystery.

Wife—"But, Jack, you are so reckless. Every time you take out the car I worry until you get back. I wish you would insure it."

WEDDING BELLS

WARBOY—McLEAN

A very pretty wedding took place last evening, at 7.30 o'clock, in St. Luke's Church, when Miss Annie Sarah McLean, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McLean, 139 James street, was united in marriage to Mr. William Warboy, son of Mr. J. Warboy, Aylmer street. Rev. F. J. Sawers officiated.

The bride was attired in her traveling suit of navy blue and wore a large white hat with plume to match. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Eva McLean who was dressed in pink silk with hat to match. Mr. Bert Carpenter supported the groom.

After the ceremony, the bridal party drove to the home of the bride, where a dainty wedding repast was served. The bride received numerous beautiful and useful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Warboy will reside at 507 Aylmer street.

A Pompeii Public House.

The recent excavations at Pompeii in the ancient "Street of Abundance" have resulted in such extensive finds that the life of the street can be almost entirely reconstructed. The principal discovery is that of a huge thermopolium, a kind of public house at which hot drinks were sold. This is in a state of perfect preservation, and an exact idea can now be obtained of a Roman place of refreshment. There has been found a row of wine jars so placed that it seems the vintner was in the act of pouring wine from one into the other when overtaken by the catastrophe. There was also an hermetically closed cauldron, still containing water.

Authors' Pensions In Australia.

"Authors who would like to have pensions ought to emigrate to Australia. The commonwealth parliament votes £700 a year to the "Australian literary fund," but there are not enough applicants to use up the money. Australian authors are either too few or too prosperous. The comic papers are making merry at the discovery that the latest beneficiaries from the fund are a clergyman who has published nothing—not even a volume of sermons—and a "business man" who, as Disraeli put it, is "a gentleman from whom business has retired."—London Chronicle.

The Perfect Man.

Speaking to the Cadets at the Dominion Rifle Association meeting, the Hon. W. T White lauded rifle shooting as a manly sport. "A man must have a good physique to be thoroughly developed. "I say that because the other side, the intellectual side, has been too much emphasized in certain educational institutions."

Delivery Boy Shot.

St. Catharines, Oct. 29.—Two revolver or rifle bullets penetrated the top of Ecclestone's laundry delivery wagon, near Victoria Lawn Cemetery at noon yesterday, one of the shots entering the thigh of Charles Romancy, the driver, aged 14 years.

A week ago James Clarke, a Merritton man, was to have answered a charge of committing an assault upon Romancy, but he jumped $1,000 bail and has since been hiding.

The lad gave very little information to the police, who believe he is hiding something. He refused to go to the hospital, and tried to drive in an opposite direction, although his wound was bleeding profusely and he was growing weak. The police took charge of the wagon and drove the wounded lad to the hospital, where the bullet was probed for but was not found. He is expected to recover.

More Safety for Steamers.

Berlin, Oct. 29.—New rules for ocean going steamships were approved yesterday at a conference held at the Ministry of the Interior, at which representatives of the German Ministries, the Federal Council and the shipping interests were present. The new rules have been adopted as the basis of Germany's attitude at the international conference to be held in London.

They deal with the question of bulkheads, lifeboats, wireless telegraphy and the reporting of icebergs. All passenger steamers carrying 75 persons, including the crew, and freighters carrying a crew of sixty, must in future be equipped with wireless telegraphy having a radius of 100 sea miles.

These vessels must also carry a certain proportion of skilled oarsmen to man the life boats.

The regulations as to bulkheads have been thoroughly amended.

One of the first official acts of the new Chinese Government was to issue an order for the resumption of educational work on a modern and uniform basis.

BECKER HEARS SENTENCE OF DEATH IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Electrocution to be Stayed Pending the Appeal.

His Wife Was Near Him When Sentence Was Passed.

Special to the Review,

New York, N.Y., Oct. 30— Charles Becker, former police lieutenant, was this morning sentenced to death in the electric chair during the week of December 9. The sentence was passed by Justice Goff at ten forty, this morning. The electrocution will be stayed pending an appeal.

New York, Oct. 30.—Charles Becker, deposed police lieutenant, will be sentenced to-day for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler. Becker will be brought before Justice Goff in the criminal courts building. He will be told that he must die in the electric chair in Sing Sing prison.

Mrs. Becker will be present to hear her husband's fate pronounced by the white-haired justice who presided at Becker's trial.

"I shall certainly be in the court-room to-morrow," the devoted wife said yesterday after leaving her husband behind the bars in "Murders' Row" in the Tombs. "I shall go on the train with my husband to Sing Sing. I want to stay at his side as long as possible. I think it is my duty to do that and to be as brave as I can."

The "death house" at Sing Sing will be Becker's home beginning not later than Sunday, the state plans. District Attorney Whitman does not want the responsibility of the ex-lieutenant's presence in this city when he places the "gunmen" on trial. The first of them will probably be tried on Monday. Sheriff Harburger declares he will not delay Becker's removal from the Tombs.

The task of the state in prosecuting the gamblers—"Lefty Louie," "Whitey" Lewis, "Gyp the Blood," and "Dago Frank"—was made less difficult yesterday afternoon when William Shapiro, driver of the "murder car," made what was purported to be a complete confession.

Shapiro was closeted with District Attorney Whitman for several hours. For days his counsel, A. J. Levy, had urged his client to tell all he knew. Shapiro feared to do so, said the lawyer, because he believed he would be killed.

With Shapiro's confession and his testimony on the stand against the "murder crew" all in corroboration of what the state already knows of the movements of Rosenthal's alleged slayers, the morning the gambler was killed, District Attorney Whitman believes he will have no trouble convicting the gangsters.

If Shapiro tells a story which will help convict his passengers in the "murder car" he will probably be tried on some less serious charge than that of murder. Mr. Whitman is said to be willing to agree to this, but is not prepared to grant Shapiro complete immunity.

ENQUIRY IS TO BE FULL

Thorough Investigation Will be Made Into Streetsville Wreck.

Toronto, Oct. 30.—Arrangements for the burial of the dead and the care of the injured Highlanders, who were aboard the ill-fated troop train returning from the sham battle at Milton, when it struck the westbound flyer at Streetsville Thanksgiving night, occupied the attention of Toronto's militia yesterday. Militarism also found time, together with citizens generally, and crown officers and railway officials, to discuss the possible, probable and advisable methods of investigation of the causes of the collision resulting in those deaths and injuries.

A military funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon from the armories to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

The inquest opened at the scene by Coroner Smith of Streetsville, on the body of Mac Murdoch, will be continued at Streetsville Tuesday evening next. Chief Coroner Arthur Jukes Johnston will also open an inquest here Tuesday upon the body of John Bannatyne.

A statement that the engineer of the "troop special" had overrun his orders and that his emergency brake had failed to work was issued yesterday by railway officials, who are conducting official investigations at Toronto and London.

It is also probable that the Dominion Railway Board will be asked to make provision regulating the construction of rolling stock, which may be used by the railways, with a view to averting or lessening the danger of cars being telescoped in collision, which was the cause of the heavy list of injuries in the Streetsville accident.

With the clearing of the excitement of caring for the injured comes a more accurate list of injuries, and the certain identification of the dead. Yesterday it was learned that the names of the dead, secured from a maze of double identification and rumor, were correct, while time for more thorough examination of the injured brings the number of those whose wounds are likely to result in death down to a single man. This is W. H. Sheard, who lies in Grace Hospital with a fracture of the skull, and who at a late hour last night had not regained consciousness. Even in Sheard's condition the doctors thought that they had noticed a shade of improvement and the shadow of a hope for his life.

General Cotton yesterday refused to make any statement as to the action of the military authorities in the matter of investigation, further than to say that they were conducting an investigation of their own. He declared that the C.P.R. could be trusted to do all that could be done by way of establishing the responsibility. He declared that Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, was cognizant of all the facts, and that it would lie with him to direct any action to be taken. On the other hand, it was rumored yesterday that arising from a meeting held in the offices of Col. Robertson an effort would be made to press the investigation to the remotest detail and that several of the officers felt that a criminal prosecution should result.

General Supt. J. T. Arundel, who visited the scene of the wreck upon the relief train sent out from Toronto, said yesterday that all men and despatching officials connected with the wreck had been suspended, pending the results of inquiries to be conducted at Toronto and Streetsville, and that these inquiries would be the fullest and most complete.

A Narrow Escape.

Toronto, Oct. 30.—Although suffering from injuries received in the accident which befel the unfortunate troop train Monday night, Albert Henderson, aged 16, of 38 Macpherson avenue, may be regarded as lucky to escape with his life.

Albert and a younger brother had accompanied their father, Robert G. Henderson, a private in the Highlanders, to the sham fight. On the return journey it was found necessary to have the younger brother's clothes dried, and during the drying operations the youngster was ensconced in a berth.

Ten minutes before the collision took place Albert had been sitting with Bannantyne, who was killed, and to the fact that he moved to see how his brother was getting on he owes his life. As it was he sustained severe injuries to his spine, and considerable difficulty was experienced in getting him clear of the wreckage, which kept him pinned for a long time.

TURKEY'S SAFETY DEPENDS ON PRESENT BIG CONFLICT

Ottoman Defeat Means Almost Hopeless Outlook For Turkey.

Austrian and Russian Governments Come to an Understanding.

Turks Pay High Price For Victory From Bulgarians.

Special To The Review.

Vienna, Austria, Oct. 30.—Austrian and Russian Governments have arrived at an understanding on the Balkan question, according to Neue Free Presse. An official announcement is expected shortly.

London, Oct. 30— The Bulgarian army was defeated by Ottoman troops at Visa, Remil and Serai, yesterday, according to a report received at the Turkish embassy here. The Turks' loss totalled eighty hundred killed and wounded.

London, Oct. 30.—The long-awaited battle which will decide the fate of Turkey is now being fought. The army under Nazim Pasha, Minister of War, and commander-in-chief, is engaged, and, according to Constantinople official despatches, the operations are favorable to the Ottomans. The despatches, however, do not indicate where the chief action is taking place nor how the opposing forces compare.

It is Turkey's last chance to retrieve an almost hopeless campaign. Nazim Pasha is fighting with his back to the wall; his communication have been cut, and it is impossible for him to get fresh supplies or reinforcements.

In Constantinople the feeling of confidence is reviving. It is believed that the War Minister has at last assumed the offensive. But this is by no means certain, as the battle may have been forced upon him.

Sofia despatches indicate a continued forward movement of the Bulgarians, but give no details. There is still no confirmation of the reported capture of Lule Burgas, Demotica and Drama. The Bulgarians are still fighting in the direction of Visa, in pursuance of their plan to advance to the extreme east in the direction of Constantinople. The Greeks also are marching, with victories to their credit, towards Saloniki, where a feeling of extreme anxiety is said to prevail and provisions are running short. The fact that no apparent effort is being made to stem the Greek advance to Saloniki is held to indicate that the bulk of Turkey's army there has been transferred to Thrace.

No recent information has been received of the operations around Scutari or other points to the west, and Sofia yesterday observed a significant silence.

Diplomatic activities continue in London. The Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, had an audience with the King yesterday. No formal action has been taken or is likely to be taken until the result of the great battle is known.

Battle Is a Severe One.

Constantinople, Oct. 30.—A late telegram received from Nazim Pasha says that the battle, begun yesterday, is still being waged with great violence. He adds that the situation for the Ottoman troops is very favorable.

Another official despatch reports fighting Monday and yesterday between Uskubdere, to the east of Kirk-Kilisseh and Visa. Two battalions of Bulgarians were cut off from the main body and sustained heavy losses.

Fighting continues between the Greeks and Turks in the Kosani region of Macedonia. According to reports given out the Greeks are being driven back.

Despatches dated three days ago give the first news received of the position of the western army, which was admitted to be grave. It was asserted; however, that a considerable force was still concentrated at Veles, disputing the advance of the Servians and Bulgarians.

Used Corpses for Defence.

London, Oct. 30.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Kossnia describes the Turkish force opposing the Greeks as entirely disorganized and incapable of offering resistance.

Terrible details are reaching Belgrade, according to The Standard's correspondence there, of the retreat of the Turks from Kumanova. They tried to stop the Servian advance by making breastworks of dead bodies. Six thousand corpses were found on the road from Kumanova to Uskup, and six truck loads of petroleum had to be brought from the rear for the purpose of burning the dead.

Anxiety at Salonika.

Paris, Oct. 30.—Extreme anxiety reigns in Salonika, and grave outbreaks are feared there by foreigners if the armies of the Balkan allies continue to drive back the Turkish troops, according to a special despatch received here yesterday.

No orders from Constantinople have been received by the Turkish commanders in Salonika for two days. The [illegible] of the [illegible] is [illegible]rison there is altogether insufficient, while the sea batteries have been stripped of their guns and ammunition, which have been sent to the front.

Grand Vizier Resigns

London, Oct. 30.—The resignation of the Turkish Grand Vizier, Ghazi Ahmet Moukhtar Pasha, was announced yesterday afternoon, according to a despatch from Constantinople. Kiamil Pasha, president of the Council of State, has been appointed his successor.

CODERRE IS SWORN IN

Marechal Was Mentioned as the French-Canadian to Fill the Vacancy

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—At a meeting of the Cabinet yesterday afternoon the date was fixed for the bye-election in Hochelaga division, Montreal, rendered necessary by the acceptance by Louis Coderre of the portfolio of Secretary of State. Nominations will take place on Tuesday, Nov. 12, and voting on Tuesday, Nov. 19.

Earlier stories gave the office to L. T. Marechal and reported that Hon. Mr. Rogers had taken the Department of Public Works and Hon. Dr. Roche the Department of the Interior respectively. The last two reports proved correct, but there is still much speculation as to why at the eleventh hour, L. T. Marechal, K.C., Montreal, was set aside and Mr. Coderre given the vacant portfolio. In this connection, it is learned that there was a strong objection in Montreal to a Minister for the district being elected for a Quebec constituency. Besides, Mr. Marechal, as an outsider, had some doubts as to his ability to carry Charlevoix, the seat Sir Rodolphe was ready to place at his disposal, more particularly as his opponent would have been Hon. Adelard Turgeon, a former member of the Quebec Government, now a member of the Legislative Council of that province.

The oaths of office were administered at one o'clock yesterday at Rideau Hall, in the presence of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught. Mr. Coderre took the oath of office as Secretary of State, while oaths were administered to Hon. Robert Rogers and Hon. F. J. Roche as Minister of Public Works, and Minister of the Interior respectively.

An impression got abroad during the day that A. C. Boyce, member for Algoma, was going to be sworn in as Solicitor-General, but the event did not come off. Mr. Boyce's friends declare, however, that he is slated for the post and that the appointment will be made before Christmas.

On Sept. 21, 1911, Mr. Coderre had a majority of over 1,800, the English vote in the municipality of Westmount, which forms part of the division of Hochelaga, going almost solidly against Mr. Rivet, the former Liberal member on the reciprocity issue. The expectation here last night was that despite Mr. Coderre's large majority at the general elections, there will be a contest. Col. George Washington Stevens, who recently resigned as chairman of the Montreal harbor board, is mentioned as a possible Liberal candidate, but it is considered more likely that a French-Canadian will be chosen to carry the Opposition standard.

Chasm Bridged Over.

Montreal, Oct. 30—The French members of Parliament appear to be rallying round Hon. Louis Coderre, the new Secretary of State, who arrived in the city last evening, announcing that Premier Borden will be here during the first week of the election, and that the Premier's announcement on the naval question will form the basis of the campaign. The nomination in Hochelaga will take place on November 12 and polling a week later on November 19.

Sir Rodolphe Forget, M.P.; J. A. Barette, M.P.; D. O. Lesperance, M.P.; S. Lavallee, M.P., and Dr. Paquette, M.P., were present. Dr. Paquette, who is considered a Nationalist, offered his services to Mr. Coderre on the spot, so it looks like a united party in Hochelaga.

The date of Mr. Borden's address will be announced to-day, and beside Hon. C. J. Doherty, other Ministers will take a hand in the fray.

DUCK HUNTERS ARE DROWNED

The news was brought back by Cecil M. Lees, who was in another boat which survived the storm.

ONE YEAR IN CENTRAL PRISON

Toronto Delivery Driver Admits Embezzling Over $1000.

Toronto, Oct. 30.—At his third appearance in the police court, Herbert Sheather pleaded guilty yesterday afternoon to a charge of embezzling $1,619, and was sentenced to twelve months in the Central Prison.

Sheather was employed by W. T. Macdonald, 72 Front street east, as a driver on the delivery wagon. He delivered goods C.O.D., and kept the money, putting down the invoices as though they were still unpaid. When found out, in August, Sheather skipped to San Francisco, with two detectives on his trail.

Dental Parlors Entered.

Toronto, Oct. 30.—While all the occupants were out last night burglars broke into the residence of Drs. Caesar and Mallory, dentists, at 34 Grosvenor street. They evidently were in search of big game for the rooms were ransacked, desk and bureau drawers rifled, and clothes closets entered. A quantity of jewelry and clothing was stolen.

The police were notified, but so far they have been unable to identify the intruders. It is believed that they planned the burglary and arranged to accomplish it when the house would be untenanted. It is thought likely, too, that they took precautions to conceal their identity, and unless they make an effort to dispose of the property it may be difficult to apprehend them.

W.C.T.U. WORKER URGES PLEDGE AGAINST COFFEE

Union Would Have Sanitary Inspectors Act as District Health Officers.

Renfrew, Ont., Oct. 30.—It is expected that the Ontario Women's Christian Temperance Union, which [illegible] convention here yesterday, will pass resolutions relating both to Mr. Rowell's suggested abolition of the bar and Governmental suggestions to do away with the treating habit. A fair representation from Toronto and vicinity are here and more will reach Renfrew today.

In the afternoon reports of departmental work were presented, one by Mrs. Edward Cole, Ottawa, provincial secretary, and the delegates were welcomed and tendered an informal tea by local committees.

The report on "Hygiene and Heredity," requested that delegates use their efforts to have sanitary inspectors appointed as district health inspectors instead of ordinary medical men, who have little knowledge of community sanitation. Mrs. James Beardman, Ottawa, suggested it might help the union's influence for members to pledge themselves against the use of tea or coffee.

McKISSOCK GIRL FEARED HER STEPS BEING TRACED

Mysterious Death is as Big a Mystery as When First Taken Up.

Woodstock, Oct. 30.—Four hours were taken up yesterday afternoon by Crown Attorney Hall and Coroner Dr. McKay, this city, in an effort to throw light on the mysterious death of Agnes McKissock, the young Scotch girl who died on Oct. 21, presumably from self-administered strychnine, but although ten witnesses were called and put through a searching examination, the case is still as big a mystery as when it was first taken up. An adjournment was made until next Friday.

The most important witness called yesterday was Andrew Conway, the hired boy on the farm of John Quirk, where the deceased girl was employed at the time of her death. On the night preceding her death, Conway had had a long talk with Miss McKissock, and it was to him that she had told the story of the mysterious woman who had lured her and her companion to a disorderly house in Toronto, from which they escaped. Conway said that the girl acted as though fearful that she was being followed.

John Quirk, for whom the girl worked, stated that the girl previous to her visit to Toronto, was most cheerful, and left his place saying she was going to be married. When she came back from Toronto, she appeared to be nervous and despondent, and Quirk thought she had been disappointed in a love affair.

Quirk admitted that in 1907 he bought two bottles of strychnine to kill rats and crows, and these were left about the house. Since the death of the girl, one had been found, but the other could not be located.

Both bottles, the witness said, bore the same label as the one on the bottle which the McKissock girl had.

The report of the doctors who conducted the post-mortem, failed to throw any light on the cause of death. The stomach was not examined.

Danzig, Oct. 30 — The German Crown Prince was injured in a hunting accident yesterday near here. He was participating in a drag-hunt in company with the Crown Princess, Cecilie, when his horse fell, throwing him. His injuries are not serious.

BIG RUSH TO HEAR ROOSEVELT

He is to Speak at Madison Square Garden To-night.

New York, Oct. 30.—The demand for seats at Madison Square Garden for the Progressive rally to-night, at which Col. Roosevelt is to make a short speech, has been so great that Progressive leaders were yesterday buying in tickets at an increased price. The great hall seats over 10,000 people and the tickets were distributed by the Progressive state committee and sold through district leaders for the benefit of the state campaign funds. It was said yesterday that as high as $100 was being paid for a box at the garden by those who had not participated in the original distribution of seats.

SIR EDWARD GRAY ON BOB'S SPEECH

London, Oct. 30.—Lord Roberts' campaign, advocating national military service, was referred to in the Commons yesterday when Sir Edward Grey, replying to a question, said, amid cheers:

"No representation concerning the Manchester speech has been made by Germany. I should very much deprecate any suggestion that either Government should take notice of provocative speeches by persons not in a position to control the policy of their respective countries."

FIFTEEN MONTHS FOR DR. EVANS

Toronto, Oct. 30.—"Dr." James G. Evans, convicted of forging a check payable to the college of which he was a director, was sentenced to fifteen months by Judge Denton yesterday.

D. O. Cameron, defence counsel, pleaded for leniency. The prisoner, he declared, was a confirmed "dope" fiend; his arms were a mass of scars from injection.

"Forgery is a crime deserving of severe punishment, but I feel I am justified in somewhat lightening the sentence," declared the judge.

Policeman Murdered.

Boston, Oct. 30.—Patrolman A. R. Peterson was shot and fatally wounded on a west end street early yesterday by an unknown man whom he had rebuked for making an insulting remark to a woman. The officer died at noon. Peterson described his assailant as a foreigner, about 35 years of age.

The first birds of the earth were in the form of flying reptiles.

SIR WILFRID WILL STICK

Will Not Give up the Naval Policy.

Sherbrooke, Que., Oct. 30.—"There are those who say to me, 'Give up this naval policy'; but no, I will not give it up. So long as I lead the Liberal party, so long will it do its duty by the nation and by the Empire. The Liberal party never gives up what it believes to be its duty," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier here last night.

The occasion was the complimentary banquet tendered to Mr. F. N. McCrea, M.P. for Sherbrooke, by the citizens of Sherbrooke and of surrounding towns.

Following this came a criticism of the do-nothing policy of the Government. "They have a galaxy of contradictions. They won the last election by appeals to passions and prejudices, but that will not last. A union of Conservatives, Nationalists, Jingoes, ultra-Catholics, ultra-Protestants, one advocating no navy in Quebec, others wanting a big navy in Ontario, such an union cannot last. They have now no policy, but are adopting a matter of expediency. Mr. Borden went to England to consult the Admiralty. He came home, but has nothing to say. He is waiting, and looking for soft places to light. He will be forced to disclose his policy very soon now, as Parliament meets on November 21st. We will not judge him until he makes public his policy. Then we will judge it on its merits, and if it is better than ours we will support it. If not as good, we will strive to have him adopt a better one. One thing is certain," said Sir Wilfrid, amid cheers, "so long as I have the honor to represent the Liberal party, I will never appeal to the passions and prejudices of my fellow-citizens."

DYNAMITE THROWN FROM FAST TRAIN

Watchman Testifies at Dynamite Conspiracy Trial.

Indianapolis, Oct. 30.—Testimony that two packages of dynamite were carried on a fast passenger train from Chicago, and that, after a fuse on each package was lit, both bundles were thrown out of the train window into some steel construction work at Indiana Harbor, Ind., was given at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial yesterday.

John F. Byrne, a night watchman, testified that at 1 a.m. on May 24, 1909, he noticed the sputter of a fuse burning in the darkness. Investigating, he said, he found the fire was fast reaching fourteen sticks of dynamite wrapped together in a Chicago newspaper. Unable to extinguish the fuse, he threw the dynamite into an inlet of the lake, said Byrne. Near a petrol box where he was going to send in a call, Byrne testified, he found another package of fourteen sticks of dynamite, the fuse to which had been lighted, but had gone out. The witness said no one could have put the explosives at that point except by throwing them off a train. The Government contends that someone other than Ortie E. McManigal and Jas. B. McNamara arranged for the explo-

THE SEYMOUR COMPANY PROPOSITION

Last evening the Electric Power Co. submitted to the City Council a proposition in connection with the Power and Light Situation.

Briefly it proposes to furnish all capital and to operate the electric light and power plant, the gas plant and street railway. From the result of operations interest on the bonds at 5 per cent., and the working expenses, and renewals for wear and tear. Over and above this the moneys coming from the operation are to be divided between the company and city in proportion of 60 per cent. to the company and 40 per cent. to the city. Any loss to be borne by the company.

If it be advisable to form a sinking fund or rest, to cover purchase at the cost of ten years by the city the profit accruing to the city would go into such fund. The Hydro-Electric form of taking power, to apply so that the more power taken and consumed, the lower the rates, which would pass on to the consumer.

The proposition, on its face, looks favorable. It will be submitted to the Hydro-Electric to be analyzed from the point of view of that able organization. When that report is in the hands of the Council it can be contrasted with the Hydro-Electric figures, and our citizens reach some conclusion. Discussion will follow in detail as soon as particulars are known.

The company affirm that they are willing to meet the Council in any possible way, and to arrange the matter amicably. The company also offer to finance, up to $1,000,000 to any extensions that may hereafter be found advisable or necessary, which is in itself a very strong point to consider.

THE MIDDLESEX ELECTION

The victory of the Whitney Government candidates in the Waterloo and Middlesex bye-elections was conceded two weeks ago. In the Waterloo contest, there was no Rowell representative. The Conservative candidate, Ald. Mills, had a Socialist and an Independent as opponents, but neither were ever in the race. In Middlesex, Mr. Rowell did have courage to try out the effect of his Abolish-the Bar propaganda. He and his supporters told the voters of East Middlesex that it was a case of the boy or the bar; that in a strong temperance riding, where local option was in force, there ought to be a strong exhibition of indignation at the base Whitney program of defending the bar. The Globe and Mr. Rowell both tried, after the result was known, to claim that they knew they had not one chance in ten of winning. But their actions in the campaign were not such as to indicate that they had no confidence in the efficiency of their own appeals. They made a big noise, but there was nothing more in it than wind.

The sweeping majority given Mr. Neely the Whitney candidate, certainly is no straw from which the Rowell supporters can gauge the strength of the wind in favor of the abolition of the Bar. Everyone deplores the evils of the liquor traffic. No party, and certainly not the Conservative, any more than the Liberal wishes to be actively associated with or to defend, the iniquitous traffic. Sir James Whitney has gone about as far as the public sentiment will follow him in this matter. If the public gives evidence of a desire to see the treating system abolition followed by other and more severe restrictive measures, there will be no hesitation by the present Government in applying the remedy.

The result in Middlesex which is debatable ground the late member, Robert Sutherland, having been a Liberal, will not discredit the Abolish-the-Bar policy itself so much as hold Mr. Rowell's tactical skill up to ridicule. His manoeuvres to get an anti-temperance candidate to support his Abolish-the Bar platform was very interesting as a bit of political jugglery, but as an evidence of a strong, sane leadership, a firm and uncompromising stand on behalf of total prohibition, it was an abject failure. Then again Mr. Rowell failed to explain satisfactorily his attitude in proposing to wipe out the bar, and let the liquor shop remain—thus transferring the interests of the liquor people from one place in a community to another. However, there yet remains three years in which Mr. Rowell can experiment upon the electorate, and get a safe footing for his fight at the next general election. He will be an extraordinary sower if he can plant enough seed to make a better showing in a provincial election than he did in Middlesex.

SMITHERS AND EMIGRATION

Chairman Smithers, of the Grand Trunk, says that Canada requires more capital, but much more does she require additional labor. He says further, "It seems regrettable that the question of emigration has not been taken up by the British Government. I am certain machinery could be devised for the transference of British labor to Canada, with excellent results, politically and otherwise." The question of emigration is now being taken up by the Imperial Trade Commission, with the idea that there shall be an imperial emigration board governing the disposal of the British emigrants. But Chairman Smithers' chief reference is to the Dominion immigraton laws which are framed to extend direct encouragement only to farm workers and to domestic servants. It is quite true that the number of agricultural workers in Britain has declined, the reservoir has been well drained. In fact, as far as Canada's need of people for settling the land is concerned, it is more than likely that some well arranged and systematically constructed plan of educating the city workers wanting to settle on Canadian land, will have to be arranged. Many British army reservists now come to Canada, and take up farming. But the city worker, unless he has a knowledge of farming, will not stay on the land nor is he of much use there unless he has been given some special training. Therefore, the problem is to make the conversion. As for the need of more labor, railway construction is handicapped by the inability of the contractors to recruit their gangs sufficiently. But there is an inability by the railway constructors to obtain sufficient material. The trouble is that railway building is going on at such a pace that the demand is abnormal. When it slackens, Canada will have little need for the thousands of navvies who will be set free, and dumped in on the city populations. There is a scarcity of industrial workers, but the popular conception that not to encourage this class of emigration means the lessening of competition in the industrial centres is not far wrong. Canada can willingly accept all who come themselves, but to make it a national policy to encourage them is not to the best interests of the country. This year emigration will mount to the highest on record, and as long as the Dominion generally prospers as at present, there is no need for material alterations in our arrangements.

A MODERATE PROPOSAL

Among the offers made by almost every city, town and village, if not every such municipality, to new industries, are a free site and an exemption from taxes.

Some additional forms of aid given to [illegible] places are—

The erecting of a large factory building for a shoe factory, by the city of St. Thomas. A loan of $35,000 to a biscuit and confectionery factory by the same city.

Stratford gave a loan of $8,000 to a $12,000 knitting plant.

A free site, exemption and free water was what St. Catharines gave to a company to put up a $40,000 plant.

Owen Sound gave a company a grant towards a site and a $80,000 loan.

Berlin voted a bonus of $25,000 to a rubber company.

Waterloo gave a loan of $10,000 to a box factory.

A loan of $25,000 was given by Midland to a planing mill.

Owen Sound voted a loan of $20,000 to a match factory.

A bonus of $30,000 was guaranteed by Sarnia to a brass factory.

The town of Lindsay voted—but perhaps it is not necessary to quote what Lindsay did.

These are some recent instances of what municipaliteis have done, taken from the daily papers.

In the by-law to be voted upon to-morrow, this city proposes a site partial exemption and part of the moving expenses of the existing De Laval factories, to secure a large industry already established, with a growing business and strongly entrenched on both sides of the line. It is a thoroughly sound company, with a thorough organization for selling its products. Its products are used on farms in this country and throughout the continent. It commences here on good scale and will grow to be one of the industries in the country.

CHAPTER I

He stood beaming so, till their footsteps died in the silence. Then he turned back to the chaotic remnants of his machine. He worked at it hopelessly for some time, before he had reason to look within. There he found the handbags and suitcases, umbrellas and other equipment. He ran to the corner to call after the owners. They were as absent of body as they had been absent of mind.

He remembered the street-number they had given him as their destination. He waited till at last a yawning policeman sauntered that way like a lonely beach patrol, and left him in charge while he went to telephone his garage for a wagon and a wrecking crew.

It was close on midnight before he reached the number his fares had given him. It was a parsonage leaning against a church. He rang the bell and finally produced from an upper window a nightshirt topped by a frowsy head. He explained the situation, and his possession of certain properties belonging to parties unknown except by their first names. The clergyman drowsily murmured:

"Oh, yes. I remember. The young man was Lieutenant Henry Mallory, and he said he would stop here with a young lady, and get married on the way to the train. But they never turned up."

"Lieutenant Mallory, eh? Where could I reach him?"

"He said he was leaving tonight for the Philippines."

"The Philippines! Well, I'll be—"

The minister closed the window just in time.

CHAPTER II.

The Early Birds and the Worm.

In the enormous barn of the railroad station stood many strings of cars, as if a gigantic young Gulliver stabled his toys there and invisibly amused himself; now whisking this one away, now backing that other in.

Some of the trains were noble equipages, fitted to glide across the whole map with cargoes of Lilliputian millionaires and their Lilliputian ladies. Others were humble and shabby linked-up day-coaches and dingy smoking-cars, packed with workers like ants.

Cars are mere vehicles, but locomotives have souls. The express engines roll in or stalk out with grandeur and ease. They are like emperors. They seem to look with scorn at the suburban engines snorting and grunting and shaking the arched roof with their plebeian choo-choo as they puff from shop to cottage and back.

The trainmen take their cue from the behavior of their locomotives. The conductor of a transcontinental nods to the conductor of a shuttle-train with less cordiality than to a brakeman of his own. The engineers of the limiteds look like senators in overalls. They are far-traveled men, leading a mighty life of adventure. They are pilots of land-ships across land-oceans. They have a right to a certain condescension of manner.

But no one feels or shows so much arrogance as the sleeping car porters. They cannot pronounce "supercilious," but they can be it. Their disdain for the entire crew of any train that carries merely day-coaches or half-baked chair-cars, is expressed as only a darkey in a uniform can express disdain for poor white trash.

Of all the haughty porters that ever curled a lip, the haughtiest by far was the dusky attendant in the San Francisco sleeper on the Trans-American Limited. His was the train of trains in that whole system. His car the car of cars. His passengers the surpassengers of all.

His train stood now waiting to set forth upon a voyage of two thousand miles, a journey across seven imperial states, a journey that should end only at that marge where the continent dips and vanishes under the breakers of the Pacific ocean.

At the head of his car, with his little box-step waiting for the foot of the first arrival, the porter stood, his head swelling under his cap, his breast swelling beneath his blue blouse, with its brass buttons like reflections of his own eyes. His name was Ellsworth Jefferson, but he was called anything from "Poarr-turr" to "Pawtah," and he usually did not come when he was called.

Tonight he was wondering perhaps what passengers, with what dispositions, would fall to his lot. Perhaps he was wondering what his Chicago sweetheart would be doing in the eight days before his return. Perhaps he was wondering what his San Francisco sweetheart had been doing in the five days since he left her, and how she would pass the three days that must intervene before he reached her again.

He had Othello's ebon color. Did he have Othello's green eye?

Whatever his thoughts, he chatted gaily enough with his neighbor and colleague of the Portland sleeper.

Suddenly he stopped in the midst of a soaring chuckle.

"Lordy, man, looky what's a-comin'!"

The Portland porter turned to gaze.

"I got my fingers crossed."

"I hope you git him."

"I hope I don't."

"He'll work you hard and cuss you out, and he won't give you even a Much Obliged."

"That's right. He ain't got a usher to carry his things. And he's got enough to fill a van."

The oncomer was plainly of English origin. It takes all sorts of people to make up the British Empire, and there is no sort lacking—glorious or pretty, or sour or sweet. But this was the type of English globe-trotter that makes himself as unpopular among foreigners as he is among his own people. He is almost as unendurable as the Americans abroad who twang their banjo brag through Europe, and berate France and Italy for their innocence of buckwheat cakes.

The two porters regarded Mr. Harold Wedgewood with dread, as he bore down on them. He was almost lost in the plethora of his own luggage. He asked for the San Francisco sleeper, and the Portland porter had to turn away to smother his gurgling relief.

Ellsworth Jefferson's heart sank. He made a feeble effort at self-protection. The Pullman conductor not being present at the moment, he inquired:

"Have you got yo' ticket?"

"Of cawse."

"Could I see it?"

"Of cawse not. Too much trouble to fish it out."

The porter was fading. "Do you remember yo' numba?"

"Of cawse. Take these." He began to pile things on the porter like a mountain unloading an avalanche. The porter stumbled as he clambered up the steps, and squeezed through the strait path of the corridor into the slender aisle. He turned again and again to question the invader, but he was motioned and bunted down the car, till he was halted with a "This will do."

The Englishman selected section three for his own. The porter ventured: "Are you sho' this is yo' numba?"

"Of cawse I'm shaw. How dare you question my—"

"I wasn't questionin' you, boss, I was just astin' you."

He resigned himself to the despot, and began to transfer his burdens to the seat. But he did nothing to the satisfaction of the Englishman. Everything must be placed otherwise; the catch-all here, the portmanteau there, the Gladstone there, the golfsticks there, the greatcoat there, the raincoat there. The porter was puffing like a donkey-engine, and mutiny was growing in his heart. His last commission was the hanging up of the bowler hat.

He stood on the arm of the seat to reach the high hook. From here he paused to glare down with an attempt at irony.

"Is they anything else?"

"No. You may get down."

The magnificent patronage of this wilted the porter completely. He returned to the lower level, and shuffled along the aisle in a trance. He was quickly recalled by a sharp:

"Pawtah!"

"Yassah!"

"What time does this baily train start?"

"Ten-thutty, sah."

"But it's only ten now."

"Yassah. It'll be ten-thutty a little later."

"Do you mean to tell me that I've got to sit hyah for half an hour—just waitin'?"

The porter essayed another bit of irony:

"Well," he drawled, "I might tell the conducta you're ready. And mebbe he'd start the train. But the timetable says ten-thutty."

He watched the effect of his satire, but it fell back unheeded from the granite dome of the Englishman, whose only comment was:

"Oh, never mind. I'll wait."

One of the famous French dressmakers emphasizes the use of khaki color in this suit of mustard yellow braid cloth recently received from Paris. Buffalo Loose In Winnipeg.

Roaming at large without let or hindrance, a real live buffalo disturbed the community of St. James, near Winnipeg, the other night. It seems that the animal was one of the herd formerly at Silver Heights, once the residence of Lord Strathcona, and which was purchased by the city for the Assiniboine City Park, from which it broke away a few nights ago, and after swimming across the river, went into some pasturage west of Deer Lodge, where cattle were browsing. It was seen between six and seven o'clock in the evening in the Woodlands district and passed about 200 yards from Portage avenue, terrifying several of the residents, including a woman and three children, whom it passed at a distance of about three feet.

Immediately [illegible] the attendants and park keepers set out on the hue and cry to track the errant erstwhile master of the plains and prairies of the west. They traced him to Brookside and on the direction of Stoney Mountain, but not being accustomed to herding buffaloes at large, they had considerable difficulty in keeping on his trail.

By dint of great perserverance, however, they headed him off again in the direction of the Assiniboine Park by the St. James district, and tried to drive him towards the river again so that he might swim back the way he came. He went down to the river and went a few steps, but turned and made off again with the attendants after him, but was ultimately capturer and returned to his enclosure at the park.

THE PRIVATE SCHOOL.

Physical Training Is One of Its Chief Advantages In Canada.

Private schools for boys are a striking feature of Canada's educational system. This type of institution has had long development in the Dominion and has been worked out with considerable skill. Before the early Canadian Governments had organized a system of secondary education, the country was dependent more or less upon schools started and maintained by individual effort. Dominies from the old land sought to make a living by teaching boys who came to their houses. Sometimes the church, or the wealthier men in a community, fathered a school and erected buildings. Dr. Tassie's school at Galt, and Rockwood Academy, near Guelph, where James J. Hill, railroader, learned the three R's were conspicuous monuments of this era.

Then came the birth of the high schools, and the spread of public education before which competition the private schools had to give way. Some survived, strong in the traditions which they had gathered about them. Others were opened by men who had strong faith in ideals of education which they desired to impress upon the community. The growth of such schools as Upper Canada College, St. Andrew's College, Trinity School, and Bishop Ridley College, which are even more than national schools, for they draw students from all parts of the Empire, is proof enough that there is a distinct place for the private school in the life of the Dominion.

Because it is not part of a system, a private school can, with greater facility, take the initiative in trying out new ideas in education. The private schools of Canada are much in advance of the public schools in the matter of attention they give to the physical welfare of their students. In this respect they could point lessons to even our universities. The state schools foster love for sport, but they do not incorporate athletics as an essential part of the educative program. The boys at the private schools are compelled to undergo athletic training, just as they are required to learn Latin, French or history. Every boy is medically examined. His physique is measured, and he is obliged to take prescribed exercises, which will round out the hollows in his chest, remove curvature, strengthen his muscles, and make him a sound, spirited specimen of manhood. At St. Andrew's College a boy who neglects his gymnasium classes is not allowed out of bounds on Saturday afternoon. He is "gated." So particular are the private schools about physical training, that they spend big sums in equipment. Ridley College, St. Catharines, recently erected a gymnasium which is larger and more up-to-date than the former gymnasium at the University of Toronto. This school emphasized physical training. It is situated in the Niagara fruit district on a large farm, which supplies most of the provisions used at the school. In rural ozone, Ridley boys find an outlet for their activities on the farm, the cricket or football fields, in the gymnasium or the skating rink.

The private schools of Canada are not concerned with developing intellectual prodigies or athletic gladiators. They are trying to evolve boys of character who can hold their own physically and mentally with their fellows; boys with the stamp on them of the school from which they go forth into the world.—Canadian Courier.

Indian Burying Ground Found.

What is evidently an ancient Indian burying ground has been found at Islington, Ont. Already thirteen skeletons have been dug up by workmen at the Hide gravel pit.

The majority of the bones found would indicate that the Indians were above the average in size and very powerfully built.

Some of the residents who have lived in the districts for the past 75 or 80 years have been questioned about the skeletons. They did not remember any Indians or did they ever hear their fathers mention them. Some of these men living in the district are the offspring of pioneers who originally cleared the land in this section of the country. Should there have been any redskins dwelling there in those times the tradition would have been passed on.

This means that the skeletons have been there more than a century. As all the bones are in the best of condition and perfect it is supposed that these Indians were braves killed in war and buried on the field by the other redmen.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?
There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.
SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

Dear Sir,
I have just received from you cheque in settlement of indemnity for injuries received while at camp some weeks ago. I wish to thank the Company through you for the very prompt settlement of this claim and would be glad if you would express to them my appreciation of the prompt settlement. Dr. Norvall's Cure-a-Cold Tablets

If you catch a cold every one can tell you how to cure it. If one tried half the things his friends recommended he would be a physical wreck!

Fortunately, it isn't necessary to experiment with ginger tea and such things—get a box of CURE-A-COLD, the compressed tablet treatment, and your cold will be broken up in a day and a night.

CURE-A-COLD is not like most things put up for this purpose. It relieves the inflamed congested condition of the muscous membranes of the nose and the throat. Acts as a gentle laxative and soon rids the system of the poisons that cause "colds." Try it.

To Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Taylor of Otonabee

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Taylor, Otonabee, was the scene of a pleasant gathering on the evening of Monday, 21st of Ocober, when friends and neighbors came together to give expression to their feelings of regret, at the departure of the family to Peterborough

The address was read by Mr. W. J. Mather, and to which Mr. Taylor replied.

While endeavoring to thank those present for their kindness and good will, manifested so plainly, Mr. Taylor tried to emphasize the fact that while the power of his satanic majesty is admittedly leading men astray, there is one infinitely superior, whose power has been manifested time and time again for 6. years. Full forty years of married life, found both Mrs. Taylor and himself, in the best of health, both having been preserved through all the years while many have fallen.

"While I reflet on the goodness of God, it has caused many tears of thankfulness," said Mr. Taylor.

He remarked that he had joined the church at the age of 17, and had been a member for fifty years, during which time he had endeavored to emphasize some of the last words of David; 'And Thou, Solomon, my son, know thou the God of thy Fathers and serve him with a perfect trust and a willing mind; if thou seek Him, He will be found of thee if thou forsaketh Him, He will cast thee off forever.' Chronicles 1, 29, 1.

The evident happiness of all brought to our mind, reminded us of the great statement that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

Accompanying the address were two handsome chairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor are leaving the neighborhood after being residents for the last 67 years. The district loses a good friend and a helper, and one who was ever energetic in all good work.

Following is the address.

Otonabee, Oct. 21. 12

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Taylor,

Dear Friends and Neighbors — We have learned that you and your family are about to remove from our midst, which, we can assure you, we deeply regret. You have lived among us the most of your lives and you and your family have gone in and out among us frequently, and we assure you that we have appreciated your many acts of kindness which you have shown towards us especially when help was wanted or sympathy was needed. In fact, in our joys and in our sorrows you were our friend in need, which is a friend indeed. You were always interested in our temporal prosperity, yea and it gave you great pleasure to help us all in our spiritual advancement. You were always ready and willing to aid us, trying to become like our Great Master, who went about doing good, and we are sure it was your desire to copy His example.

For all your kindness towards us we shall not soon forget, and as you are about to move to other parts we, your neighbors, wish Heaven's choicest blessings on you both, and your family. We shall miss you the Church will miss you, but we are sure that our loss will be others' gain. And we trust that in your new home you may still take a great interest in others as you have taken in us.

Your friends of the old Ninth Line meet this evening, as we could not let you leave our neighborhood without expressing our appreciation of your many acts of kindness. Therefore, we ask you to accept these two chairs as a slight token of respect and love and not for their intrinsic worth. We hope in the days to come as you sit by your fireside, you may enjoy them, and perhaps your minds may wander back to your old neighbors and well wishers.

We hope to often have the pleasure of meeting you again on earth, and that bye and bye we may all meet in the Glory Land.

(Signed)

On behalf of neighbors of the Ninth Line, Otonabee.

Those who attended brought an ample supply of provisions, and an elegant supper was served. Photos were taken by flashlight of the gathering, which broke up at a late hour

He desired to further discuss the matter with the Commissioners, and the request was granted.

Mr. A. B. Cunningham requested a remission of rates on bath room equipment in a double house on George street. It was directed as this was not laid on a petition for a main that the remission be granted for January, 1913.

It was decided to install a telephone in the house of D. Oliver, general foreman.

LARGE MAJORITY FOR THE BY-LAW

Majority of Two Thirds of Votes Polled is Necessary

Optimistic reports received from polling divisions indicate a large majority for the De Laval By-law. It was stated that the vote at Hooper's store, was the largest of any by-law vote known. A majority of two-thirds of the votes polled is necessary for the passage of the by-law.

The work of rushing the voters to the polls was most efficiently and faithfully performed, a noticeable feature of the voting being the excellent organization which prevailed in many of the wards. Citizens who owned motor cars willingly placed them at the disposal of the ward committees, and in some cases drove their cars personally, sacrificing business for the day.

At J. E. Lillico's store, thirty-four votes were polled up to 12 o'clock, the majority in favor of the by-law. Twenty-one were cast at J. J. Cock's store; forty at N. Routley's with one against it, and thirty-six at J. T. Braund's, with only five per cent. against it.

"ELIJAH" COMING

In the musical events of the coming season, one of the surprises will be the performance given by arrangement with the management of "The Grand" for one performance Thursday, Nov. 7, of the opera "Elijah," under the management of the Majestic Grand Opera Company, Inc. Mendelssohn's "Elijah" in operatic form was first presented professionally in England by the Moody-Manners Opera Company, with universal success. The first American production has been made on an elaborate scale under the direction of Mr. Theodore H. Bauer, who is the general manager of this organization. As New York representative of the Boston Opera Company, Mr. Bauer's facilities and experience in musical affairs has brought about an all-star Grand Opera cast, for the tour of "Elijah" that is unsurpassed by any travelling operatic company. The religious feeling for which Mendelssohn's "Elijah" is world famous will be increased by dramatic methods. The company will include over one hundred people, with a full symphony orchestra conducted by Arturo Bovi who was especially engaged in Havana, large chorus and new costumes. The stage effects will be under the direction of Mr Joseph Urban, artistic stage director of the Boston Opera Company. In every respect this first American production of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" in opera form will be elaborate and significant.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC COMMISSION WILL PASS ON ELECTRIC POWER COMPANY'S PROPOSITIONS

As Submitted to the City Council by Representatives of the Company.

A Comprehensive Statement of the Company's Offer to the City.

"That the Power Committee be authorized to consult Hon. Adam Beck in connection with the propositions submitted by the Electric Power Company for supplying light and power to Peterborough and also with regard to gas and street railway operations, and report back to the City Council."

In accordance with their promise to present a clearly defined proposition to the City Council regarding power, the deputation of representatives of the Seymour Power Co. were on hand last night and advanced one very clear proposal besides answering several questions asked them by the Council at the last conference.

The consultation occupied about three hours. The Seymour Power deputation had been detained at Millbrook by a slight accident on their way to Peterborough.

No time was wasted in getting down to business and a discussion on the subject.

Mr. Johnston for the Seymour people presented in writing the Companys proposition. After that the Directors replied to various questions and then at the request of the Mayor they retired until the Council went into the details of the proposition, clause by clause. The latter proceeding did not appear to meet with the approval of Alderman Buller, who considered it all unnecessary.

Finally, after a little divided opinion it was decided to go over the proposition in the endeavour to allow all the Council an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the various clauses and understand clearly the nature of the Seymour Company's offer. There were a few matters brought out upon which a more explicit understanding was desired, and these were all satisfactorily answered by the visiting power magnates.

After a careful study of the proposition it was decided to consult with Mr. Beck.

The main proposition outlined by the Seymour Company is herewith given.

The Mayor and Council of the City of Peterborough, Ontario:

Gentlemen.—In pursuance of your request we now beg to reduce to writing the proposition which the Electric Power Company, Limited, has to make regarding the consolidation of the public utilities service in your city.

The Electric Power Company, Limited, owns a controlling interest in the common stock of the following Companies:

The Seymour Power & Electric Co., Limited.

The Peterborough Light & Power Co Limited.

The Peterborough Radial Railway Company.

The Auburn Power Co., of Peterboro' Limited.

The Trenton Electric & Water Co., Limited.

The Light, Heat & Power Co., of Lindsay, Limited.

The Port Hope Electric Light & Power Co., Limited.

The Otonabee Power Company, Limited.

The Sidney Electric Power Co., Limited.

The Nippising Power Co, Limited.

Oshawa Electric Light Co., Limited.

Cobourg Utilities Corporation, Limited.

The City Gas Company, of Oshawa.

The Napanee Gas. Co., Limited.

The Napanee Power & Electric Light Co., Limited.

The Central Ontario Power Co., Limited.

The Tweed Electric Light & Power Co., Limited.

The Eastern Power Co., Limited.

The Peterborough Light & Power Co Limited, owns an electric distribution system in the City, which it operates under a franchise dated January 3rd, 1910, which does not expire until January 1, 1940. The Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limited, also owns a gas plant within the city limits, which it operates under a perpetual franchise.

The Otonabee Power Company owns an electric distribution system and sub station in the city, and operates under a franchise expiring on December 31, 1913.

The Peterborough Radial Railway operates under a franchise from the city, expiring July 1, 1939, using power purchased from the Peterborough Light & Power Co., for the moving of its cars.

It is therefore manifest that the interests of the Electric Power Company Limited, in the City of Peterborough, are very large, and it seems to us that our interests and the interests of the City should be considered together, and we now outline a working scheme such that we may continue to work in entire harmony with the City and which will transfer to the City a larger measure of control over its public utilities, while at the same time protecting the City from all financial burdens.

When we attended before the Council on the Twenty-second instant, one of the matters discussed was the formation of a Company to acquire the distribution system of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limited, the gas plant thereof, the distribution system of the Otonabee Power Company, and the entire undertaking of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, and the Council asked us to submit a plan for the formation of such a Company for its consideration. It seems to us that the end which was in view, may be more simply and conveniently reached by maintaining the Peterborough Light & Power Company Limited and the Peterborough Radial Railway Company as active operating companies. This is a matter of convenience only, and if the Council should so desire there is no reason why an entirely new Company should not be formed, but, we think, it will be apparent that so far as the city is concerned it will receive the same advantages from the continuation of the Peterborough Light & Power Company Limited and the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, as it would if a new Company were to be incorporated to handle the business now conducted by the existing Companies.

We therefore propose:

1. That the Peterborough Light & Power Co., Ltd., will purchase from the Otonabee Power Company, Limited the pole lines and distribution system of the latter Company within the City, together with the substation property thereof at the price of $49,000. If this price is not satisfactory to the city then the amount to be paid is to be settled by arbitration.

2. Proper steps are to be taken to provide that the Mayor and the City Clerk of Peterborough (or such other two persons as the Council may desire) be directors of the Peterborough Light & Power Company Limited and the Peterborough Radial Railway Co.,

3. A Head Office shall be maintained in the City for the management and control of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limited, and the Peterborough Radial Railway Company and shall be conducted under the personal supervision of the Boards of Direltors of such Companies, and all books of accounts shall be kept at such office and shall be open at all times to the inspection of the City Treasurer, or such auditors, accountants, or officers, as the City may appoint.

5. The Electric Power Company, Ltd will enter into a contract with the Peterborough Light & Power Company Limited to procure electric energy to be supplied to the Peterborough Light & Power Co., Limited for the use in the City of Peterborough up to such amount as may be required and at prices to be determined if the City so requires either by arbitration in the usual way or by reference to the Hydro-Electric Province of Ontario.

5. The contract for the sale of power to the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limited, will follow the form in general use by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission for the Province of Ontario, so that any benefit which is to be obtained from the resale of power to various customers shall accrue directly to the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limited and not to the Electric Power Co., Ltd.

6. The Electric Power Company, Ltd will agree to further finance extensions and improvements of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limited and the Peterborough Radial Railway Co., up to a capital cost not exceeding one million dollars.

7. Out of the gross receipts of the Peterborough Light & Power Co., Ltd and the Peterborough Radial Railway Company shall first be deducted all operating expenses, including a proper allowance for depreciation and interest at the rate of five per cent upon all bonds that have been issued for the purpose of the said Company or for the acquisition of the same or for any extensions or which may hereafter be issued for extensions and improvements and thereafter the net profits shall be divided between such Companies and the City of Peterborough in proportion to forty per cent to the City and sixty per cent to the Companies. The amount of the bond issues at present is $565,000.

It seems sufficient to us for the present to say that the amount of the bond issues referred to is less than the replacement value of the physical assets owned by the two Companies.

8. The rates to be charged for light heat or power, whether gas or electric together with rates for strict railway services shall always be sufficient to meet bond interest and depreciation and subject thereto the existing rates shall immediately be revised by the new Board and if the Corporation so requires shall further be submitted either to arbitration or to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. All rates shall be subject to revision by arbitration at the end of every five-year period if requested by the City.

9. At the expiration of ten years the City may purchase all the assets of the Peterborough Light & Power Co., Limited and the Peterborough Radial Railway Company at a price to be fixed by arbitration: in filling such prices the arbitrators will value the assets of the company as going concerns, but nothing shall be allowed to the Companies for any franchise rights. On the City's paying the price so ascertained all franchise rights shall cease. The City shall have a similar right of purchase at the expiration of every five years.

10. The Corporation will not grant any competing franchise or establish any Municipal Plant until it shall have purchased the assets of the Companies as above provided. In the event of the City purchasing the assets of the Companies it shall be entitled also to take over the power contract with the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limited.

In settling the terms of any final agreement we shall welcome the assistance of any representatives of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, whose services may be placed at the disposal of the City.

We have endeavoured to present this scheme as simply as possible and without any lengthy comments on the obvious advantages to the City of an arrangement which will relieve it entirely from heavy burdens of financing and from the possible risks and losses incident to the handling of so large a commercial undertaking, and will yet insure to it a reasonable control of its public services together with the right at no distant date to acquire on fair and reasonable terms the whole of the public utilities and in the meantime will enable it to enjoy a fair measure of any profits that may be made.

We realize that the Council will desire to consider in detail the plan proposed and we shall be glad at any convenient time to place ourselves at the disposal of the Council for the purpose of discussing any modification or amendments that may be suggested.

In presenting the above outline we have endeavoured as far as possible to divest it of any legal or technical difficulties. As we see it there are no serious obstacles in the way of a perfectly satisfactory arrangement.

In the event of the City exercising such rights as it has under the Peterborough Act of 1912 this letter and all communications and negotiations are to be without prejudice as was expressed and understood at our meeting with the Council held on the 22nd inst.

—Very truly yours,
THE ELECTRIC POWER CO., LTD.

TO PURCHASE OUTRIGHT PLANS.

Gentlemen,—We have in a separate communication outlined a plan securing to the City an interest in the Light and Power and Railway business carried on in the municipalities, with provisions for fixing rates and for the future acquisition by the Corporation of the entire assets of the Companies operating these utilities.

We have, however, been asked by your council the following questions:

Question (a)—On what terms and at what price we would be willing to sell all the assets of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Peterborough Radial Company, the Peterborough Gas Plant and the Distributing System of the Otonabee Power Company as now existing in the City of Peterborough and surrender all franchises granted by the city to these companies;

Question (b)—On what terms and at what price the Peterborough Light and Power Company, Limited, would be willing to sell its Electric Distributing System within the City, which Distributing System the city has the right to acquire under the Act respecting the City of Peterborough, passed at the last session of the Ontario Legislature.—2 Geo. V., chap. 117.

We beg now to make answer as follows:—

Answer (a)—We will sell the physical assets of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limited, the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, the Peterborough Gas Plant and the Distribution System of the Otonabee Power Company, all as now existing in the City of Peterborough, and will surrender all franchises held by these companies, for the sum of $675,000.00, and in the event of the city not being willing to pay this price we are willing to accept such price as may be fixed by arbitration in the usual manner. One of the terms of sale would be that the city would enter into a contract with the Electric Power Company, Limited, to purchase power for thirty years to operate the utilities, at a price or prices to be fixed either by arbitration or by reference to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, at the option of the city, and will grant to the Electric Power Company, Limited, the right to erect a transmission line for the purpose of bringing power into the city and of connecting up with any of the power plants situate in the city, but not, of course, for the purpose of sale or distribution within the municipality.

Answer (b)—We think it desirable to point out exactly what Question (b), as we understand it, covers, and to draw your attention to the fact that the Peterborough Light & Power Company, has under its franchise, the right for thirty years to use the streets of the city for the purpose of erecting and maintaining such poles and wires as may be necessary for the transmission of electric current for its operations as a Light & Power company, and that this right will continue even if the city expropriates the present Distribution System, and that therefore if the present Distribution System only is expropriated or purchased by the city, the Peterborough Light & Power Company will, under the terms of its franchise, construct a new system and continue its business as heretofore.

We also beg to point out that under the Act respecting the City of Peterborough, 2 Geo. V., chap. 117,

TWO LOCAL MEN WERE ELECTED

At Annual Meeting of Ontario Ass'n Football League

At the annual meeting of the Ontario Association Football League, held at Toronto, Ernie Brumwell was elected as one of the vice-presidents and W. A. Milburn was elected to the Amateur standing committee.

The name of the governing body of the soccer game in this province was changed to the Ontario Football Association. The laws of the game as promulgated by the international football board were adopted to prevail here, making the uniformity necessary now that the Dominion of Canada Association is going into the international federation.

CANADA'S GROWTH.

Census Report Shows the Rate at Which Industry Is Expanding.

The census reports of Canadian manufactures taken in 1911 are now compiled. Compared with the census of 1901 for the year 1900, they show an increase in ten years of 4,559 in the number of working establishments; of $798,829,009 in the value of capital; of 175,108 in the number of persons employed; of $127,274,301 in the earnings of salaries and wages; and of $683,722,157 in the value of products.

The following statistics give the comparative figures for the two census years 1900 and 1910: Establishments in 1900, 14,650; in 1910, 19,209, an increase of 31.12 per cent.

Capital, 1900, $446,916,487; in 1910, $1,245,745,496, increase of 178.74 per cent.

Employes, 1900, 339,173; in 1910, 514,887, increase 51.82 per cent.

Salaries and wages, 1900, $113,249,350; in 1910, $240,523,651, increase 112.38 per cent.

Products, 1900, $481,053,375; 1910, $1,164,775,532, increase 412.13 per cent.

During the past decade there has been evidently a steady tendency toward the merging of industries. There are fourteen industrial establishments in the Dominion each having a production of five million dollars or over annually, and one hundred and thirty-six establishments each with an annual production of between one and five millions.

Over half of the total number of factories in Canada, or 7,992, are in Ontario, and the annual value of products is given as $578,763,118.

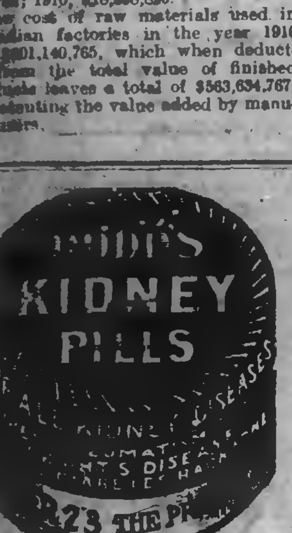
During the five years from 1905 to 1910 the three Prairie Provinces doubled the annual value of their industrial products, the figures aggregating $35,000,000 in 1905 as compared with $70,000,000 in 1910.

Manitoba—Establishments 1905, 354; 1910, 439. Value of annual products 1905, $28,155,732; 1910, $53,673,609.

Saskatchewan—Establishments 1905, 89; 1910, 173. Value of products 1905, $2,529,172; 1910, $6,382,132.

Alberta—Establishments 1905, 120; 1910, 290. Value of products 1905, $5,119,782; 1910, $18,898,826.

The cost of raw materials used in Canadian factories in the year 1910 was $601,140,765, which when deducted from the total value of finished products leaves a total of $563,634,767, representing the value added by manufacture.



The Retort Crushing.

How to deal with the man in the audience who interrupts or who makes remarks intended to be funny, is often quite a problem for political speakers.

Occasionally the speaker counters quickly and has the laugh on "a voice in the audience." That was the case at a meeting in Essex County, Ont., in the last Dominion election campaign, addressed by Dr. James Sampson of Windsor, who is a prominent Liberal, an active campaigner and a lecturer on the Dominion annuities system.

"Why don't you get your hair cut?" cried a jester who has a thin, squeaky voice and had noticed that the doctor has abundance of long hair.

"If I had a voice like that," the doctor retorted in strong, deep tones, "I'd get my throat cut."—Courier.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC COMMISSION WILL

all the city has power to acquire are the "lands, property, erections, machinery, work and plant and appliances of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limited, or any part thereof in the City of Peterborough, now used and operated under by-law No. 1497." Clearly these words only apply to the poles and wires erected upon the streets, under the franchise by-law, and do not cover private service wires meters which are not erected under the authority of this by-law and which the company desires to retain as part of its private system. In answer to Question (a) therefore our price is made to cover only the purchase by the city of the poles, crossarms, pins, insulators, guys, guy wires, braces, fastenings, primary and secondary wires on poles, transformers, lightning arresters and street lighting fixtures, all situated on the public streets of the City of Peterborough and which the city would be entitled to take under the terms of the Expropriation Act above mentioned. This property we will sell at $160,000.00, provided the city does not require possession of the same until the company has erected a new plant to perform the services now performed by the existing plant. In the event of the sale the company will ask until January 1st, 1914, to erect its new system and will undertake to erect this system by that date, provided it is not delayed after March 1st, 1913, by reason of non-approval of plans, etc. As a term of this sale, however, the company will ask the city to enter into a contract with the Electric Power Company in the usual form adopted by the Hydro-Electric Commission to take power to operate the city's system at a price or prices to be settled by arbitration in the usual manner, or by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, at the option of the city.

At the meeting with your council on the 22nd inst. our representatives were asked whether we would be willing to sell the Electric Distributing System of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, and the Otonabee Power Company. You will recollect that our representatives stated that they were not prepared to say whether we would be willing to name a price for a sale on such terms. We have taken the matter into consideration and have come to the conclusion that it would not be wise for us to make any offer on this basis. Having named a price at which we are content to dispose of all our properties and franchises which we acquired with the idea of operating them as a unit, we are not disposed to make an offer which, if accepted by the city, would dismember our Peterborough business and deprive us of the thirty year franchise lately conferred upon us by a vote of the ratepayers of the city.

In the event of the city exercising such rights of expropriation as it has under the Act of 1912, this letter and all communications and negotiations are to be without prejudice, as was expressed and understood at our meeting with the council on the 22nd inst.

Yours truly,
THE ELECTRIC POWER CO., LIMITED.

PEACE RIVER INDIANS.

They Are Proud But Not Hostile to the Settlers.

Travelers have many interesting tales to tell of the Indians of the country north of Edmonton. Now that that district is opening up with such surprising rapidity, the native population is coming in for a large share of public notice.

The Blackfeet, Bloods, Nahannis, and other tribes which have roved the northern plains for many generations are not what the white men of the North would designate "bad" Indians. That is, they are susceptible to the influences of civilization, are more proud than hostile, and more primitive and spirited than designedly cruel and treacherous. Thirty-five years ago the people talked with awe of the domination of the proud Blackfoot around Lethbridge or Pincher Creek; but how readily have the redmen of that beautiful country become absorbed in civilization!

The northern Indian has a keen, child-like sense of justice, and when treated honestly by the whites he generally shows himself a good friend and ally. Of course, all of them are intrepid canoeists, and it is in the capacity of guides and pilots that they are of most service to the incoming settlers. Their fleet canoes which glide so gracefully over the broad waters of the Athabaska or the swift-flowing Peace may find steady employment in the summer time piloting explorers, fur-traders, adventurers, or settlers to their various destinations.

There is one, Captain Shott, a Scotch half-breed, who gets the name of being the most daring and successful pilot on the Athabaska River. He will only share the honor with his son, who is almost equally famous. This historical old character was a lieutenant in the rebellion under Louis Riel, having had charge of the provisions for that leader.

Old Jack-knife is another historical figure up north. He also fought under Riel, and had charge of the ammunition. Jack-knife now lives at Bald Hill, seven miles north of Athabaska Landing. He is still much resorted to by travelers, as he has many a fine tale to unfold of the days that are now gone forever. To this day he has a deep respect for the redcoats, and can be frightened like a little child by a trumped-up story of their approach.

Although the furnishing of the old squaw's log cabin might suggest that something in the line of a new cook stove would be advantageous, yet her utensils show that she has come in contact with civilization. How necessary that the needs of these primitive people be looked after as the white man goes to take up a permanent residence among them. To assume a selfish attitude toward them is to do himself an incalculable injury. They are there to stay—a mighty factor for weal or woe in the industrial life of the north.—Toronto Star Weekly.

A Dead Moose.

President Chamberlin, of the G.T.R., and some of his friends had an interesting time with a "dead" moose in the New Brunswick woods some time ago. In the hunting party with the president were President Chamberlin, Montreal; Col. A. P. Sherwood, Commissioner of Dominion Police, Ottawa, and three capitalists. Not one of these men had ever had anything "put over" them before, and the experience with the "dead" moose shot by one of their party was a new one to them.

It was a big bull moose, and the whole bunch gathered around the big animal to congratulate the lucky member of the party. They stacked their guns and lighted cigars with the victorious hunter on the throne—the rump of the bull moose. Just then one of the party kicked the moose in the ribs. Quick as lightning something happened. The old moose came to life like a young volcano, and while the proud hunter cut hieroglyphics in the air, a president, a vice-president, a soother of human ills, and a protector of the race did a Marathon stunt to the nearest tree. It is not recorded who proved to be the champion runner, but the moral was self-evident to the hunters—never tickle a "dead" moose's ribs if you want him to stay dead.

An Interesting Document.

Miss Helen Thomson of Shelburne, Nova Scotia, has for some years been in possession of an historic document of great interest dating back to the pioneer days in the Province of Nova Scotia. The document has been in the Thomson family for three generations. Technically described, it is a legal and diplomatic instrument effecting a treaty between His Majesty, King George II., and the chief of the Malcite and Micmac Indians. The treaty was signed December 15th, 1729. This document is a facsimile of the original. In consideration of the good conduct of the Indians, His Majesty guaranteed to extend to his copper-colored people all rights, advantages and privileges enjoyed from time immemorial by British subject elsewhere.

Miss Thomson has presented the document to the Nova Scotia Historical Society. This society has many interesting memorials of the early days of Nova Scotia.

Celebrate New Year.

Canada's Hebrew population celebrated their New Year on Sept 12. All of the rabbis, accompanied by a number of adherents, observed the day by going down to the waterfront late in the afternoon, where a ceremony of "casting their sins away" took place. On this day every year the orthodox Jews visit the lake front and shake the skirt of their garments over the water in pursuance of their faith found in Micah: "And cast into the depths of the sea all their sins." A rabbi also preached the benediction. The day is also a day of fasting, the tradition being that nothing but grapes and other fruits and honey shall be eaten. Another time-honored custom is the blowing of shofar, which took place in the synagogues and reformed temples on Sept. 13 and 14.

Near Dundee, Scotland, a woman is using electrical current instead of fertilisers on her farm. Wires in the ground.

BATTLEFIELDS OF QUEBEC.

They Will One Day Become Shrines of Empire, Says Willson.

"With the triumph of Wolfe on the Heights of Abraham," wrote J. R. Green, "began the history of the United States." Even further goes A. G. Bradley in a recent work: "It would be hard to name an episode," he writes, "that had more influence on the future of the world."

Nearly five years ago, writes Beckles Willson of The London Telegraph, at the instance of Earl Grey, then Governor-General of the Dominion, a movement was started to reconstruct and nationalize the historic battlefield of the Plains of Abraham, which witnessed the triumph of Wolfe and the British arms, and also "by an admirable inspiration suggested by association and reconciliation of the foes of former days, now united by the same thought and pursuing the same ideals, that of Ste. Foye, the scene of the last French victory in Canada." In this manner it was hoped to leave some permanent memorial, not only of these great events, but also of the tercentenary celebrations which took place at Quebec in 1908.

At first sight, to the average stay-at-home Englishman, the project seemed a most laudable one, which could not fail of success. But the average Englishman little reckoned of the difficulties in the way—financial, moral, technical and political difficulties—so great that many of us who held this project dear, and hoped to see it carried out, have more than once, in the past four years, nearly despaired of success.

All the greater, therefore, is my satisfaction in being able to say that work has at last actually begun which will transform the scene of Wolfe's immortal victory from a neglected tract, on which stood a farmhouse a common jail and a factory, into a beautiful park, to be held (in the language of his present Majesty) "by the people for all time to come as sacred ground."

Not long ago, in company with Lt.-Col. William Wood, the historian, and author of "The Fight for Canada," I made a perambulation of the battlefield. To-day the part adjacent to the citadel is still used as a golf course, and a couple of golfers were laboriously following their balls in the direction of the Ross rifle factory. Not to mince matters, the structure of cheap red brick is the greatest blot on the landscape, with one exception. That exception is the lofty water tank, adapted from an old martello tower just in front of it on the river side. I feel confident that, if rightly appealed to, the owner of the factory will eventually yield to public opinion and to the genius of the place, and accept some other site.

In locating the drives, the architect of the park has endeavored to keep before him three important considerations: to place them so that they do not break the pleasing continuity of the park, and disfigure it as little as possible; to make them conform as far as practicable to the natural contour of the ground, so that there will be no bad grades or disfiguring cuts and fills; and to place them in such a way that the person is brought by the most pleasing and convenient route to the finest viewpoints and to the places of greatest historical interest.

That this area of 230 acres will ultimately become one of the most notable Imperial shrines—second indeed, only to the battlefield of Waterloo—none may doubt. It has one advantage over Waterloo in its commanding situation, and another in that it is on British soil.

Rainy River Crops.

The Rainy River country is proving to be one of the finest agricultural districts in Canada. Dan Matheson of Devlin threshed 1,220 bushels of fall wheat from 21 acres on August 4. This works out at more than 58 bushels to the acre. This wheat weighed out 62 1-2 pounds to the bushel. Spring wheat near Fort Frances averages 40 bushels per acre; barley, 55 bushels per acre; oats, 70 bushels per acre.

Alfalfa, sown in May of this year, was cropped for the second time on August 26. It was three feet high and went 3 1-2 tons to the acre, on land not previously inoculated.

Mr. Matheson is a Canadian from Bruce County, Ont., and is one of the best farmers west of the great lakes. He won a diploma at this year's Toronto Exhibition for his wheat.

Indians Used Pass.

Not many travelers to the Pacific coast know that the gorgeous Kicking Horse Pass, through which the Canadian Pacific crosses the Rocky Mountains, was first discovered from its western end. The first pass across the mountains was a much less spectacular one, discovered [illegible] Palliser, and used by the Indians, [illegible] what time no man knows, in their journey from the plains down to the ochre beds along the Vermilion and Ochre Rivers to obtain material for their war paint.

Biliousness

is certainly one of the most disagreeable ailments which flesh is heir to. Coated tongue—bitter taste in the mouth—nausea—dizziness—these combine to make life a burden. The cause is a disordered liver—the cure Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. They go straight to the root of the trouble, put the liver right, cleanse the stomach and bowels, clear the tongue and take away the bitter taste from the mouth. ASKS NEWSPAPER HELP.

The Stout and Husky Juryman Who Is Afraid of His Wife.

It was after 10 o'clock at night and the jury had just been discharged.

A stout juryman came over to the reporter's table. He had a worried look.

"You're an Evening News man, aren't you?"

"Yes."

"Are you going to report this case?"

"Yes."

"For tomorrow's paper?"

"Yes."

"Would you mind putting in a line saying that the jury was out until 10 o'clock?"

"I'll mention it if you wish."

"I certainly hope you will. You have no idea how much I want you to. You are a young man and probably you're not married yet, but some day you'll have a wife and then you'll understand."

"Your wife jealous, is she?"

"Not exactly that, but she's very particular, and if I don't account for every minute of my time away from her she chides me."

"That's too bad."

"You bet it is." The stout man mopped his brow with his handkerchief. "When I was drawn on the jury she had her doubts, and nothing would convince her that I wasn't putting up some game until she had come to the courthouse and seen me actually sitting in the jury box."

"She did that, eh?"

"Yes; I saw her standing inside the big doors there, and it gave me such a shock that I clear lost track of the case. The others have been explaining to me about the part of the testimony that I missed, and that is what has kept us from bringing in our verdict sooner. She's a woman, so she won't know about the law's delays, and that will mean more trouble when I show up at home tonight. But maybe I can avert it if I tell her that the paper tomorrow will verify my statement."

"Cheer up, old chap; we'll help you out."

"You'll not forget?"

"No."

"Then I'll never forget your kindness, never!"

Buttoning his overcoat and bracing back his shoulders as if for an ordeal, the belated juryman started for home. —Newark News.

Worse Than a Fish Story.

A Chicagoan returned from a vacation in the Adirondacks and appeared at his office, his face beautifully browned. For a month before leaving he had been inspired spasmodically to tell of his prospective fishing trips. The return was marked by silence.

"Well," he was asked, "what did the biggest one weigh?"

The ex-vacationist blushed.

"I was only out a little," he confessed. "I went to my brother's farm, and he made me work in the hayfields."

The entire staff, knowing its man, gazed at him in amazement.

"He made you work?" repeated the office boy. "Say, Mark, you're a worse liar now than you ever were before."—Chicago Tribune.

By raising the cooking vessel off the flat surface, they allow the air to circulate under it, which adds immeasurably to the ability to do fine work.

The corrugated oven is one of the many patented features of the HAPPY THOUGHT. It can be found on no other range.

CRAVATH WINS

A SERIES OF TEN STORIES BY JOHN T McINTYRE

COPYRIGHT 1912 BY THE NORTH AMERICAN CO.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING STORIES

CRAVATH is an athletic young fellow in search of $1000. His quest for the coin leads him to a gilded cafe, where he can most readily get rid of his sole remaining cash. Luck favors, however, and he meets his Boswell, the narrator of his subsequent adventures, in the person of a good-natured promoter of athletic sports named Scanlon. It so happens that the latter is in the dumps. His "white hope," a mammoth specimen of stonemason that he had matched to fight the "Gravedigger" at the Pelican Athletic Club, has decided not to risk having his beauty spoiled in the ring. The purse is $1000, and as that is just the amount Cravath needs, he agrees to be a "ringer." It seems that the thousand is the price of a certain dueling pistol belonging to a Miss Betterton, then in Europe, with whom Cravath is in love. When he recovers it, he gets the girl. She wants the pistol because it is her sole and only claim to aristocratic lineage. One of her ancestors used it when he seconded a gentleman in a duel, so it is proof positive that the ancestor was a gentleman.

When Cravath enters the ring, he goes after the thousand as rapidly as possible—in the first place, because he needs the money, and in the second, because he is not in trim to stand a long fight. The "Gravedigger" goes down, and the "white hope's" substitute walks away with the coin.

Next day the papers are full of the sensation—an aristocratic amateur has entered the professional ranks and pounded the other fellow for what there is in it. Most scandalized of all are "Old Blaylow" and his son, who are intent upon taking Miss Betterton and her money into their family. Blaylow calls upon Cravath at his suburban home, to induce him to give up his claims to the young woman, but without avail. In the afternoon, however, Cravath is obliged to call up Scanlon and impart the information that the thousand has been stolen. Suspicion, of course, attaches to Blaylow. In the night the two repair to Blaylow's house, where the money is supposed to be hidden in a Flemish cabinet. Unfortunately, another has taken up the quest before them, and he gets away with the money. Not to be outdone, they pursue the thief and rob him, regaining the missing money.

Still determined, "Old Blaylow" induces a racing man, who is the worse for wear, to borrow Cravath's thousand to bet on one of his superannuated thoroughbreds. But Scanlon gets on to the game in time, and substitutes a live horse, so that the money is not lost.

Next the two buy the pistol. But Cravath is visited at his home by a beautiful woman, a sister of young Blaylow, who palms a bogus weapon off on him. The men suspect, however, that the dealer has "done" both parties, so they visit him and bluff him into disgorging the genuine firearm.

Taking another tack, the Blaylows endeavor to have the real pistol stolen by a Swedish butler, whom they "plant" in Cravath's home, but the plot is discovered, barely in time.

VI.—The Adventure of the Antiquarian

IT WAS about 4 in the afternoon, and I was lounging in the hotel lobby, indulging in much wise talk with some strangers who were in the city for the first time; a boy approached me.

"Mr. Scanlon," said he, "you are wanted on the telephone."

Responding to this, I found that it was Cravath on the other end.

"How are you fixed for time?" he asked.

"I have plenty," answered I.

"I am going to call on my old friend, Professor Michlenberg," said Cravath. "If you'd care to go, I'd like to have you. He's one of the most interesting and picturesque characters in the city."

"Michlenberg," repeated I. "I can't say that he's ever come under my notice. But I'll go, anyway."

"Good! You'll not want for entertainment, for the old boy is the best kind of a fellow. Get here in time for dinner and we'll start right afterward. In the meantime," he concluded, "if you'd like to know something about the professor, take a look at the evening paper."

I bought a newspaper later on the street corner while waiting for a car. Under a heading, some size and much blackness, I found what I sought. The heading read:

"TURNED TURTLE!
Speeding Automobile Takes an Unexpected Flop.
Professor Michlenberg Hurt.
No One Able to Account for the Accident."

The story of the affair stated that Professor Michlenberg was a noted antiquarian; that morning he had ordered out his car to pay a visit to a friend. While going at a slow pace along a level road, the chauffeur suddenly lost control; the car shot over a low embankment, spilling both passenger and driver into a heap of sand. There was a great deal more which told of the professor's wonderful collection of manuscripts, rare porcelains, pottery, rugs and furniture. Also of a number of volumes which he had written upon the subject of these things. Altogether, the victim of the accident seemed to be a person of more than usual quality.

At dinner Cravath told me more.

"Professor Michlenberg, as you may suppose, is a German, but he has been in this country many years. Some little political fuss over there, I believe, made him leave the fatherland. His collections and his knowledge of ancient races, ancient creeds, ancient implements of peace and war, architecture, art, marine construction and, in fact, everything old, is colossal. You'd wonder how any single brain could contain it all."

"I wouldn't suppose it would be a thing that paid very well, though," said I, thinking of the main chance.

"The professor possibly never thought of that," said Cravath. "In the first place, he has never been forced to, for he is rich; in the second, he loves the work for itself, and not for any money reward that it might bring him."

"I see," said I.

"Since coming here," proceeded my friend, "he has interested himself in those things in our early history which come within the circle of his studies. His work on the uniforms of the American troops during the revolution is the last word upon that subject; the flags of the various states and commands during that period have also had much light thrown upon them by the researches of the old scholar, as have the arms of the farmer and artisan soldiers who formed the commands."

Somehow, at this last I grew uncomfortable; but I made no comment, and Cravath continued:

"His interest in old arms was indirectly the cause of his accident this morning. He was on his way here to examine the Betterton pistol when his car went over the bank."

"He's heard that you have it, then?" said I.

"Yes; though how he got the information, I don't know."

The feeling of discomfort grew upon me. This old weapon meant so much to the youngster and so many attempts had been made upon it by those interested in his non-success that I disliked hearing anything new touching upon it.

"However," said Cravath, "the old boy shall not be disappointed. I'm going to take the gun around to him tonight, and he can look at it to his heart's content."

Dinner was over, we had smoked our cigars and ordered and entered a taxi when something in my manner caught the attention of Cravath.

"What's wrong, old chap?" asked he. "There is a pall hanging about you that is absolutely chilling."

"To be candid," said I, "I don't like these things which have to do with that pistol. Not one of them, so far, has developed other than unfavorably."

He laughed.

"That's so, looking at it from a strictly skeptical point of view. But, you must remember, in all those cases there was an unknown quantity; here we have no such thing to face. We know, or at least I know, all about the professor. He is an old and trusted friend."

"Oh, of course I'm not doubting the professor," I hastened to say. "Unquestionably, he's all right. But upon the matter of the Betterton pistol I'm a conservative; I am utterly opposed to anything new having to do with that ancient weapon. What has already occurred in regard to it has made me as suspicious as an old lady who has been given cold tea."

Professor Michlenberg's house stood by itself in the center of a square of grass-grown, iron-fenced ground, in a thickly built-up portion of the city. The windows were hung with gloomy-looking curtains, the steps were dusty and the bell-pull had a tarnished, neglected look.

"Being a bachelor, the professor has no one to give these matters attention," apologized Cravath.

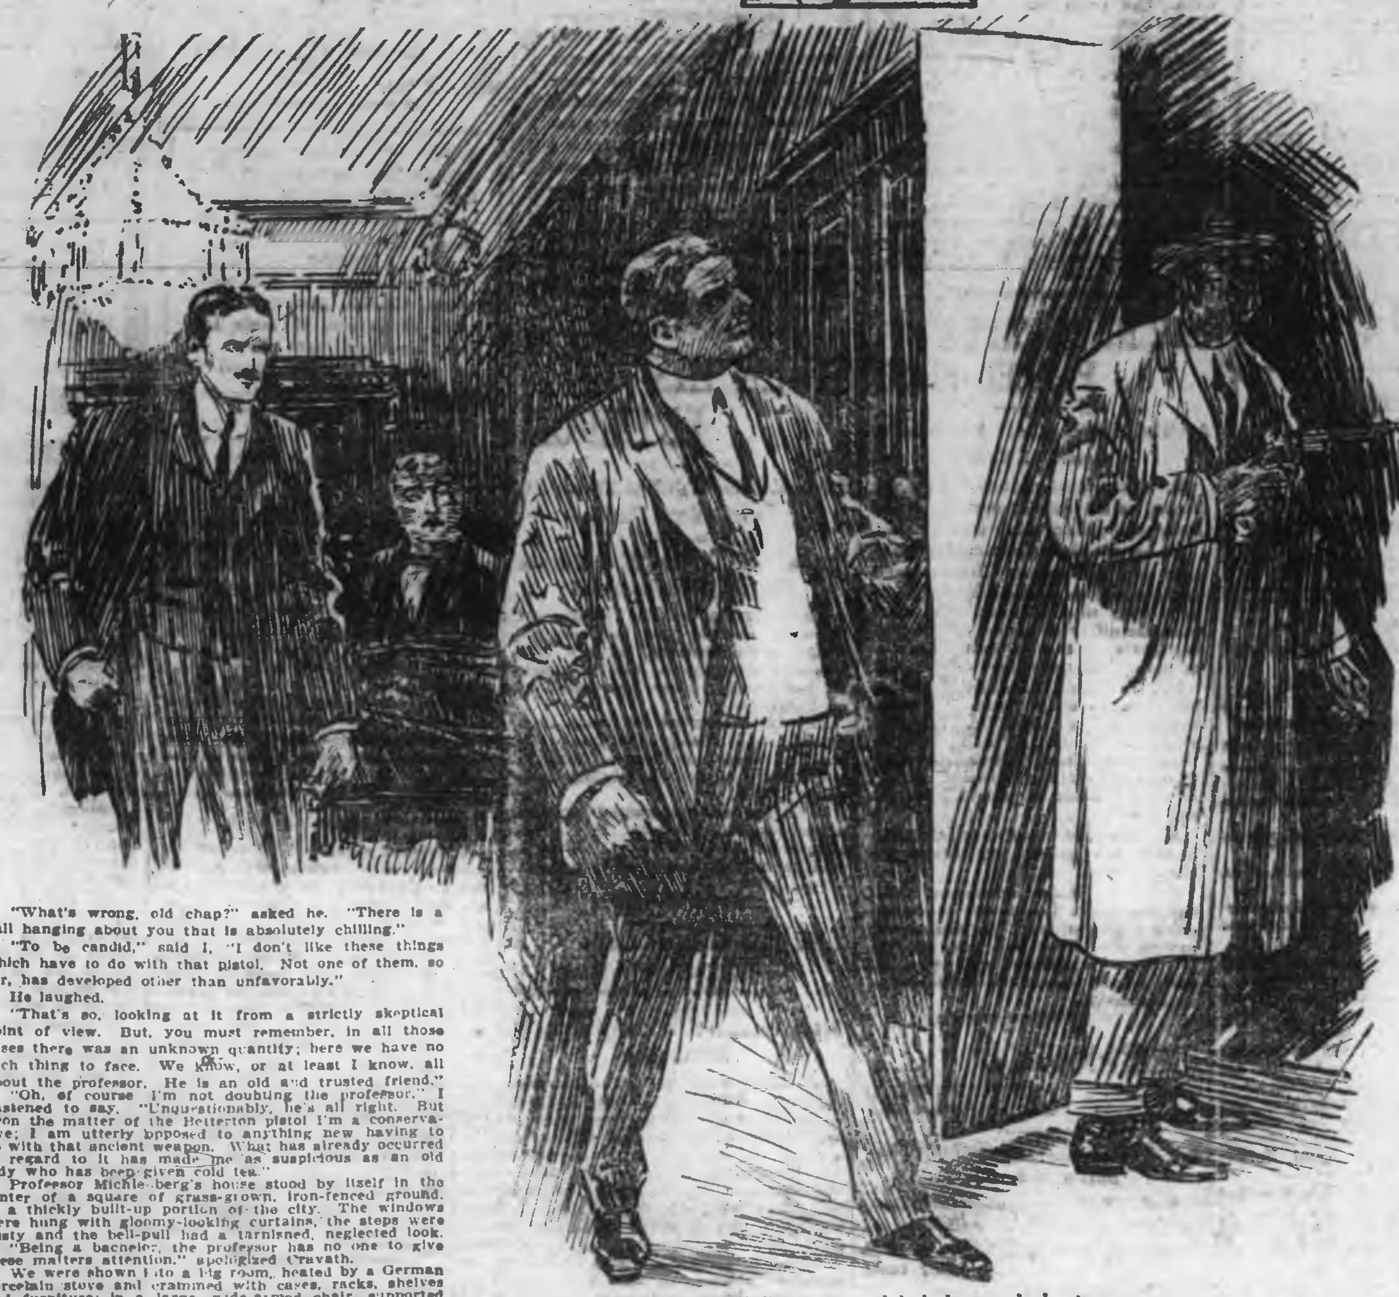
We were shown into a big room, heated by a German porcelain stove and crammed with cases, racks, shelves and furniture; in a large, wide-armed chair, supported by pillows, sat the professor; one leg was bandaged and resting upon a second chair; his big, domelike bald head was covered by a small red fez and a strip of court plaster was parallel with his left eyebrow.

"You will both excuse me, blease," he said, as he shook hands with us. "I am jusd now very much disturbed mit my bones. It is by an aggsident that I am made so."

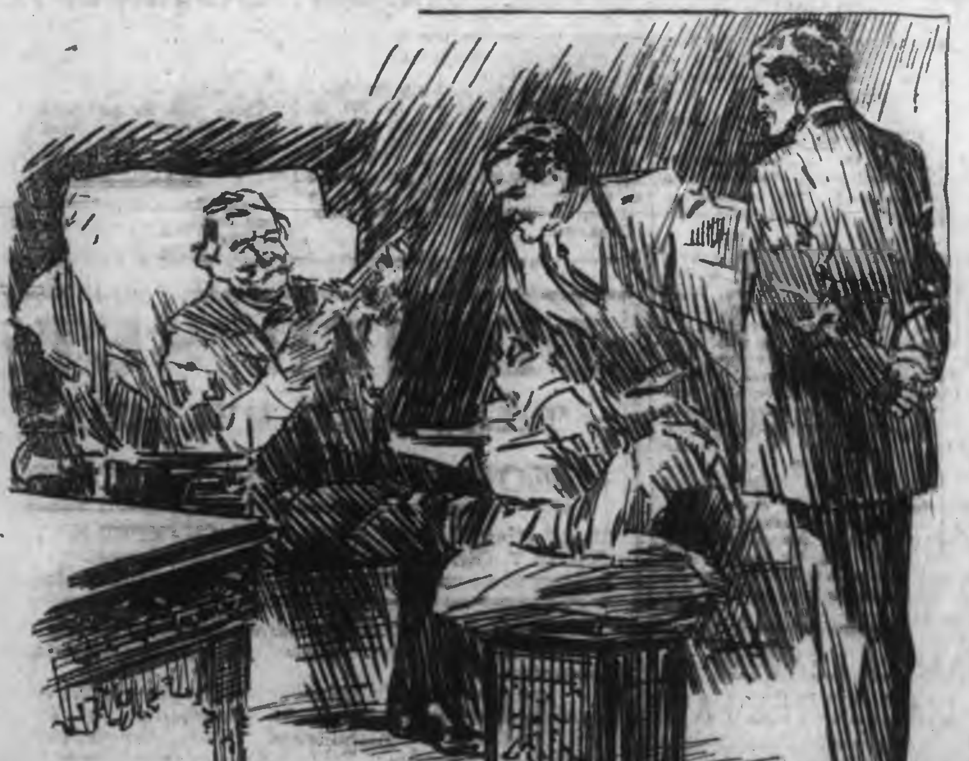
"Yes, your man called me on the telephone," said Cravath; "he told me that you were on your way to see me when the thing happened."

"So!" The professor nursed his bandaged leg with much solicitude; also he stroked his plastered brow. "It is a bleasure," he stated, nodding his head, gently, "to haf friends who think me so much worth their while."

We sat down, and a man servant, at the old German's orders, brought a bottle of pale green wine and some dark cigars. Then he opened a folding table, pushed the professor's chair up to it and settled him comfortably.



"'Come out and let's have a look at you



"'It is of Irish make. Der duel was a favorite pastime in Ireland'"

"I trust," said Cravath, "your hurts are nothing serious."

"Ach Gott!" grumbled the scholar, "I might haf been killed yet."

Here the man servant murmured something regretfully, but the professor waved it away.

"Howefer," he told Cravath, "it is all nodding but scratches und small cuts. In a veek I vill be better airetty."

I looked about the big, high-ceilinged apartment. The shelves were crowded with dusty tomes, mishandled scrolls and tattered manuscript; in the cases and racks were archaic weapons, shields which had, apparently, taken many a well-meant blow; armor of ornate design and insignia of many sorts. The furniture was huge, dark and sprawling, plainly of many countries and many periods. The table at which we sat might have seen service in the hall of some spacious old German baron; the carved paneling of the wall, just above it, might have adorned the hall of a crafty Venetian merchant whose argosies covered the seas and whose sacks of ducats half filled some secret chamber. Professor Michlenberg saw me examining this, and, blowing out the match with which he had just lighted his cigar, he said:

"A fine biece of work, eh? Nodding which I haf is in more berfect condition; der lion of St. Mark has not lost even a hair from his tail, und he is represended sefen hundred dimes in der carfing."

"It shows excellent handling," ventured I. "Extreme care in taking down and putting up."

The professor sipped at the pale green wine.

"I suberindended both broceedings," he told me, "Und if dose fellers had but slibbed mit a hant, I would haf torn them by pieces."

Here he plunged into the history of the panels, which, so it seemed, had been carved by a celebrated artist in that line for an equally celebrated politician who afterward become a doge. But he stopped suddenly, shook his head, refilled his glass and took another cigar. Said he:

"To talk of Venice under der Venetians of dot time is like talking of someding dot tasdes bad or schmells strong. Dere vos so much vispering und blotting und sticking der knife into beoples ribs dot we'll dry und forget about it. Ven a man can kill his enemy by simply writing his name on a biece of paper, it is bad; much better vos it when he called him oud und in a fair fight imbaled him on a rapier or shot him mit der bistol."

"Such as ancestor Betterton did," spoke Cravath, with a smile.

The professor nodded.

"Exacdly," said he. "Der duel is now not thought much of, but it was not her worst thing in der world by any means. At lead, a man had in it a chance, which is more than you can say for some odder things which are still considered necessary to our happiness." Then, with his hand to his court-plastered brow, he looked at Cravath, and went on:

"Chust now you mentioned the name of Betterton. Franz, dis morning only, told me dot you haf der Betterton bistol in your bossession, und I was aboud to call on you to see id when I der aggsident met with."

"So Franz told me over the telephone," said Cravath.

In German the servant murmured something in an apologetic tone; the old antiquarian nodded his head indulgently.

"Franz," said he to us, "is a good servant. He is always drying to make things easy for me."

It was about then that I began to notice Franz. Previously he had been a part of the room's furniture, but now he seemed to grow, somehow, suddenly apart. He was a soft-footed, deft-handed fellow, and his low, murmurous German was particularly ingratiating. And when I had finished my examination of him, and turned my attention once more to my friend and the professor, I found that Cravath had produced the pistol case and that the Betterton flintlock was lying upon the table.

"Ah, yes, yes," Professor Michlenberg said as he took it up. "It is of Irish make. Der duel was a favorite pastime in Ireland, und so, nadurally, they gonstrucded der tools for it in large numbers."

"I have heard it said," spoke Cravath, "that this is a somewhat out of the ordinary example."

The German nodded.

"It is so," said he. "My Lord Fairfax had a pair of bistols, of which this is one, made for his especial use, and, being a rich man, der workmanship und art expended vos out of der ordinary. I haf heard dot der inlaying has a suggestion of der oriental, which is for why I wished to see id." Then, turning toward the servant, he said, "Franz, my lens."

The man went to an ancient and infirm desk; instantly there was a crash; one of its tottering legs had given way and it had toppled over upon him. With a cry, the professor leaped up; one of his beloved pieces was in danger, and he forgot his injured leg in the desire to go to the rescue. But the limb instantly entered a protest, and the professor, in turn, was toppling over when Cravath and I caught him. It took but a moment to replace him in his chair, lift the desk from the prostrate Franz and brace it up. Then, when the smoke, so to speak, had cleared away, the Betterton flintlock was found to have gone with it.

The professor, with his eyes blazing with excitement, placed one fingertip carefully upon the table.

"It was here," said he, in a subdued sort of way, "dot I laid it. Chust here; on this exact spot," tapping the table softly. "But where is it now?"

Both Cravath and I had looked upon the floor and chairs upon the first alarm. But no pistol.

"If it had fallen from the table when we all leaped up," stated Cravath, "it would be upon the floor."

I laboriously moved several heavy articles of furniture which stood near, but the missing flintlock was not beneath either. Then I formally agreed with my friend.

"You are right," said I. "Not being upon the floor, it did not fall from the table. And, being gone, there is but one other thing to suppose."

"It was taken from the table," said Cravath.

Professor Michlenberg steadied himself with the pale green wine, then he took the fez from his big, bare head and passed a hand over the gleaming surface.

"Who took it?" asked he, troubled.

I had already asked myself this. There were but four people in the room, and the process of elimination left the thing as foggy as before. The professor could not have taken it, for I saw him throw it upon the table as I leaped up. Franz was beyond suspicion, because he was a half a dozen yards away, with a heavy antique desk upon him; that I had not taken it was certain, and Cravath would have had no reason for so doing.

When I had gone over this, Cravath nodded his head.

"None of us took it, and yet it was taken," said he. "Therefore, some one else must have entered the room."

Again I looked about.

The windows were all closed, and the curtains were drawn; the only door was at the far end of the room.

"Then," said I, "if that is the case, he or she is still here. It is barely possible that some one entered during the moment's flurry following the overturning of the desk, but that they should have gone out since then, unseen, is impossible."

Franz here volunteered some information.

"While on the floor," said he, "I felt a draught."

"If that is all you felt," said Cravath, dryly, "why, for a man dragged from under a heavy desk, you are extremely lucky."

Professor Michlenberg produced a key.

"Being der room inside," stated he, firmly, "we shall keep it so." He gave the key to Cravath. "Lock der door up," he directed. "Then we will haf no outside going."

Cravath locked the door, and I saw to the windows; then we began a thorough and systematic search. But still no pistol.

The bald head of Professor Michlenberg, with the fez now set rakishly upon the back of it, shone with perspiration. With one hand he caressed his bandaged limb; with the other he gesticulated wildly.

"I am sorry," he informed Cravath. "I am eggstremely sorry that such a thing should in my house dake place. How it has happened I don't know. It is strange und it is queer. I cannot eggsplain it."

"Well," said I, "in that you have nothing on any of the rest of us, professor. The old gun must have taken wings to disappear as it has. I can see no other way out of it."

Cravath poured himself out a drink to enable him to get a fresh mental start; I took another cigar, and, while drawing upon it for inspiration, I watched Franz, who still continued the search. Quietly he went about, with a sort of gliding motion; not a sound did he make. Under his experienced touch, things turned or slid without the usual creaks of protest. Carefully, he sought in the most impossible places, and at length I said, irritatedly:

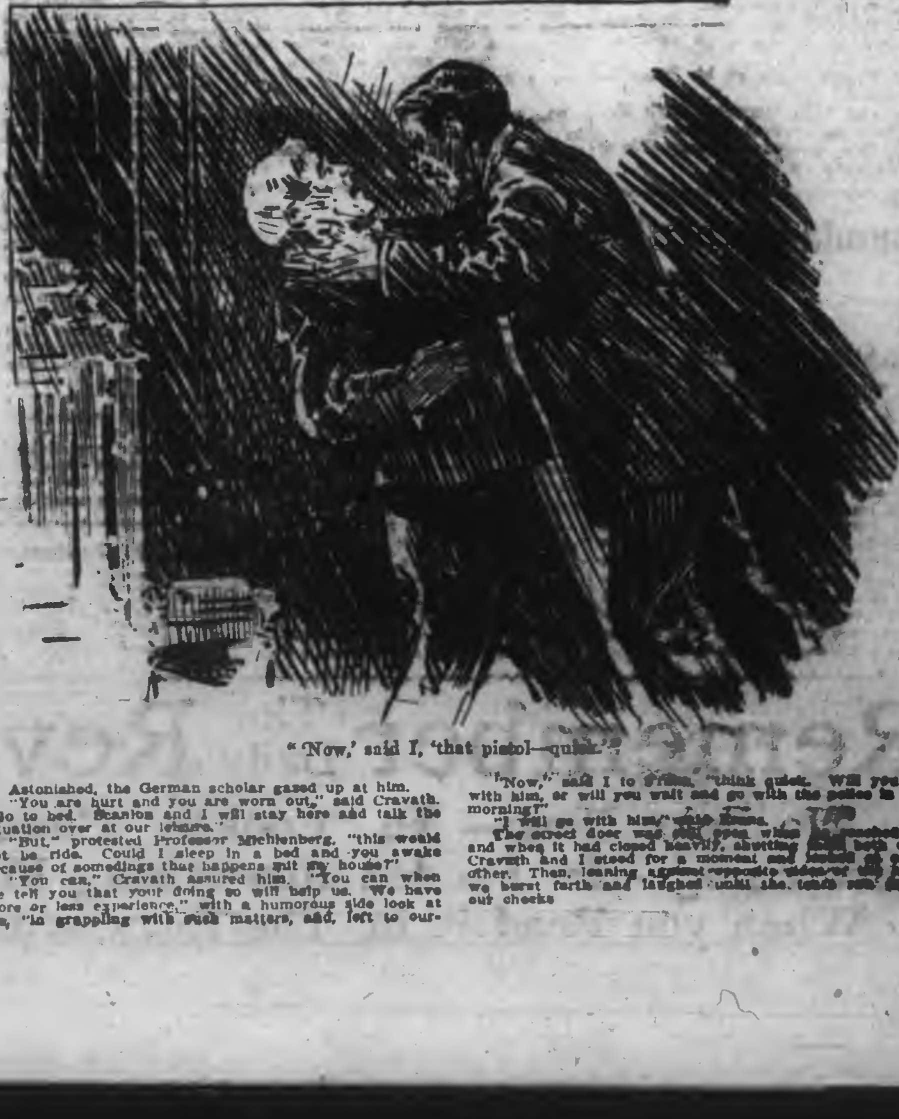
"Suppose you sit down for a space. We wouldn't have you exhaust yourself for the world."

He bowed and drew himself up stiffly, and, while Cravath and I renewed the search, he stood by his employer's chair, and never once, I believe, turned his eyes upon us. After more than an hour of it, we surrendered once more.

"It is beculiar," stated the professor, wearily. "In my life neffer did I haf such a thing habben pefore. But," with conviction, "it shall be found. Dot bistol shall be found. I will der bolice call in at once."

But Cravath would have none of that.

"The police," he stated, "would only muddle the matter. But if you are set on doing something, all right. Go to bed."



"'Now,' said I, 'that pistol—quick'"

Astonished, the German scholar gazed up at him.

"You are hurt and you are worn out," said Cravath. "Go to bed. Scanlon and I will stay here and talk the situation over at our leisure."

"But," protested Professor Michlenberg, "this would not be ride. Could I sleep in a bed and you awake pecause of somedings that happens mit my house?"

"You can," Cravath assured him. "You can when we tell you that your doing so will help us. We have more or less experience," with a humorous side look at me, "in grappling with such matters, and, left to ourselves, we come at the core of the difficulty with much more speed."

"All ride," said the old man; "in dot case I will go. Franz," to his servant, "give me your arm a little."

"Just a moment," said I. "Cravath will help you to your room," pushing that gentleman forward. "He is stronger than Franz, and will be of more use."

In spite of my words, the noiseless Franz insinuated himself between Cravath and the professor, but at my wink the former shouldered him unceremoniously aside and helped the older man up. I unlocked the door and opened it; then, when they had gone wavering out, I reclosed it, shot the bolt once more and took Franz by the throat.

"Now," said I, "that pistol—quick."

He gasped and choked and tried to tear my hands away.

"Pistol!" wheezed he, in a frightened sort of way. "What do I know about it?"

I shoved him into a chair and stood before him, one finger pointing after the impressive conception of the popular-priced star.

"Franz," said I, "when you make a parade of injured innocence, you do yourself an injustice. Forget it, and hand over the pistol."

He felt of his throat tenderly.

"I tell you I haven't got it." Then, with defiance, "What do you take me for, anyway?"

"As to that," said I, "we will confer together again. But for the present we will stick to the flintlock. You say you haven't it. Very well. Then, who has?"

A grin broke through the defiance.

"How should I know?" he said.

Just then the handle of the door turned. it and Cravath re-entered.

"Hello," said he. "What's this?"

"Franz," said I, "denies any knowledge of the pistol. I am upon the point of demonstrating to him just how he is wasting his time."

"I see," said Cravath.

Once more I turned to Franz. This time I dispensed with the extended finger, having lost some of my confidence in it. Instead I placed both hands behind me and regarded the man fixedly.

"You," stated I, "are employed by a man who is entirely unsuspicious. This is known by a certain person. That person approaches you, bankroll in hand. He makes you a proposition. You accept."

Franz seemed taken aback by this. Through the tail of my eye I saw that Cravath had also been stirred.

"After agreeing," I proceeded, "you at once brought Mr. Cravath's possession of the Betterton pistol to Professor Michlenberg's attention. Instantly his enthusiasm was aroused; he ordered out his car, you drove it and a few miles away you selected a soft spot and had a spill."

Franz sprang up, fright in his face and denial on his lips.

"Why," demanded he, "should I do a thing like that?"

"If you'll keep on listening, you'll find out," I told him. "The result of the spill," I went on, "was that the professor had to be brought back home and put in bandages. Then you telephoned the facts to Mr. Cravath."

"Well, there was no harm in that, was there?" viciously.

"In itself, no. But what followed was what the man with the bankroll had figured upon. Mr. Cravath paid an early visit to the friend who had been injured on the way to make a call upon him. And, as was most natural, he brought with him that article which it had been his friend's desire to see."

Franz coughed and fidgeted with his hands. Cravath nodded his head with approval.

"Very neatly planned and most ingenuously followed out," said he. "I give much credit to the Blaylows—and to you," the nods being now directed at me, "I will some day present a handsome medal."

"Before doing so," said I, "hear the full result of my thoughts. When the pistol was exhibited, our friend here knew that the professor would ask for his lens. He had the piece of business with the desk arranged for, and when it toppled over and all our attention was concentrated upon him, the pistol was hidden."

Here Franz laughed.

"You have imagined your way through all that," said he. "Why not go the rest of the distance? Who took the pistol?"

"Blaylow," said I, promptly, "or some one in his pay."

"More likely the latter than not," spoke Cravath. "It was"—he looked at Franz questioningly—"it was a Venetian, I think."

Right here I had the surprise of my life, for, throwing off all restraint, Franz hurled himself at the fastened door. In a moment we had him, and in another he was in a chair, snugly wrapped with ropes and helpless.

"Now," demanded I of Cravath, assuming great ease of manner, but breathing deeply, for Franz had proved no infant, "if you don't mind, I'd like to hear something more about this Venetian. It is a step beyond me, I think."

Cravath smiled.

"During the evening," he said, "I have had occasion to notice Franz more than once. But I would have forgotten his little oddities of deportment had your manner strongly called my attention to him. Things which had no meaning before now come back to me as full of it as they can stick. The man is a trained servant; yet when he put out the wine and cigars he drew his injured employer's chair to the table, instead of the table to the chair."

"So," said I.

"While serving us I noted that Franz also gave quite a bit of his attention to the inspection of a certain item in the professor's collection. After his adventure with the desk and your calling him off in his hunt for the pistol, he stood behind the professor's chair and seemed vexed. He had scarcely a glance for us or our efforts, but stared the greater part of the time at this identical item."

"And that was—?"

He pointed to the wall.

"The Venetian paneling," said he. As he spoke he stepped toward it, and his hand ran lightly over the smooth, dark surface. "As it happens, I have become more or less familiar with it through the professor's talks and my own frequent examinations. [illegible]"

His hand paused at a certain spot; with not the least sound, part of the paneling folded back, [illegible] Cravath said:

"Come out and let's have a look at you."

Young Blaylow, somewhat dusty, emerged; he had a smile upon his face and the Betterton pistol in his hand.

"This," he said, "I think, is temporarily yours."

"Many thanks." Cravath thrust the flintlock into a side pocket of his coat. As he did so, he signed to me and I released Franz. Then he continued to Blaylow: "I will show you the way out."

Blaylow nodded smilingly; he followed Cravath from the room.

"Now," said I to Franz, "think quick. Will you go with him, or will you wait and go with the police in the morning?"

"I will go with him," said Franz.

The street door was still open when he reached it, and when it had closed heavily, shutting them both out, Cravath and I stood for a moment and looked at each other. Then, leaning against opposite sides of the hall, we burst forth and laughed until the tears ran [illegible] our cheeks.

ENGINE AND CAR LEFT THE TRACKS

Mishap to the Port Hope to Toronto Train

The Grand Trunk train from Port Hope to Toronto, which reaches here at 5.35 p.m., left the track just this side of Millbrook, yesterday afternoon. The train was just leaving the station. The engine and baggage car were derailed. The cause of the accident was a half opened switch leading onto the old Lindsay line. The Lakefield train left here at 5.55 p.m., and brought the Peterborough passengers here, arriving at 7.30 o'clock. The Lindsay auxiliary was summoned for and arrived shortly after 6 o'clock.

The wrecked train was on the track about 11 o'clock and carried the Lindsay and Toronto passengers to their destinations by way of the old Lindsay line.

THE NEWSPAPER PLACED FIRST

As the Medium of Advertising Goods on Sale

Three excellent addresses were delivered at the regular meeting of the Peterborough Ad. Club last evening.

Mr. J McNichol, advertising manager of Cressman's Departmental Store, spoke on "Retail Advertising" in a very able manner. He dealt with the different means of advertising goods on sale to consumers and he placed the newspaper first.

Mr. J. McNab, of Richard Hall & Son's store, dealt with "Window Trimming," and Mr. Ed. Williams, of Farm and Dairy, told how to "Write and Print Circular Letters." "To be effective a circular letter," he said, "should be signed with pen and ink."

All three addresses were freely discussed, and praised, by those present.

President Nixon announced that the Executive Committee is considering a plan of work for the coming season. The Club will take up the question of getting out printing matter and illustrated souvenirs of Peterborough.

PREPARATION OF POULTRY

R. J. Winch Arranges list of Questions and Answers

R. J. Winch has handed the following list of questions and answers in regard to the preparation of poultry, which will interest many rural readers, no doubt:

1. Should poultry be fasted before killing? if so, how long? Certainy, for 24 hours at leist.

2. Which is the proper way to kill them? By breaking the neck, if for the English market, and bleeding, if for the Canadian market.

3. Should they be scalded or dry picked? Dry picked by all means; scalding spoils appearance of skin and prevents them keeping well.

4. Should poultry be put into cold water over night in order to keep them in warm weather, or what effect would it have on them? No; it spoils both their skin and appearance.

5. Will poultry keep better and longer properly fasted, or not properly fasted and drawn, or not drawn? No, they will not keep as well drawn as undrawn.

6. Should poultry have their legs tied up with a cord before bringing them to market for sale? Yes; it enhances their value by making a poor bird look well.

7. What do you consider the difference in price between well fattened stock or medium, or poorly fattened stock? Our poultry must not be sent to the British market unless properly fattened. Unless properly fattened we would lose from 3 to 5 cents per lb.

8. Should poultry be allowed to run at large while being fattened, or should they be penned up in a small dark place? The quickest way is to pen them up.

9. Is there any other way to fatten poultry quicker than the usual way farmers handle them? Yes, by special methods and foods, and by a forcing apparatus.

10. Is it cruel to force poultry while they are being fattened? No.

11. What effect does it have on poultry brought to market with their crops full? The contents of the crop sours and ferments, and in consequence the carcass is tainted.

12. Does it lessen the value of poultry to run them in order to catch them before killing? Yes

13. Should poultry be allowed to freeze before being marketed? No.

14. After bleeding or cutting their heads off, is it cruel to pick the feathers off while the bird is still kicking? No.

15. Would you advise selling poultry by weight? Would you not think it was the fairest way? Also eggs? Yes by all means; eggs also.

Song and Dance "Cure."

In a letter quoted by The London Times, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, who has been exploring Arctic Canada, says: "There are two ways of treating diseases or injuries among the Kogmolliks (Herschel Island to Parry). These are: (1) Blood letting (apparently referred to by some writers as 'counter irritation') and (2) magic. In regard to the latter there are certain men in the community known as doctors. Their treatment is by songs and dances, with sometimes a sleight-of-hand trick or two, and neither the invalid nor the audience take any active part. The details are somewhat complicated, and I have seen no performance so far. After the performance the doctor is paid—in the old days the fee went as high as two to three whaling uniaks (big skin boats). If the invalid is poor everybody gives the doctor something — a fox-skin, spear, bag of oil, or other things of value. If the man treated dies within the year his wife or children get the fee back—under other conditions the fee is retained.

It would seem that little progress is being made by the religious workers among the Kogmolliks, but in the matter of secular instruction it is different. A surprisingly large number can read and write a little. In the evenings the people play whist, casino, and other games with cards, as well as checkers and dominoes. In these games all members of the family, from about 10 to 12 years of age, usually join. Cleanliness is increasing. Everyone washes with soap and water every morning, and the women especially frequently take sponge baths. So far as Mr. Stefansson can see the Eskimo people are learning more of good than bad from the whites."

Dearth of Seals.

Reports from St. John's, Newfoundland, state that the sealing fleet of Newfoundland had the worst season in the history of the sealing industry. The total catch so far is only 50,000 seals, which is less than one boat secured in 1910.

The fleet comprised 2,000 men and many vessels. They struck an ice "pan" with 30,000 seals which they speedily slaughtered. Then followed a hunt by steamers, ploughing through the ice for the main herd, which usually floats down on ice from the Polar regions.

The search was kept up for hundreds of miles through the ice in every direction, but without success. The fleet then sailed south to find the main herd but in vain. The average catch is 300,000 skins, representing a million dollars. This meant a staggering blow to the general trade of the colony.

TAFT'S RUNNING MATE DIES ON THE EVE OF ELECTION

Vice-President Sherman's Name Appears on the Ballot in Some States—Was an Old Line Republican, and Widely Known and Loved Among His Associates.

Utica, N.Y., Oct. 31.—After a long illness Vice-President James Schoolcraft Sherman [illegible] at his home in this city at 9.42 o'clock last night of urenic poison, caused by Bright's disease, complicated by heart disease and arteric-sclerosis.

He had been sinking since early morning and it was realized that death was a question of only a few hours. There was slight relief shortly after 7 o'clock, caused by an apparent improvement in the condition of the kidneys, but it did not prove real or lasting, and at best gave only temporary hope. At 9 o'clock the temperature rose to 106. From that time the condition rapidly passed from bad to worse until the end. He was unconscious when the end came and had been so for several hours. The members of the immediate family were witnesses of the final scene. In addition to Mrs. Sherman there were their three sons, Sherrill, Richard and Thomas, and their respective wives; R. W. and Sanford Sherman, brothers of Mr. Sherman, and Mrs. L. B. Moore and Mrs. H. J. Cookinham, sisters of Mr. Sherman.

Alarming symptoms in the condition of the vice-president gave great concern to himself and the members of his family more than six months ago. Only the closest personal and political friends were aware of the real situation. Mr. Sherman's happy disposition and his famous smile were misleading, and those who saw him as the presiding officer of the Senate never dreamed that he suffered from pain and worry.

Although Mr. Sherman was unable to take part in the campaign and make speeches throughout the country as he did four years ago, he took a great interest in the political activities of his rivals in the contest for the vice-presidency. He read many speeches of Governors Marshall and Johnson, but in his only contribution to the campaign, a prepared address.

Will Not Affect Ballots.

New York, Oct. 31.—Mr. Sherman's death having occurred prior to the election, it will not be necessary to make any change in the ballots already printed and in process of distribution to the polling places, for no vote is cast directly for the vice-president. Electors are chosen to cast the ballots of their constituents for candidates for President and vice-president, and while there is a moral obligation resting on those electors to support the nominees of the party, the instructions are merely directory and not mandatory. Therefore, there will be no defect in the ballots to be cast for the Republican candidates for Presidential electors, even though they appear as in some states, upon the ticket under the name of "Taft and Sherman," Mr. Sherman being deceased.

The National Republican Convention delegated to its national committee power to fill a vacancy on the ticket, but it is known that the committee will not be assembled at this time.

Already there has been discussion of the availability of Governor Deneen, Senator Borah, Senator Cummins, Senator La Follette, former Vice-President Fairbanks, Senator Root, Senator Burton, Senator Lodge, Governor Goldsborough and others.

Sherman belonged to the school of Republicanism nowadays popularly "Regular."

To the House of Representatives of the 50th congress he came in the winter of 1887, just past his 27th birthday, when the energy and optimism of youth, college-bred from the halls of Hamilton.

He had, like many others who came to lead in the national legislature, brought with him an education in law. His father, Richard U. Sherman, was an editor and public figure in New York State.

Two sessions of Congress found Sherman defeated and out of office, but not for long. In the interim he went back to Utica, built up his law practice and returned to the 53rd Congress with a signal victory. He remained in the House without defeat to the 60th Congress, when he was nominated and elected vice-president on the ticket with Mr. Taft. The late vice-president was christened James Schoolcraft Sherman. But in nearly a quarter of a century of public life, "Jim" Sherman he was to his intimates, and probably half the nation referred to him as "Sunny Jim," a sobriquet he earned as one might well imagine by a never-failing, all-year-round sunny disposition.

ASK FOR GRANT OF $200,000

To King Edward Memorial Fund For Consumptives.

Toronto, Oct. 31.—One of the most influential deputations ever seen at the City Hall yesterday asked the Board of Control to submit a bylaw at the January elections providing for a grant of $200,000 from the City of Toronto toward the one-million dollar King Edward Memorial Fund for Consumptives. The deputation was headed by Lieutenant-Governor Sir John Gibson, who presented a petition signed by twenty of Toronto's most prominent citizens. Fifty more leading business men and clergymen were present to support the proposal, which has been given the royal approval. Mayor Hocken and the controllers gave what was virtually a definite promise that the bylaw would be submitted as requested. In the proposed million-dollar fund, the lands, buildings and equipment of the institutions now maintained by the National Sanitarium Association are being included at a valuation of $400,000. If the city gives $200,000, the trustees of the association pledge themselves to raise the remaining $400,000 within the next two months.

Chinese Assassination.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Cable despatches to The Chicago Daily News from Pekin, China, say the Mohammedans have assassinated Liching Chang, president of the Kanau Provincial Assembly, because he opposed making Maan Liang, the Mohammedan, governor of the province.

The despatches add that the followers of Maan control the province, and that the unrest in Shensi and Shensi is growing.

The crime was committed on the night of July 1st. The actual assault was committed by Palmer, Henderson preventing the brother from interfering.

SENATOR BELL PASSES AWAY

Picton, N.S., Legislator is Dead at Age of 65.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—Senator Adam Carr Bell of Pictou, N.S., passed away unexpectedly at the Royal Victoria Hospital at shortly before 8 o'clock last night, after being in indifferent health since July. Dr. John Bell of New Glasgow was the only member of his family with him when the end came.

Early in October, accompanied by his son, Adam Bell, he went to Mount Clemens Sanatorium, Mich., and the change seemed to benefit him considerably. On his way home he visited friends in Montreal, and while here he decided to go to the Royal Victoria Hospital for treatment.

While in a weakened condition Senator Bell's condition was not regarded as serious, and he soon recovered from a minor operation, which was performed in that institution. On Tuesday, however, he began to sink.

Senator Bell was born at Pictou, N.S., 65 years ago. He entered politics as a Liberal member of the Provincial House in 1878, and was Provincial Secretary from May to July, 1882. He was elected to the Federal House in 1896, and again in 1900.

BIG ARMY OF TURKS FLEE IN PANIC BEFORE BULGARIANS

Complete Defeat of the Ottoman Army Under Naxim Pasha is Brought About---Tentative Agreement as to Form Intervention Will Take, is Said to Have Been Reached.

Special To The Review.

London, Oct. 31—Later despatches from Sophia repeat the story of the complete defeat of the Turkish army of two hundred thousand men by Bulgarians at Luleburgas after three days engagements, and says the Bulgarian cavalry are pursuing. The conclusion of this battle will probably provide an opportunity for intervention of the powers, none of whom, not even Russia, is willing that the Bulgarians should enter Constantinople. It is understood from Vienna that foreign ministers of powers have reached a tentative agreement as to the form the intervention should take and that Balkan States have privately intimated their willingness to accept intervention.

Sofia, Oct. 31— Later— The Bulgarian army has completely routed the Turks, under Nazim Pasha The Turks fled in disorder, leaving many killed and wounded.

London, Oct. 31.—The silence of Sofia concerning the great battle of Thrace has at last been broken by a brief despatch announcing a Bulgarian victory and the capture of the town of Lule Burgas.

This despatch and equally laconic despatches from the Turkish commander contain the only news yet available, and still leaves the situation rather obscure.

The message from Sofia apparently refers to earlier events, while the despatches of Nazim Pasha, the Turkish Minister of War, describe two battles, one a sortie from Adrianople, in the direction of Mars, and the other in the direction of Visa, from which it must be inferred that the engagements are extending over a long front.

A Sofia despatch sent before the capture of Lule Burgas was known throws a new light on the disposition of the Turkish forces. It is evident that earlier reports of the taking of this town were premature. It appears that the Turks' first line of defence extended along the Erkene river, with a second line from Demotica to Lule Burgas.

Both sides claim victory, but there is no reason to doubt that the Turkish second line of defence has been broken. Up to the present the Bulgarian official despatches have been more reliable than the Turkish.

Nazin Pasha claims victory in the Visa region. Sofia is still silent regarding this section, and although the revelations concerning the demoralization and disorganization of the Turkish forces would predicate further defeats, considerable doubts are expressed here as to the position of the Bulgarians, whose continually extending lines of communication and the necessity of keeping a large investing force around Adrianople might prove sources of danger if Nazin Pasha is able to take a vigorous offensive action.

That the Bulgarians are bringing up all available resources is evident, according to a despatch from the correspondent of The Vienna Reichpost, who relates that Bulgarian reservists were arriving all night in the vicinity of Adrianople. They were without uniforms and were drafted into line in native costumes, but was supplied wih rifles, bayonets and cartridges.

No definite news has been received from the other allied armies since Tuesday. The Montenegrin commander is still hammering at Tarabosch, but is observing more caution in order to avoid needless sacrifice of life.

Evidence of the imminence of efforts on the part of the powers to intervene in favor of peace comes in an official pronouncement of the Bulgarians position published in the semi-official newspaper Mir, which plainly declares that the allies will not be deprived of the fruits of victory.

NO BLOCKADE ON RAILWAYS

Western Grain is Being Handled Without Sign of Congestion

Special To The Review.

Winnipeg, Oct. 31.—The extension of lines and increase of equipment since last year have resulted in the movement of grain crop to date over the railways without any sign of blockade or congestion. Thirteen hundred cars are going forward daily, of which the Canadian Pacific is handling over eight hundred, and one day one thousand.

BAIL GRANTED TO MURDERER

Bond of $20,000 Given for Liberty of J. Beal Snead

Austin, Texas, Oct. 31.—J. Beal Snead, slayer of Al Boyce, jr., was granted bail by the court of criminal appeals under $20,000 bond.

Snead recently was refused bail at a habeas corpus hearing at Amarillo. The lower court held that in disguising himself as a workman and secretly renting a house in front of which Boyce frequently passed, Snead had shown deliberate intention to kill, rather than the uncontrollable anger of a momentary and unexpected meeting.

Boyce eloped with Mrs. Snead to Winnipeg, Man., a year ago. Snead killed Boyce's father in Fort Worth last winter over ensuing complications.

STRIKE IS THREATENED

Railway Men Ask Hon. Mr. Crothers for Conciliation Board

Special To The Review.

Ottawa, Oct. 31—A Board of Trade deputation waited on Hon. Mr. Crothers this morning with the request that he do something to bring the C. P. R. and the Canadian Brotherhood Railway employes together. The Minister has already refused the request of the employes for a Conciliation Board and their president has announced that unless they get their demands for a Board, they will strike Monday.

C.N.R. Making Mile a Day.

Winnipeg, Oct. 31.—Sir William Mackenzie, president of the C.N.R., said yesterday that he expected the railway to be in Calgary before Christmas.

"At present, of course, there is the case of our crossing the C.P.R. irrigated lands to be decided by the courts, but we are pushing on the work just as hard as if there were no case pending against us, and that does not look as if we were very anxious about the ultimate result," he said. "Of course, we are taking the greatest care that no damage should be done.

"Naturally, the construction of our line right through to the coast is a bigger matter, but we expect to have the whole of the steel laid to Port Mann before the end of next year. Work is being hastened all around, and when the year is out, we will be able to point to our record of one mile a day."

ABOLITION OF COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Death of Player May Mean Renewed Agitation

Special To The Review.

New Haven, Oct. 31. — The death last night from pneumonia of Theodore York of the Yale football team, who was injured in the Westpoint game, will probably renew the agitation for abolition of College football.

MAY BE LIFE IMPRISONMENT

For "Red Hill," the Slayer of "Big Jack" Zelig.

New York, Oct. 31.—"Red Hill" Davidson, slayer of "Big Jack" Zelig, the gang leader, will escape the electric chair. At the opening of his trial yesterday he withdrew his former plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to second degree murder. The penalty may be life imprisonment.

A jury was obtained in record time. Justice Goff then called to the stand physicians who had examined the defendant and on their testimony that he was weak mentally, the plea to second degree murder was accepted. Sentence was deferred.

Destroyed Check Book.

Indianapolis, Oct. 31.—Leo M. Rappaport, an attorney, who received $11,000 as a fee out of the McNamara defence fund raised by the American Federation of Labor, was asked on the witness stand in the "dynamite" conspiracy trial yesterday, whether he had destroyed evidence after John J. McNamara had been indicted in Los Angeles, Cal.

Rappaport testified that he went to Los Angeles six days after McNamara's arrest in Indianapolis, and took with him a small blue check book and a bank book, that he talked with McNamara in the county jail about the check book, and that on returning to Indianapolis he destroyed the book.

Steel Men Wouldn't Bid.

Ottawa, Oct. 31.—D. H. Ross, Canadian trade commissioner at Melbourne, Sydney, in a report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, reveals the interesting fact that the Canadian steel companies which are applying for an increase in duties, recently declined to bid for a large order in Australia.

Mr. Ross says: "Heavy forward contracts and a strong domestic demand, precluded Canadian makers of steel rails from submitting offers for even a portion of the contract."

IN SOLITARY CONFINEMENT BECKER AWAITS OUTCOME

Crystal Gazer on Trial.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—The state rested its case in the trial of Mrs. Louisa Lindloff for the murder of her son Arthur. The $500 "ball of fate," as she described the great crystal glass globe into which she peered in the seclusion of a sombre draped room to look afar into the future and where she, as a seeress and necromancer, professed to read the fate of several of her relatives whose deaths are the subject of investigation, was put in evidence yesterday.

Witnesses told of finding poison in the viscera of three others of her family who died besides Arthur, and Captain Bernard Baer of the Chicago police force told of the discovery in her home of a small box of the same kind of mineral poison as that which toxicologists on the stand said caused the deaths.

TEDDY GETS BIG OVATION

Many Thousands Cheer Him in Madison Square Gardens.

New York, Oct. 31.—Showing no physical evidence of the shock of his attempted assassination in Milwaukee, Oct. 14, Col. Theodore Roosevelt last night faced for an hour and twenty minutes a Progressive political rally which gave many thousands of his fellow New Yorkers a chance to accord him an uproarious welcome.

For forty-two minutes after his entrance into crowded Madison Square Gardens, Col. Roosevelt stood at the edge of the high perched speaker's platform, unable to make himself heard above the din of cheers, songs and band music. His gestures to the crowd for silence only served to intensify the noises, and when after twenty minutes of cheering Col. Roosevelt made a determined effort to begin his speech, and the immense audience was swung off into another period of cheering by the beginning of the chant "We want Teddy, We want Teddy."

The attention and silence that greeted the address by Col. Roosevelt was as marked as the demonstration that preceded it.

The immense garden, covering a city block, was crowded to its doors, and thousands of persons were turned away.

Col. Roosevelt adhered to the text of his prepared speech, scarcely changing a word throughout. His voice was full and strong, penetrating to the extreme corners of the amphitheatre.

Col. Roosevelt, when he arrived, was strongly guarded, and although the flashlight men got a picture or two, it was from a distance, for no one was allowed to approach when the colonel left his automobile.

After comparing the crisis which now confronted the republic with the war of the revolution and the war of the rebellion, Roosevelt said: "It is our business to show that nine-tenths of wisdom consists in being wise in time. Woe to our nation if we let matters drift. If in our industrial and political life we let an unchecked and utterly selfish individualistic materialism riot to its appointed end. That end would be widespread disaster, for it would mean that our people would be sundered by these dreadful lines of division which are drawn when the selfish greed of the haves is set over against the selfish greed of the have-nots. There is but one way to prevent such division and that is to forestall it by the kind of a movement in which we are now engaged.

WAR ON THE HAT PIN EVIL

Sixty Women Are Convicted and Fined For Offence.

Sydney, N.S.W., Oct. 31.—For wearing hatpins that protruded too far sixty women, most of them prominent in society, were tried, convicted and fined yesterday in a Sydney court. They went to jail rather than pay their fines, declaring they would not submit to "iniquitous and unnecessary legislation."

The city authorities face a situation similar to that growing out of the suffrage demonstrations in England, as the women assert that if further arrests and imprisonment are ordered, because of the hatpin ordinance, they will declare a "hunger strike" in jail.

Starves Way to Freedom.

Oxford, Eng., Oct. 31.—The suffragette hunger strike in the British jails brought about the release yesterday of Helen Craggs of the militant section of the woman's rights party, who was sentenced to nine months hard labor on Oct. 19 for attempting to set fire to the residence of Lewis Vernon Harcourt.

Miss Craggs' health broke down under the strain of her fast.

Embezzler Not on Boat.

New York, Oct. 31.—Search of the French line steamship Niagara upon her arrival here yesterday failed to disclose Nestor Wilmart, managing director of the Ternenzen Railway Co. of Ghent, Belgium, whose disappearance was followed by the announcement of a shortage of $6,000,000 in the company's bonds. It had been reported that he was on the vessel.

His Counsel Will Fight to Save Life of New York Police Officer.

New York, Oct. 31.—Charles Becker, the former police lieutenant, convicted of procuring the murder of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, was yesterday sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing during the week of December 9th.

Becker's execution will be stayed, however, by a notice of appeal from the verdict of the jury soon to be filed by his counsel, which may take a year to determine.

He was at once delivered into the custody of Sheriff Harburger who immediately left with him to take a train to Sing Sing prison, where the convicted man will be placed in solitary confinement until his fate is determined.

Becker was brought into court shortly after 10.30 o'clock. He walked slowly to the bar and catching the eye of acquaintances among the newspaper men nodded to them with a faint smile.

"Charles Becker, have you any legal cause to show why judgment of death should not be pronounced against you?" asked the clerk.

Becker opened his mouth as if to speak, but before he could reply John W. Hart, his attorney of record, rose to make the usual motions to set aside the verdict and to arrest judgment.

Justice Goff denied the motions and then pronounced the sentence.

Becker heard himself condemned without any show of emotion, other than the closing of his eyes and the compression of his lips.

Mrs. Becker was not in the court room proper, but was waiting in an ante-room to accompany him to Ossining, where she purposes to take up her residence during his confinement.

J. F. McIntyre, Becker's chief counsel, who suffered a nervous collapse after the close of the trial, was unable to be in court yesterday. His condition is serious though not critical.

Mrs. Becker was at the Tombs early ready to accompany her condemned husband to court. Also there was the crowd of morbidly curious, hoping that by hook or crook they could enter the court room to hear sentence passed.

It was said last night in the office of the district attorney that, under section 563 of the code of criminal procedure, at least six months will elapse before the appeal by Becker's counsel will be heard by the Court of Appeals. The average time for a reversal when a convicted murderer has a fair chance is 13 months. In one case since the introduction of the electric chair it was recalled; five years elapsed before the consummation of the sentence.

AN ANSWER TO ROWELL

W.C.T.U. Suggests That Liberal Party Supply Better Class of Candidates

Convention Has no Time to Hear English Suffragette

Special To The Review.

Renfrew, Oct. 31—Resolutions submitted at the meeting of the W.C.T.U. this morning include the following— "If the Liberal party desires the support of the temperance people, they must not insult the intelligence and loyalty of the latter by selecting candidates whose association with the bar, and their past hostility to measures of temperance reform, render their pledges valueless.

When it was suggested that Miss Barbara Wylie, the English suffragette be sent for to address the conference, half the delegates rose to their feet in protest and a resolution was passed declaring that, while the W. T. C. U. is in herty sympathy with votes for women, they do not approve of the methods of the militant wing and that further, they had not time to listen to Miss Wylie.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC RAILWAYS

Hon Adam Beck has made the suggestion that the municipalities which take Hydro-electric power shall form a union for the construction of radial railways to use the power. This suggestion arises out of the Stratford street railway case. It is very questionable if the various municipalities which have engaged to take Hydro-electric power, and distribute it locally, are not about as far as they can safely afford for the present. It is a good suggestion but will not hurt by being put in cold storage for a few years, at least until the province has developed further. There is no question however, that if Peterborough had a surplus of power from a civic plant it would be a splendid thing to have some railway extensions around the city. One of the great contributing factors to the growth of a city is a splendid system of surburban electric lines. Whether reaching out into the country, or connecting with other urban centres, they develop traffic, create business for the city merchants and spread prosperity with generous hand. Unfortunately, there are not many good objective points within easy distance of Peterborough suitable for such purposes. This city is worth off than most cities in this respect. But there is no question that if Peterborough does not get control of a supply of electric power for itself, it will for all time be dependent upon private enterprise in such cases as this. Whatever benefits may accrue to other Ontario cities using Hydro-electric power ought to come to Peterborough as far as possible, if this city undertakes the responsibility of operating a municipal plant. The success of the Beck policy in Toronto, Hamilton, and other cities is a substantial argument why Peterborough should not be misled by specious pleas, or given cold feet by premature threats.

IMPERIAL FEDERATION

Hon Lewis Harcourt, the colonial secretary in the Asquith cabinet, says that he sees no obstacle in the Governments of the over-seas Dominions being given a much larger responsibility in connection with affairs of imperial defence. There might well be more use of consultative and co-operative measures between the officials of the Motherland and the Dominion Governments, even the permanent residence of a cabinet minister in London being a matter worth careful consideration. The Asquith Government at least required no formality of imperial conference for the continuity of imperial confidence.

The problems of imperial federation, involved in the demand of Premier Borden, that when Canada participates in the matters of defence of the Empire, we shall have a voice in shaping the issues of war and of peace, are exceedingly difficult. It is questionable if a formal body constituted at London consisting of representatives of the home government, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, could work more effectively as an imperial council than could the Home Government by the simple process of free consultation with the over-seas governments. Too much formality is not required in a matter of this nature. Fortunately, the British statesmen be they Liberal or Unionist, are able to differentiate between home politics and imperial defence matters in their strife. No Liberal government, pledged through it might be as a matter of party principle to economy in defence matters, would dare neglect its duty in this respect. Sir Edward Grey's foreign policy receives more support from the Unionists than from the Radical wing of his own party. Since Winston Churchill became head of the Admiralty, there has been a stiffening of the Government's attitude toward naval expenditure. No matter which political party in Britain, occupies the seats of the mighty in office, there is not likely to be any effectual disregard of the necessities of imperial co-operation in defence, now that the Dominions are reaching their present size and importance.

There have been many schemes put forth for imperial federation, but the present tendency seems to offer almost as good an effective a method as any that have been proposed. The centralization of power is all right in time of war, but it might be found irksome at other times, and lead to disputes that would materially harm the real co-operation of the Empire—the binding together of its peoples in a common loyalty to the throne. The London Times points out that whatever might be done by divided navies, each separate fleet being under the control of the respective Dominions, it would not attain the efficiency of a combined fleet, under one control in peace as well as in war. That pre-supposes that in the case of war, there would be a gathering or massing of the various local navies, which is extremely unlikely. If Britain and Germany were to engage in a conflict it is very much open to doubt whether Australia would be in any danger of attack from a German fleet. In fact, it is quite unlikely that a German fleet would venture so far off a home base as to make the long trip. Canada would not likely be attacked for similar reasons. The German strength must necessarily be concentrated in home waters, for by the determining of the mastery there the question of trade route protection, food supplies, and central communications would be settled. The whole problem of imperial federation would seem to resolve itself into the perfecting of a channel or medium for very close and intimate communications between the various Governments, that the local plans for defence may be co-ordinated and amalgamated into one strong well directed, cohesive scheme.

DISFIGURING FARMS

This week's Farm and Dairy has the following timely advice to farmers:

"When a man comes to our farm to negotiate for the privilege of erecting a bill board or painting an advertisement on the barn or shed, the best thing we can do is to order him off the place at once. Many towns and villages are already disfigured by flaring bill board advertisements. We regret that many farmers have permitted their steadings to be similarly disfigured. Let us not for the sake of a few dollars, be guilty of disfiguring our farms and the whole country side to advertise somebody's wares in this offensive manner. The decrease in the value of the farm due to the presence of offensive advertising will more than counterbalance the amount that the advertiser will pay us for the privilege of disfiguring our buildings and fences."

While it is a question whether a bare fence or one plastered with paper is the least detrimental, there is no doubt either are disfiguring. The fence may be permitted. In many places, notably in cities, the billboard has been carried to the point that in a view of the landscape or street, it fairly yells its messages. In the States efforts have been made, and largely successful, to abate the nuisance. Advertising is a mighty good thing, but some of the farms are more to be decried than no advertising at all.

EDITORIAL NOTES

In a convention of printer delegates held in Hamilton on the holiday a resolution was passed heartily endorsing the International Typographical union course of instruction and the Technical schools within their districts. Members of the "art preservative" have ever been in the van as intelligent craftsmen and the action thus taken is in keeping with their traditions to further progress toward the ideal in the working world.

When the Laurier Government passed the legislation awarding to the Leader of the Opposition a stipend or honorarium, it did a generous and timely act. Surely the services of the first critic in Dominion affairs is worthy of his hire, so to speak. In and out of season the Toronto Globe printed innuendo and sarcasm pointed at Mr. Borden because he was the recipient of the sum allotted. Since Sir Wilfrid Laurier assumed the role of Leader of the Opposition the Globe has been righteously silent. Never a jibe or remark Sir Wilfrid will earn his money just as Mr. Borden did. Sir Wilfrid deserves it, and his great services to the country at large, either as Leader of the House, or as Leader of the Opposition, are worthy of recognition. But the Globe is silent, because the shoe is on the other foot.

A One-Dollar Bill.

This is the story of a one-dollar bill. Recently a clerk in a Toronto cigar store took in a bill of that denomination and after the man who had given it to him had left he seemed to recall that he had noticed several peculiar markings on it. He took the note out of the cash register and examined it carefully. The bill was covered with typewritten messages. On the front of it were these words: "Good luck to the man that happens to get this bill. I worked hard for it, but here's to climbing up the hill of prosperity. May I never meet a friend coming down. Keep it in circulation. I wish the possessor of this bill would drop me a line regarding its travels, and oblige, Paddy Robertson, Milton, Ont."

On the other side of the bill were these words: "This bill is not a counterfeit although it looks the part."

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 30.—At the Canadian Pacific stock market the offerings this morning were 1600 cattle, 1300 sheep and lambs, 2300 hogs and 300 calves. A fair trade was done in cattle notwithstanding the large offerings, and the milder weather. Choice steers were scarce, selling as high as $6. Bulls sold from $2.50 to $3.50 per 100 lbs. Canning stock was in good demand with prices ranging from $1.75 to $2.50 per 100 lbs.

Sheep and lambs were in good demand and as supplies are decreasing somewhat, a firm feeling prevails in the market, with sales of the former at $4 and the latter $6 to $10 per 100 lbs. The demand for calves was good, sales being from $3 to $10 each.

An easier feeling prevailed in the market for hogs owing to the recent decline in prices in the Toronto market of 25c per 100 pounds, and the prospects are that prices next week will be 25c to 30c per 100 lbs. lower here than they are today. The demand from packers was good, and sales of selected lots were made at $9 to $9.25 per 100 lbs. weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 30.—Cattle—Receipts 300; steady.

Veals—Receipts 100; active and strong at $4 to $10.25; a few $10.50.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts 1000; sheep, slow and steady; lambs, active, 15c higher; lambs, $4.50 to $7; yearlings, $5.25 to $5.50; wethers, $4.50 to $4.75; ewes, $2 to $4; sheep, mixed, $3 to $4.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 22,000; market strong; light, $7.70 to $7.80; mixed, $7.35 to $7.80; heavy, $7 to $7.85; rough, $7 to $7.20; pigs, $4.25 to $6.85; bulk of sales, $7.50 to $7.75.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 32,000; market strong; native, $3.20 to $4.60; western, $3.65 to $4.60; yearlings, $4.50 to $5.85. Lambs, native, $4.50 to $7.15; western, $5.25 to $7.25.

EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED By HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT 1911 BY R. K. FLY CO.

The porter cast his eyes up in despair, and turned away, once more to be recalled.

"Oh, pawtah!"

"Yassah!"

"I think we'll put on my slippahs."

"Will we?"

"You might hand me that large bag. No, stupid, the othah one. You might open it. No, it's in the othah one. Ah, that's it. You may set it down."

Mr. Wedgewood brought forth a soft cap and a pair of red slippers. The porter made another effort to escape, his thoughts as black as his face. Again the relentless recall:

"Oh, pawtah, I think we'll unbutton my boots."

He was too weak to murmur "Yassah." He simply fell on one knee and got to work.

There was a witness to his helpless rage—a newcomer, the American counterpart of the Englishman in all that makes travel difficult for the fellow travelers. Ira Lathrop was zealous to resent anything short of perfection, quick and loud of complaint, apparently impossible to please.

In everything else he was the opposite of the Englishman. He was burly, middle-aged, rough, careless in attire, careless of speech—as uncouth and savage as one can well be who is plainly a man of means.

It was not enough that a freeborn Afro-American should be caught kneeling to an Englishman. But when he had escaped this penance, and advanced hospitably to the newcomer, he must be greeted with a snarl.

"Say, are you the porter of this car, or that man's nurse?"

"I can't tell yet. What's yo' numba, please?"

The answer was the ticket. The porter screwed up his eyes to read the pencilled scrawl.

"Numba se'm. Heah she is, boss."

"Right next to a lot of women, I'll bet. Couldn't you put me in the men's end of the car?"

"Not ve'y well, suh. I reckon the cah is done sold out."

With a growl of rage, Ira Lathrop slammed into the seat his entire hand baggage, one ancient and rusty valise.

The porter gazed upon him with increased depression. The passenger list had opened inauspiciously with two of the worst types of travelers the Anglo-Saxon race has developed.

But their anger was not their worst trait in the porter's eyes. He was, in a limited way, an expert in human character.

When you meet a stranger you reveal your own character in what you ask about his. With some, the first question is, "Who are his people?" With others, "What has he achieved?" With others, "How much is he worth?" Each gauges his cordiality according to his estimate.

The porter was not curious on any of these points. He showed a democratic indifference to them. His one vital inquiry was:

"How much will he tip?"

His inspection of his first two charges promised small returns. He buttoned up his cordiality, and determined to waste upon them the irreducible minimum of attention.

It would take at least a bridal couple to retsore the balance. But bridal couples in their first bloom rarely fell to the lot of that porter, for what bridal couple wants to lock itself in with a crowd of passengers for the first seventy-two hours of wedded bliss?

The porter banished the hope as a vanity. Little he knew how eagerly the young castaways from that wrecked taxicab desired to be a bridal couple, and to catch this train.

But the Englishman was restive again:

"Pawtah! I say, pawtah!"

"Yassah!"

"What time are we due in San Francisco?"

"San Francisco? San Francisco? We are doo thah the evenin' of the fo'th day. This bein' Monday, that ought to bring us in abote Thuzzday evenin'."

The Yankee felt called upon to check the foreign usurper.

"Porrterr!"

"Yassah!"

"Don't let that fellow monopolize you. He probably won't tip you at all."

The porter grew confidential:

"Oh, I know his kind, sah. They don't tip you for what you do do, but they're ready letter writers to the Sooperintendent for what you don't do."

"Pawtah! I say, pawtah!"

"Here, porrterr."

The porter tried to imitate the Irish bird, and be in two places at once. The American had a coin in his hand. The porter caught the gleam of it, and flitted thither. The Yankee growled:

"Don't forget that I'm on the train, and when we get to 'Frisco there may be something more."

The porter had the coin in his hand.

The Porter.

Its heft was light. He sighed: "I hope so."

The Englishman was craning his head around owlishly to ask:

"I say, pawtah, does this train ever get wrecked?"

"Well, it hasn't yet," and he murmured to the Yankee, "but I has hopes."

The Englishman's voice was querulous again.

"I say, pawtah, open a window, will you? The air is ghastly, abso-ripping-lutely ghastly."

The Yankee growled:

"No wonder we had the Revolutionary war!"

Then he took from his pocket an envelope addressed to Ira Lathrop & Co., and from the envelope he took a contract, and studied it grimly. The envelope bore a Chinese stamp.

The porter, as he struggled with an obstinate window, wondered what sort of passenger fate would send him next.

CHAPTER III.

In Darkest Chicago.

The castaways from the wrecked taxicab hurried along the doleful street. Both of them knew their Chicago, but this part of it was not their Chicago.

They hailed a pedestrian, to ask where the nearest street car line might be, and whither it might run. He answered indistinctly from a discreet distance, as he hastened away. Perhaps he thought their question merely a footpad's introduction to a sandbagging episode. In Chicago at night one never knows.

"As near as I can make out what he said, Marjorie," the lieutenant pondered aloud, "we walk straight ahead till we come to Umptyump street, and there we find a Rarara car that will take us to Bloptyblop avenue. I never heard of any such streets, did you?"

"Never," she panted, as she jog-trotted alongside his military pace. "Let's take the first car we meet, and perhaps the conductor can put us off at the street where the minister lives."

"Perhaps." There was not much confidence in that "perhaps."

When they reached the street-carred street, they found two tracks, but nothing occupying them, as far as they could peer either way. A small shopkeeper in a tiny shop proved to be a delicatessen merchant so busily selling foreign horrors to aliens, that they learned nothing from him.

At length, in the far-away, they made out a headlight, and heard the grind and squeal of a car. Lieutenant Mallory waited for it, watch in hand. He boosted Marjorie's elbow aboard and bombarded the conductor with questions. But the conductor had no more heard of their street than they had of his. Their agitation did not disturb his stoic calm, but he invited them to come along to the next crossing, where they could find another car and more learned conductors; or, what promised better, perhaps a cab.

He threw Marjorie into a panic by ordering her to jettison Snoozleums, but the lieutenant bought his soul for a small price, and overlooked the fact that he did not ring up their fares.

The young couple squeezed into a seat and talked anxiously in sharp whispers.

The darkest days of husband and wife are when they come to look forward to a childless and lonely old age.

Many a wife has found herself incapable of motherhood owing to some derangement of the feminine system, often curable by the proper remedies.

JUMPING BEANS.

Secret of This Curious Product of the Vegetable World.

The "jumping bean," which is always sure to excite the wonder of those who have not before seen this specimen of the vegetable kingdom, is the product of a small bush which grows in the northern part of Mexico.

Within each blossom are two fertile seeds and a third, which is the home of a small, exceedingly active worm, whose performances are responsible for the queer conduct of the bean. When this worm emerges from its prison it becomes a beautifully colored moth. The seeds of the jumping bean blossom in the month of May. Then the female moth deposits one egg on the pollen of the flower.

As the flower develops it forms a triangular shaped shell on two sides, with a convex shape on the other. Within this the chrysalis develops into a grayish brown worm about one-tenth of an inch in diameter and about one-half an inch in length.

This worm lives inside its cell for a period of six months, or until the middle of November. Then, climatic conditions being favorable, it bores a hole through the end of its shell and flies away as a moth.—New York World.

Prussic Acid In Plants.

The remarkable fact that considerable quantities of free prussic acid are accumulated in the living tissues of certain plants was observed by the late Dr. M. Treub, and there appears to be little doubt that this poisonous acid is actually utilized as food material by these plants. Some interesting details concerning the occurrence and function of prussic acid in the cherry laurel are given by Peche, who concludes from his observations that the prussic acid found in the leaves and other organs is produced as a direct result of carbon assimilation in the green leaf cells when exposed to light and that it is not merely a product of the hydrolysis of glucosides. Peche found evidence that while part of the prussic acid enters into the building up of glucosides some of it is transported in a labile form, probably in loose combination with a tannin, and is stored up in various tissues as a reserve food.—Nature.

The Early Trusts.

Trusts were sometimes dealt with summarily in old England. For instance, the records of the Brewers' company show that "on Monday, July 30, 1422, Robert Chichele, the mayor of London, sent for the masters and twelve of the most worthy of our company to appear at the guildhall for selling dear ale. After much dispute about the price and quantity of malt, wherein Whityngtone, the late mayor, declared that the brewers had ridden into the country and forestalled the malt, to raise its price, they were convicted in the penalty of £20, which objecting to the masters were ordered to be kept in prison in the chamberlain's custody until they should pay it or find security for the payment thereof."

A Quaint Inn Sign.

At Boxted, in Essex, England, there is a beer house with the strange sign of the Whig and Fidget. Inquiry elicited the fact that the house was built many years ago by a man who was a Whig in his political opinions. His neighbors also regarded him as a "fidgety" man; hence when the house was opened the people of the parish, having regard to its owner's peculiarities, named it the Whig and Fidget, otherwise the Fidgety Whig.

John Burt, aged 11, fell from a tree at Cushendall and broke both arms.

HE PAID THE PRICE.

Ismail Pasha's Whim Was a Costly and Short Lived One.

Ismail Pasha, former viceroy and khedive of Egypt, in spite of his European education and association, maintained throughout his life an oriental love of lavishness and display.

While traveling in France he was entertained at Belleau, the country estate of his friend Bravais. The host had made his entire fortune from Egyptian concessions and consequently exerted himself to his utmost to make his noble visitor's stay a pleasant one. Bravais succeeded a little better than he liked, for the khedive, after admiring the estate, offered to buy it. The proposition came as a shock to Bravais, who did not wish to offend his patron and yet had no idea of parting with his beloved estate.

"But, sir," he said, "Belleau is not for sale."

"Yet I wish to buy it," replied Ismail, unperturbed. "How much?"

Bravais, believing to put an end to an embarrassing situation by naming an impossible price, said jokingly, "Ah, if your highness were to offer me 2,000,000 francs"—

"They are yours," interrupted the viceroy, "and Belleau is mine."

Ismail Pasha extended his visit and during the next week continued to express his admiration of the place, although he did not allude to the previous conversation. Bravais begun to hope that he had forgotten it.

On the day of his departure Ismail was about to step into his carriage when he turned to his host.

"My dear Bravais," he said, "I never break my word. Here is a check for two millions. As for Belleau, I give it to you."—Arthur Meyer in "What I Can Tell."

MALET'S DARING PLOT.

Its Success Might Have Made Him Master of Paris.

A bold scheme was that engineered by Malet, a Frenchman. Malet had been a republican general, was ruined by the rise of Napoleon, betook himself to plotting, was arrested and finally executed.

During the emperor's absence in Russia in 1812 Malet escaped one night from his prison, obtained a general's uniform and with an accomplice dressed as an aid-de-camp made his way to the prison of La Force, where the unsuspecting governor released on his command two other ex-republicans, Generals Laborie and Guidal, prisoners on a like charge to his own.

Together they proceeded to a neighboring barracks, announced to the commandant that Napoleon was dead and that they were acting by the decree of the senate, ordered the troops to be paraded and dispatched bodies of men upon various duties. Some arrested Savery, the minister of police; others the police prefect. Another battalion seized the Hotel de Ville.

Everybody obeyed Malet implicitly, even the prefect of the Seine, and he would undoubtedly have gained possession of Paris had he not been recognized by Laborde, chief of the military police, as an escaped prisoner. He was arrested after a scuffle, the plot was unraveled, and in due course Malet, with twenty-three of his abettors, was shot.

A Potato Collection.

Potatoes are used for other than feeding purposes. A writer in Notes and Queries recently recorded the case of a man who has filled a cabinet "with a series of small wrinkled objects which look and feel like large pebbles." They are not pebbles, however, but potatoes, which have become petrified by being carried a long time in the pocket. Each potato is marked with a small label bearing an inscription such as "Carried from Nov. 12, 1888, to May 18, 1890. Very efficacious." The collector claims that the potato carried in the trousers pocket has proved to be the best of the many remedies he has tried for rheumatism. He carries a potato until the return of the twinges seems to testify to the decline of its curative properties. Then he takes a new potato and locks the old one up in his cabinet.—London Chronicle.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

Dear Sir,

I have just received from you cheque in settlement of indemnity for injuries received while at camp some weeks ago. I wish to thank the Company through you for the very prompt settlement of this claim and would be glad if you would express to them my appreciation of the prompt settlement. I was more than surprised to receive about $125.00 additional indemnity on account of the bonus which has been added to my policy during the past few years, especially when this feature of the policy did not cost any additional permium.

Very truly yours,

Dr. Norvall's Cure-a-Cold Tablets

If you catch a cold every one can tell you how to cure it. If one tried half the things his friends recommended he would be a physical wreck!

Fortunately, it isn't necessary to experiment with ginger tea and such things—get a box of CURE-A-COLD, the compressed tablet treatment, and your cold will be broken up in a day and a night.

CURE-A-COLD is not like most things put up for this purpose. It relieves the inflamed congested condition of the muscous membranes of the nose and the throat. Acts as a gentle laxative and soon rids the system of the poisons that cause "colds." Try it.

MAJORITY OF OVER 1200 FOR THE DeLAVAL BY-LAW

The Result of Good Organization—Necessary Majority on Vote Polled Was 914

For the by-law	1318
Against "	54
Majority	1264
Two-thirds of the total vote	914

The decisive victory scored by the De Laval Dairy Supply Company by-law yesterday, as illustrated by the foregoing figures, proves conclusively the general feeling that exists regarding the new industry. Peterborough will now possess a manufacturing establishment that undoubtedly will prosper and grow, and with the construction of their building rapidly progressing, a bright future is in store for the new concern.

Unusual activity was noticeable yesterday, as shown by the splendid manner in which the voters rallied at the polls. Nearly one half of the number on the voters' list cast a ballot, a feature that was decidedly gratifying. Extreme credit can be attributed to the able and faithful efforts of the ward committees, who worked indefatigably in bringing out the bulk of the vote in some divisions. Notwithstanding the willingness on the part of many auto owners who placed their cars at the disposal of the wards, a very much larger vote would have been recorded had there been more means of transportation. This was particularly true in connection with bringing voters from the Canadian General Electric Works at noon time. Three cars were waiting there, but had there been seven or eight, they could all have been easily filled by voters.

Much depended upon the outcome of yesterday's vote, and the encouraging manner in which the ratepayers supported the City Council amply justified the confidence which the latter placed in them. The sweeping majority obtained, furnishes the City Council with a solid inducement which they offer to other industries who may be contemplating Peterborough as a desirable city, proving to such that they will be most enthusiastically welcomed.

The votes polled in several divisions were remarkably large. At seven places out of the twelve voting centres, votes for the by-law were piled up that exceeded the century figure.

The following is the vote as recorded:

Sub-Div.	For.	Ag'st.	Maj

RIFLE RANGE HAS BEEN SECURED FOR 57th REGIMENT

Local Member Keeps His Promise to the Riflemen That Range be Provided.

The following letter to the local member, this morning, is a last chapter in a long story:

Minister's Office,
Ottawa.

Dear Burnham—I passed the Order in Council for all the land, for the ranges to-day. We buy the whole properties. The riflemen owe you a debt of gratitude for your persistence.

You have one of the best ranges in Canada.

Faithfully yours,
SAM. HUGHES.

Former attempts to secure rifle ranges were discouraged by the high prices asked and the project had to be given up on that account.

The riflemen told Mr. Burnham at the time of his election that he would have to secure for them a range and he promised to do so. It has involved an immense amount of correspondence and running to and fro, but all's well that ends well.

The location is immediately east of the Lift Lock.

Options were secured by Messrs Kennedy and Langford, on portions of properties of Messrs. John Bell, Greer Davidson, Hair, Frank Weir, Wilson and Hunter.

It was at first thought necessary to go farther out in the country and possible sights were visited with the engineer. Options were secured and armed with these alternatives, the present site, which is the best in the country, was approached again and through the public spirit of many of those concerned, options were secured at a reasonable rate and were speedily put through by the energetic Minister of Milita, who visited the range in person, after no less than three had been plotted by his engineers. The Minister himself is satisfied that the property is one which is free from all danger for all concerned.

The old difficulty of cross roads is gotten over by posting sentries and the use of signals and telephones and in other words, the whole system is up-to-date in every particular.

The options total something in the neighborhood of $16,000, but this expenditure will be reduced when the property is made use of for farming purposes as well.

There is no necessity of the property being turned into a range pure and simple, because for most of the week, nobody is on a rifle range.

Col. Clegg and Lieut. Ackerman, who, with Mr. Sexsmith, M.P., on one occasion went over the range are thoroughly satisfied that the site is an excellent one and no doubt every effort will be made to derive the full benefit from it.

Mr. Talling is the author of a book entitled "The Science of Spiritual Life" which has just been published and created quite a stir in literary circles. MAYORALTY FIGHT IN JANUARY?

Mayor Bradburn May Have Opposition at Municipal Elections

The municipal pot is beginning to show signs of simmering, and it may not be long before the boiling point is reached.

An East City resident, well versed in the affairs of the city, made the statement yesterday that he knew of one man who wanted to oppose Mayor Bradburn for the Chief Magistrate's chair. He would not give the name but he did say that "he had better not try."

Discussions which have taken place during the committee work in the interests of the De Laval by-law indicate that there are aspirants for aldermanic honors.

The aldermen of the 1912 Council who must go before the people at the January elections are: Aldermen Dinoan south ward; Ald. Gordon centre ward; Ald. Brown, west ward; Ald. Graham north ward, and Ald. Morgan in the east ward.

I.C.R. Plans for Halifax.

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 31.—Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, was given a luncheon by the citizens of Halifax at the Halifax Hotel yesterday afternoon, at which he made a statement of vast importance to Halifax.

Mr. Cochrane went at once into the heart of the question, outlining his plans for the extension to the Intercolonial Railway here. These are to extend for one and a half miles to Point Pleasant Park, and will consist of six piers, 1,250 feet long and 200 feet in width, with a capacity sufficient to dock at least thirty ships. There will be one bulkhead loading pier, 2,000 feet in length, at which the ocean greyhounds will land. This pier will be equipped with immigration buildings, sheds, and a grain elevator.

A new Union passenger station will be erected at the end of Hollis street, which will be of ample size and suitable architecture.

First Delivery of Wheat.

The load sold by Mr. Frost graded No. 1 Northern.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To The Editor of The Review.

Sir.—I wish to heartily thank the ratepayers for the support they gave to the By-law to aid the De Laval Dairy Supply Co. yesterday. It was particularly gratifying that it received such pronounced support in all parts of the city. I know that the securing of the industry was in the interests of all the ratepayers, yet the council appreciates the fact that the electors showed in so marked a manner appreciation of the council's action. We wish to especially thank those gentlemen who assisted by their services and by volunteering vehicles for the day.

Yours truly,
W. H. BRADBURN.

SYSTEM OF TIME CHEQUES STOPPED

Prompt Payment Must be Made to Canal Employes

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., has received the following letter which explains itself:

Department of Railways and Canals,
Ottawa, October 26, 1912.

Dear Sir,—Your letter of the 24th instant addressed to the Honorable the Minister of Railways and Canals has been referred to me.

I cannot understand why the Superintendent of the canal has carried out a system of time checks which entails the hardship on the employees concerned of paying discount for same. The instructions he has from the Department are that regular employees are to be paid once a month, but in the case of casual or temporary assistance he is authorized to issue checks of his own against a special account which is provided for that purpose; and there is no excuse for the non-payment of such temporary employes.

I am to-day writing the Superintendent instructing him that the practice of issuing time checks is to be immediately discontinued, and further instructing him to pay promptly for all temporary assistance; it, of course being understood where the men are employed for the full month that they will be returned on the regular payrolls and paid by check from the Department.

The enclosures accompanying your letter to the Minister are returned herewith.

Yours faithfully,
G. A. BELL

COL. CLEGG AND OFFICERS PLEASED

At News That Peterboro Secures Rifle Range

Col Clegg, on behalf of himself, and the officers of the 57th Regiment, expressed satisfaction at the announcement that a rifle range had been secured for Peterboro, when seen to-day.

"The officers and myself are highly elated at the news," said Col Clegg. "We appreciate the hard work done by Mr Burnham in securing the range. It will be safe, and the location is convenient, it being nearer the city than was the case with the old range."

Col Clegg remarked that efforts had been made for the past twelve years, to get a suitable range for Peterboro and now a much wider interest would be taken by the regiment. One probable result would be a team to represent Peterborough at shooting competitions, and a representation at Bisley.

DEBENTURES NOT LESS THAN PAR

At the Finance committee meeting last night Mr D. Hughes Charles inquired by letter regarding the lowest price that would be acceptable for the school debentures. The City Clerk was authorized to reply stating that the committee did not wish to dispose of the debentures at less than par.

The Mayor and chairman were authorized to pay to the Bonner-Worth Company the balance of the loan under By-law No. 1,594, amounting to $6,000, on being advised by the City Solicitor that the necessary papers have been completed and the proofs of compliance with the by-law furnished.

$3,000 TOO MUCH FOR BERLINERS

Present Owner wants that Amount for the Franchise

Berlin, Oct. 31—Considerable dissatisfaction is expressed on all sides respecting the price that the present owner of the Berlin Baseball club is asking for his holdings, it being $3,000, the amount the owner claims it cost him to furnish Berlin with a ball club for the season just closed. The officers of the new club contend that the price mentioned is far too much money to lay out with comparatively nothing to show for it outside of the franchise.

The move to form a syndicate with a capitalization of $40,000 to promote sports and an agricultural society is meeting with every encouragement as over $3,200 has already been subscribed.

The site for the Fitzsimmons factory, at Lindsay, cost the town $700.

PLEADS GUILTY TO STEALING A COAT

Prisoner Says He Gave Coat to Stranger for $7.00

After pleading guilty of the theft of an overcoat from his room mate, Ralph McQua, a young fellow giving his name as John Dougherty, was remanded by Magistrate Dumble this morning for one week. The coat was valued at $40.00 and has not been recovered. The prisoner claimed to have disposed of it to a party whom he did not know, for $7.00, on the understanding that he could get it again on paying that sum.

William Doyle, a gray-haired man on the prohibited list, was arrested in an intoxicated state last night outside the Dominion Chinese Cafe on George street. On being questioned he admitted securing the whiskey from William Anthony, who is also on the list.

He was fined $10.00, or thirty days on the bill.

HE STRUCK THE WRONG PLACE

Unruly Visitor Paid $5.75 in Police Court

A young man named Anton Schmidt attempted to register at the Snowden House with a lady whom he said was his bride. In his intoxicated state he commenced to get noisy and a telephone call brought Detective Newhall to the scene resulting in his arrest. He was pretty drunk so the officer said, and refused to leave the hotel when ordered by the landlord.

He paid a fine of $5.75 to police court this morning.

APPOINTED TO FOREIGN FIELDS

Mr. Dowie and Miss Smith Will go to China

Rev. H. J. Keith has returned from Toronto, where he attended the semi-annual meeting of the Board of Foreign Missions (Western Division) of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

The fine work of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, is of a most varied character, comprising as it does, North Formosa, Central India, Honan and Shanghai in Northern China, and KongMoon in Southern China and Korea.

It also supervises the work among the Chinese in Canada, who give most generously to the work of missions in China.

The work among the Indians in Canada as well as the Jews and other foreigners, is now under the control of the Mission Board.

Mr. Kenneth W. Dowie, B.Sc., of McGill University, and secretary of the Y.M.C.A. at that university, has been appointed to Formosa, to supervise the building operations and engage in the work among the men and associate himself with the teaching staff of the College.

Miss Esther Smith, of Grenville, Que., and also a graduate of McGill, has been appointed to North Korea and will be stationed at Kongmoon.

Aggressive building operations by the erection of schools, churches and colleges are being pursued, and district work in India placed on a self-supporting basis.

"The Year's Work," the annual report of the Board of Foreign Missions, which was presented, shows that the total population of the foreign fields of the mission is 74,000,000, and the number of missionaries including wives and native workers abroad, totals 487. There are 5,573 natives under instruction, the schools of all grades numbering 64. The expenditure of the Board abroad is $211,812, of which sum the natives have contributed $16,079. The total expenditure of Canadian mission funds on work at home is $31,372.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

The high cost of living is already solved for the men who are willing to listen to sound reasoning and who will only use a little judgment, some men become extravagant in the matter of dress; they think that unless they pay $25.00 to $35.00 for a Suit of Clothes, that they are not properly dressed.

This is an erronious idea and should be dispelled at once.

Several Manufacturers have discovered this weakness in men, and knowing how to pry on their lack of knowledge of values, simply shoved up the price and strongly advertised their particular Brand of Clothing, spending thousands of dollars yearly to do it.

This is something that the man has to pay for when buying these high priced suits.

Every clothing man in the business to-day realizes this fact and they also know that some of these well advertised brands cost from $5 to $10 more, just from the fact that the Brand is sewn on to the garments.

Mr. Cameron of "Cameron" Men's Wear Store on George St. is prepared to fully demonstrate this fact to any man who is willing to be convinced, and with a call at his store it will be easy to see the truth of these statements.

You will be able to find out that you can purchase a Suit of Clothes or Overcoat of the very finest of all wool materials, with the highest grade of workmanship, combined with a positive guarantee of perfect fit and wearing quality or money refunded, for the low price of $16.00 to $18.00.

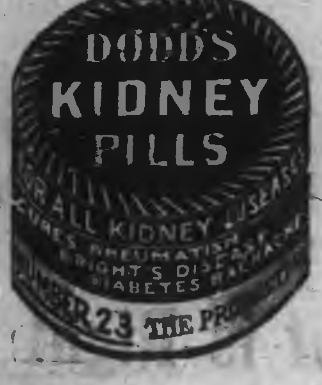
SPORTING GOSSIP

In the O.R.F.U "Ross" Craig, of the Hamilton Alerts, is the star of the Union, and his bucking qualities are the big feature of the Alert games. In the two games with Parkdale this season Craig has gone through the Paddler's wing line for big gains on many occasions, and stands next to Lawson as the greatest line bucker playing the game.—Toronto News.

Andy Sockalexis, the former great Indian outfielder of the Cleveland Spiders in 1895 was arrested on a charge of vagrancy a few nights ago in Pittsburg.

Mrs. A. A. Sandeman of Montreal is in a critical condition, having been thrown from a horse.

Wm. Simpson, a veteran Berlin manufacturer, was seized with paralysis and died on the station platform, aged 82.



PIE IS GOOD FOOD.

Even if the Paste is Soggy, Chewing Will Kill Its Terrors.

"In its proper place," says the New York Medical Journal, "pie is not only a palatable but a nutritious staple, an excellent vehicle of carbohydrates and fruit. It is not essentially indigestible and demands only proper mastication and insalivation to insure lack of discomfort."

In other words, if we chew pie as persistently as we chew the rag about the indigestibility of pie we shall find it as sweetly digestible as it is blandly delectable.

"Pie crust," this authority goes on to say, "is only flour and lard, the latter being replaced usually by chicken fat by those who object to any form of pork. Delicacy of manipulation is required in the making of the crust, and such delicacy depends paradoxically upon great digital strength, for only the strong have a genuine lightness of touch."

Thus is explained the armor plate crust so often the product of the deft but weak "manipulation" of slender, pretty and youthful brides as compared with the flaky, sea foamy kind turned loose by older and stiffer fingered mothers. But wait a moment. We can eat and even live in comfort upon our sweet girl graduates' pies after all, for the paper continues. "A soggy paste, however, made by frail fingers, is only aesthetically objectionable, for resolute chewing will deprive it of its terrors."

Now, however, comes the crux of the pie matter. We customarily "top off" with pie and cheese after we've had a hearty dinner and enough, but if we eat lightly and then have pie or make pie and cheese answer for a whole meal there is not the slightest ill effect from it.

Giving Impressively.

There are diversities of giving as well as of gifts. To give a little with a grand air sometimes seems to make more of an impression than to give much modestly. The world has not changed in this respect. Samuel Pepys wrote in his "Diary" in 1660: "There was a great number of merchants and others of good quality (at a dinner) on purpose to make an offering (to two newly married servants), which when dinner was done we did, and I did give 10 shillings and no more, though I believe most of the rest did give more and did believe that I did so too."

Advice to Bores.

A successful after dinner speaker said:

"I owe my success to the fact that I'm always brief and to the point. I once asked Senator Depew how long an after dinner speaker ought to speak.

"'About two minutes—unless by that time he has struck rich ore,' the senator replied. 'And if he hasn't struck it he should at once stop boring.'"—Los Angeles Times.

Labor Wasted.

"You went to a lot of trouble to train your dog."

FIGHTING A BISON

Exciting Battle With a Savage Bull in India.

A WILD SCRAMBLE FOR LIFE.

There Were Several Narrow Escapes For the Hunter That Was Hunted Before an Unexpected Climax Ended the Rather One Sided Engagement.

In her book, "Roughing It In Southern India," Mrs. M. A. Handley presents a graphic description of a thrilling adventure in which a member of her party played one of the star parts. It was a brilliant but unwilling engagement, and it was too serious while it lasted either for comfort or for the enjoyment of the grimly humorous phases of his enforced battle and wild scramble for his life. Mrs. Handley says:

"Although as a forest officer F. had frequently looked death in the face, he never felt so utterly helpless at the critical moment as he did in a certain adventure that he had with a bull bison. The animal took the aggressive as soon as he was discovered. F. had time only to jump behind a buttress tree.

"The bison began by chasing him round the tree till his head swam. The animal gave him not a moment's leisure in which to take aim. The buttress tree is not easy to climb, for the trunk throws out walls or buttresses all round, between which are deep recesses. To be caught in one of them would certainly mean being pinned to the tree and gored to death.

"Half an hour of this exercise did not tire the bison in the least, whereas from moment to moment F. grew dizzier. Knowing that he could not keep it up much longer and that a fall would be fatal, he started to run in another direction. Quick as he was, the bull was quicker. Suddenly F. felt a touch on his back. Then he felt himself caught up by the belt and tossed high into the air.

"Luckily the belt gave way, for otherwise he would have been brought down again, to be either tossed once more or gored. As it was, he was thrown to a distance, while his rifle, flying out of his hand, struck with a metallic ring on a rock. From where he lay, jarred almost into a stupor, F saw the angry bull go up to the rifle and trample it into a ruin of splintered wood and twisted iron.

"The bison then turned his angry eyes about and advanced toward F., who thought himself powerless to stir. At the last moment, however, he managed to scramble up from under the creature's very nose.

"Near at hand were his men, one of whom carried his spare rifle. This man watched his opportunity, darted sidewise, dropped the gun into the grass and placed a stick upright beside it to mark the spot where it lay. Meanwhile all the others danced and shouted in order to distract the bull's attention.

"Running his best, F. must now needs stumble, but he picked himself up and turned round to see what was in store for him. Before he could slip to one side the bull plunged at him, knocking him down, and stood over him, with the foam from his mouth dropping into his face.

"The huge brown head bent lower and lower till the bloodshot eyes were turned downward.

"F. had no time to think. He had to do whatever the moment suggested. He grasped the horns, was raised up by them and balanced for an age long second in the air; then, partly thrown, partly springing to earth, he tore ahead without stopping to look behind him.

"As he ran toward the rifle placed ready for him the pounding of hoofs behind suddenly ceased, although the bellowing and snorting were redoubled. He turned to look, and at the same instant the men's cries turned from despair to joy. The bull had trapped himself.

"In his blind fury, heedless of his own steps, he had fallen nearly chest deep into a wedge shaped crevice in the rock, with all his feet in a bunch, and the more he struggled the tighter he stuck. It was the work of a moment for F. to seize the rifle and fire the shot that put the bison out of his misery."

Chinese Similes.

Some of the ordinary expressions of the Chinese are pointedly sarcastic enough. A blustering, harmless fellow they call "a paper tiger." When a man values himself overmuch they compare him to "a rat falling into a scale and weighing itself." Overdoing a thing they call "a hunchback making a bow." A spendthrift they compare to "a rocket" which goes off at once. Those who expend their charity on remote objects, but neglect their families, are said to "hang a lantern on a pole, which is seen afar, but gives no light below."

Her Line.

"Now our cook has gone away I don't know what we shall do."

"I thought you told me your wife was such a good cook?"

"Not a bit of it. I told you my wife was an expert in broils, roasts and stews."—Baltimore American.

The Potent Factor.

"Can't I get a steak here and catch the 1 o'clock train?"

"It depends on your teeth, sir."—Meggendorfer Blatter.

TURNED THE TABLES.

An Amusing Incident of Old Time Political Campaigning.

An illustration of early campaigning in Illinois shows the good feeling and the disposition to let the best man win that often prevailed.

James G. Robinson and Richard Oglesby, afterward governor, were opponents for the office of state senator. The settlements in those days were scattering, and as the rivals were good friends they agreed to go together and hold joint discussions. The understanding was that if either desired to talk anywhere else apart from the joint debates he had a perfect right to do so.

At one place Robinson announced that he would make a speech in the courthouse. A large crowd greeted him. Oglesby was sitting in front of the hotel across the way and became uneasy lest Robinson should get some votes away from him.

It happened that Oglesby could play the violin well. A man came along with one under his arm, and Oglesby asked if he might borrow it for the evening. The man consented, and Oglesby commenced playing in order to draw the crowd away from Robinson's meeting. He succeeded. One by one the men came out of the courthouse, and when Oglesby swung into a lively dance measure the crowd responded with an impromptu "hoe down."

Robinson, seeing his audience dwindling, stopped speaking and came out himself. Taking in the situation at a glance, he pulled off his shoes and became the most enthusiastic participant, dancing first with one and then with another of his late hearers. The crowd was delighted, and Robinson had the satisfaction of completely turning the tables on his adroit opponent.—Shelby M. Cullom in "Fifty Years of Public Service."

Homes Under the Ground.

In the salt district in Cheshire, England, the brine has been pumped so continuously out of the earth that the land has settled very considerably. The houses naturally sink with the earth, and in some of the streets in Northwich only the roofs are visible. The houses are inhabited, although the rooms are underground. In a great many cases additional stories have been added, so that by living in the upper rooms the residents may have some light and air. The roadways sink, too, but are kept up to the proper level by the government.

Andrew Lang and John Knox.

Apropos of Andrew Lang's "John Knox and the Reformation" the following appeared after its publication in criticism of his views:

Our freend'll no' be Andrew Lang.

A THEORY OF DREAMS.

Slumber Dramas Reflect Symbolically Our Past Experiences.

The dream as it unrolls itself before the sleeper's consciousness is an allegorical or symbolical expression of the ideas which belong to his thought world, writes the Rev. Samuel McComb, D. D., in the Century. Why should dreams take on an allegorical dress? Why are they not, as a rule, a literal transference of events and experiences from a waking state to a sleeping state?

The answer is because the normal waking consciousness which acts as a kind of check upon painful or disagreeable thoughts and feelings relaxes its activities during sleep and allows these thoughts and feelings to pass into consciousness, only, however, when their motives have been disguised under a hidden mass of symbolism.

If it were not so, if dreams literally reflected the conflicts and yearnings of the workaday world, they would set up such emotional excitement as would arouse the waking consciousness and so make an end of sleep; hence the valuable reflection is forced upon us that dreams fulfill the important function of preserving sleep. They are thus seen to bear vitally upon our health and happiness.

Another interesting question which modern investigation has been able to answer is, Out of what materials are dreams constructed? Nothing can come into our dreams that has not entered into our past experiences. The thoughts of the mental state immediately preceding sleep are hard to recover afterward, but when they are recovered they are found to persist in our dreams. But we may go further than this. There is nothing incredible in the supposition that written, as it were, with invisible ink on our nervous systems are characters inherited from our most distant ancestors.

RIDING A CAMEL.

The Bite of the Beast the Most Pleasant Part of the Feat.

The camel is a dangerous animal to ride—a much more dangerous animal than the horse—for the reason that, with his serpentine neck, he can reach round when annoyed and bite his rider.

Camels are not at all the patient, quiet, kindly creatures they are painted. They have nasty tempers. A caravan crossing the desert is always noisy. The loud and angry snarls of the camels make the waste places resound.

A camel's bite is a serious matter. The strong teeth lock in the wound and a circular motion is given to the jaw, around and then back, before the teeth are withdrawn again. The wound is a horrible one. There are few camel drivers without camel scars.

Dr. Nachtigal, the celebrated African explorer, once said to a youth who expressed a sentimental desire to cross the Sahara on camel back:

"Young man, I'll tell you how you can get a partial idea of what riding a camel in an African desert is like. Take an office stool, screw it up as high as possible and put it along with a savage dog into a wagon without any springs. Then seat yourself on the stool and have it driven over uneven and rocky ground during the hottest parts of July and August, being careful not to eat or drink more than once every two days and letting the dog bite you every four hours. This will give you a faint idea of the exquisite poetry of camel riding in the Sahara."

As Mark Twain Saw It.

When Mark Twain was city editor of the Virginia City Enterprise, back in the seventies, he used to brighten up the columns of the paper with comic paragraphs setting forth the advantages of advertising. These paragraphs were based on all kinds of odd facts—on murders, on crop reports, on kidnaping, on the weather. One paragraph ran like this:

"Germany has just discovered a buried forest in her midst, supposed to be 10,000 years old. If the man who lost it had advertised in the Enterprise the chances are that it would have been returned to him that night."

First Wage Laws.

The first wages fixed by parliament in England date back to the year 1350, under Henry III. The wage was ridiculously low. Haymakers had but 1 penny a day; master carpenters, masons, tilers and other roof workers had not more than threepence a day. By 1444, under Henry VI, and 1495, under Henry VII, matters had considerably improved, carpenters, masons, bricklayers, tilers, carvers and joiners getting from five to six pence a day. So late as 1685 farm laborers received only 3s. 6d. per week, the other workers faring not much better.—New York American.

Ambition of a Henpecked Man.

"I don't know that I desire to rule my wife. I used to feel sometimes as if I wished to, but I have got over it," confessed skimpy little Mr. Hennypeck to the friend of his boyhood, "but once in awhile I do kind o' have an ambition to be as hoarse as she is."—Kansas City Star.

How To Buy a Suit of Clothes

Most any Suit of Clothes may "look good" on paper. But, when you stand before a mirror, with the Suit on your own figure—that's quite another story.

"SOCIETY BRAND" Clothes are better than the pictures, better than the printed descriptions, better than the dealer's praise, yet you need not take any of these for granted.

You need not buy "SOCIETY BRAND" Clothes on anyone's say-so, nor on anyone's recommendation. There is the evidence, right on your own figure, in front of a mirror.

There are 25 distinct points of advantage in "SOCIETY BRAND" Clothes, which no other clothes have.

Ask us to point out these 25 features; then, try on a suit, or a dozen suits, till you find the one that pleases you.

ONE DAY IN PARIS

An Experience During the Riotous Times of the Commune.

DEATH STALKED THE ROADS.

An Unarmed Procession Bearing Banners of Peace and Good Will Was Mowed Down by Cannon Planted In the Streets—A Woman's Adventure.

In Harper's Mme. de Hegermann-Lindencrone tells of her experiences in Paris during the commune. One day's adventures are typical. On March 20, 1871, she writes:

"Today there was a great demonstration in the streets.

"A young fellow named Henri de Pene thought if he could collect enough people to follow him he would lead them to the barricades in the Place Vendome in order to beg the communards in the name of le peuple to restore order and quiet in the city. He sent word beforehand that they would come there unarmed.

"I happened to go at 1 o'clock to Worth's, in the Rue de la Paix, and, finding the street barred, I left my coupe in the Rue des Petit Champs, telling Louis (my coachman) to wait for me in the [illegible]e St. Arnaud (just behind the Ru[illegible] de la Paix), and I walked to No. [illegible]

"I wondered [illegible]y there were so few people in the [illegible]eet. The Place Vendome was [illegible]ricaded with paving stones, and cannons were pointing down the Rue de la Paix. I walked quietly along to Worth's, and hardly had I reached his salon than we heard distant, confused sounds, and then the shouting in the street below made us all rush to the windows.

"What a sight met our eyes!

"This handsome young fellow De Pene, his hat in his outstretched hand, followed by a crowd of men, women and children, looked the picture of life, health and enthusiasm.

"The crowd bore banners on which were written 'Les Amis du Peuple,' 'Amis de l'Ordre,' 'Pour la Paix' and one with 'Nous ne sommes pas armes.'

"One can't imagine the horror we felt when we heard the roar of a cannon and looking down saw the street filled with smoke and frightened screams and terrified groans reached our ears. Some one dragged me inside the window and shut it down to drown the horrible noise outside. De Pene was the first who was killed. The street was filled with dead and wounded.

"I felt terribly agitated and, moreover, deathly sick. My one thought was to reach my carriage and get home as quickly as possible. But how was I to accomplish it? The Rue de la Paix was, of course, impossible. Worth had a courtyard, but no outlet into the Rue St. Arnaud. He suggested that I should go through his ateliers, which he had at the top of the house, and reach an adjoining apartment, from which I might descend to the Rue St. Arnaud, where I would find my carriage. He told one of his women to lead the way, and I followed. We toiled up many flights of wearisome steps until we arrived at the above mentioned ateliers. These communicated with another apartment, of which Worth's woman had the key. On her opening the door we found ourselves in a small bedroom (not in the tidiest condition), seeming to have just been occupied. We passed through this room and came out to a staircase, where the demoiselle said, 'You have only to go down here.'

"When at last I came to the porte-cochere I found it closed and locked, and the frightened concierge would not open for me. Fortunately I had a gold piece to make her yield to my demand. She reluctantly unfastened the door, and I went out. The street was filled with a terrified mob, howling and flying in every direction. I caught a glimpse of the carriage away up the street, and I saw a hand gesticulating above the heads of the crowd, which I recognized as Louis'. It was the only one with a glove on.

"I pushed my way through the mass of people, saying very politely 'Pardon' as I pushed and very politely 'Merci' after I had passed.

"My horse had been unharnessed, and a man was trying to lead him away in spite of Louis' remonstrances.

"The man holding the bridle opposite to Louis seemed a most formidable person to me. Still I tried to smile with placid calmness, and, though I was shaking all over, said, 'Pardon, monsieur, will you permit me to have my carriage harnessed?' I think he was completely taken off his guard, for, with the intuitive gallantry of a Frenchman, he answered most amiably, throwing back his coat and showing me his badge, 'I am the agent of the salut publique, and it is for the government that I take your horse.'

"I made him observe that it would be very difficult for me to walk to my home in the Rue de Courcelles and if his government wanted the horse it could come there and fetch it. He looked doubtfully at me as if weighing the situation, then said, very courteously, 'I understand, madame, and give you back your horse,' and he even helped Louis to reharness the horse, who seemed happy to return to his shafts.

"When I arrived home I had to go to bed, I was so exhausted. Mlle W. administered the infallible camomile tea, her remedy for every ill. She cannot conceive of any disease which is not cured by camomile tea unless in extreme, when fleurs d'oranger takes its place."

SLEDS OF THE YUKON.

They Are Built to Stand the Hardest Kind of Hard Wear.

The Yukon sled, while not a thing of beauty, is built to stand all kinds of hard wear, or, as the Irishman said, "It will last forever and after that can be used for firewood."

The sled is about eight feet long, is made of any kind of hard wood, lies close to the ground, costs from $10 to $14 and makes a trail sixteen inches in width.

Another pattern is known as the basket sleigh and is to the Yukon sleigh what a three masted schooner is to a coal barge. In length it is from eight to fifteen feet, is made of birch, oak or hickory, cuts a trail twenty-two inches in width, costs from $40 to $200, is raised a foot or more from the runners and in the best examples is lashed together with rawhide.

The basket sleigh, as its name implies, is fitted with a basket, into which the load is placed, and from the back of the basket a pair of handles project, to be used in guiding the sled on the trail. It often happens that a Yukon sled will be fitted with a home-made basket in imitation of its more aristocratic brother.

In very cold weather wooden runners are best, but in ordinary circumstances steel or brass runners are used. —Wide World Magazine.

Prehistoric City Discovered.

Professor Hiram Bingham, director of the Yale expedition to Peru, reports among the archaeological discoveries a number of Inca or pre-Inca cities, including Macchu Pichu, a city probably built by the "megalithic race," which preceded the Incas. The ruins are on an almost inaccessible ridge, 2,000 feet above the Urubamba river. They are of great beauty and magnificence and include palaces, baths, temples and about 150 houses. Carefully cut blocks of white granite, some of them twelve feet long, were used in the construction of the walls.—Indianapolis News.

Chance For a Big Fortune.

There is a handsome fortune awaiting the person who will invent a method of curing hams and bacon from which the skin has been removed. Albert Halstead, American consul at Birmingham, reports that the increasing use of pigskin as leather and its tendency to advance in price have made the leather manufacturers cast wistful eyes at the skin that is wasted by being left on pork products. The Leather Trades Review estimates that there is a yearly loss of skins amounting to about $3,000,000 in Great Britain and Ireland alone.

Gold In Baffin's Land.

Captain Janes of the Canadian exploration party with Captain Bernier spent eight months prospecting alone in the far north. He was hundreds of miles from the ship during that period. His discoveries show that Baffin's Land was, epochs ago, a very different kind of country from what it is at the present day.

Twenty-five feet under the surface, he discovered an immense forest in a state of perfect preservation. The trees pointing due east and west, are laid as flat as a wheat-field blown over by a cyclone. The timber is in perfect shape; even the cones from the tree tops are as fresh as the day they fell. At the present day there is not a tree growing for 1,000 miles around the buried forest.

In the opinion of the captain, there are thousands of fortunes to be made in Canada's frigid north. During the coldest months the mercury goes down to 60 below, and it averages 40 degrees, but there is no dampness at any time of the year. The sun leaves on December 10, and does not return until February. During the intervening period lamps are kept steadily burning.

The Norwood hockey boys are making arrangements to hold a concert and ball in the town hall in the near future. The fowl supper in the Presbyterian church on Monday evening Thanksgiving Day was gratifying alike, both to people of the church and their patrons. The supper was all that could be desired and the entertainment after was both pleasing and edifying.

Thanksgiving Day was spent quietly by most of our citizens. A few who are fond of shooting, took advantage of the beautiful day and went to the hunts of the beautiful but elusive partridge, while a few others took a chance at the turkeys at the shooting match held at Mr. John Hendren. We have not heard of many partridge being secured. One hunter had the good fortune of securing two birds with one shot while the others secured one bird with several shots.

The work on the new Bank of Toronto building is now progressing rapidly. It will soon be ready for the roof. The front of the building will be very substantial and attractive looking. The lower story is finished in cut stone secured at the quarry, east of the village.

At the conclusion of a very pleasing program, presided over by the pastor, Rev. W. F. Chapman, dainty refreshments were served. The feast of mental things was as elaborate as those for the physical. VOL LXVI. NO. 103. PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1912 TEN CENTS PER WEE

BULGARIANS HAVE STOPPED COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ADRIANOPLE AND CONSTANTINOPLE

Great Powers Not Decided on Question of Intervention or Mediation.

Turkish Foreign Minister Said to Have Intimated That Turkey Would Accept Advice.

Special To The Review.

Sofia, Nov. 1.—Bulgarian troops to-day occupied the Turkish town of Demotica, thus completely cutting off any possibility of communication between Adrianople and Constantinople.

Berlin, Nov. 1.—European governments have not yet agreed whether to intervene in the Balkan war or to offer mediation at the present moment or after the expected battle at Tchatalja, which is twenty-five miles from Constantinople. It has been decided, however, not to wait for the Turks to take the initiative in asking for mediation.

Paris, Nov. 1.—In an interview with Matin, published this morning, J. N. Effendi, the Turkish Foreign Minister, is represented as stating that while Turkey cannot lay down her arms until victorious, she will be willing to act on the advice of the powers in case of intervention.

London, Nov. 1.—A four days' battle in Thrace has ended in the triumph of the Bulgarian commander-in-chief, Gen. Savoff, whose skillful strategy has probably brought to a close one of the shortest and most remarkable wars on record.

A great Turkish army, estimated at over 200,000 men, has been defeated and is in retreat. Constantinople is believed to be at the mercy of the victorious Bulgarian army, and a council, sitting at the Porte, is discussing the advisability of suing for peace.

Such is the news which comes from Constantinople.

It is only a fortnight since Turkey declared war.

The first week of the campaign closed with the dramatic fall of Kirk Kilisseh, fully revealing for the first time the disorganization, bad morale and inefficient commissariat of the Turkish army. To-day that army is defeated, routed within fifty miles of Constantinople, and possibly its retreat within the capital's line of defence is cut off.

Only the briefest and vaguest accounts of the great battle have yet been received, for the war has been especially remarkable in that not a single war correspondent has been allowed at the front except in the case of the little Montenegrin campaign against Scutari.

Thus no independent personal narratives of the absorbing events have been possible and the world has had to depend on biased official accounts provided by the respective Governments or confused details supplied by wounded soldiers.

Apparently, Nazin Pasha has been completely out-manoeuvred by Savoff's skillful generalship. The Bulgarian turning movement along the Black Sea coast now appears to have been a feint, which induced the Turkish commander to throw his main army to the eastward to such effect that the Bulgarian force on this side had the greatest difficulting in holding the Turks in check.

In fact, this point seems a little in doubt. The Bulgarians gave way and thus enabled Nazin Pasha to report to Constantinople some success in this direction.

In the meantime, however, Gen. Savoff hurled his great strength against the Turks' weakened left wing, which he crushed in at Lule Burgas. The fighting along the whole front, which evidently has been of the most stubborn and determined character, was carried on day and night without intermission and both sides lost heavily.

The capture of Nazin Pasha's headquarters at Tchorlu, to which town the defeated Turks retreated, has not as yet been reported, but is hourly expected at Sofia. In this case the Turks will be forced within the defensive lines of Tchatalja, the only remaining fortified position protecting Constantinople. It lies 25 miles to the northwest of the capital.

Adrianople still holds out, but has lost its importance now that the Turks have met their Sedan at Lule Burgas.

It is believed that a peace settlement will be arranged either by the Porte suing for peace or by intervention of the powers. And an interesting question involving difficult diplomatic problems will immediately arise as to the division of the spoils of war—a question concerning not only the victorious allies, but also Russia, Austria and Roumania, and possibly other powers.

The campaign of the other Balkan states continues with the success which throughout has attended them. Scutari has not yet been captured, but Ipek has fallen to the Montenegrins. The Servians have taken Prisrend and Greece is occupying islands in the Aegean, in addition to various towns in Macedonia.

The powers, fearing disorders and

Two Swifts Indicted.

Boston, Nov. 1.—The Consolidated Rendering Co. of Boston and four of its officers were indicted by the U. S. grand jury yesterday on a charge of conducting an unlawful monopoly in the beef rendering business in the New England states.

The officers indicted are Edward F. Swift, of Chicago, president; Edward A. Tilden, Chicago, vice-president; Horatio W. Heath, Boston, general manager; and George H. Swift, Boston, director.

The indictment sets forth that the Consolidated Rendering Co. operated through its subsidiaries, and charges that competition was eliminated by a secret arrangement made by the Consolidated Rendering Co.'s officials with independent concerns.

WILL BOURASSA OPPOSE CODERRE

Nationalist Says He Would Enter the Contest.

Montreal, Nov. 1.—Political developments yesterday comprised the announcement that Hon. Louis Coderre would have his organization completed and ready to-day for a vigorous campaign in all parts of the division, that three Ministerial meetings would be called at an early date in Westmount, St. Henri and Point St. Charles, to be addressed by Mr. Borden, the new Secretary of State and other Ministers; that Mayor Rutherford of Westmount had absolutely declined to enter the fight as the Liberal candidate, and that Mr. Henri Bourassa had declared to a friend that if no other candidate could be found, he would enter the contest himself and test once for all the opinion of his compatriots on the Government's naval policy.

Mr. Coderre in speaking of the contest now on, said he had no fear as to the result. At first there was some hesitation, but those who hesitated were now back in the ranks, and they were prepared for a straight fight. He could not say what the Ministerial policy would be, or, at least, he was not able to say so before the Prime Minister had spoken. He wanted to say, however, that he had never contributed or consented to the resolutions adopted at St. Eustache and elsewhere condemning both Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Borden. As a matter of fact, when the meeting took place at St. Henri, he had made a statement to the effect that, if ever Great Britain wanted a contribution from Canada, he, for one, would not refuse a helping hand from this rich country.

The Bourassa boom developed strength during the day, and there were many who expressed interest in the question of a Nationalist candidate, for it would be spectacular, if nothing else. It is understood that if Mr. Bourassa decides to enter the fight, he will open no committees, making it an oratorical campaign only, and leave the issue to the electorate to decide.

FEVER RECORD FOR OTTAWA

1156 Cases and 85 Deaths During Present Year.

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—That during 1911 there were 978 cases of typhoid fever here and 80 deaths, and during 1912, 1,156 cases and 85 deaths was told to Judge Gunn yesterday by Dr. Hodgetts, medical adviser to the Canadian Conservation Commision and acting medical health officer for six weeks. He offered some important recommendations.

City Engineer Ker is now replying to the allegations that have been hurled at his department during the past two months. He showed that as far back as 1905 he had told the City Council a new intake pipe was needed.

Five Heroines Buried.

San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 1.—The funerals of the five Sisters of Charity who sacrificed their lives Wednesday to rescue nearly 100 children from burning at St. John's Orphanage, took place here yesterday.

Sister Mary Kostka Farrell, whose back was broken when she jumped for a life net, still lives, but she cannot recover. The death list now stands at eight—the five nuns and three foundlings.

WOODROW WILSON WILDLY CHEERED

Demonstration, For a Cause, No For Man, He Says.

New York, Nov. 1.—Governor Woodrow Wilson, speaking last night before an audience that filled every corner of Madison Square Garden, received the greatest ovation of his campaign for the Presidency. Entering the hall at 9.11 o'clock, after speaking before an enthusiastic audience in the Bronx, the Democratic candidate stood for an hour and three minutes at the railing of the speaker's platform, waiting for the demonstration to end.

"No man could fail to be moved by a demonstration such as we have witnessed to-night," he said with every evidence of deep feeling, as he finally made himself heard. "Yet I am the more thrilled because I realize it is a demonstration for a cause, and not for a man."

THIRTY VOLCANOES ARE IN ERUPTION

Sydney, N.S.W., Nov. 1.—Thirty volcanoes are in eruption on the Island of Ninafoon, in the Tongan group, and many remarkable changes in the physical features of the island have resulted. A large lake in the centre of the island has dropped two feet from its original level, according to reports received here.

FRANCE SAID TO HAVE PROGRAM

For Mediation Between Turkey and Balkan League.

London, Nov. 1.—The London Daily Mail's Vienna correspondent says: "The French Government have come forward with a proposal to the great powers for mediation between Turkey and the Balkan League. The news was confirmed to me to-night in an official quarter, where, however, it was stated nothing can be said for the present regarding the nature of M. Poincare's proposal, which is now being examined by the Vienna Cabinet, but I learned on unimpeachable authority that the proposal, while couched in general terms, outlines the form in which the powers shall intervene to stop the war. There is apparently no question of Bulgaria and Turkey negotiating peace terms directly between themselves. The powers have reason to believe that Turkey will negotiate through them. A feeling of outspoken pessimism prevailed in well-informed quarters here last night.

"The situation is only peaceable," a competent personage said to me this evening, "so long as Austria-Hungary does not feel that attempts are being made to neglect her legitimate interests in the Balkans. If she were forced to come to that conclusion, I must admit I should be prepared for anything."

Entitled to Fruits of Victory.

London, Nov. 1.—The Ministerial organ, The Daily News and Leader, gives prominence to an article on international negotiations, which, after noting the remarkable harmony among the powers, says: "It is satisfactory to know that no power has yet proposed the restoration to Turkey of territory which the allies have conquered. Should such a proposal be made, Great Britain would do her utmost to prevent the concert of nations from acquiescing.

ADEQUATE GIFT TO THE EMPIRE

Resolution is Passed by Navy League in Victoria.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 1.—At a mass meeting held here Wednesday night under the auspices of the Navy League the following resolutions carried unanimously:

"Be it resolved that this meeting is of the opinion that it is in this city's interest and its wish that Canada should meet the present Imperial emergency by a prompt, adequate and unconditional gift to the Empire of battleships or their equivalent, to be followed as soon as may be possible by a permanent policy which will assure to our Dominion a representation worthy of her dignity in the defence of the Empire."

Among the speakers were Sir Richard McBride and the Bishop of Columbia. The Premier gave it as his opinion that Mr. Borden would bring down such a naval policy that it would pass the Commons without a dissenting vote.

NO CANDIDATE FOR MUSKOKA

Liberals Withdraw From Bye-Election For Nov. 12.

Bracebridge, Nov. 1.—Muskoka Liberals will not put up a candidate in the bye-election which takes place on Nov. 12. The riding association executive on behalf of the party have made this announcement and give as a reason for such action the "indecent haste of the Government in fixing the date of the bye-election so early." The Liberals declare three months would be required by their candidate to make a canvass of the riding.

May Delay Argument.

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—A sub-committee of the Cabinet has under consideration a revision of the questions to be submitted to the Supreme Court of Canada, respecting the companies case. Recently some of the provinces protested as to the form of the reference, and there is a possibility that an amendment may be made. If so the argument may not be heard at the present session of the court.

Sentence Day at Windsor.

Windsor, Nov. 1.—Arthur Garvey was sentenced yesterday by Judge McHugh to imprisonment for two years in the Central Prison and to receive ten lashes, for assaulting Nellie Donohue, eight years old.

"Tin Can" Murphy was presented with an order for a year's lodgings at the Central for stealing chickens.

Thomas Ripley drew a term of fifteen months for forgery.

GREEK SOLDIERS SHOWN HERE MOBILIZING ON TURKISH BORDER

GREEK INFANTRY ON THE TURKISH FRONTIER

FULL MILITARY HONORS TO VICTIMS OF THE WRECK

Streets Were Black With Crowds Watching the Funeral.

Toronto, Nov. 1.—With all the pomp and circumstance of the greatest military funeral Toronto has ever seen, the bodies of Privates Bannatyne and Murdock of A Company of the 48th Highlanders, were escorted from the armories to their last resting place in the regimental plot in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The impressive splendor of the ceremonial at the armories and the graveside were humanized by pathetic incident and even the grace of smiles at oddly incongruous inadvertances were not lacking to lighten the otherwise oppressive gloom of the occasion.

More than 1,700 men from the local corps, with additions of contingents from Hamilton, Brantford and St. Catharines sent to do honor to the dead soldiers, attended at the service at the armories, and followed through the long miles of the march to the cemetery and stood uncovered through the service at the graveside.

Thousands upon thousands thronged the line of march and many made the long journey to the cemetery and formed a packed mass of humanity about the roped off space at the flower-piled open graves.

Long before even the soldiers, who were paraded at 1.30 o'clock, had come upon the scene, a strong squad of police were required to keep back the crowds who flocked to the armories. Shortly before two o'clock the soldiers of the various corps were formed up about an open space in the centre of the main section of the armories. To the right and against the south wall were the Royal Grenadiers, 200 strong, under Col. Gooderham. Then directly opposite the flower-banked stands upon which reposed the caskets containing the bodies of their comrades, were 500 of the 48th, with A Company, the company to which the dead were attached, standing in front. Among those who stood the brunt of the accident were many with bandaged heads or limbs.

Directly opposite the coffins and facing the chaplain, who stood upon a draped platform at the south wall, were the staff and regimental officers, with Gen. Cotton, Gen. Otter, Col. Sir Henry Pellatt and others.

The caskets were carried in upon the shoulders of six stalwart and kilted soldiers, while the thin sprinkling of spectators who had gained access to the galleries craned their necks to see, as the faces of the dead were uncovered as they lay in the flag-draped caskets.

The regimental chaplain read the funeral service and the procession started.

As the cortege advanced into University avenue, that thoroughfare was black with the waiting crowds, and as the sombre hearses passed along behind the band, which was playing the heavy measures of the funeral march, every head was uncovered. The head of the cortege was entering the Queen's Park before the last man had left the square beside the armories, and at the slow pace it was almost two hours before it reached the gates of the cemetery, where a great concourse was awaiting its coming.

Again the chaplain repeated the solemn burial service. Then the firing squad, who had been resting upon their reversed arms, were ordered to the graveside. Three volleys were fired from the rifles, cracking sharply in the still air, the bugle corps blew the "Last Post," and the pipers played a dirge.

From evidence of the crew of the ill-fated troop special in which the two Highlanders lost their lives and two score were injured on the night of Thanksgiving, which was given at the continued inquest last night, it appeared that the weight of the train, due to the number of heavily crowded cars and the light construction of the cars, was the cause of the refusal of the brakes to bring the train to a stop at the switch into which it should have turned and of the telescoping of the flimsy colonist car, which was well to the front of the train.

PEOPLE TO VIEW BODY OF SHERMAN

President Taft and Cabinet to Attend Funeral.

Utica, N.Y., Nov. 1.—Arrangements for the funeral of Vice-President James S. Sherman practically were completed yesterday. The services will be held Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church and will be attended by President Taft and members of his Cabinet, Senators and representatives, foreign diplomats and Government officials.

It was at first announced that the obsequies would be held in Christ Church, of which Mr. Sherman was a member, but as this edifice seats only about 700 persons and it was realized that it would be too small to hold the throng that would desire to pay a final tribute of respect to the dead, the plans were changed, when the Rev. Ralph W. Brokaw offered the use of the Presbyterian Church, which has a seating capacity of more than 3,000.

The Rev. Louis H. Holden, Mr. Sherman's pastor, will conduct the funeral service, assisted by the Rev. M. W. Striker, president of Hamilton College, and Rev. Dr. Brokaw, pastor of the Presbyterian Church. An hour before the church services there will be a private service for the members of the family at the Sherman residence.

The body of the vice-president will lie in state from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. to-day in the rotunda of the county building to permit the citizens of Utica to take a last look at their distinguished fellow-townsman.

Business practically will be suspended during the funeral services Saturday afternoon.

BOY OF SEVENTEEN ADMITS MURDER

But Says he Did Not Calculate to to Kill His Victim

Surry, Maine, Nov. 1.—Edwin Goodwin, a 17-year-old boy, admitted yesterday that he was responsible for the death of Captain Henry C. Young, whose body was found at the edge of a mill stream here Wednesday. Goodwin was arrested, charged with murder after the coroner's jury decided that Captain Young's death was due to a blow on the head. When asked to plead to the charge in the district court at Ellsworth the boy said:

"I suppose I am guilty. I did not calculate to kill him."

Captain Young, who kept a store in the village, was killed while on his way home Tuesday night. When the body was found his money was missing. Witnesses at the inquest testified that Goodwin was in the store a few minutes before Young closed up Tuesday night and saw the proprietor counting up his receipts.

PARTY GIVEN BY MURDERER

Express Regrets That He Will Soon Have to Leave Friends.

Montreal, Nov. 1.—In order to formally say farewell to three companions in the condemned cells and also to show his utter indifference to the fate that will soon overtake him, Sylvia Yacoloff, to die if no reprieve is granted him, on Nov. 15, for the murder of his sister-in-law, yesterday morning gave a party. Yacoloff sat at the head of the table and the usual prison fare was supplemented by delicacies bought by the host.

Yacoloff delivered his speech, expressing his regret at having soon to leave his friends, and then sang a funny song in Russian, his native language.

WHITEY LEWIS ON TRIAL FIRST

Found Man's Head In Tree.

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 1.—Two men were killed and a great deal of damage done to buildings within a radius of miles yesterday when the nitro-glycerine factory of the American Powder Co. at Bradner, 24 miles from here, in Wood county, was wiped off the earth by an explosion. A head lodged in a distant tree was the only part of one body found.

Crowds To See Opening.

Ottawa, Nov. 1.—Though the opening of the session is three weeks away, the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod is overwhelmed with applications for tickets for the floor and dress galleries, and after the official list is disposed of hundreds will necessarily be disappointed. A particular feature is the large number of applications from people who met the Duke and Duchess of Connaught on their summer tour and are anxious to attend the opening and the drawing-room.

Lavergne To Denounce Pelletier.

Quebec, Nov. 1.—Armand Lavergne, the young Nationalist leader, will speak alone to-day at Indian Lorette, where he will denounce his old friend, Postmaster-General Pelletier, for not having followed Mr. Monk's example in resigning from the Cabinet.

He is thus fulfilling a promise that he made on the evening of Sept. 21, that if the Conservatives happened to forget their promise on the naval question and the referendum, he would remind them publicly.

Election Day In Cuba.

Havana, Cuba, Nov. 1.—Fears are generally expressed here to-day that the day will not pass without serious disorders. Detachments of police, rural guards and regular troops are stationed at a convenient distance from the polling booths in order to prevent the gathering of groups of partisans.

Minister of Militia Outlines New Scheme for the Militia

Special To The Review.

Montreal, Nov. 1.—A scheme for increasing the Militia efficiency of Canada, was outlined by Col. the Honorable Sam Hughes last night, during the course of a talk with the leading officers of the local garrison.

The Minister proposes to do away with small camps and have troops operate on areas where every arm of the service including artillery would be exercised. He also intimated that in future the young officers would not have to depend on Kingston or other military schools entirely, as, wherever sufficient students could be gathered together, an instructor would be sent them.

THE IMMIGRATION POLICY

The Western Associated Boards of Trade have passed a resolution favoring the widening of the Canadian immigration policy to include the giving of special aid to the immigration of general laborers. There is evidently a real need of this. The demand from various other quarters along this line has been particularly insistent this summer. Local Boards of Trade have passed resolutions declaring that much needed construction work was being held up for lack of general labor. Chairman Smithers, of the Grand Trunk in London, said that unless the bars were let down and more of this class of immigration encouraged, there would be such a dearth of labor that much construction would have to stop. Particularly in the railway construction was the shortage of labor retarding progress.

At present the Dominion and Provinces give assistance to only farm laborers and domestic servants. The Dominion immigration policy has been regulated with the idea that what Canada needed more than anything else was the development of agriculture. If agriculture flourished, industries would follow quickly enough, and an industrial population would be soon established. That has happened in the case of Canada, certainly, but as far as the West is concerned there is need for enough to keep the pace of industrial construction from being unduly clogged.

The encouragement of general labor would not injure the ordinary workingman. Chairman Smithers asserts that there is a fear in Canada that a freer encouragement of such immigration would lower the standard of wages. The record of the United States does not bear out any such assumption. The immigration of lower class foreigners has provided the great industries of the States with a cheap class of labor, it is true, but they are chiefly utilized in work that the native American or the naturalized resident does not want. However, it ought to be easily possible for the special encouragement to general laboring immigrants to be applied in such a way that there will be no depositing of the new comers in Ontario cities where they would merely form a surplus on the market. Let them be placed in the West where they are badly needed and welcome by every class of citizen. Assuredly some such move must be made early. It is not improbable that at the coming session of Parliament there will be legislation introduced affecting this matter.

THE U. S. ELECTIONS

The Presidential elections across the border will be held on Tuesday. Either Theodore Roosevelt or Woodrow Wilson will be elected. Taft never was in the race. The growing strength of the Roosevelt movement in the last three weeks has astonished the politicians and now it is admitted that the Ex-president is a dangerous contender. If he had been given the Republican nomination at Chicago Roosevelt would assuredly have held the party in office. But the short-sighted policy which led the principals in the party to discount his strength with the masses has served either to make Democratic election sure or else the return of Roosevelt. They face defeat either way they go. It is not at all improbable that Republican office-holders' influence outwardly given to Taft, will go to Roosevelt in reality. Taft is a dead horse and if they would save themselves the army of officials must turn to one who has some chance. But the prospects seem to be that Woodrow Wilson will be the next President. The Democrats have an popular tariff program insofar as the ritual of the party is concerned. The Democrats are a low-tariff or practically a tariff-for revenue party. To wipe out the protective system would create such a panic as the United States has never yet experienced. So the Democrats holding as principles the abolition of protection and the institution of a tariff-for revenue policy are shouting from the house-tops that they do not intend to interfere with present conditions except in a few cases where it has been shown that the tariff is simply a passport to thievery and robbery. The revision must be downward but by degrees. Woodrow Wilson's declarations on this point make rather interesting reading. He has been forced to come out of his academic shell and get down to knuckle-dusters like an ordinary politician. He says that legitimate business will be steadied and buttressed. There will be no drastic application of Democratic principles but the protective idea will be maintained. He expects that long after he has passed out of the way the United States will be protectionist. In effect, this advocate of free-trade is telling the country that he believes in this theories but in actual practice they don't count for much. This is remarkably like the antics of the Canadian Liberals. For years before he got into power Sir Wilfrid Laurier shouted that the Canadian moderate protective tariff was a "snare, a delusion, and a robbery." In office he was as meek as a lamb and as canny as a Scotchman about causing any disturbance of fiscal conditions. He maintained the status with a zeal peculiarly funny until he thought the time ripe for a break for free trade in natural products. Whether the people of the United States will take a chance on Wilson and unsettled business conditions it is hard to say. If they think that he won't go so far as to upset the apple-cart they probably will return him but the strength of Roosevelt with the masses ought not to be overlooked. He may produce a landslide as sweeping as it is unexpected.

THE STAR AND THE NAVY

Referring to some remarks by The Review, as to how it expected to square its opposition to the "emergency" naval contribution with the prospect that the Liberals will have to vote in Parliament with the Government on the matter, the Toronto Star gives its reasons for protesting against the Borden program. It says—

> We are protesting against the exportation of taxes, the paying of tribute.
>
> We are arguing in favor of shouldering directly the responsibilites of a grown nation.
>
> We do not believe in spending millions on new aprons strings.
>
> Those who oppose a money grant are not doing it because they want to cling to the money. If the money is to be spent they want to see it spent by our own Parliament and Government, which, so far as we are concerned, is, or should be, as competent a Parliament and Government as any other. If we want to spend the money we want to see the first keels of a Canadian navy laid—a fleet which will grow as the country does, and will be one of several fleets in the navy of the Empire, subject to the direction of our Parliament, as our regiments are, as our people are, and as everything that is ours is and must be.
>
> If the fleet which Laurier designed is not big enough, in view of any present emergency, let it be enlarged. Instead of voting Britain the money with which to build two Dreadnoughts, let Canada order these vessels. If they are needed when they are completed they will be there. If they are not needed they will be ours, one for the Atlantic and one for the Pacific. They will be a start—something to build around.
>
> But to borrow money in London and lend it to England, to pay interest annually through a bank—there is nothing in that to stir, either loyalty or patriotism in us as a people.

After all, then, the Star is not opposed to an emergency "appropriation." It merely contends that the extra aid to the Empire naval defense take the form of an enlargement of the Laurier policy of Canadian ships, manned by Canadians, and under the control of the Canadian Parliament except in time of war. The question here enters, as it has been present all along, of what strategic disposition of the Empire navies is best suited for defence purposes. Is the danger to the Empire—the cause of the "emergency"—at the heart of the Empire, or is it scattered around the globe threatening the Dominion over-seas? What naval power must Britain and the British Dominions guard against, by the rapid enlargement of their fleets? The answer of this ought to be rather easy. The only naval power creating the "emergency" is Germany, and the British navy is yet superior enough to the German navy to ensure that hostilities would be confined to the North Seas, and its trade channels. As a matter of fact, one or two big naval battles would probably decide the mastery of the home seas, and with it would go the command of the seas abroad. The Dominions would be at the mercy of the German fleets, if the British squadrons were wiped out in home waters. Before they could be spared for duty abroad, the German squadrons would have to vanquish first the opposing British warships. Here, then, is what seems to us a good reason for a Canadian contribution directly to the strength of the British navy in home waters. A small fleet for Canada would not be amiss, but Canada can best defend herself from Britain's chief rival by mounting two or three dozen more guns upon the bulwarks fronting the German shores. The case of Australia is somewhat different. Being an island inhabited by only 5,000,000 people, it might be menaced from Asiatic quarters. It is insular like Britain, and ought to have a strong navy in home waters. The Toronto Globe has frequently urged the idea that Canadian battleships would be necessary for the protection of Canadian trade routes in time of war as an argument in favor of the Laurier navy. But certainly, if the British navy in home waters were strong to bottle up, and hold in check German fleets and merchant vessels, what chance would there be for any extensive preying upon ships on Canadian trade routes. Britain must protect her food supply, and Canada will best protect herself by helping protect Britain. The question of financing the contribution is a minor one. As the Star says, it is a matter of book-keeping. But the argument that there is any loss of Canadian independence, or Canadian autonomy, or Canadian self-respect, by the giving of three Dreadnoughts to the British navy, even though Canada borrows money for it, is absurd. However, Premier Borden may not merely borrow $30,000,000 in London to give the British authorities. Canada to pay the interest. Canada has a much boasted surplus, alleged by the Globe to be the result of Fielding Finance, and that may be used for direct payment. Canada may have those ships built herself, and present them as ships to the British navy. Canada may make provision for a concurrent enlargement of the Canadian navy, just by way of precaution. The Star anticipates somewhat, but most of the Laurier newspapers do that now. They did it with regard to the Bourassa business, with regard to the Manitoba boundary question, with regard to tariff proposals, with regard to the National Transcontinental. The Star needn't worry about Canada not doing what is right by itself and for itself. The Borden Government proposes to do its duty both to the Crown and Empire and to Canadian self-respect.

EXCUSE ME!

By RUPERT HUGHES

NOVELIZED FROM THE COMEDY OF THE SAME NAME.

ILLUSTRATED FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE PLAY AS PRODUCED By HENRY W. SAVAGE

COPYRIGHT 1911 by H. K. FLY CO.

"Wouldn't it be terrible, Harry, if, just as we got to the minister's, we should find papa there ahead of us, waiting to forbid the bands, or whatever it is? Wouldn't it be just terrible?"

"Yes, it would, honey, but it doesn't seem probable. There are thousands of ministers in Chicago. He could never find ours. Fact is, I doubt if we find him ourselves."

Her clutch tightened till he would have winced, if he had not been a soldier.

"What do you mean, Harry?"

"Well, in the first place, honey, look what time it is. Hardly more than time to get the train, to say nothing of hunting for that preacher and standing up through a long rigmarole."

"Why, Harry Mallory, are you getting ready to jilt me?"

"Indeed I'm not—not for worlds, honey, but I've got to get that train, haven't I?"

"Couldn't you wait over one train—just one tiny little train?"

"My own, own honey love, you know it's impossible! You must remember that I've already waited over three trains while you tried to make up your mind."

"And you must remember, darling, that it's no easy matter for a girl to decide to sneak away from home and be married secretly, and go all the way out to that hideous Manila with no trousseau and no wedding presents and no anything."

"I know it isn't, and I waited patiently while you got up the courage. But now there are no more trains. I shudder to think of this train being late. We're not due in San Francisco till Thursday evening, and my transport sails at sunrise Friday morning. Oh, Lord, what if I should miss that transport! What if I should!"

"What if we should miss the minister?"

"It begins to look a great deal like it."

"But, Harry, you wouldn't desert me now—abandon me to my fate?"

"Well, it isn't exactly like abandonment, seeing that you could go home to your father and mother in a taxicab."

She stared at him in horror.

"So you don't want me for your wife! You've changed your mind! You're tired of me already! Only an hour together, and you're sick of your bargain! You're anxious to get rid of me! You—"

"Oh, honey, I want you more than anything else on earth, but I'm a soldier, dearie, a mere lieutenant in the regular army, and I'm the slave of the government. I've gone through West Point, and they won't let me resign respectably and if I did, we'd starve. They wouldn't accept my resignation, but they'd be willing to courtmartial me and dismiss me from the service in disgrace. Then you wouldn't want to marry me—and I shouldn't have any way of supporting you if you did. I only know one trade, and that's soldiering."

"Don't call it a trade, beloved, it's the noblest profession in all the world, and you're the noblest soldier that ever was, and in a year or two you'll be the biggest general in the army."

He could not afford to shatter such a devout illusion or quench the light of faith in those beloved and loving eyes. He tacitly admitted his ability to be promoted commander-in-chief in a year or two. He allowed that glittering possibility to remain, used it as a basis for argument.

"Then, dearest, you must help me to do my duty."

She clasped his upper arm as if it were an altar and she an Iphigenia about to be sacrificed to save the army. And she murmured with utter heroism:

"I will! Do what you like with me!"

He squeezed her hand between his biceps and his ribs and accepted the offering in a look drenched with gratitude. Then he said, matter-of-factly:

"We'll see how much time we have when we get to—whatever the name of that street is."

The car jolted and wallowed on its way like an old drifting rocking chair. The motorman was in no hurry. The passengers seemed to have no occasion for haste. Somebody got on or got off at almost every corner, and paused for conversation while the car waited patiently. But eventually the conductor put his head in and drawled:

"Hay! Here's where you get off at."

They hastened to debark and found themselves in a narrow, gaudily-lighted region where they saw a lordly transfer-distributor, a profound scholar in Chicago streets. He informed them that the minister's street lay far back along the path they had come; they should have taken a car in the opposite direction, transferred at some remote center, descended at some unheard-of street, walked three blocks one way and four another, and there they would have been.

Mallory looked at his watch, and Marjorie's hopes dropped like a wrecked aeroplane, for he grimly asked how long it would take them to reach the railroad station.

"Well, you'd ought to make it in forty minutes," the transfer agent said—and added, cynically, "if the car makes schedule."

"Good Lord, the train starts in twenty minutes!"

"Well, I tell you—take this here green car to Wexford avenue—there's usually a taxicab or two standin' there."

"Thank you. Hop on, Marjorie."

Marjorie hopped on, and they sat down, Mallory with eyes and thoughts on nothing but the watch he kept in his hand.

During this tense journey the girl perfected her soul with graceful martyrdom.

"I'll go to the train with you, Harry, and then you can send me home in a taxicab."

Her nether lip trembled and her eyes were filmed, but they were brave, and her voice was so tender that it wooed his mind from his watch. He gazed at her, and found her so dear, so devoted and so pitifully exquisite, that he was almost overcome by an impulse to gather her into his arms there and then, indifferent to the immediate passengers or to his far-off military superiors. An hour ago they were young lovers in all the lilt and thrill of elopement. She had clung to him in the gloaming of their taxicab, as it sped like a genie at their whim to the place where the minister would unite their hands and raise his own in blessing. Thence the new husband would have carried the new wife away, his very own, soul and body, duty and beauty. Then, ah, then in their minds the future was an unwaning honeymoon, the journey across the continent, a stroll along a lover's lane, the Pacific ocean a garden lake, and the Philippines a chain of Fortunate Isles decreed especially for their Eden. And then the taxicab encountered a lamppost. They thought they had merely wrecked a motor car—and lo, they had wrecked a Paradise.

The railroad ceased to be a lover's lane and became a lingering torment; the ocean was a weltering Sahara, and the Philippines a Dry Tortugas of exile.

Mallory realized for the first time what heavy burdens he had taken on with his shoulder straps; what a dismal life of restrictions and hardships an officer's life is bound to be. It was hard to obey the soulless machinery of discipline, to be a brass-buttoned slave. He felt all the hot, quick resentment that turns a faithful soldier into a deserter. But it takes time to evolve a deserter, and Mallory had only twenty minutes. The handcuffs and legirons of discipline hobbled him. He was only a little cog in a great clock, and the other wheels were impinging on him and revolving in spite of himself.

In the close-packed seats where they were jostled and stared at, the soldier could not even attempt to explain to his fascinated bride the war of motives in his breast. He could not voice the passionate rebellion her beauty had whipped up in his soul. Perhaps if Romeo and Juliet had been forced to say farewell on a Chicago street car instead of a Veronese balcony, their language would have lacked savor, too.

Perhaps young Mr. Montague and young Miss Capulet, instead of wailing, "No, that is not the lark whose notes do beat the vaulty heaven so high above our heads," would have done no better than Mr. Mallory and Miss Newton. In any case, the best these two could squeeze out was:

"It's just too bad, honey."

"But I guess it can't be helped, dear."

"It's a mean old world, isn't it?"

"Awful!"

And then they must pile out into the street again so lost in woe that they did not know how they were trampled or elbowed. Marjorie's despair was so complete that it paralyzed instinct. She forgot Snoozleums! A thoughtful passenger ran out and tossed the basket into Mallory's arms even as the car moved off.

Fortune relented a moment and they found a taxicab waiting where they had expected to find it. Once more they were cosy in the flying twilight, but their grief was their only baggage, and the clasp of their hands talked all the talk there was.

Anxiety within anxiety tormented them and they feared another wreck. But as they swooped down upon the station, a kind-faced tower clock beamed the reassurance that they had three minutes to spare.

The taxicab drew up and halted, but they did not get out. They were kissing good-byes, fervidly and numerously, while a grinning station-porter winked at the winking chauffeur.

Marjorie simply could not have done with farewells.

"I'll go to the gate with you," she said.

He told the chauffeur to wait and take the young lady home. The lieutenant looked so honest and the girl so sad that the chauffeur simply touched his cap, though it was not his custom to allow strange fares to vanish into crowded stations, leaving behind nothing more negotiable than instructions to wait.

Cure For Snake Bites.

A cyclist riding through a forest in England stopped and sat down to rest, when he suddenly felt a bite which proved to be that of an adder. The poison took effect so soon that he collapsed by the road, but was fortunately found soon and taken to a doctor, who saved him by using permanganate of potash. This chemical is now frequently carried in the pocket by travelers in countries where snakes abound, together with a lancet for working the crystals into the tiny punctures made by the snake's fangs.

GORGEOUS NIGHTROBES.

Velvet and Silken Ones Used to Be Worn In the Daytime.

In the middle ages night robes, as a general thing, were unknown luxuries.

Under the Tudors royalty and nobility had them made of silk or velvet, and, as the old books say, "hence no washing was necessary."

A nightrobe of black satin bound with black taffeta and edged with velvet of the same color was daintily fashioned for Anne Boleyn.

More luxurious still was one owned by Queen Bess. It was of black velvet, fur lined, and greatly offset by flowing borders of silk lace. And in 1568 her majesty gave orders that George Brodigman should deliver "threescore and six best sable skynnes, to furnish us a nightgown." Four years later her highness orders the delivery of "twelve yards of purple velvet, friezed on the back syde, with white and russet silke," for a nightgown for herself and also orders the delivery of fourteen yards of murry damask for the "makynge of a nightgowne" for some one else.

Nightgowns for ladies of a later period were called "nyght vails." In Queen Anne's time it was the fashion to wear them over the customary dress in the streets in the daytime, when out on a pleasure walk. And, as was fitting, ladies who indulged in nightcaps had them also made of silk or velvet, with "much pretty garnishing of lace and glittering cords," and the fair ones made presentation of costly caps to each other as tokens of respect or affection.

More Bovine Than Prodigal.

Corporal Nugent had returned to Kansas City, Kan., after a long absence, and the farmer who delivers eggs twice a week at the Nugent home recognized in the corporal a strange individual, but an undoubted member of the family, judging from facial appearance. It happened a few days ago that the corporal was alone in the house when the farmer delivered the eggs. The farmer was desirous of saying something pleasant of course.

"I suppose," he said, "that you are the prodigal son."

"No," said the corporal gravely. "I am the fatted calf."—Kansas City Star.

Japanese Royal Composers.

The imperial family of Japan, like the Hohenzollerns, has produced some musical composers. At the reception given by the mikado in 1894 to celebrate his silver wedding a dance was played which, according to the program, was "composed 1,300 years ago by the Emperor Yomer. It represents the joyous flight of a bird of paradise in the golden age." Another dance was "composed 987 years ago by Prince Atsumi."

Much Better.

Small Edgar while out walking with his mother hesitated at a muddy crossing.

"Well, why don't you go ahead?" she asked.

"I was just thinking," replied Edgar, "that it would be better to go afoot."—Chicago News.

The Way.

"I should think they could easily run a funny department in the Congressional Record."

"How would they do it?"

"Why, look at all the jokers they have in the bills."—Baltimore American.

Not the Same.

Wifey—Big checks for dresses will not be in demand this season. Hubby—Thank heaven! (But the big checks were demanded just the same.)—Exchange.

Some Frog!

The largest frog ever caught in the vicinity of Galt was captured on the east bank of the river below the town limits, by John Lee, a young man on the River road. The frog measures exactly 13 inches from the mouth to the hind leg, and 12 1-2 inches in girth, and weights 4 1-2 pounds. When it croaks it makes a noise resembling a loud auto horn. Mr. Lee has the frog in a cage at his home.

What's at the Bottom of Kidney Trouble?

There are many causes at the bottom of an attack of kidney trouble—over-eating, over-drinking, heavy colds—these and other causes often cause illness such as kidney trouble, gall-stones, kidney-stones, gravel, lumbago. But no matter what is at the bottom of the disease, there is now a sure and safe cure, one that acts quickly and without fail. That remedy is SANOL, which is already well known to the medical profession of Canada as well as to thousands of sufferers from the diseases named above. One Winnipeg lady who is well and widely known, was cured of gall-stone by SANOLE after suffering for 12 years. So grateful was she that she has sent to us a large number of people to be relieved of similar complaints. We do not care where the reader of this paragraph resides, we can give him or her names and addresses of people in his own town and locality who have been cured by SANOL. We will also give the name and address of the lady referred to whose complaint had troubled her for such a long period and who is now completely cured.

SANOL is manufactured only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD., 977 Main street, Winnipeg. For sale by McDermid & Jury at $1.50 per bottle.

NOT TOO EARLY TO COMMENCE YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

It's Time to Furnish Your Home for Winter

Thanksgiving over we turn now to prepare for winter the season, when one stays within and enjoys fireside comfort.

If we must stay within, why not make our surroundings as bright and attractive as possible?

There is scarcely a home but at this season of the year requires some article of furnishings to prepare it for a long winter siege.

In choosing housefurnishings it is decidedly to one's advantage to make selections where they can obtain Carpets, Rugs, Wall Papers and Draperies, thereby arranging harmonious color schemes without the fussing and worry of running from store to store trying to match shades.

The Cressman Store is the only shop in the city which features Wall Papers in connection with floor coverings and draperies.

Our salesmen are constantly working out unique decorative schemes for the benefit of our customers.

Whether you require the entire house to be redecorated—a single room to be fitted up—or if you require some particular item of furnishing, you will find us prepared to supply your every requirement to your lasting satisfaction.

17 CASES BEFORE DIVISION COURT

Autoist Must pay $12 as Damages to Farmer

Division Court opened this morning at ten o'clock with seventeen cases before His Honor Judge Huycke.

The majority were actions for the recovery of wages and actions for damages. The claims ranged from $5 up to $100, the highest being an action of Snelgrove vs. Eggington, for $100.00.

Mr. Harrison, a farmer, was awarded $12.00 judgment for damages sustained by his horse and harness when an auto driven by Mr. W. Montgomery, was alleged to have upset the plaintiff's vehicle. He asked for $40 damages, but the Judge held the amount claimed was unwarranted judging from the evidence referring to the condition of the vehicle and horse and harness at the time of the accident.

Mr. G. N. Gordon represented the defendant, and Mr. V. J. McElderry uphelp the plaintiff's claim.

POLICE ON TRAIL OF HOODLUMS WHO CAUSED DAMAGE AT THE COLLEGIATE

A gang of hoodlums visited the Collegiate Institute last night and caused considerable damage about the building.

The police have the matter in hand, an dif the guilty parties are brought into court, they will undoubtedly receive a lesson, that will not warrant a repitition of last night's actions.

The glass in one window was broken and small pebbles inserted in the locks of several doors and it was only at considerable difficulty, Caretaker McKee was able to open the doors this morning. Some of the locks had to be removed.

Paint was freely used about the building, end obscene statements written on the walls and doors.

PERMITS FOR 21 HOUSES

$109,695 Represented in Building Operations for October

Peterboro made a splendid showing in building permits for the month of October, the number being 34, and the outlay represented $109,695.

The permit of $65,000 for the De Laval factory swelled the amount, but even without this large sum the total would be highly satisfactory in comparison to the figures of $14,637 for the same month of last year.

Of the 34 permits, 21 were for dwellings, two of which are being erected by the Toronto Savings and Loan Company at a cost of $8,500.

The Campbell Flour Mills wrote permits for additional buildings to cost $7,000

The ministers of the village of Millbrook and the township of Cavan have organized a Ministerial Association with the following officers—

President—Rev. Wm. Johnston.
Vice-President—Rev. Canon Allen.
Sec.-Treas.—Rev. C. R. Spencer.

The next meeting of the Association will be held in the Methodist Church, Millbrook, on Monday, Nov. 11th, 1912, at 2 p.m.

The other members of the Association are Rev. E. Russell, Cavan. Rev. Dr. Marsh, Springville; Rev. A. G. E. Westmacott, Millbrook.

What They Are Doing

The policy of the Grand Trunk Pacific has con[illegible] to keep its service and facilities as nearly as possible abreast of the rapidly growing towns and districts bordering on its lines through the Western provinces of the Dominion. [illegible] rapid ther[illegible] has been the development of [illegible] on the To[illegible] Division of the G.T.P. that according to recent advic[illegible] way freight service has been i[illegible] a tri-weekly to a daily [illegible] as also on the Calgary branch a[illegible] error. Enlargements are [illegible] made to the trackage at the stations and additions made to the staff. This means improvement to business all round and will admittedly stimulate still further development throughout the district. Thus the railway does not only create towns but induces their prosperity.

NEW TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT

Branch of Toronto Co. Opens on Simcoe Street

A visit to the new store of the Toronto Tailoring Company at 180 Simcoe street will prove of benefit to prospective purchasers. This store is being opened and stocked with the most modern and smartly tailored styles in ladies suits and coats.

The proprietor is Mr. J. Friedman who is equipped with all the experience necessary in the business.

As a special inducement, Mr. Friedman is commencing business here with startling low reductions, everything this week being purchasable at half price. His store is rapidly being turned into a most inviting shopping place and with the backing of the well known Toronto Tailoring Company, of Toronto, of which the local store is a branch, it should develop into a most progressive business.

INCREASE IN SHOE REPAIRING

First Advance in Fifteen Years by the Repair Men

The Globe stated last week that an advance in the cost of shoe repairs probably would be made at an early date. Yesterday Mr. Walter Burnill announced an advance of ten cents on soles and heels, from $1.25 to $1.35 per pair, with corresponding advances for other kinds of work. A further raise of fifteen cents is to be made in the spring. The higher prices are caused by an increase of thirty per cent, in cost of leather. The advance made yesterday is the first in fifteen years.—Toronto Globe.

Regarding the local situation, Mr. J. W. Miller, intimated that prices would be advanced here. One question apart from the advance in leather is that there are very few apprentices to the trade and the experienced cobbler of to-day demands and receives high wages.

Two cobblers could be retained fifteen years ago for the wage of one to-day.

Mr. Miller is of the opinion that the boot retailing now at $4 will cost $6 next year. He relates an incident which came to his notice in Toronto this week, where one retailer could not place an order for 1,000 sides of sole leather, owing to the unsettled condition of the leather market in regard to prices. He could onlyget a supply for present needs.

The C. P. R. Angus shops apprentices have passed the competitive examination for the five International Correspondence School scholarships, given by the C. P. R. Company.

GIFT TO CAPTAIN OF LINTONIA

Purse of Gold Presented to Captain Gray

A number of the members of Sturgeon Point Council as well as cottagers at this popular resort, gathered at the office of Mr. J. M. Knowleson, William street, Lindsay, where a presentation of a purse of gold was made to Captain Gray, the popular captain of the steamer "Lintonia."

THE TRAIL OF THE LONESOME PINE

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" which comes to the Grand to-morrow matinee and night shows the brilliant and popular dramatist Eugene Walter at his best. He has faithfully mirrored the delightful scenes of the book and the scenic trams and stage settings arranged are gorgeous indeed.

June's great love for Jack Hale, the [illegible] of her cousin Dave; the rough yet sincere affection of her father Judd Tolliver; the humorous simplicity of Uncle Billy and Ole Hon; the quiet strength of Hale; the feudal scenes; the guiding motif of the opposed side and the nature of the mountaineer's household are strikingly impressive by the mobility and breadth of their portrayal.

Neither pains nor artistic ability has been spared to give Mr. Walter's play a truly fine presentation and it enjoyed long runs in Boston and Philadelphia to capacity business. You see what [illegible] imagined in the book the story of romantic love developed in the heart of a primitive girl in the fastness of high encircling purple mountains the touch of lofty skies with the lone pine bowing in homage to the royal wind and the mountain brook's silver gleam.—June's mirror

RAW-HIDE WHIP FOR "BUMMERS"

Would Be Good Medicine in Magistrate Dumbles Opinion

Police Magistrate Dumble vented his opinion this morning on the disposition that should be made of the habitual "bummers" of this city. He believes that many of them deliberately plan to live upon the city during the winter time, and make not the slightest provision in the summer for their maintenance during the cold period.

"If every policeman were armed with a raw-hide whip and allowed to use it freely upon such characters and chase them right out of the city it would be a blessing, and would do away with necessity of making poor people who can ill afford to, pay for their support."

To the special committee appointed to ask him to reconsider his decision, Rev. Dr. T. A. Sowerby, pastor of College Street Baptist Church, Toronto, requested that his resignation be accepted, and that he should be relieved on December 31.

IMPROVEMENTS NEEDED ON THE TRENT CANAL

1/49

What a Man Familiar With Conditions and Navigation Says is Needed.

Looking forward to the approaching completion of the Trent Canal the Review is offered some criticism of the work as it stands to-day and of suggested improvements in the light of modern conditions. Our correspondent claims that the usefulness of the waterway will be much hampered should the present plan of construction remain unchanged and that while features are well carried out in some details there is much lacking and [illegible]

"This is not a palatable statement to hear after the expenditure has been made of millions of dollars of public money. Anyone at all familiar with navigation and especially with barge navigation will at once recognize the force of the above statement when it is shown the plan of construction of the channels on the river which is at present being carried out.

"There is no question of the style of navigation that will be adopted on the Canal and none of the advocates of the canal have ever pressed for the construction of this canal on any other grounds than that it would be a most economical route for barge navigation—that is barges in tows of from ten to fifteen in number drawn by a single tug each barge carrying about a thousand tons. If barge navigation through this canal is to be rendered impossible the Government might [illegible] stop the expenditure on this public work at once as the benefit derived from any other class of navigation would not warrant the expenditure of such a large sum of money as will be required for its construction.

"In the stretches between the locks where the water is not of the required depth of nine feet the plan adopted to make these reaches navigable is to dredge out a channel ninety or a hundred feet wide with no protection on the sides of these cuts to prevent the barges from grounding or in the cases where the cuts are through rock no provision is made to protect vessels passing through and prevent tearing the sides of the barges. It is said that buoys or beacons to mark the location of these channels are to be placed at the ends of these submerged channels but what use will these be in keeping a long line of barges in the channel with a side wind blowing? Anyone who ever towed a single barge knows how difficult it is to take it through a narrow channel. What will it be with eight or ten barges in a tow unless these channels are properly protected at the entrance by solid clay walls either of cribwork or concrete running out at least five hundred feet and making the entrance to these channels about five hundred feet, no tow of barges will ever be certain of being able to get through. And unless these channels are protected on the sides throughout their entire length by solid walls of either cribwork or concrete no tow will ever be certain of getting through without having the sides torn out of many of the barges in the tow. The effect of the present mode of construction will be that no insurance on the barges could be obtained or if obtained, it would be so great that it would make the traffic on other routes less costly and thus render this through route by the Trent Canal useless.

"Now if these are facts they should be remedied now while the canal is under construction. That they are facts as stated is borne out by the fact that a petition signed by all the boat owners and those interested in navigation was forwarded about two years ago to the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals protesting against the constructing of these submerged channels without being properly protected. No attention was paid to this petition but I would suggest that the matter be taken up by the Board of Trade and an investigation be made at once. There is no matter of greater importance to the welfare of the whole district than the construction of the Trent Canal but what use will it be if the benefit is neutralized by the effects of poor construction?"

Father Foley was presented with a purse of $400 in gold by his congregation, while the ladies of the Altar Society presented the reverend gentleman with a purse of $60.

PLENTY OF FUN ON HALLOWE'EN

Young People Enjoyed Themselves at Parties and on the Streets

While some preferred to stay out of doors and play pranks last night, there were many who remained indoors and took part in numerous Hallowe'en parties.

Besides the many private parties there were gatherings at the All Saints' Parish Hall, Y.W.C.A., Knox Church, Murray Street Baptist Church and Knights of Pythias.

Hallowe'en games, pumpkin pie, taffy and music, were all in the order of the evneing and partaken of with great zeat and merriment. Some of those who took the fresh air found their pleasure in scaring people and in the destruction of wooden sidewalks, pot plants, etc., and seemed to have just as much fun in dodging a "cop" as those who took part in the parties. However everybody had a good time except the householders who were annoyed by the gangs of boys.

BOYS TO APPEAR IN POLICE COURT

Eagle Eyes Were Watching for Hallowe'en Rowdies

The property damaging proclivities of various boys on Hallowe'en night resulted in many of them having their names and addresses taken by the police officers. A goodly number of informations are being filled out and the alleged guilty parties will have to appear shortly.

REGARDING CHANGES FOR CHURCH ADS

To ensure change in church advertisements in the Review, copy should be at the Review office before 9 o'clock on Saturday morning.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

The high cost of living is already solved for the men who are willing to listen to sound reasoning and who will only use a little judgment, some men become extravagant in the matter of dress; they think that unless they pay $25.00 to $35.00 for a Suit of Clothes, that they are not properly dressed.

This is an erronious idea and should be dispelled at once.

Several Manufacturers have discovered this weakness in men, and knowing how to pry on their lack of knowledge of values, simply shoved up the price and strongly advertised their particular Brand of Clothing, spending thousands of dollars yearly to do it.

This is something that the man has to pay for when buying these high priced suits.

Every clothing man in the business to-day realizes this fact and they also know that some of these well advertised brands cost from $5 to $10 more, just from the fact that the Brand is sewn on to the garments.

Mr. Cameron of "Cameron" Men's Wear Store on George St. is prepared to fully demonstrate this fact to any man who is willing to be convinced, and with a call at his store it will be easy to see the truth of these statements.

You will be able to find out that you can purchase a Suit of Clothes or Overcoat of the very finest of all wool materials, with the highest grade of workmanship, combined with a positive guarantee of perfect fit and wearing quality or money refunded, for the low price of $16.00 to $18.00.

This should be a good place to save your money at

Regina, Nov. 1—Molisky and Lobsinger the two dummy hockey and lacrosse players have a scheme on hand to put a dummy team into local hockey circles this winter. Lobsinger has been in communication with some of his friends, endeavoring to persuade them to locate in Regina, and if his scheme works out the sign-language speed artists will make application to enter a team in the Southern Saskatchewan League.

If the newcomers have the speed and ability the two Regina men have shown, there will be such a team in Regina as the city has never seen before.

massacres in Turkey, are hurrying warships to the various ports at that country to protest the foreign residents.

A noticeable feature of the war is the insignificant parts played by the Turkish and Greek fleets.

Turks Kill Russian Aviator.

London, Nov. 1.—The first air victim of the war, the Russian aviator Popoff, was instructor of aviation in the Russian army. He, with several others, left Russia a few days ago to offer his services to the Bulgarian army. While flying with his machine over Adrianople, he was brought down by Turkish shrapnel shell. Special reports say that he was killed.

Three Hundred Turks Pay Penalty.

Constantinople, Nov. 1.—(By wireless to Kustendje, Roumania.)—Three hundred Turkish officers and men have been executed in connection with the panic among the Turkish troops at the taking of Kirk-Kilisseh by the Bulgarians.

According to narratives told by a refugee from that city, the troops at Kirk-Kilisseh were composed almost entirely of reservists. They were under-officered, ill-trained and badly fed. Several of the regiments at the time of the fighting had been without rations for forty-eight hours.

A night attack upon the Bulgarian advance guard was ordered by the Turkish commander, but the energetic defence offered by the Bulgarians disconcerted the Turkish troops and a panic set in. The troops dispersed, abandoning in their flight their guns, rifles and ammunition.

DISTRIBUTION OF TITANIC FUND

Dependents of Crew Well Treated —Will Last Fifty Years

London—The report upon the distribution of the Titanic Relief Fund drawn up by Mr. C. J. Stewart the Public Trustee was unanimously appointed at a meeting of the Mansion House Committee of the Fund over which the Lord Mayor presided. The scheme which has been drawn up fro the administration of the fund is particularly interesting on account of an important new departure which it inaugurates.

Weekly allowances are to be made and local committees will see that the funds are applied to proper purposes

The total amount of the fund to date is 476 780 pounds. The claims number in the case of the crew 649 The dependants of these cases are classified thus:

Widows	316
Children	592
Other dependants	553
Total	1 461

In all 802 passengers were lost. In respect of 241 of these no claims had been received so that the total number of passengers whose loss will involve claims on the fund is 561 These group themselves by families into 513 distinct cases viz., 200 in the United Kingdom and 313 in foreign countries. The 513 claims involve the following dependants:

Widows	166
Children	259
Other claimants	410
	835

Adding this figure to the 1 461 in the case of the crew, there is a total of 2 296 persons among whom the fund is to be distributed. The broad principle adoped is to give half wages to the widow of a victim and the report points out that to assure to a widow for the rest of life half of her husband's earnings is certainly generous treatment." She is to forfeit this allowance on re-marriage but in lieu may claim a lump sum grant of one year's allowance. As regards children it is proposed to allow 3s. 6d. a week to one child 5s. 6d. for two 7s. for three, 8s. 6d. for four and 10s. 6d. for five or over with a slight decrease in the case of the widows of men earning from 50 pounds to 100 pounds a year.

It has been found necessary to bring into contribution any assistance that the widows and relatives of the deceased have received by way of workmen's compensation, insurance moneys over 100 pounds, or any permanent private income (where this exists.) Thus, if a widow received from the County Court 300 pounds, that would be treated as equal to 5s. per week, and the committee would deduct 5s. per week from their scale.

Comparing the treatment of the crew with that of officers, it is asserted that the balance of advantage lies with the former. For example, the widow of an officer earning 250 pounds a year and over receives a maximum of 2 pounds per week, which is only two-fifths of the lowest salary her husband would have earned, whereas in the case of an ordinary member of the crew, earning 75 pounds a year, the widow alone receives an allowance of 15s a week, which is a little over half the wages earned by her husband, to addition to which she receives a special allowance in respect of each of her children.

It is estimated that the cost of dealing with all passenger claims would be covered by the sum of 140,000 pounds. This sum will, it is believed, be sufficient to cover the allocation to each passenger's claim in respect of passengers resident in the United Kingdom, a sum equal to the average cost of a crew claim.

Those who were in immediate need have been supported, in the meantime, out of the Daily Telegraph Fund. It is calculated that the scheme will probably last for about 50 years, that being the period in which the fund will be exhausted.

SOLDIERS RODE IN ENGINE CAB

Toronto, Nov. 1.—That two soldiers—believed to be members of the Queen's Own—were in the cab of the locomotive of the troop train with Engineer Hart and Fireman Spencer when the train ran past the semaphore set against it, about a quarter of a mile west of the Streetsville siding, and overran the switch into collision with the westbound passenger express, was the new and somewhat startling feature of the evidence taken at the resumed inquest into the death of Pte. Bannatyne of the Highlanders, before Chief Coroner Johnson last night.

POINTS TO BE CONSIDERED IN POWER CO.'S OFFER

PROPOSAL

The proposal is to amalgamate the public utilities in the City of Peterboro making one Operating Company or [illegible] best to amalgamate the Gas Company and the Lighting Companies, leaving the Railroad an independent Company, the intention being that the City should share in all profits after paying fixed charges, etc., on the Railway Gas Plant, Electric Lighting and sale of power in the City.

CAPITAL

The Company propose to finance the scheme to the extent of $1,000,000 so that extensions of Railway, etc., may be made if found desirable; the interest on the bonds is to be 5 per cent. per annum.

LIABILITY

The above scheme would relieve the City from entering into any further debt, hazard of operation, loss of initial stage of operation which always occurs and would insure a lower cost of operation than could be secured in any other way. If a loss occurred from operating the Company or disaster of any kind, the Company would be liable and the City would not sustain any loss whatever. Should a loss occur through any change in development of electricity or in the generating which does occur from time to time, the City would not have on its hands an immense investment in machinery, etc., and these losses and changes do occur periodically.

RATES

The rates are to be fixed by arbitration or by the Hydro Electric Commission, thus insuring the City that the Company will only be allowed sufficient to cover interest, etc.

INSPECTION

The City has the privilege of inspecting the books of the Company at any time they desire, in fact they have all the rights of inspection that any share-holder would have in any institution.

MANAGEMENT

The City is to be represented by two directors, out of five on the Board. The advantage of these directors is that they will be able to give the Company the benefit of their advice and knowledge of local conditions, and also be in a position to protect the City from any unfair treatment. In fact the practical operation of the system will be thrown upon these two directors as being the men on the ground and conversant with conditions.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

This is an advance step in municipal ownership and it is believed it is a little further than anyone in this country has yet dared to go. The City gets all benefits of municipal ownership with no risks of experiments and if successful they have the privilege of taking over the whole business, and if not successful the Company is the loser.

POWER

The City is assured unlimited supply of electric power for the future with the security that the prices will be arranged periodically as conditions change.

THE CUSTOMER

Under the proposal the consumer shares in any benefiits that may be derived from the reductions in price of power or resale of power within the City.

PARTNERSHIP

This arrangement would insure a hearty co-operation of a large Company with immense resources and capital, and would at the end of ten years if it should be so desirable, give the City absolute control and ownership of its own public utilities.

FRANCHISE

The City would at the end of ten years be free from all franchise and contracts, and would be in a position to deal absolutely freely with the situation.

WASHING OUT A WOUND.

Tincture of Iodine Is About the Safest Antiseptic to Use.

Carbolic acid, one of the most valuable antiseptics known to surgeons, is at the same time one of the most dangerous. It is used daily, almost hourly, by operators in the hospitals. The layman who understands its perils may wash wounds out with it safely, but the best surgeons say that inexperienced persons had better let it alone.

No wound should ever be bound up with bandages soaked in even the mildest solution of carbolic acid, for the skin absorbs it readily, and poisoning is apt to follow prolonged use. An eminent New York surgeon had a case a few weeks ago of a child whose finger had turned black after being dressed too long with a 2 per cent solution of carbolic acid, and when he called this paper's attention to the case he was expecting to be obliged to cut off the finger.

The most commonly used antiseptic is bichloride of mercury (corrosive sublimate), but this is one of the deadliest poisons known and as it has no color or odor is easily mistaken for water. To avoid this it is customary to color solutions of it. Colored tablets are made especially for making solutions of any given strength. Dr. Albert S. Morrow in "The Immediate Care of the Injured" says it should be used as a wet dressing on wounds in a solution of 1.2000 of 1.5000, the latter made by dissolving one 7½ grain tablet in 2½ quarts of water. As a wash for a wound it may be used in a 1.1000 solution (one 7½ grain tablet to a pint of water).

Iodine is another antiseptic that is highly recommended. It is used commonly on dirty wounds, where there is danger of infection and a doctor's services are not immediately available. In such cases the tincture of iodine is used pure and is applied by dipping a wad of cotton or antiseptic gauze in it and swabbing out the wound, being careful to penetrate this thoroughly.—New York World.

THE BLACK BALL.

A Cunning Scheme That Was Spoiled by Quick Thinking.

Two young men in a French village were called on to draw for conscription. One only was wanted to complete the number, and of the two who were to draw one was the son of a rich farmer and the other the child of a poor widow.

The farmer ingratiated himself with the superintendent of the ballot and promised him a present if he could find means to prevent his son from going in the army. In order to accomplish this the official put into the urn two black balls instead of one white and one black ball. When the young men came, he said:

"There are two balls, one black and one white, in the urn. He who draws the black one must serve. Your turn is first," pointing to the widow's son.

The latter, suspecting that all was not fair, approached the urn and drew one of the balls, which he immediately swallowed without looking at it.

"Why," said the superintendent, "have you done that? How are we to know whether you have drawn a black or a white ball?"

"Oh, that's very easy to discover," was the reply. "Let the other now draw. If I have the black, he must necessarily draw the white one."

There was no help for it, and the farmer's son, putting his hand into the urn, drew the remaining ball, which, to the satisfaction of the spectators, was a black one.

Power of the Spectroscope.

The almost uncanny power of the spectroscope, which has made it such a powerful instrument of research, is the following: If any element such as iron, copper, sodium and the like is heated sufficiently to be vaporized and the light of this heated vapor is analysed by the spectroscope, it does not give a continuous spectrum, but only very narrow portions of the colors, so that in reality the view presented is that of a series of bright lines of the various colors. Each chemical element has its own characteristic set of lines.—Century.

Well Disposed Little Cousin.

Your affecshunate kuzen."—Kansas City Times.

Music.

"But if she makes all her own dresses I should think she'd be a good wife for you. It shows she's industrious and sensible."

A HERO OF PEACE.

The Late Maxime Mireault Died of the Plague He Fought.

If, as Carlyle puts it, heroism is the divine relation which unites great men to other men, admiration of all Canadians must go out to the late Mr. Maxime Mireault, who acted as tuberculosis inspector of the Royal Edward Institute in Montreal. For a martyr and hero has fallen in the combat against the white plague and the work which he has done in the interests of thousands of consumptive patients during the past decade will long be recalled by those actively engaged in the local anti-tuberculosis fight, says The Montreal Standard.

A pioneer in the actual field work carried on by the Anti-Tuberculosis League and the Royal Edward Institute, he remained at his post till the last, abandoning work through sheer exhaustion but a month before his death. Stricken with the fell disease after giving years of valuable service in the interest of its victims, he was forced to face a grim alternative. On the one hand, as the sole breadwinner for a young family, with no resources beyond the meagre remuneration afforded him by the city authorities, he could not abandon work. On the other, his long experience told him that a continuance of his labors could have but one ending.

He chose the latter and the determination of the man may be judged by the fact that, when recently, he fell exhausted in a cot at the Royal Edward Institute, he was in such a weakened state that he could no longer stand. Then and only then, was it that he consented to give in to the earnest solicitation of his friends and associates who had been urging him for some time to abandon his work. After spending a few days at the institute, he was removed to his home. His decline was rapid and the end came peacefully as the daily press announced a short time ago.

The late inspector became associated with the work of the Anti-Tuberculosis League some nine years ago, when the city authorities decided to interest themselves in the propaganda set on foot by the League. Mr. Mireault was selected by the City Health Department, as a result of a competitive examination, and was placed at the disposal of the League as inspector, with instructions to visit all cases of consumption arising in the city. According to the officials of the League no better selection could have been made.

A man of education and unfailing courtesy, he was the one needed to put into practice the recommendations advanced by the League in regard to the proper care and precautions to be taken in connection with the treatment of tuberculosis and he forthwith entered life and soul into the work. His broad sympathy and consummate diplomacy soon endeared him both to the officials of the League and to the thousands of patients and their families, on whom, by reason of his position, he necessarily called. At first he had to contend with much apathy on the part of his charges and their families.

The idea of the League in regard to fresh air, sputum cups, and other precautions were qualified as newfangled. Popular prejudice was deep rooted. Yet the indefatigable inspector never lost courage. Painstaking to a degree, he gained the confidence of the many patients, and soon a change was noticeable. In his relations with the stricken ones he bore about him none of that cold officiality often met with in the case of public functionaries. He entered into each new situation presented by his numerous daily visits, shared the sorrows and hopes of the stricken one and his family, and soon became recognized as a true friend of consumptives throughout the city.

As the city territory spread, and the League was enabled to extend operations, thanks to the establishment of the Royal Edward Institute, the field of operations of the inspector widened—and herein lies the cause of his collapse. Taxing his energy to the utmost he endeavored, under the new conditions, to perform the same work that he had successfully carried on on a more restricted scale. The result was fatal.

The Legal Mind.

"I don't see how a lawyer can enjoy a ball game under the present rules."

"What would a lawyer want?"

"I should think they'd want to stop the game after every decision and have it argued and ruled on, with a court of appeals sitting constantly on the side lines."—Kansas City Journal.

Through the woods and o'er the fields
Roams my Amaryllis,
Ecstasy her sweet voice yields—
Amaryllis.

Oft she lies there in the sun,

But to sell I somehow hate—

A Question of Weights.

Senator Borah was talking at a dinner in Boise about an embarrassing question that had been asked at Chicago.

"The question," he said, smiling, "went unanswered. It was like little Willie's query.

"A young gentleman was spending the week end at little Willie's cottage at Atlantic City, and on Sunday evening after dinner, there being a scarcity of chairs on the crowded piazza, the young gentleman took Willie on his lap.

"Then during a pause in the conversation little Willie looked up at the young gentleman and piped:

"'Am I as heavy as sister Mabel?'"

Embarrassment of Riches.

Court Ball Comedy of a Small German Capital.

An amusing story of an incident at a masked ball given at the capital of one of the smaller German principalities is told in Berlin. The rule was printed upon the invitation cards that every one must come either in fancy dress or in a black domino.

In one of the rooms of the court a buffet had been set out, and the attendants there soon came to remark the unusually active appetite of one guest, duly masked and cloaked, who consumed extraordinarily large quantities of the more expensive delicacies and wines. After several minutes of vigorous eating he would leave the buffet and disappear among the throng of dancers. Soon, however, he would be back again, his appetite apparently as strong as ever.

After the fourth visit at short intervals of this hungry guest the head waiter called the attention of the master of ceremonies, who waited at the buffet until the masked stranger once more returned. He was again served with a full supply of food and wine and as he turned away was politely asked to show his invitation card.

At this some confusion was noticed in his bearing, and the master of ceremonies requested him to remove his mask and cloak. To the astonishment of the servants and the amusement of the guests there was revealed the shamefaced figure of one of the soldiers of the guard on duty in the hall below. The guards had found a spare domino lying in the hall and they had been putting it on one after the other during the evening, so as to be able to go boldly into the ballrooms and eat their fill at the buffet unchallenged.

So amused at the story was the grand duke that he refused to allow the greedy soldiers to be punished.—Berlin Cor. London Mail.

Strathcona's Slush.

When Lord Strathcona was called upon to drive the golden spike into the last tie of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the foreman in charge of the section was told to make a hole in the tie so that the precious spike could easily be extracted and preserved under a glass case. As it was early spring, with a shaw setting in, the foreman bored out quite a substantial hole, and, to make the ceremony of "driving the spike" appear real, he carefully filled the deep pocket with slush. When Lord Strathcona, bending low before a distinguished gathering, raised the mallet and drove the huge nail far into the tie, a powerful squirt of melted snow instantly darted back at him, covering his long beard and immaculate clothes in the most unexpected and embarrassing fashion. But his lordship did not forget to join in the chorus of half-smothered merriment that burst forth at his expense.

Ontario Growing.

Although for the past number of years the growth of the population of Ontario has remained practically at a standstill, the turning-point has been reached and from now on a steady rise in the population of this province is to be looked forward to.

This is the opinion of two of the leading immigration officials of Ontario, and from present indications is an undisputable fact. Up to this year the tide of migration from Ontario to the west has more than balanced the number of new arrivals coming in, and, while some of the cities of the province have grown, the decrease in rural population has been greater and the total population of Ontario, practically speaking, has remained stationary.

THE LOST PLEIAD

Beautiful Old Myth Founded on Fact

The brilliant star cluster just rising over the horizon to the east in the late autumn evenings, variously known as the Hen and Her Chickens, the Little Dipper, or the Pleiades, was the subject of an interesting instructive talk at the Dominion Observatory at Ottawa, by Mr. W. E. Harper. The myths connected with this beautiful constellation Mr. Harper thinsk are founded on fact, and he advanced some very convincing arguments. That one of the seven stars disappeared long ago that this myth is vitally connected by tradition with the fortunes of the human race, he showed by relating the myth's spread everywhere from Britain to Japan, for the Great Lakes to South America. He pointed out too, that the Biblical account of the Deluge makes it take place exactly at the time of the rising of the Phieades, that the Ancient Britons extinguished all lights on the island on this night and held a feast of the dead; that the feast of lanterns in Japan, the ceremonies of the native Australians, the fetich worshippers of the Gold Coast and the traditions of the South American Indians all pointed to a star falling out of the Pleiades and some great disaster to the human race accompanying it, in fact that modern astronomical research shows it is highly probable some such thing really occurred in the Pleiades at some far off time. The classic myths of the Pleiades being the daughters of Atlas, grieving to see their father groaning under the heavy burden of the globe on his shoulders; of Electra and Merope; the pretty Onondaga legend of the white warrior and the dancing children; the coincidence of the Church feast of All Souls and the Hallowe'en celebration with the rising of the Pleiades, their connection with the great pyramids of Egypt—even their mention in Job, in what Mr. Harper considers some of the finest passages in literature, interested the large audience greatly

TEMPLE BAND WAS APPRECIATED

Campbellford Herald.

Large crowds greeted the Peterborough Salvation Army silver band at all the meetings in which they engaged on Saturday and Sunday. The musical festival in the opera house on Saturday night was well attended and the program was of an exceptionally high order. The people of Campbellford have learned to appreciate the excellent music dispensed by this band as was evidenced by the crowds at all the services. We trust that the local corps have made well financially by the visit of their Peterborough comrades, and wish them success in their good work.

Alliance To Take It Up.

Toronto, Oct. 31.—Rev. W. H. Hincks, B.A., D.D., of Broadway Tabernacle, left Toronto yesterday in response to a cabled invitation to represent Canada at the annual meeting of the Evangelical Alliance of Great Britain, which will be held in London, Eng., on Nov. 19. Dr. Hincks will be the official representatives of the Canadian Evangelical Alliance on this occasion, and, it is expected, will take a prominent part in the proceedings.

At this gathering all questions affecting religious liberty throughout the Empire will be discussed and dealt with through their proper channels.

Unfortunate Omission.

One of the most singular instances of punishment for an oversight was that shown by the commitment of an almanac maker to the Bastille in 1717. It was made out by order of the Duke of Orleans, regent during the minority of Louis V. of France, and read as follows: "Laurence d'Henry, for disrespect to King George I. in not mentioning him in his almanac as king of Great Britain." How long this unlucky almanac maker remained in prison is unknown. The register of the Bastille, examined at the time of the revolution, failed to throw any light on the subject.

He Died Anyhow.

This was the way a native physician in India filled out a death certificate: "I am of a mind that he died (or lost his life) for want of foodings or on account of starvation. Maybe also for other things or comfortables, and most probably he died by drowning."

I have just received from you cheque in settlement of indemnity for injuries received while at camp some weeks ago. I wish to thank the Company through you for the very prompt settlement of this claim and would be glad if you would express to them my appreciation of the prompt settlement. I was more than surprised to receive about $125.00 additional indemnity on account of the bonus which has been added to my policy during the past few years, especially when this feature of the policy did not cost any additional permium.

A HERO OF PEACE.

The Late Maxime Mireault Died of the Plague He Fought.

If, as Carlyle puts it, heroism is the divine relation which unites great men to other men, admiration of all Canadians must go out to the late Mr. Maxime Mireault, who acted as tuberculosis inspector of the Royal Edward Institute in Montreal. For a martyr and hero has fallen in the combat against the white plague and the work which he has done in the interests of thousands of consumptive patients during the past decade will long be recalled by those actively engaged in the local anti-tuberculosis fight, says The Montreal Standard.

A pioneer in the actual field work carried on by the Anti-Tuberculosis League and the Royal Edward Institute, he remained at his post till the last, abandoning work through sheer exhaustion but a month before his death. Stricken with the fell disease after giving years of valuable service in the interest of its victims, he was forced to face a grim alternative. On the one hand, as the sole breadwinner for a young family, with no resources beyond the meagre remuneration afforded him by the city authorities, he could not abandon work. On the other, his long experience told him that a continuance of his labors could have but one ending.

He chose the latter and the determination of the man may be judged by the fact that, when recently, he fell exhausted in a cot at the Royal Edward Institute, he was in such a weakened state that he could no longer stand. Then and only then, was it that he consented to give in to the earnest solicitation of his friends and associates who had been urging him for some time to abandon his work. After spending a few days at the institute, he was removed to his home. His decline was rapid and the end came peacefully as the daily press announced a short time ago.

The late inspector became associated with the work of the Anti-Tuberculosis League some nine years ago, when the city authorities decided to interest themselves in the propaganda set on foot by the League. Mr. Mireault was selected by the City Health Department, as a result of a competitive examination, and was placed at the disposal of the League as inspector, with instructions to visit all cases of consumption arising in the city. According to the officials of the League no better selection could have been made.

A man of education and unfailing courtesy, he was the one needed to put into practice the recommendations advanced by the League in regard to the proper care and precautions to be taken in connection with the treatment of tuberculosis and he forthwith entered life and soul into the work. His broad sympathy and consummate diplomacy soon endeared him both to the officials of the League and to the thousands of patients and their families, on whom, by reason of his position, he necessarily called. At first he had to contend with much apathy on the part of his charges and their families.

The idea of the League in regard to fresh air, sputum cups, and other precautions were qualified as newfangled. Popular prejudice was deep rooted. Yet the indefatigable inspector never lost courage. Painstaking to a degree, he gained the confidence of the many patients, and soon a change was noticeable. In his relations with the stricken ones he bore about him none of that cold officiality often met with in the case of public functionaries. He entered into each new situation presented by his numerous daily visits, shared the sorrows and hopes of the stricken one and his family, and soon became recognized as a true [illegible] of consumptives throughout the city.

As the city territory spread, and the League was enabled to extend operations, thanks to the establishment of the Royal Edward Institute, the field of operations of the inspector widened—and herein lies the cause of his collapse. Taxing his energy to the utmost he endeavored, under the new conditions, to perform the same work that he had successfully carried on on a more restricted scale. The result was fatal.

The Legal Mind.

"I don't see how a lawyer can enjoy a ball game under the present rules."

"What would a lawyer want?"

"I should think they'd want to stop the game after every decision and have it argued and ruled on, with a court of appeals sitting constantly on the side lines."—Kansas City Journal.

Amaryllis.

Back where dandelions grow
  Lives my Amaryllis.
From her head to tip of toe
I love my Amaryllis.

She is plain as plain can be,
But she's style enough for me.
A dearer one you'll rarely see
  Than Amaryllis.

Through the woods and o'er the fields
  Roams my Amaryllis,
Ecstasy her sweet voice yields—
  Amaryllis.

Oft she lies there in the sun,
Gayly thinking happy one.
Glad the day is nearly done—
  Amaryllis.

I've been offered prices great
  For Amaryllis,
But to sell I somehow hate—
  Amaryllis.

For to part I don't know how.
All my folks would kick, I trow.
So I guess I'll keep my cow—
  Amaryllis.

A Question of Weights.

Senator Borah was talking at a dinner in Boise about an embarrassing question that had been asked at Chicago.

"The question," he said, smiling, "went unanswered. It was like little Willie's query.

"A young gentleman was spending the week end at little Willie's cottage at Atlantic City, and on Sunday evening after dinner, there being a scarcity of chairs on the crowded piazza, the young gentleman took Willie on his lap.

"Then during a pause in the conversation little Willie looked up at the young gentleman and piped:

"'Am I as heavy as sister Mabel?'"
—New York Tribune.

"No Successor?"

[The Cubs * * * smiled when they read that the refrain 'Tinker to Evers to Chance' would have no successor.—Collier's Weekly.]

This is a slogan that thrills to the ear:
  "Wagner to Yerkes to Stahl."
More or less trio, o nehm' es von mir,
  "Wagner to Yerkes to Stahl."
Three of the niftiest ball playing gents
Ever referred to as "stonewall defense."
Slip them a lyrical laurel wreath—hence,
  "Wagner to Yerkes to Stahl."

—New York Mail.

Embarrassment of Riches.

"What are you puzzling about?" "I'm writing a sketch for vaudeville on the current political situation." "Well, you ought to have plenty of good stuff to put in." "That isn't what puzzles me. I've got so much good stuff I don't know what to leave out."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

One of the most singular instances of punishment for an oversight was that shown by the commitment of an almanac maker to the Bastille in 1717. It was made out by order of the Duke of Orleans, regent during the minority of Louis V. of France, and read as follows: "Laurence d'Henry, for disrespect to King George I. in not mentioning him in his almanac as king of Great Britain." How long this unlucky almanac maker remained in prison is unknown. The register of the Bastille, examined at the time of the revolution, failed to throw any light on the subject.

He Died Anyhow.

This was the way a native physician in India filled out a death certificate: "I am of a mind that he died (or lost his life) for want of foodings or on account of starvation. Maybe also for other things or comfortables, and most probably he died by drowning."

Dear Sir,

I have just received from you cheque in settlement of indemnity for injuries received while at camp some weeks ago. I wish to thank the Company through you for the very prompt settlement of this claim and would be glad if you would express to them my appreciation of the prompt settlement. I was more than surprised to receive about $125.00 additional indemnity on account of the bonus which has been added to my policy during the past few years, especially when this feature of the policy did not cost any additional permium.

Very truly yours,

No Strike of the Journeymen Tailors as Reported

It has been reported that the tailors of the city had struck for higher prices and that the merchants have agreed to the price list. On enquiry to the leading merchant tailors of the city a Review reporter learned that with the exception of one place where the tailors laid off work for one morning, there was no strike.

Merchant tailors received from the Tailors' Union an increased price list which gave the same prices for tweeds and worsteds. They did not agree to this and sent to the Union a classification of tweeds, or in other words, a different price for tweeds and worsteds.

At a special meeting held in the Trades and Labor Hall the Journeymen Tailors voted that the classification of tweeds be received and the Merchant Tailors signed the new price list. The new prices range about 25 per cent. higher all round.

Y.W.C.A. THE SCENE OF GAY GATHERING

Young Ladies Made the Most of Hallowe'en Program

It is very improbable that any Hallowe'en entertainment proved more genuinely enjoyable or successful than that held in the comfortable rooms of the Y.W.C.A., on Simcoe street last evening. Forty young ladies were in masquerade costume, some of them being dressed in male attire. Ghostly lights shone out from Jack O' Lanterns, pumpkins, and witches heads. The bulk of the program was held in the gymnasium which was prettily adorned.

A very charming feature was the one act comedy farce representation of Scott's celebrated poem Lochinvar. Ten young ladies impersonated in costume the characters and performed so ably and yet so ludiciously that the presentation was a scream from start to finish.

The young ladies in the cast were the Messrs. Munnock, Gamble, Clark Jackson, Bowles, Forsyth, Rose, Floyd, Smith and Carmichael.

Refreshments and games furnished the remainder of the entertainment.

THE PARTNERSHIP SCHEME DETAILED BY PRESIDENT

The Situation Summed up so Far as the Joint Working Proposition is Concerned Between the Power Co. and City

In an interview with Mr. J. G. G. Kerry, President of the Electric Power Company, yesterday, he said—

You will note that in the proposal submitted to the city, the Company contemplates spending up to one million dollars in Peterborough.

We have had in consideration particularly extensions of the Radial Railway system and have studied and made estimates upon the following extensions—

1. From George street corner across the Hunter street bridge to Ward 5. The construction of this extension has been delayed owing to the fact that the Hunter street bridge is not adapted to carrying street car traffic.

2. An extension from George street near Central square via McDonnel street, up to the communication to Chemong, with a future extension out to Bridgenorth.

3. The extension of the Charlotte street line in direct westerly direction.

4. The extension southerly in Monaghan Township as far as the Otonabee river.

We have also been considering an extension of the service to Lakefield and have been endeavoring to interest the Grand Trunk Railway in the electrification or in the leasing to us of its Lakefield branch

In connection with the electric lighting system, in view of the rapid growth of Peterborough, we have in mind the construction of a large central distributing station which will involve the capital outlay of approximately $50,000, and will be designed on somewhat similar lines to those adopted for the construction of the central distribution station at Oshawa, but will, of course, need to be of considerably greater capacity. The Oshawa station was designed for the capacity of 5,000 H. P.

We have also had under consideration the remodelling of a part of the distribution system with some underground work in the centre of the city, provision for such construction having been made in the franchise granted to us in 1910. This work taken together with necessary modern lighting fixtures will cost between $40,000 and $50,000.

We have also been preparing plans for the construction of a modern coal gas generating plant which, together with the pipe lines necessary to meet the increasing demand, will require an expenditure between $65,000 and $75,000.

I have recently been examining the returns of the Peterborough plants for the last five years, and found that the records showed an increase both in the electric lighting business and in the street railway, of something less than 50 p.c., while the increase in the gas consumption for the same period was over 80 p.c. We are, therefore, looking forward to a very material expansion of this public utility.

We intend to construct a coal gas plant. In a modern gas plant it is desirable to have equipment for manufacturing both coal gas and water gas, the steady demand being carried by the coal gas equipment with some assistance from the water gas plant, during peak hours.

For a city the size of Peterborough and placed as Peterborough is we expect to effect some economy in our gas costs by the change owing to the fact that Peterborough offers a large market for the principal by-product of a coal gas plant, namely, coke. Coal gas coke for house purposes, is practically as valuable as fuel as anthracite, but usually commands a price of only five dollars per ton as compared with anthracite, which is now selling at about $8.00. We therefore, think that a very ready sale for coke will be found in this city.

The suggestion has been made that the city of Peterborough is now large enough to justify the issue of workingmen's tickets during limited hours at the usual rate of eight for twenty-five cents.

Our experience over considerable sections of this continent has indicated in cities of less than 25,000 it is difficult to maintain a street car service without actual loss. Our experience in Peterborough has been been better than this general opinion would indicate and this we attribute to the very great commercial activity of your city and to its large working population.

In the event of our partnership proposition the question of three-cent fares will unquestionably come before the new Board for consideration and so far as I am personaly concerned I am quite in favor of adopting such a rate, although the immediate results would undoubtedly be disappointing.

In regard to rates it is contemplated that the electric rates for Peterborough will be finally determined by reference to the Hydro-Electric Commission. We adopted for Peterborough something over a year ago the standard Hydro-Electric rates for house service. The purchase of electric light under these rates which were widely advertised in the newspapers at the time is, of course voluntary with the consumer as the charges are not made on the basis fixed by our franchise The principle of these rates is a small house charge plus a charge for current consumed of 3c. per kilowatt hour and they are now in use by a number of consumers in Peterborough. In view of the advantageous position in Peterborough it is possible that by investigation the Commission may find that circumstances justify the fixing of an even lower rate here than it has authorized in other municipalities but as we explained to your City Council at the recent Conference, we are content to leave the fixing of these rates in the hands of the Commission. So far as I am personally concerned, I am inclined to favor an extension of the flat rate service which has been so largely used in Peterborough with the result that it is questionable whether there is any city in Canada in which so large a proportion of the citizens use electric light as in your city. The proper provision to prevent unnecessary waste of electric current on the flat rate system is a fair one both to the consumer and to the Company furnishing the service. When the rates to be fixed under the new arrangement are under discussion we shall certainly oppose the entire abandonment of the flat rate system which has been so long in use in Peterborough and which we understand to be very popular with consumers who have made their contracts under this method.

So far as I know flat rates do not appear in any of the schedules published by the Hydro-Electric Municipalities all that I have seen having provided for payment on a meter basis. I do not think it likely however, that the Commission would order an independent Company to adopt its usual form of contract exclusively.

FOUR GATES OF LOCKS SMASHED

High Wind Was Partly Responsible For the Damage.

St. Catharines, Nov. 2.—The small steamer Samuel Marshall, owned by the Central Canada Coal Co., Brockville, carried away four gates at lock 13, yesterday afternoon, and also crashed into a swing bridge just below, unshipping the turning gear, putting the bridge out of commission, shutting off travel on the St. David's Road, and blocking navigation.

A high wind prevailed when the steamer was endeavoring to enter the lock, which was largely responsible for the wreck. It is expected that the channel will be open for navigation again to-day.

The steamer was light, bound for a cargo of coal.

POLE WENT TO JAIL FOR WEEK

Toronto, Nov. 2.—John Henrickson, a Pole, spent a week in the Toronto jail at the direction of Magistrate Denison because he did not understand what that legal question meant, "Will you be tried summarily or by the next court of competent jurisdiction?" While the Pole was digesting it the magistrate put a coating on by ordering him to jail for one week to "think it over." This happened last Saturday.

Yesterday it was discovered, when the Pole explained, that he was not guilty of the charge of false pretences preferred against him by B. Axler. The magistrate dismissed the prisoner with the advice that the plaintiff would have to sue to recover his money, as it was only an overdue debt.

London, Nov. 2— According to reports, now arriving of the battle between Turkish and Bulgarian armies in the south eastern corner of the Balkan peninsula, four hundred thousand men have been enagegd in a life and death struggle, which is still in progress. The Turks offered stubborn resitance and losses are enormous on both sides. Nothing official as to final stages of the battle have yet come through, but Sofia reports the Bulgarians as having carried everything before them. Christian soldiers in the Turkish army continue to desert in great numbers, claiming they were always placed in front in the line of battle.

Athens, Nov. 2—The inhabitants of the Turkish town Niausta have expelled Turkish officials and have invited the Greek Crown Prince to occupy the town promising bread rations for twenty-five thousand, daily

Constantinople, Nov. 2.—Whatever the issue of the terrible battle now raging on the western slopes of the Istrandia Mountains in Thrace, it undoubtedly will be reckoned among the world's great struggles. Almost uninterruptedly for four days and three nights the battle has proceeded, the waning moon having afforded sufficient light at night for the armies to continue their murderous onslaught against each other. The Turk and the Bulgar are locked in a grapple which will be broken only by the decisive defeat of one or the other.

Early this morning it was reported that fighting had been suspended by the Turkish and Bulgarian armies, the men of both of which were suffering from fatigue from the battle that had been in progress continuously for four days.

Seven thousand more wounded men are expected to arrive here from the front to-day.

The complete dearth of news from the front Wednesday and Thursday had given rise to a feeling of despondency and sensational rumors of Turkish reverses gained currency. Yesterday official reports proved these rumors to be unfounded. Telegrams from various sources gave favorable accounts of the military situation and the troops commanded by Mahmoud Mukhtar in the vicinity of Visa were especially commended.

The Turkish forces were reported not merely to have been holding their own, but to have effected an important advance which was threatening the Bulgarian rear. If the Turkish column joins hands with the garrison at Adrianople the Bulgarian army will be practically surrounded and its position very desperate.

It is alleged that, realizing the gravity of the situation, the Bulgarian commanders have withdrawn the army at Kustenje and their force before Adrianople and that these troops are being hurried to support the main Bulgarian army's centre.

Some idea of the desperate nature of the fighting is gathered from the fact that over 5,000 wounded soldiers arrived here last night from the front. Fortunately a majority of the bullets drilled clean holes in their victims and these will heal rapidly. A batch of deserters arrived with the wounded.

Much indignation and surprise was expressed here over the fact that a Greek torpedo boat had succeeded in entering the Gulf of Soloniki Thursdya night despite the mines and heavily-armed forts, and blown up the Turkish battleship Feth-I-Bulend. The commandant of the forts will be called to account for permitting this Greek incursion.

The movement of troops to the front continues. A battalion of Kurdish and Albanian volunteers marched through the streets of Pera last evening on the way to the railway station. They were frequently cheered and appeared to be in the best of spirits.

As a result of a meeting Thursday of the heads of the diplomatic missions to consider the situation in Constantinople the Marquis de Ballovicini, the Austrian-Hungarian ambassador and dean of the diplomatic corps, yesterday visited Noradunghian Effendi, the Foreign Ministers, and called his attention to the necessity that adequate measures be taken to maintain order in the capital in the event of further Turkish reverses in the despatch of an army division to stay all fugitive soldiers between Tchataija and Constantinople. The city, however, at present is quite tranquil and orderly. Business is proceeding as usual, although the keenest interest is being taken in the military drama in Thracian Hills, in striking contrast to the feeling of indifference evinced in Turkey's war with Italy.

Turkish Vessel Sunk.

Constantinople, Nov. 2.—The commander of the Feth-I-Bulent, which was sunk by a Greek torpedo boat, telegraphs that nearly all the crew of the warship was saved.

He reports that the Greek torpedo boat entered the harbor unexpectedly at midnight and launched two torpedoes at the stern of the Turkish vessel, which began to sink immediately.

The commander, three engineers and four bluejackets were thrown into the water, where they were rescued by fishing boats. The boilers of the Feth-I-Bulent exploded as she sank.

The Feth-I-Bulent saw active service in the Danube under Hobart Pasha during the Russo-Turkish war of 1878-9.

STEAMER GOES DOWN; MANY LIVES LOST

The Ceclia Founders in Bad Storm on Lake Superior---Women and Children Are Drowned---Captain's Son Among the Men Survivors.

Special To The Review.

Montreal, Nov. 2. — The steamer Cecelia, foundered in a heavy storm on Lake St. Louis, ten miles from here this morning. So far as is known sixteen, comprising men, women and children were drowned. The only four passengers, all men, were saved. The Cecleia was a steamer of one hundred and twenty-five tons, plying between Valleyfield and Montreal, and encountered a gale after getting beyond the Lachine Canal. About seven o'clock she got beyond control and was dashed by a fifty-mile-an-hour gale on the rocky south shore of Ile Perrot with such force that it smashed the wooden hull to fragments and dashed the passengers into the water without the slightest preparation. Shrieks of men clinging to the wreckage attracted the attention of Alex. Leonard, a farmer, who put out in a sail boat and brought ashore Lionel Ledue, son of Capt. Jean Ledue, who went down with his vessel; A. Gosslin and E. H. Ballarger, of Valleyfield, and Felix Cousineau, St. Clet. He searched all night for other survivors but without success.

Although the search has been kept up all day for bodies, only one, that of a man, was found up to noon. It was several miles from the wreck. Survivors state the crash came suddenly and unexpectedly and there was no chance for anyone to assist another and all seized whatever wreckage lay nearest to hand. When the gale temporarily lulled the voices of children crying for aid while clinging to wreckage, could be heard.

DRASTIC CRITICISM AGAINST TORONTO POLICE SYSTEM

Resolutions of Condemnation Are Adopted at Big Meeting.

THE PUBLIC MORALS

Magistrate Denison Makes Statement on Behalf of the Police.

Special To The Review.

Toronto, Nov. 2—Referring to the criticism of the police at the mass meeting of citizens last night, Magistrate Denison this morning said —"For the past thirty years the police have cleaned out all recognized bawdy houses, chased inmates from place to place, and had them convicted by hundreds and sent to jail. This course has been pursued partly at the suggestion of the Ministerial Association, and the result is the scattering of evil throughout the city. Disreputable women dodge the police and keep under cover, but vice goes on just the same. Crimes against nature have increased and there has been apalling increase in crimes against little girls."

Toronto, Nov. 2.—Three thousand five hundred people gathered in Massey Hall last night in order to hear views of the city's police conditions as laid out by the movers of resolutions of a citizens' committee, and by their well-nigh unanimous endorsation of each resolution in turn showed beyond question that they heartily and vigorously agreed with each and all of the findings of this committee as set out in those resolutions. There were upon the platform from every walk of business and social life, and the addresses made presented the problem of social vice, together with its relation to police administration from the angle of many and varied professions and callings.
